Effect of Divorce

Duty under statute did not cease upon separation or divorce of parents. Mell v. Mell, 190 Ga. 508, 9 S.E.2d 756 (1940).

Fact that father, subsequent to divorce decree, voluntarily assumed additional obligation of second family by marriage did not authorize termination of obligation to daughter by former marriage, especially since it was shown that the income of the father had substantially increased since the date of the alimony decree. Strickland v. Strickland, 220 Ga. 69, 137 S.E.2d 31 (1964).

Duty of parents to support their children is joint and several and does not cease upon separation or divorce of the parents. Collins v. Collins, 172 Ga. App. 748, 324 S.E.2d 475 (1984).

Divorce decree cannot waive a minor child's right to support. International Indem. Co. v. Collins, 258 Ga. 236, 367 S.E.2d 786 (1988).

Noncustodial parent's support obligation. — Award of custody pursuant to divorce decree does not relieve noncustodial parent of support obligation. Garrett v. Garrett, 172 Ga. 812, 159 S.E. 255 (1931).

Child support required in divorce decree. — Obligation of support for child can be made a requirement of divorce decree. Jenkins v. Jenkins, 233 Ga. 902, 214 S.E.2d 368 (1975).

Trial court's discretion regarding child support. — In divorce action, trial court is vested with wide discretion regarding child support and should take into consideration the needs of the child and station of life of the parties. McClain v. McClain, 237 Ga. 80, 227 S.E.2d 5 (1976).

Award of child support substitutes for support required of parent by statute. Golden v. Golden, 230 Ga. 867, 199 S.E.2d 796 (1973); Clavin v. Clavin, 238 Ga. 421, 233 S.E.2d 151 (1977).

Divorce court may not require parent to provide life insurance for benefit of child absent voluntary assumption of such obligation. Clavin v. Clavin, 238 Ga. 421, 233 S.E.2d 151 (1977).

Month child attains majority included in support payment. — Decree ordering child support payment to include month child attains majority is illegal on the order's face. Kimble v. Kimble, 240 Ga. 100, 239 S.E.2d 676 (1977).

Custodial parent acquires no interest in support awarded to children. — When alimony is awarded to support minor children, custodial parent acquires no interest in the funds as such parent is a mere trustee charged with the duty of seeing that the funds are applied solely for the benefit of the children. Custodial parent cannot consent to reduction or remission of alimony, and ordinarily cannot relieve the other parent of paying alimony as directed by the court. O'Neil v. Williams, 232 Ga. 170, 205 S.E.2d 226 (1974).

Child support, unlike alimony, is always subject to revision under modification statute, even though entered into by contractual agreement. McClain v. McClain, 237 Ga. 80, 227 S.E.2d 5 (1976).

Modification action as exclusive remedy for obtaining additional support. — When the divorce decree does, at the very least, address a question concerning the liability of the noncustodial parent for child-support-obligation items, a modification action under O.C.G.A. § 19-6-19 is the custodial parent's exclusive remedy in regard to supplementing the decree with a provision obligating the noncustodial parent to pay additional child support. Conley v. Conley, 259 Ga. 68, 377 S.E.2d 663 (1989).

When parties may contract to settle child support. — Parties may enter into a written contract during the pendency of a divorce or alimony suit to settle child support for minor children and when such a contract is approved by the court and incorporated into the final divorce decree, the contract is fully enforceable as an adjudication on that issue. If support is sought for a child who has passed the age of majority, the agreement must contain specific language stating that support will continue. Crawford v. Kalman, 166 Ga. App. 712, 305 S.E.2d 442 (1983).

Contract may not provide for custody of child already reaching majority. — If a child has already reached the age of majority before a support agreement is signed, a provision awarding custody of the child to one of the child's parents is null and void. Crawford v. Kalman, 166 Ga. App. 712, 305 S.E.2d 442 (1983).

Promise to pay child support for non-biological child. — Trial court erred by requiring an ex-spouse to pay child support for a child of whom the ex-spouse was not the biological parent of, despite allegedly promising to pay, because the trial court incorrectly applied the doctrine of promissory estoppel to the agreement as there was no evidence that the promise to pay support caused the parent/ex-spouse of the child to forego, in reliance upon such promise, a valuable legal right to the actual parent's/ex-spouse's detriment. Garcia v. Garcia,

Periodic support payments do not constitute penalty. — Requirement of periodic support payments is not, strictly speaking, in nature of a penalty, but is merely enforcement of a legal obligation by summary process, and it cannot be imposed as a penalty or punishment since the purpose of the order is to secure a reasonable allowance for the wife's support. Hudson v. State, 248 Ga. 397, 283 S.E.2d 271 (1981).

Modification action as exclusive remedy for obtaining additional support. — When the divorce decree does, at the very least, address a question concerning the liability of the noncustodial parent for child-support-obligation items, a modification action under O.C.G.A. § 19-6-19 is the custodial parent's exclusive remedy in regard to supplementing the decree with a provision obligating the noncustodial parent to pay additional child support. Conley v. Conley, 259 Ga. 68, 377 S.E.2d 663 (1989).

Because: (1) a settlement agreement between a mother and father was not silent as to child support; and (2) an action for modification was the exclusive remedy for obtaining a provision supplementing the child support award contained in a divorce judgment, the trial court correctly treated the father's request to establish child support as one for modification. Drake v. Drake, 279 Ga. App. 576, 632 S.E.2d 165 (2006).

Application1. In General

Voluntary contract of relinquishment of parental control must be supported by legal consideration, which is sufficient when third person, who claims right to child's custody under voluntary contract with parent, has assumed all responsibility of child's maintenance, education, and protection. Waldrup v. Crane, 203 Ga. 388, 46 S.E.2d 919 (1948).

Execution of a surrender of parental rights by father did not release him from his support obligation because there was no court order providing for the adoption of his children or otherwise terminating his support obligation. Department of

Person to whom parental rights are alienated. — When parental duty and control is lost or alienated to third person by any of the means recognized by law, then such third person stands in loco parentis to the child, and duty and obligation to provide for the child's welfare and protection devolves upon such third person. Waldrup v. Crane, 203 Ga. 388, 46 S.E.2d 919 (1948).

Application to termination of parental rights. — Because the Department of Children and Families presented sufficient evidence of a father's neglect of two children, lack of any meaningful parental bond, repeated incarceration, and failure to pay child support, the juvenile court, when coupled with the father's acknowledgment that the children thrived in the current placement, was authorized to find that sufficient evidence was presented to support a finding that deprivation of the two children by the father was likely to continue and that termination of the father's parental rights was in the children's best interest; furthermore, a claim that the father lacked knowledge of, and was not directed to pay child support, was irrelevant in light of the directive found in O.C.G.A. § 19-7-2 that a parent had a statutory duty to pay child support, with or without a court order. In the Interest of T.C., 281 Ga. App. 137, 635 S.E.2d 395 (2006).

While the evidence showed that a mother failed to pay child support while her son was in foster care, the juvenile court did not address whether that failure was "without justifiable cause," as required by former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-94(b)(4)(C) (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-11-310) in order to authorize the termination of the mother's rights. There was nothing in the numerous reunification plans, progress reports, and court orders that notified the mother of her obligation to pay child support, let alone any notice of how much to pay, when, and to whom. In the Interest of D. P., 326 Ga. App. 101, 756 S.E.2d 207 (2014).

Abandonment and wrongful death. — Father lacked standing to recover for the child's wrongful death pursuant to

O.C.G.A. §§ 19-7-1(c) and 51-4-4 as the father abandoned the child pursuant to § 19-7-1(b)(3); the father never supported the child, nor did the father ever visit the child in the many years after the child's hospitalization in infancy, there was no evidence that the father attempted to learn where the child resided in order to initiate visitation or support, and the father was obligated under O.C.G.A. § 19-7-2 to support the child, even though the divorce decree did not require support. Baker v. Sweat, 281 Ga. App. 863, 637 S.E.2d 474 (2006).

On death of parent having custody under divorce decree, right to custody automatically inures to surviving parent. Raily v. Smith, 202 Ga. 185, 42 S.E.2d 491 (1947).

Effect of custody agreement on obligation to Department of Human Resources. — Custody agreement between a father and his children's maternal grandmother did not relieve the father of any obligation to reimburse the Department of Human Resources for public assistance benefits payments made on behalf of his children. Department of Human Resources v. Prince, 198 Ga. App. 329, 401 S.E.2d 342 (1991).

Father's alleged support erroneously deemed to meet support obligations. — When the plaintiff brought a petition to adopt defendant's child, and the trial court found that although the defendant had legitimated the child in New York where the New York court had not entered a support order on behalf of the child, but for a period of 12 months prior to the filing of the plaintiff's petition, the defendant sent $20.00 in child support to his child and clothing valued at $8.99, had a gross income of $13,163, had not seen the child for more than one year, but did make telephone calls to check on the child's welfare on various occasions, the trial court used an erroneous legal theory in concluding that the defendant had not failed to provide for the care and support of his child as required by O.C.G.A. § 19-7-2. Pacella v. Sanchez, 191 Ga. App. 611, 382 S.E.2d 371 (1989).

Failure to support child as abandonment under § 19-10-1. — Failure to comply with duty to support child imposed by former Code 1933, 74-105 (see now O.C.G.A. § 19-7-2) constituted intentional and willful voluntary abandonment within the meaning of former Code 1933, § 74-9902 (see now O.C.G.A. § 19-10-1). Williamson v. State, 138 Ga. App. 306, 226 S.E.2d 102 (1976).

When court may subsequently modify support order. — Since order entered in prosecution for abandonment is not a final order, modification of order for periodic payments in favor of wife, either by increase, decrease, or total discontinuance, is within the discretion of the court, and such order will be modified when the financial conditions of the parties change or other proper reasons exist. Hudson v. State, 248 Ga. 397, 283 S.E.2d 271 (1981).

Child support separate from divorce action. — Although the complaint in the divorce action did not seek child support, the custodial spouse was not barred from enforcing the responsibility of the non-custodial spouse to support the child, and the custodial spouse may institute an original action for an award of child support. Hackbart v. Hackbart, 272 Ga. 26, 526 S.E.2d 840 (2000).

Deprivation of children supported by lack of parental support. — Trial court's determination that the children's deprivation for purposes of O.C.G.A. § 15-11-94 resulted from the lack of proper parental care or control was supported by sufficient evidence that the mother did not pay any child support for her five children during the two years preceding the termination hearing, leaving the Department of Children and Families to support her children for two years; the mother had a statutory duty under O.C.G.A. § 19-7-2 to support her children, with or without a court order. In the Interest of J.J., 259 Ga. App. 159, 575 S.E.2d 921 (2003).

Mother's failure to contribute to a child's support was evidence supporting a finding of the lack of proper parental care or control as a cause of the child's deprivation for purposes of terminating the mother's parental rights. In the Interest of K.N., 272 Ga. App. 45, 611 S.E.2d 713 (2005).

Despite recent efforts made by the mother to comply with some of the case plan goals, the trial court was entitled to place more weight on negative past facts than positive promises as to the future and to find that the deprivation was likely to continue in light of the mother's past conduct; clear and convincing evidence established that the deprivation was likely to continue since the facts showed that the mother failed to complete the agency's reunification plan, failed to complete drug treatment, had repeated incarcerations, and failed to support the children as required by O.C.G.A. §§ 15-11-94(b)(4)(C)(ii) and 19-7-2. In the Interest of A.H., 278 Ga. App. 192, 628 S.E.2d 626 (2006).

Juvenile court's termination of a mother's parental rights over her child was proper pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 15-11-94 since her lack of proper parental care or control amounted to deprivation to the child under O.C.G.A. § 15-11-2 as she failed to establish a bond with the child or substantially complete any of the goals of her reunification plan, and she did not provide support to the child under O.C.G.A. § 19-7-2; further, the deprivation was deemed likely to continue, it would likely result in harm to the child, and the child's best interest was served by termination of the mother's rights as the child had formed a bond with the foster parent. In the Interest of J.D., 280 Ga. App. 861, 635 S.E.2d 226 (2006).

2. Education

Obligation to provide education beyond terms of compulsory law. — No means are provided to enforce obligation to provide education beyond terms of the compulsory attendance law. Jenkins v. Jenkins, 233 Ga. 902, 214 S.E.2d 368 (1975). (But see O.C.G.A. § 19-6-15(e), added in 1992).

No requirement to pay for education beyond age of majority. — Since a parent is not liable for child support or maintenance after a child achieves the age of majority, a divorced father's obligation to continue making support payments to his child depended upon the terms of the agreement between the parties in question as reflected in the divorce decree. Additionally, no requirement to pay for his child's education beyond the age of majority could be imposed by the court. Still v. Still, 199 Ga. App. 723, 405 S.E.2d 762 (1991). (But see O.C.G.A. § 19-6-15(e), added in 1992).

When college education may be considered a necessity. — Depending on the family's life style and economic situation, a college education may be considered a necessity. Coleman v. Coleman, 240 Ga. 417, 240 S.E.2d 870 (1977).

Court's modification of settlement agreement was error. — When divorced parties entered a settlement agreement that was incorporated into their divorce judgment that provided for the husband to pay college expenses for the parties' son, with the only limitation being that the amount was not to exceed the tuition that would be paid for in-state attendance at the University of Georgia, the trial court erred in imposing an 11-semester limitation on that obligation. Norris v. Norris, 281 Ga. 566, 642 S.E.2d 34 (2007).

Divorce decree may impose obligation to pay college expenses during minority. — Trial court has jurisdiction to include in the divorce decree a provision for educational funds including expenses for attending college during minority where circumstances of case warrant it. Coleman v. Coleman, 240 Ga. 417, 240 S.E.2d 870 (1977).

Termination of judicially imposed obligation to pay college expenses. — Any obligation imposed by the trial court's decree to provide educational funds including expenses for attending college terminates when the child reaches majority or marries. McClain v. McClain, 235 Ga. 659, 221 S.E.2d 561 (1975).

Any obligation to pay educational expenses of the child imposed by a decree terminates when the child reaches majority or marries. Coleman v. Coleman, 240 Ga. 417, 240 S.E.2d 870 (1977).

Distinction between alimony decree and contractual obligation to provide college education. — There is a significant difference between alimony decree rendered under law and contract providing for college education of children even after the children reach age of majority which is incorporated into alimony decree. The latter is enforceable as a contract. McClain v. McClain, 235 Ga. 659, 221 S.E.2d 561 (1975).

3. Medical Care and Expenses

Right to recover damages for child's injuries. — O.C.G.A. § 19-7-2 and case law make clear that the right to recover damages for a child's medical expenses vests solely in the child's parents, while the right to recover damages for pain and suffering vests in the child, not the parent. Grange Mut. Cas. Co. v. Kay, 264 Ga. App. 139, 589 S.E.2d 711 (2003).

Medical expenses incurred by reason of injury are necessities. Evans v. Caldwell, 52 Ga. App. 475, 184 S.E. 440 (1936), aff'd, 184 Ga. 203, 190 S.E. 582 (1937); Jarrett v. State Merit Sys. of Personnel Admin., 205 Ga. App. 527, 423 S.E.2d 1, cert. denied, 205 Ga. App. 900, 423 S.E.2d 1 (1992); Southern Guar. Ins. Co. v. Sinclair, 228 Ga. App. 386, 491 S.E.2d 843 (1997).

4. Property

Parents are not required to settle an estate upon child. — Parents' responsibility under former Code 1933, §§ 30-215, 30-207 and 74-105 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 19-6-13, 19-6-15, and 19-7-2) for support of child did not extend to awarding the child title to their property. Parents were not required to settle an estate upon the child. Clark v. Clark, 228 Ga. 838, 188 S.E.2d 487 (1972).

Reduction of parents' support obligation as a result of trust established by child's grandparent, the terms of which require use of trust funds for education and support of child during minority. McElrath v. Citizens & S. Nat'l Bank, 229 Ga. 20, 189 S.E.2d 49 (1972).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Whereabouts of minor child would clearly seem to fall within area of parental or guardianship responsibility and therefore primary responsibility for locating child who is absent from educational center or school on unauthorized basis would fall upon parents or other guardians or custodians. 1978 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 78-48.

Doicile of minor is that of minor's parents, but this can be altered when usual parental authority and control over minor is ended by voluntary or involuntary relinquishment. 1981 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U81-5.

19-7-3. "Grandparent" defined; original actions for visitation rights or intervention; revocation or amendment of visitation rights; appointment of guardian ad litem; mediation; hearing; notification of grandchild's participation in events.

(a) As used in this Code section, the term "grandparent" means the parent of a parent of a minor child, the parent of a minor child's parent who has died, and the parent of a minor child's parent whose parental rights have been terminated.

(b)(1) Except as otherwise provided in paragraph (2) of this subsection, any grandparent shall have the right to file an original action for visitation rights to a minor child or to intervene in and seek to obtain visitation rights in any action in which any court in this state shall have before it any question concerning the custody of a minor child, a divorce of the parents or a parent of such minor child, a termination of the parental rights of either parent of such minor child, or visitation rights concerning such minor child or whenever there has been an adoption in which the adopted child has been adopted by the child's blood relative or by a stepparent, notwithstanding the provisions of Code Section 19-8-19.

(2) This subsection shall not authorize an original action where the parents of the minor child are not separated and the child is living with both parents.

(c)(1) Upon the filing of an original action or upon intervention in an existing proceeding under subsection (b) of this Code section, the court may grant any grandparent of the child reasonable visitation rights if the court finds the health or welfare of the child would be harmed unless such visitation is granted and if the best interests of the child would be served by such visitation. In considering whether the health or welfare of the child would be harmed without such visitation, the court shall consider and may find that harm to the child is reasonably likely to result where, prior to the original action or intervention:

(A) The minor child resided with the grandparent for six months or more;

(B) The grandparent provided financial support for the basic needs of the child for at least one year;

(C) There was an established pattern of regular visitation or child care by the grandparent with the child; or

(D) Any other circumstance exists indicating that emotional or physical harm would be reasonably likely to result if such visitation is not granted.

The court shall make specific written findings of fact in support of its rulings.

(2) An original action requesting visitation rights shall not be filed by any grandparent more than once during any two-year period and shall not be filed during any year in which another custody action has been filed concerning the child. After visitation rights have been granted to any grandparent, the legal custodian, guardian of the person, or parent of the child may petition the court for revocation or amendment of such visitation rights, for good cause shown, which the court, in its discretion, may grant or deny; but such a petition shall not be filed more than once in any two-year period.

(3) While a parent's decision regarding grandparent visitation shall be given deference by the court, the parent's decision shall not be conclusive when failure to provide grandparent contact would result in emotional harm to the child. A court may presume that a child who is denied any contact with his or her grandparent or who is not provided some minimal opportunity for contact with his or her grandparent may suffer emotional injury that is harmful to such child's health. Such presumption shall be a rebuttable presumption.

(4) In no case shall the granting of visitation rights to a grandparent interfere with a child's school or regularly scheduled extracurricular activities. Visitation time awarded to a grandparent shall not be less than 24 hours in any one-month period.

(d) Notwithstanding the provisions of subsections (b) and (c) of this Code section, if one of the parents of a minor child dies, is incapacitated, or is incarcerated, the court may award the parent of the deceased, incapacitated, or incarcerated parent of such minor child reasonable visitation to such child during his or her minority if the court in its discretion finds that such visitation would be in the best interests of the child. The custodial parent's judgment as to the best interests of the child regarding visitation shall be given deference by the court but shall not be conclusive.

(e) If the court finds that the grandparent or grandparents can bear the cost without unreasonable financial hardship, the court, at the sole expense of the petitioning grandparent or grandparents, may:

(1) Appoint a guardian ad litem for the minor child; and

(2) Assign the issue of visitation rights of a grandparent for mediation.

(f) In the event that the court does not order mediation or upon failure of the parties to reach an agreement through mediation, the court shall fix a time for the hearing of the issue of visitation rights of the grandparent or grandparents.

(g) Whether or not visitation is awarded to a grandparent, the court may direct a custodial parent, by court order, to notify such grandparent of every performance of the minor child to which the public is admitted, including, but not limited to, musical concerts, graduations, recitals, and sporting events or games. JUDICIAL DECISIONS

APPLICATION

General Consideration

Unconstitutional. — O.C.G.A. § 19-7-3 is unconstitutional under both the state and federal constitutions because the statute does not clearly promote the health or welfare of the child and does not require a showing of harm before state interference is authorized. Brooks v. Parkerson, 265 Ga. 189, 454 S.E.2d 769 (1995).

Section not an exception to adoption statute terminating legal relationships. — O.C.G.A. § 19-7-3, which provides visitation rights for grandparents in certain situations, is not an exception to O.C.G.A. § 19-8-14, which operates to terminate all legal relationships between an adopted person and that person's relatives, when both the natural mother and father have released the child for adoption. Mitchell v. Erdmier, 253 Ga. 335, 320 S.E.2d 163 (1984).

"Grandparents' Bill of Rights" is not an exception to O.C.G.A. § 19-8-14. The only provision which grants grandparents visitation rights after an adoption is the limited one of the death of one parent, the remarriage of the surviving parent, followed by the adoption of the child by the stepparent. In other adoptions, the severance of relationships provision of § 19-8-14 controls, and no rights of visitation by former grandparents exist. Heard v. Coleman, 181 Ga. App. 899, 354 S.E.2d 164 (1987).

Construction of word "parent". — Limiting language of O.C.G.A. § 19-7-3(b), forbidding original actions for grandparent visitation if the parents are together and living with the child, includes adoptive parents because in the absence of language limiting the term "parent" to only "natural parents" or "biological parents," there is no legislative intent to withhold from adoptive parents the same constitutionally protected status enjoyed by biological parents to raise their children without state interference, and in construing O.C.G.A. § 19-7-3(b), the definition of parent in the adoption statute, O.C.G.A. § 19-8-1(6) and (8), which gives full legal status to adoptive parents, cannot be ignored; grandparents may have a sincere, beneficent interest in participating in their grandchildren's lives, and this interest often coincides with the best interest of the child, but beyond constitutional considerations, policy decisions addressing disputes between grandparents and parents are the province of the legislature. Bailey v. Kunz, 307 Ga. App. 710, 706 S.E.2d 98 (2011), aff'd, 290 Ga. 361, 720 S.E.2d 634 (2012).

Adoption compared to proceeding to terminate parental rights. — An adoption is not the equivalent to a proceeding to terminate parental rights within the meaning of O.C.G.A. § 19-7-3. Murphy v. McCarthy, 201 Ga. App. 101, 410 S.E.2d 198 (1991).

Grandparents' rights not affected by stepparent adoption. — Because O.C.G.A. § 19-8-19 provides for the termination of all legal relationships between an adopted child and his or her relatives, under O.C.G.A. § 19-7-3(b), grandparents' rights are not affected by an adoption by a stepparent. Lightfoot v. Hollins, 308 Ga. App. 538, 707 S.E.2d 491 (2011), overruled on other grounds, Kunz v. Bailey, 290 Ga. 361, 720 S.E.2d 634 (2012).

Amendment to custody petition as "original action for visitation rights". — Child custody action originated by a grandmother who sought visitation rights through an amendment to the custody petition was an "original action for visitation rights" within the meaning of O.C.G.A. § 19-7-3(b). Sewell v. Bill Johnson Motors, Inc., 213 Ga. App. 853, 446 S.E.2d 239 (1994).

Legislative intent of subsection (c). — General Assembly, by the enactment of O.C.G.A. § 19-7-3(c), has sought to limit the number of original actions for visitation which grandparents may file. Anderson v. Sanford, 198 Ga. App. 410, 401 S.E.2d 604 (1991).

Basis of grandparents' right to visitation with grandchildren. — Any right of grandparents to visitation with their grandchildren is based on Ga. L. 1976, p. 247, § 1 (see now O.C.G.A. § 19-7-3). Spitz v. Holland, 243 Ga. 9, 252 S.E.2d 406 (1979).

Grandparents have no right to visitation, but only a right to request privilege of visitation. Sachs v. Walzer, 242 Ga. 742, 251 S.E.2d 302 (1978).

Grant of visitation rights to grandparents is purely discretionary. — Statute allows court having before it a custody question to grant visitation to child's grandparents. However, any such grant is purely discretionary, and may be exercised only when the court is considering custody matters and finds that conditions are such that it is appropriate to allow this privilege to the grandparents. Sachs v. Walzer, 242 Ga. 742, 251 S.E.2d 302 (1978).

O.C.G.A. § 19-7-3 allows trial court discretion to grant or deny visitation rights to grandparents. Ryback v. Cobb County Dep't of Family & Children Servs., 163 Ga. App. 165, 293 S.E.2d 563 (1982); Welch v. Suggs, 175 Ga. App. 233, 333 S.E.2d 31 (1985).

Trial court did not abuse the court's discretion in denying visitation rights to grandparent since the court found that to grant visitation privileges would disturb present stability of the child and would probably result in severe emotional trauma. Ryback v. Cobb County Dep't of Family & Children Servs., 163 Ga. App. 165, 293 S.E.2d 563 (1982).

When section may be invoked. — It is only when custody questions are in issue that statute may be invoked. Spitz v. Holland, 243 Ga. 9, 252 S.E.2d 406 (1979).

Court may consider grant of visitation rights to grandparents only in cases when the court has before it a question concerning custody. Mead v. Owens, 149 Ga. App. 303, 254 S.E.2d 431 (1979).

O.C.G.A. § 19-7-3 only authorizes grandparents to intervene to obtain visitation rights in the proceedings specified in the section. Murphy v. McCarthy, 201 Ga. App. 101, 410 S.E.2d 198 (1991).

Specific findings of fact required. — Trial court's conclusory statement to the effect that the granddaughter's visitation with the maternal grandparents was in the granddaughter's best interests failed to set forth specific findings of fact supporting the trial court's grant of grandparent visitation; those findings enable a reviewing court to conduct an intelligent review of the merits of the visitation case, and absent those findings the case had to be vacated and the case remanded to the trial court for adequate findings. Rainey v. Lange, 261 Ga. App. 491, 583 S.E.2d 163 (2003).

Trial court erred in failing to rule upon a maternal grandfather's request for visitation with a mother's child because the trial court was required to apply O.C.G.A. § 19-7-3(c) and determine whether the grandfather had presented clear and convincing evidence that the health or welfare of the child would be harmed unless visitation was granted and whether the child's best interests would be served by allowing such visitation. Sheppard v. McCraney, 317 Ga. App. 91, 730 S.E.2d 721 (2012).

Trial court erred in failing to show that the court applied the proper evidentiary standard and in failing to include written findings of fact to support the court's broad, conclusory ruling as required by O.C.G.A. § 19-7-3(c)(1); the trial court stated only that the court had considered the entire record before concluding that the grandmother had shown, pursuant to § 19-7-3, that the health and welfare of the minor child would be harmed unless visitation was provided for the child with the grandmother. Van Leuvan v. Carlisle, 322 Ga. App. 576, 745 S.E.2d 814 (2013).

When grandparents seek modification of order denying grandparents custody. — Custody question arises when grandparents seek modification of habeas corpus order denying the grandparents custody. George v. Sizemore, 238 Ga. 525, 233 S.E.2d 779 (1977).

Grandparents' rights to bring action for custody not dependent on legitimation. — Although the definition of "grandparents" found in O.C.G.A. § 19-7-3(a) is limited to that Code section, outlining visitation rights for grandparents, the statute sheds light upon a grandparent's status as that of the parent of a parent; the paternal grandparents' right to bring an action for custody of a child was controlled by a showing that their son was the parent of the child, not by their son legitimating that child, and a trial court's order dismissing the paternal grandparents' custody action for lack of standing due to a void legitimation of the child was reversed. Reeves v. Hayes, 266 Ga. App. 297, 596 S.E.2d 668 (2004).

Grandparents' visitation deemed tried by consent when parent did not object. — Because a parent's only objection to the grandparents' visitation raised at the hearing was the parent's concern for advance notice by the grandparents before scheduling a visit, the parent failed to preserve any objection that the grandparents had failed to intervene in the action as contemplated by O.C.G.A. § 19-7-3(c), pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 9-11-15(b). Grove v. Grove, 296 Ga. 435, 768 S.E.2d 453 (2015).

Legislature's intent in enacting 1980 amendment to O.C.G.A. § 19-7-3 was to give grandparents standing to seek visitation in a situation in which their own child had lost his or her parental rights through death or termination. Smith v. Finstad, 247 Ga. 603, 277 S.E.2d 736 (1981).

Law as amended in 1980 applies retroactively, and reviewing court should apply law as the law exists at time of the court's judgment rather than law prevailing at rendition of judgment under review. Houston v. Houston, 156 Ga. App. 47, 274 S.E.2d 91 (1980).

Provisions of O.C.G.A. § 19-7-3 granting visitation rights to grandparents are retroactive. Ryback v. Cobb County Dep't of Family & Children Servs., 163 Ga. App. 165, 293 S.E.2d 563 (1982).

Retroactive application of section not unconstitutional. — Because no one may acquire a vested interest in custody of a minor child, no vested rights are affected by O.C.G.A. § 19-7-3 and, therefore, the statute's retroactive application is not unconstitutional. Smith v. Finstad, 247 Ga. 603, 277 S.E.2d 736 (1981).

1975 child custody award was not impermissible as a retroactive application of the 1976 statute. George v. Sizemore, 238 Ga. 525, 233 S.E.2d 779 (1977).

Cited in Dyer v. Allen, 238 Ga. 516, 233 S.E.2d 772 (1977); Rhodes v. Peacock, 142 Ga. App. 328, 235 S.E.2d 762 (1977); Goodwin v. Goodwin, 194 Ga. App. 147, 390 S.E.2d 247 (1990); Motes v. Love, 202 Ga. App. 749, 415 S.E.2d 334 (1992); Bergmann v. McCullough, 218 Ga. App. 353, 461 S.E.2d 544 (1995); Scott v. Scott, 311 Ga. App. 726, 716 S.E.2d 809 (2011).

Application

Child in temporary custody of paternal grandmother. — When a child was in the temporary custody of the child's paternal grandmother, the trial court erred in applying O.C.G.A. § 19-7-3 to the petition of the maternal grandmother for unsupervised visitation with her grandchild. Perrin v. Stansell, 243 Ga. App. 475, 533 S.E.2d 458 (2000).

In order to gain visitation rights with a grandchild who is in the temporary custody of a third party, i.e., another grandparent or a stranger, it is not necessary for the petitioning grandparent to prove that the child would be harmed without visitation; instead, the petitioner must demonstrate by a simple preponderance of the evidence that visitation is in the best interest of the child. Perrin v. Stansell, 243 Ga. App. 475, 533 S.E.2d 458 (2000).

Effect of intervention in deprivation proceeding. — Grandparents' intervention in a proceeding to determine deprivation did not bar their subsequent petition for visitation rights since there had been no previous adjudication of their right to visitation, nor had the grandparents brought any other action seeking visitation with their grandchildren. Anderson v. Sanford, 198 Ga. App. 410, 401 S.E.2d 604 (1991).

Paternal grandparents cannot intervene in adoption proceeding. — Adoption proceeding in which all paternal rights are sought to be severed is not such a proceeding concerning custody or guardianship as will support an intervening petition by paternal grandparents for visitation privileges. Mead v. Owens, 149 Ga. App. 303, 254 S.E.2d 431 (1979).

When grandparents are not entitled to relief. — When grandparents have not intervened in the proceedings, the grandparents are not parties to the action, nor are the grandparents otherwise before the trial court, and the grandparents are not entitled to be granted relief. Smith v. Smith, 174 Ga. App. 903, 332 S.E.2d 41 (1985).

Grandparents were not statutorily authorized to intervene in adoption proceedings brought by a married couple who were not blood relatives of the child since the child's parents were living, and the grandparents did not intervene to seek visitation rights, but instead intervened to object to the adoption and to seek to adopt the child themselves. Murphy v. McCarthy, 201 Ga. App. 101, 410 S.E.2d 198 (1991).

Grandmother who was temporary legal custodian of child under juvenile court deprivation order did not have standing to intervene in adoption proceedings. Edgar v. Shave, 205 Ga. App. 337, 422 S.E.2d 234 (1992).

Trial court erred in denying a motion filed by a child's mother and stepfather to dismiss a paternal grandparents' petition for visitation with the child because the petition was not authorized, and the trial court erred by interpreting the word "parent" in O.C.G.A. § 19-7-3(b) to include only biological parents; the child's father surrendered his parental rights, the stepfather adopted the child, and the mother and stepfather lived with the child. Bailey v. Kunz, 307 Ga. App. 710, 706 S.E.2d 98 (2011), aff'd, 290 Ga. 361, 720 S.E.2d 634 (2012).

Visitation rights precluded when child adopted by stepfather. — Paternal grandparents were not entitled to visitation rights after the child's natural father's parental rights had been terminated and the child had been adopted by his stepfather, who was not a "blood relative". Campbell v. Holcomb, 193 Ga. App. 474, 388 S.E.2d 65 (1989); Echols v. Smith, 207 Ga. App. 317, 427 S.E.2d 820 (1993).

Term "parents" in O.C.G.A. § 19-7-3(b) did not exclude a child's adoptive parent; therefore, because a child was living with the child's mother and adoptive father, who were not separated, the child's natural grandparents had no right to file an original action for visitation with the child under the statute. Upon their son's termination of his parental rights to the child, the grandparents became strangers to the child, pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 19-8-19. Kunz v. Bailey, 290 Ga. 361, 720 S.E.2d 634 (2012).

Paternal grandparents entitled to visitation award in stepfather's adoption. — Trial court was specifically authorized to award grandparent visitation into a stepparent adoption decree pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 19-7-3(c)(1); although, generally, the adoption of the child would have extinguished any visitation rights of the child's former grandparents under O.C.G.A. § 19-8-19(a)(1). Evans v. Sangster, 330 Ga. App. 533, 768 S.E.2d 278 (2015).

O.C.G.A. § 19-7-3 does not require finding that parent is unfit, but simply that the health or welfare of the child would be harmed unless grandparent visitation is granted. Rogers v. Barnett, 237 Ga. App. 301, 514 S.E.2d 443 (1999).

Grandparent visitation properly denied. — In the absence of clear and convincing evidence that the child would experience actual physical, mental, or emotional harm if visitation was denied, the trial court's order granting visitation rights to the grandparents was not justified. Hunter v. Carter, 226 Ga. App. 251, 485 S.E.2d 827 (1997).

Trial court did not abuse the court's discretion in relying on the testimony of the grandparents and the father to make the court's judgment denying the grandparents' request for visitation rights with their granddaughter or in choosing not to appoint a guardian ad litem because, while the grandparents claimed that the trial court failed to consider their granddaughter's best interests, the trial court heard testimony on that subject from them as well as from the father; both the grant of visitation rights to a grandparent under O.C.G.A. § 19-7-3(c), and the appointment of a guardian ad litem under § 19-7-3 (d) are purely within the discretion of the trial court. Srader v. Midkiff, 303 Ga. App. 514, 693 S.E.2d 856 (2010).

discretion in denying the grandparents' request for visitation rights with their granddaughter because the trial court held a hearing on the issue of grandparent visitation and determined that the grandparents failed to show that the health or welfare of the granddaughter would be harmed unless such visitation was granted and that the best interests of the granddaughter would be served by such visitation; the trial court did not err in failing to assign the issue to mediation because under O.C.G.A. § 19-7-3(d)(2), assignment of grandparent visitation cases to mediation was within the discretion of the trial court. Srader v. Midkiff, 303 Ga. App. 514, 693 S.E.2d 856 (2010).

Grandparent visitation should have been denied. — Because the mother and the father objected to court-mandated visitation with the grandparents and there was no showing that a failure to grant visitation to the grandparents would be harmful to the children, pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 19-7-3(c), the trial court erred in awarding visitation to the grandparents. Ormond v. Ormond, 274 Ga. App. 869, 619 S.E.2d 370 (2005).

Grandparent visitation properly granted. — Trial court's grandparent visitation award contained a finding that the children would have suffered emotional harm unless grandparent visitation was granted, and that such visitation was in the best interests of the children; thus, visitation was granted on the grounds authorized by the Grandparent Visitation Statute, O.C.G.A. § 19-7-3. Luke v. Luke, 280 Ga. App. 607, 634 S.E.2d 439 (2006).

Juvenile court erred by terminating a grandparent's visitation rights previously granted by relying on the child's out-of-court statements and by failing to recite what standard the court was using to modify the previous visitation awarded to the grandparent. In re K. I. S., 294 Ga. App. 295, 669 S.E.2d 207 (2008).

Discretionary appeal procedure applicable to grandparent's visitation privileges. — Since visitation privileges are, of course, part of custody, grandparents seeking appellate review of an unfavorable ruling regarding visitation privileges are, like parents, required to follow the procedure necessary to secure a discretionary appeal. Tuttle v. Stauffer, 177 Ga. App. 112, 338 S.E.2d 544 (1985).

Grandparent visitation continued. — When the trial court denied a couple's petition to adopt a child and to terminate the parental rights of the child's legal father, the trial court did not err in also finding that it was in the child's best interest to continue the child's relationship with a paternal grandmother; the couple offered no evidence that it was not in the child's best interest to continue such visitation, and the trial court found that the paternal grandmother exercised regular visitation with the child and that it was in the child's best interests for all of the grandparents to cooperate in providing for the child. Thaggard v. Willard, 285 Ga. App. 384, 646 S.E.2d 479 (2007).

Efforts at grandparent visitation thwarted by parent. — Trial court did not err in denying a father's motion for summary judgment in maternal grandparents' action seeking visitation with his child pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 19-7-3(b) because the trial court had the discretion to choose to allow the case to go forward under O.C.G.A. § 9-11-56(f) in order for the guardian ad litem to investigate the facts since the lack of a relationship between the grandparents and the child could or could not be the fault of the grandparents when there was some evidence that the father had thwarted attempts at visitation in the early years following the mother's death; although the grandparents' affidavits in opposition to the father's motion for summary judgment contained information about the child's best interests, the grandparents did not provide any direct evidence of harm that the child would suffer as a result of not having visitation with the grandparents, but instead, the grandparents relied on § 9-11-56(f) and the trial court's appointment of a guardian ad litem under § 19-7-3(d)(1) to argue that the facts needed to be further developed and that a decision on summary judgment was premature. Lightfoot v. Hollins, 308 Ga. App. 538, 707 S.E.2d 491 (2011), overruled on other grounds, Kunz v. Bailey, 290 Ga. 361, 720 S.E.2d 634 (2012).

Mother was a proper party to a maternal grandfather's action seeking visitation with the mother's child, and the mother's objection to the grandfather's request for visitation was pertinent to the claim under O.C.G.A. § 19-7-3 because the award of temporary guardianship and custody of the child to the paternal grandparents did not terminate the mother's rights or confer permanent guardianship or custody. Sheppard v. McCraney, 317 Ga. App. 91, 730 S.E.2d 721 (2012).

Visitation to father's sister improper. — Trial court erred in granting a father's sister visitation because the sister was neither a grandparent seeking visitation nor a family member seeking custody but was a non-party to the mother's action seeking child support and the father's counterclaim for legitimation. Morris v. Morris, 309 Ga. App. 387, 710 S.E.2d 601 (2011).

Trial court required to make findings of fact. — Trial court erred in dismissing a paternal grandmother's petition for visitation with three minor grandchildren who had been adopted by their stepfather because the trial court was required to determine if the parents were separated and whether the child was living with both of the parents. If the parents were separated and the child was not living with both of the parents, O.C.G.A. § 19-7-3 would authorize the grandmother to seek visitation. Hudgins v. Harding, 313 Ga. App. 613, 722 S.E.2d 355 (2012).

To resolve the issue of visitation, a trial court is required to apply O.C.G.A. § 19-7-3(c) in the court's determination of whether a grandparent has presented clear and convincing evidence that the child's health or welfare would be harmed unless visitation was granted, and whether such visitation was in the child's best interests with the inclusion of specific written findings of fact supported by clear and convincing record evidence being mandatory to justify a grant of visitation. Therefore, the trial court erred by awarding a biological grandmother visitation when the court failed to make the specific findings of fact. Esasky v. Ford, 321 Ga. App. 891, 743 S.E.2d 550 (2013).

Attorney fees. — After entering judgment for the defendant in an action for grandparent's visitation, the trial court abused the court's discretion in deciding the defendant's motion for attorney fees without properly reviewing her claim that the grandparents harassed her or unnecessarily expanded the proceedings by other improper conduct. McKeen v. McKeen, 224 Ga. App. 410, 481 S.E.2d 236 (1997).

19-7-4. Criteria for loss of parental custody.

If a child is found under circumstances of destitution and suffering, abandonment, or exposure or if the child has been begging or if it is found that the child is being reared under immoral, obscene, or indecent influences which are likely to degrade his moral character and devote him to a vicious life and it appears to the appropriate court by competent evidence, including such examination of the child as may be practicable, that by reason of the neglect, habitual drunkenness, lewd or other vicious habits, or other behavior of the parents or guardians of the child, it is necessary for the welfare of the child to protect the child from such conditions, the court may order that the parents or guardians be deprived of custody of the child and that appropriate measures as provided by law be taken for the welfare of the child. JUDICIAL DECISIONSANALYSIS*GENERAL CONSIDERATION*FITNESS*CUSTODY DISPUTES BETWEEN PARENT AND THIRD PERSON*General Consideration

Section must be strictly construed. — Proceeding authorized by statute was a very harsh one, permitting as the statute did the taking of a child from the child's parent at the instance of any citizen, without regard to the individual right of the applicant. A statute thus in derogation of parental rights should be considered strictly, and prescribed allegations must be specifically made and sworn to before that section can be set in operation. Hammond v. Hammond, 90 Ga. 527, 16 S.E. 265 (1892).

When parent may lose right to custody. — Parent may lose right to custody only if one of the conditions specified in former Code 1933, §§ 74-108—74-110 (see now O.C.G.A. § 19-7-1 or O.C.G.A. § 19-7-4) was found to exist, or, in exceptional cases, if the parent was found to be unfit. Morris v. Grant, 196 Ga. 692, 27 S.E.2d 295 (1943); Bowman v. Bowman, 234 Ga. 348, 216 S.E.2d 103 (1975); Childs v. Childs, 237 Ga. 177, 227 S.E.2d 49 (1976), later appeal, 239 Ga. 304, 236 S.E.2d 646 (1977); Mathis v. Nicholson, 244 Ga. 106, 259 S.E.2d 55 (1979); Larson

v. Gambrell, 157 Ga. App. 193, 276 S.E.2d 686 (1981).

Mother within definition of former Code 1933, § 74-203 (see now O.C.G.A. § 19-7-25) cannot be denied custody of a child at habeas corpus proceeding against third parties unless it was shown that parental power was lost under provisions of former Code 1933, §§ 74-108—74-110 (see now O.C.G.A. § 19-7-1 or O.C.G.A. § 19-7-4), or that the parent was shown to be unfit. Pettiford v. Mott, 230 Ga. 692, 198 S.E.2d 662 (1973).

Parental control may be lost for any of the reasons provided in former Code 1933, § 74-108 (see now O.C.G.A. § 19-7-1), and may also be lost, under former Code 1933, §§ 74-109 and 74-110 (see now O.C.G.A. § 19-7-4) if the parent was guilty of cruel treatment of the child, and, as to a child under 12 years of age, if the child becomes destitute, or was being reared under immoral influences. Byers v. Loftis, 208 Ga. 398, 67 S.E.2d 118 (1951).

Parental right to custody may be lost in habeas proceeding if one of conditions specified in O.C.G.A. § 19-7-1 or O.C.G.A. § 19-7-4 is found to exist, or if parent is found to be unfit. Miele v. Gregory, 248 Ga. 93, 281 S.E.2d 565 (1981).

Forfeiture of parental rights not prerequisite to change of custody award. — In order to change award of custody, trial court did not necessarily have to find that legal custodian have forfeited parental rights under former Code 1933, §§ 74-108—74-110 (see now O.C.G.A. § 19-7-1 or O.C.G.A. § 19-7-4). Dearman v. Rhoden, 235 Ga. 457, 219 S.E.2d 704 (1975).

In order to change an award of custody, the trial court did not necessarily have to find that the legal custodian had forfeited parental rights under former Code 1933, §§ 74-108—74-110 (see now O.C.G.A. § 19-7-1 or O.C.G.A. § 19-7-4), but must find either that the original custodian was no longer able or suited to retain custody or that the conditions and circumstances surrounding the child have so changed that the child's welfare would be enhanced by modifying original judgment. Bell v. Bell, 154 Ga. App. 290, 267 S.E.2d 894 (1980).

Clear and strong proof is necessary to show abandonment. — When parent has a prima facie right to custody of child, burden is upon contestant to prove by clear and strong proof the contestant's contention that the parent has lost such right by abandonment. Hale v. Henderson, 210 Ga. 273, 79 S.E.2d 804 (1954).

In order to find an abandonment, there must be sufficient evidence of an actual desertion, accompanied by an intention to sever entirely, as far as possible to do so, the parental relation, throw off all obligations growing out of the relationship, and forego all parental duties and claims. In re S.H., 181 Ga. App. 438, 352 S.E.2d 621 (1987).

Custody inures to surviving parent upon death of custodial parent. — When mother of child, to whom custody had been awarded by divorce decree, dies, prima facie right of custody automatically inured to father. In such circumstances, father's right to custody can be lost only by one of the grounds provided under former Code 1933, §§ 74-108—74-110 (see now O.C.G.A. § 19-7-1 or O.C.G.A. § 19-7-4), and, unless so lost, discretion reposed in the trial judge under former Code 1933, § 50-121 (see now O.C.G.A. § 9-14-2) did not apply. Baynes v. Cowart, 209 Ga. 376, 72 S.E.2d 716 (1952); Hale v. Henderson, 210 Ga. 273, 79 S.E.2d 804 (1954).

When the child's mother dies, the father, as surviving parent, acquires a prima facie right to custody of the child and, unless the right to custody has been lost as provided by law, the father is entitled to custody of his child. Jackson v. Dunn, 158 Ga. App. 194, 279 S.E.2d 514 (1981).

Child's best interests control in custody dispute. — When case involves two "fit" parents, the law contemplates that child be awarded to parent in whose custody the child's best interests will be served. Larson v. Gambrell, 157 Ga. App. 193, 276 S.E.2d 686 (1981).

Consideration given to welfare of child in custody proceeding. — When plaintiff lost parental control by virtue of order under former Code 1933, §§ 74-109 and 74-110 and no longer has a prima facie right to custody and control of her children, the only consideration in a case in which parent sought to regain custody was welfare and happiness of children, the determination of which rested in sound discretion of trial judge, and in exercise of which the award might be made to a third person. Green v. Loggins, 216 Ga. 169, 115 S.E.2d 350 (1960).

Who may petition. — Under former Code 1895, §§ 2504 and 2505 any citizen, if he knows that young children are being reared under these improper influences, may make a sworn statement of facts, and ordinary (now judge of probate court) was authorized to take children away from their parents or guardians and make such disposition of the children, under the law, as the ordinary may think proper. Haire v. McCardle, 107 Ga. 775, 33 S.E. 683 (1899).

Divorce decree awarding child to one parent was no obstacle to proceeding under statute. Williams v. Crosby, 118 Ga. 296, 45 S.E. 282 (1903).

Evidence admissible to show immoral conditions. — Evidence that mother's general reputation for chastity in the community where she lived was bad, and that she was generally reputed to be an immoral woman, was admissible as well as evidence of specific acts tending to show that she was an improper person to have care and custody of children. Moore v. Dozier, 128 Ga. 90, 57 S.E. 110 (1907).

Fitness

Determination of unfitness must be based on parent's present condition. Bozeman v. Williams, 248 Ga. 606, 285 S.E.2d 9 (1981).

Evidence of past unfitness, standing alone, is insufficient to terminate the rights of a parent in the parent's natural child; clear and convincing evidence of present unfitness is required. Blackburn v. Blackburn, 249 Ga. 689, 292 S.E.2d 821 (1982).

Finding of unfitness must center on the parent alone; a court is not allowed to terminate a parent's natural right because the court has determined that the child might have better financial, educational, or even moral advantages elsewhere. Blackburn v. Blackburn, 249 Ga. 689, 292 S.E.2d 821 (1982).

Fitness of parent. — Fitness was not necessarily synonymous with absence of conduct penalized by former Code 1933, §§ 74-108—74-110 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 19-7-1 and 19-7-4). Fact that parent had not forfeited or relinquished parental right by any of the modes of those sections did not establish the parent as fit. Perkins v. Courson, 219 Ga. 611, 135 S.E.2d 388 (1964).

Clear and satisfactory proof necessary to establish unfitness. — Right to custody may be lost on ground of unfitness only if it is shown by clear and satisfactory proof that circumstances of case justify court in acting for best interest and welfare of child. Bowman v. Bowman, 234 Ga. 348, 216 S.E.2d 103 (1975).

Evidence of parent's unfitness must be clear and convincing. Bowman v. Bowman, 234 Ga. 348, 216 S.E.2d 103 (1975); Mathis v. Nicholson, 244 Ga. 106, 259 S.E.2d 55 (1979).

Unfitness shown by clear and convincing evidence justifies court in acting for child's best interest. — Parent may lose right to custody if parent is found to be unfit. Unfitness of parent should be shown by clear and convincing evidence that circumstances of case justify court in acting for best interest and welfare of child. White v. Bryan, 236 Ga. 349, 223 S.E.2d 710 (1976).

Appellate court will not interfere with trial court's finding of unfitness absent abuse of discretion. — When evidence amply authorized, although the evidence did not demand, finding that parent is not a fit and proper person to have custody of children and that it is for best interests and welfare of children that the children be awarded to other person, the appellate court will not substitute the court's judgment for that of the trial judge absent abuse of legal discretion. Adams v. Kirkland, 218 Ga. 512, 128 S.E.2d 730 (1962).

Custody Disputes Between Parent and Third Person

Findings required. — In every case involving a custody dispute between a parent and a third party, the trial court must first make a determination as to whether the parent has lost his or her right pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 19-7-4 or is unfit pursuant to Georgia case law. Martini v. Jefferson, 213 Ga. App. 666, 445 S.E.2d 814 (1994).

Probate court was without legal authority to make any determination under O.C.G.A. § 19-7-4 regarding the mother's loss of legal custody of her child in favor of a third party. Brown v. King, 193 Ga. App. 495, 388 S.E.2d 400 (1989).

Parent must be made party to proceeding to remove parent as child's natural guardian, and parent must be served with notice, otherwise the proceeding is void as depriving the parent of parental control without due process of law; after the parent has been removed and there is no longer a natural guardian, only then does the judge of the probate court attain jurisdiction to appoint. Whitlock v. Barrett, 158 Ga. App. 100, 279 S.E.2d 244 (1981).

Parent entitled to custody unless shown unfit or child mistreated. — When a third party sues the custodial parent to obtain custody of a child and to terminate the parent's custodial rights to the child, the parent is entitled to custody of the child unless the third party shows by "clear and convincing evidence" that the parent is unfit or otherwise not entitled to custody under O.C.G.A. §§ 19-7-1 and 19-7-4. Heath v. McGuire, 167 Ga. App. 489, 306 S.E.2d 741 (1983); In re C.T.L., 182 Ga. App. 845, 357 S.E.2d 298 (1987); Larson v. Larson, 192 Ga. App. 163, 384 S.E.2d 193 (1989).

When right to custody cannot be legally challenged by third persons. — Unless parental control had been lost under former Code 1933, §§ 74-108—74-110 (see now O.C.G.A. § 19-7-1 or O.C.G.A. § 19-7-4), parent's prima facie right to custody and control of minor child, as against claim of third person, was not subject to legal challenge. Waldrup v. Crane, 203 Ga. 388, 46 S.E.2d 919 (1948).

In contest between parent and third party over custody of child, a parent may lose the right to custody only if one of the conditions specified in O.C.G.A. § 19-7-1 or O.C.G.A. § 19-7-4 is found to exist, or, in exceptional cases, if the parent is found to be unfit. Bozeman v. Williams, 248 Ga. 606, 285 S.E.2d 9 (1981).

As between natural parent and third party (grandparent), parent can be deprived of custody only if one of the conditions specified in O.C.G.A. § 19-7-1 or O.C.G.A. § 19-7-4, or one of the other legal grounds (O.C.G.A. §§ 15-11-2(8) and 15-11-81) is found to exist by clear and convincing evidence. Brant v. Bazemore, 159 Ga. App. 659, 284 S.E.2d 674 (1981).

Discretion in habeas proceedings granted by former Code 1933, § 50-121 (see now O.C.G.A. § 9-14-2) applied only when parental control had been lost. Morris v. Grant, 196 Ga. 692, 27 S.E.2d 295 (1943).

Exercise of discretion in habeas proceeding. — Williams v. Ferrell, 231 Ga. 470, 202 S.E.2d 427 (1973); Triplett v. Elder, 234 Ga. 243, 215 S.E.2d 247 (1975); Dein v. Mossman, 244 Ga. 866, 262 S.E.2d 83 (1979).

Person claiming no legal right may not bring habeas proceeding. — Habeas proceeding to obtain custody may not be brought by person claiming no legal right of custody. This does not mean that one concerned with welfare of child, who is being raised under conditions detrimental to the child's welfare, has no remedy. Spitz v. Holland, 243 Ga. 9, 252 S.E.2d 406 (1979).

Nonrelated third party lacked standing. — Although former O.C.G.A. § 19-9-50 required that a nonrelated third party be made a "party" to the father's suit against the mother, this was only because the third party had physical custody of the child; she had no standing to petition to terminate the father's rights and acquired no rights by virtue of having been given custody by the mother or by virtue of having developed certain emotional ties after obtaining physical custody of the child. Brooks v. Carson, 194 Ga. App. 365, 390 S.E.2d 859 (1990), overruled on other grounds, Bennett v. Executive Benefits, Inc., 210 Ga. App. 429, 436 S.E.2d 544 (1993).

In dispute between parent and third party, initial determination of parental rights is required. Morris v. Grant, 196 Ga. 692, 27 S.E.2d 295 (1943).

Presumption that child's best interest is to be with parent. — While in child custody case, welfare of child is always the law's paramount concern, the law presumes that it is in the child's best interest to be with the child's parent if the parent is not unfit to be the child's custodian. Larson v. Gambrell, 157 Ga. App. 193, 276 S.E.2d 686 (1981).

Presumption must be rebutted before custody awarded to third party. — Before custody of child may be awarded to third party, presumption that it will be in best interest of child to be with the child's parent must be rebutted by clear and convincing evidence showing that the parent is unfit to be awarded custody. Larson v. Gambrell, 157 Ga. App. 193, 276 S.E.2d 686 (1981).

Father's youth and poor work habits. — Court's finding that father is too young to care for children and that he is somewhat delinquent in his work habits cannot be said to constitute grave and substantial cause for awarding custody to a third party on ground of unfitness. Bowman v. Bowman, 234 Ga. 348, 216 S.E.2d 103 (1975).

Use of best interest standard in third party suit error. — When a third party sues the natural custodial parent for custody of the child, the trial court errs in applying the "best interests of the child" standard. In such a case, the parent is entitled to custody of the child unless the third party shows by "clear and convincing evidence" that the parent is unfit or otherwise not entitled to custody under O.C.G.A. §§ 19-7-1 and 19-7-4. In re J.C.P., 167 Ga. App. 572, 307 S.E.2d 1 (1983). But see In re A.W., 240 Ga. App. 259, 523 S.E.2d 88 (1999).

Effect of awarding permanent custody to third party. — When a parent was a party to a proceeding in which his or her right to custody was lost and custody was permanently awarded to a third party, the third party, and not the parent, has a prima facie right to custody. Durden v. Barron, 249 Ga. 686, 290 S.E.2d 923 (1982).

For a third party to prevail in obtaining custody in a contest with the surviving parent, clear and convincing evidence that the parent has lost the right to parental custody and control by abandonment or some other legal ground must be presented. In re S.H., 181 Ga. App. 438, 352 S.E.2d 621 (1987).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Domicile of minor is that of the minor's parents, but this can be altered when usual parental authority and control over the minor is ended by voluntary or involuntary relinquishment. 1981 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U81-5.

19-7-5. Reporting of child abuse; when mandated or authorized; content of report; to whom made; immunity from liability; report based upon privileged communication; penalty for failure to report.

(a) The purpose of this Code section is to provide for the protection of children. It is intended that mandatory reporting will cause the protective services of the state to be brought to bear on the situation in an effort to prevent abuses, to protect and enhance the welfare of children, and to preserve family life wherever possible. This Code section shall be liberally construed so as to carry out the purposes thereof.

(b) As used in this Code section, the term:

(1) "Abortion" shall have the same meaning as set forth in Code Section 15-11-681.

- (2) "Abused" means subjected to child abuse.
- (3) "Child" means any person under 18 years of age.
- (4) "Child abuse" means:

- (A) Physical injury or death inflicted upon a child by a parent or caretaker thereof by other than accidental means; provided, however, that physical forms of discipline may be used as long as there is no physical injury to the child;

- (B) Neglect or exploitation of a child by a parent or caretaker thereof;

- (C) Sexual abuse of a child; or

- (D) Sexual exploitation of a child.

However, no child who in good faith is being treated solely by spiritual means through prayer in accordance with the tenets and practices of a recognized church or religious denomination by a duly accredited practitioner thereof shall, for that reason alone, be considered to be an "abused" child.

- (5) "Child service organization personnel" means persons employed by or volunteering at a business or an organization, whether public, private, for profit, not for profit, or voluntary, that provides care, treatment, education, training, supervision, coaching, counseling, recreational programs, or shelter to children.

- (6) "Clergy" means ministers, priests, rabbis, imams, or similar functionaries, by whatever name called, of a bona fide religious organization.

- (7) "Pregnancy resource center" means an organization or facility that:

- (A) Provides pregnancy counseling or information as its primary purpose, either for a fee or as a free service;

- (B) Does not provide or refer for abortions;

- (C) Does not provide or refer for FDA approved contraceptive drugs or devices; and

- (D) Is not licensed or certified by the state or federal government to provide medical or health care services and is not otherwise bound to follow federal Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act of 1996, P.L. 104-191, or other state or federal laws relating to patient confidentiality.

- (8) "Reproductive health care facility" means any office, clinic, or any other physical location that provides abortions, abortion counseling, abortion referrals, or gynecological care and services.

(9) "School" means any public or private pre-kindergarten, elementary school, secondary school, technical school, vocational school, college, university, or institution of postsecondary education.

(10) "Sexual abuse" means a person's employing, using, persuading, inducing, enticing, or coercing any minor who is not that person's spouse to engage in any act which involves:

(A) Sexual intercourse, including genital-genital, oral-genital, anal-genital, or oral-anal, whether between persons of the same or opposite sex;

(B) Bestiality;

(C) Masturbation;

(D) Lewd exhibition of the genitals or pubic area of any person;

(E) Flagellation or torture by or upon a person who is nude;

(F) Condition of being fettered, bound, or otherwise physically restrained on the part of a person who is nude;

(G) Physical contact in an act of apparent sexual stimulation or gratification with any person's clothed or unclothed genitals, pubic area, or buttocks or with a female's clothed or unclothed breasts;

(H) Defecation or urination for the purpose of sexual stimulation; or

(I) Penetration of the vagina or rectum by any object except when done as part of a recognized medical procedure.

"Sexual abuse" shall not include consensual sex acts involving persons of the opposite sex when the sex acts are between minors or between a minor and an adult who is not more than five years older than the minor. This provision shall not be deemed or construed to repeal any law concerning the age or capacity to consent.

(11) "Sexual exploitation" means conduct by any person who allows, permits, encourages, or requires that child to engage in:

(A) Prostitution, as defined in Code Section 16-6-9; or

(B) Sexually explicit conduct for the purpose of producing any visual or print medium depicting such conduct, as defined in Code Section 16-12-100.

(c)(1) The following persons having reasonable cause to believe that suspected child abuse has occurred shall report or cause reports of such abuse to be made as provided in this Code section:

(A) Physicians licensed to practice medicine, physician assistants, interns, or residents;

- (B) Hospital or medical personnel;
- (C) Dentists;
- (D) Licensed psychologists and persons participating in internships to obtain licensing pursuant to Chapter 39 of Title 43;
- (E) Podiatrists;
- (F) Registered professional nurses or licensed practical nurses licensed pursuant to Chapter 26 of Title 43 or nurse's aides;
- (G) Professional counselors, social workers, or marriage and family therapists licensed pursuant to Chapter 10A of Title 43;
- (H) School teachers;
- (I) School administrators;
- (J) School counselors, visiting teachers, school social workers, or school psychologists certified pursuant to Chapter 2 of Title 20;
- (K) Child welfare agency personnel, as such agency is defined in Code Section 49-5-12;
- (L) Child-counseling personnel;
- (M) Child service organization personnel;
- (N) Law enforcement personnel; or
- (O) Reproductive health care facility or pregnancy resource center personnel and volunteers.

(2) If a person is required to report child abuse pursuant to this subsection because such person attends to a child pursuant to such person's duties as an employee of or volunteer at a hospital, school, social agency, or similar facility, such person shall notify the person in charge of such hospital, school, agency, or facility, or the designated delegate thereof, and the person so notified shall report or cause a report to be made in accordance with this Code section. An employee or volunteer who makes a report to the person designated pursuant to this paragraph shall be deemed to have fully complied with this subsection. Under no circumstances shall any person in charge of such hospital, school, agency, or facility, or the designated delegate thereof, to whom such notification has been made exercise any control, restraint, or modification or make any other change to the information provided by the reporter, although each of the aforementioned persons may be consulted prior to the making of a report and may provide any additional, relevant, and necessary information when making the report.

(3) When a person identified in paragraph (1) of this subsection has reasonable cause to believe that child abuse has occurred involving a person who attends to a child pursuant to such person's duties as an employee of or volunteer at a hospital, school, social agency, or similar facility, the person who received such information shall notify the person in charge of such hospital, school, agency, or facility, or the designated delegate thereof, and the person so notified shall report or cause a report to be made in accordance with this Code section. An employee or volunteer who makes a report to the person designated pursuant to this paragraph shall be deemed to have fully complied with this subsection. Under no circumstances shall any person in charge of such hospital, school, agency, or facility, or the designated delegate thereof, to whom such notification has been made exercise any control, restraint, or modification or make any other change to the information provided by the reporter, although each of the aforementioned persons may be consulted prior to the making of a report and may provide any additional, relevant, and necessary information when making the report.

(d) Any other person, other than one specified in subsection (c) of this Code section, who has reasonable cause to believe that suspected child abuse has occurred may report or cause reports to be made as provided in this Code section.

(e) With respect to reporting required by subsection (c) of this Code section, an oral report by telephone or other oral communication or a written report by electronic submission or facsimile shall be made immediately, but in no case later than 24 hours from the time there is reasonable cause to believe that suspected child abuse has occurred. When a report is being made by electronic submission or facsimile to the Division of Family and Children Services of the Department of Human Services, it shall be done in the manner specified by the division. Oral reports shall be followed by a later report in writing, if requested, to a child welfare agency providing protective services, as designated by the Division of Family and Children Services of the Department of Human Services, or, in the absence of such agency, to an appropriate police authority or district attorney. If a report of child abuse is made to the child welfare agency or independently discovered by the agency, and the agency has reasonable cause to believe such report is true or the report contains any allegation or evidence of child abuse, then the agency shall immediately notify the appropriate police authority or district attorney. Such reports shall contain the names and addresses of the child and the child's parents or caretakers, if known, the child's age, the nature and extent of the child's injuries, including any evidence of previous injuries, and any other information that the reporting person believes might be helpful in establishing the cause of the injuries and the identity of the perpetrator. Photographs of the child's injuries to be used as documentation in support of allegations by hospital employees or volunteers, physicians, law enforcement personnel, school officials, or employees or volunteers of legally mandated public or private child protective agencies may be taken without the permission of the child's parent or guardian. Such photographs shall be made available as soon as possible to the chief welfare agency providing protective services and to the appropriate police authority.

(f) Any person or persons, partnership, firm, corporation, association, hospital, or other entity participating in the making of a report or causing a report to be made to a child welfare agency providing protective services or to an appropriate police authority pursuant to this Code section or any other law or participating in any judicial proceeding or any other proceeding resulting therefrom shall in so doing be immune from any civil or criminal liability that might otherwise be incurred or imposed, provided such participation pursuant to this Code section or any other law is made in good faith. Any person making a report, whether required by this Code section or not, shall be immune from liability as provided in this subsection.

(g) Suspected child abuse which is required to be reported by any person pursuant to this Code section shall be reported notwithstanding that the reasonable cause to believe such abuse has occurred or is occurring is based in whole or in part upon any communication to that person which is otherwise made privileged or confidential by law; provided, however, that a member of the clergy shall not be required to report child abuse reported solely within the context of confession or other similar communication required to be kept confidential under church doctrine or practice. When a clergy member receives information about child abuse from any other source, the clergy member shall comply with the reporting requirements of this Code section, even though the clergy member may have also received a report of child abuse from the confession of the perpetrator.

(h) Any person or official required by subsection (c) of this Code section to report a suspected case of child abuse who knowingly and willfully fails to do so shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

(i) A report of child abuse or information relating thereto and contained in such report, when provided to a law enforcement agency or district attorney pursuant to subsection (e) of this Code section or pursuant to Code Section 49-5-41, shall not be subject to public inspection under Article 4 of Chapter 18 of Title 50 even though such report or information is contained in or part of closed records compiled for law enforcement or prosecution purposes unless:

(1) There is a criminal or civil court proceeding which has been initiated based in whole or in part upon the facts regarding abuse which are alleged in the child abuse reports and the person or entity seeking to inspect such records provides clear and convincing evidence of such proceeding; or

(2) The superior court in the county in which is located the office of the law enforcement agency or district attorney which compiled the records containing such reports, after application for inspection and a hearing on the issue, shall permit inspection of such records by or release of information from such records to individuals or entities who are engaged in legitimate research for educational, scientific, or public purposes and who comply with the provisions of this paragraph. When those records are located in more than one county, the application may be made to the superior court of any one of such counties. A copy of any application authorized by this paragraph shall be served on the office of the law enforcement agency or district attorney which compiled the records containing such reports. In cases where the location of the records is unknown to the applicant, the application may be made to the Superior Court of Fulton County. The superior court to which an application is made shall not grant the application unless:

(A) The application includes a description of the proposed research project, including a specific statement of the information required, the purpose for which the project requires that information, and a methodology to assure the information is not arbitrarily sought;

(B) The applicant carries the burden of showing the legitimacy of the research project; and

(C) Names and addresses of individuals, other than officials, employees, or agents of agencies receiving or investigating a report of abuse which is the subject of a report, shall be deleted from any information released pursuant to this subsection unless the court determines that having the names and addresses open for review is essential to the research and the child, through his or her representative, gives permission to release the information. The 2013 amendments. — The first 2013 amendment, effective April 24, 2013, part of an Act to revise, modernize, and correct the Code, substituted “Chapter 26” for “Chapter 24” in subparagraph (c)(1)(F). The second 2013 amendment, effective January 1, 2014, substituted “Code Section 15-11-681” for “Code Section 15-11-111" in paragraph (b)(1). The third 2013 amendment, effective July 1, 2013, inserted "physician assistants," in subparagraph (c)(1)(A). See editor's notes for applicability.

The 2015 amendment, effective July 1, 2015, in subsection (a), deleted "whose health and welfare are adversely affected and further threatened by the conduct of those responsible for their care and protection" following "children" at the end of the first sentence, in the second sentence, deleted "the" following "intended that" near the beginning, deleted "of such cases" preceding "will cause", deleted "further" following "effort to prevent" in the middle, and deleted "these" following "enhance the welfare of" near the end; rewrote subsection (c); substituted "suspected child abuse has occurred" for "a child is abused" in the middle of subsection (d); and in subsection (e), substituted the present provisions of the first sentence for the former provisions, which read: "An oral report shall be made immediately, but in no case later than 24 hours from the time there is reasonable cause to believe a child has been abused, by telephone or otherwise and followed by a report in writing, if requested, to a child welfare agency providing protective services, as designated by the Department of Human Services, or, in the absence of such agency, to an appropriate police authority or district attorney.", and added the present second sentence.

Code Commission notes. — Pursuant to Code Section 28-9-5, in 1988, "willfully" was substituted for "wilfully" near the end of subsection (h) (formerly subsection (e)).

Pursuant to Code Section 28-9-5, in 1990, "provided" was substituted for "providing" in the first sentence of subsection (f).

Editor's notes. — Ga. L. 2012, p. 899, § 9-1(a)/HB 1176, not codified by the General Assembly, provides: "This Act shall become effective on July 1, 2012, and shall apply to offenses which occur on or after that date. Any offense occurring before July 1, 2012, shall be governed by the statute in effect at the time of such offense and shall be considered a prior conviction for the purpose of imposing a sentence that provides for a different penalty for a subsequent conviction for the same type of offense, of whatever degree or level, pursuant to this Act."

Ga. L. 2013, p. 294, § 5-1/HB 242, not codified by the General Assembly, provides that: "This Act shall become effective on January 1, 2014, and shall apply to all offenses which occur and juvenile proceedings commenced on and after such date. Any offense occurring before January 1, 2014, shall be governed by the statute in effect at the time of such offense and shall be considered a prior adjudication for the purpose of imposing a disposition that provides for a different penalty for subsequent adjudications, of whatever class, pursuant to this Act. The enactment of this Act shall not affect any prosecutions for acts occurring before January 1, 2014, and shall not act as an abatement of any such prosecutions."

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Immunity not applicable to an act of molestation. — Immunity provided by O.C.G.A. § 19-7-5 is applicable only to such civil or criminal liability as might otherwise result from the act of reporting suspected child molestation or abuse, not to such criminal liability as may arise from the commission of the molestation or abuse itself. Austin v. State, 179 Ga. App. 235, 345 S.E.2d 688 (1986).

"Psychologist" means licensed psychologist. — Term "psychologist", as contained in O.C.G.A. § 19-7-5, includes only licensed psychologists. Gladson v. State, 258 Ga. 885, 376 S.E.2d 362 (1989).

Counselor, who held a doctoral degree in human development from an accredited university but was not a licensed psychologist, could not be held criminally liable for failure to report alleged child abuse. Gladson v. State, 258 Ga. 885, 376 S.E.2d 362 (1989).

Limitation on mandatory obligation to report child abuse. — Statutory obligation to report the abuse of a child is limited to the abuse of a child to whom the mandatory reporter attends pursuant to the reporter's duties in the profession, occupation, employment, or volunteer work by which the reporter is identified as a mandatory reporter. May v. State, 295 Ga. 388, 761 S.E.2d 38 (2014).

Limitation on teacher's mandatory obligation to report child abuse. — Because, by the time the defendant learned of the sexual abuse, the child was no longer the defendant's student, was no longer enrolled in the school at which the defendant taught, and was no longer enrolled at any school in the same school system, the defendant was not attending to the child pursuant to the defendant's duties as a school teacher, and had no legal obligation to report the sexual abuse. May v. State, 295 Ga. 388, 761 S.E.2d 38 (2014).

No private cause of action. — O.C.G.A. § 19-7-5 does not expressly create a civil cause of action for damages in favor of the victim or anyone else. Cechman v. Travis, 202 Ga. App. 255, 414 S.E.2d 282 (1991), cert. denied, 202 Ga. App. 905, 414 S.E.2d 282 (1992); Vance v. T.R.C., 229 Ga. App. 608, 494 S.E.2d 714 (1997).

There is nothing within the provisions of O.C.G.A. § 19-7-5 which purports to create a private cause of action in tort in favor of an alleged victim of child abuse against the physician. Cechman v. Travis, 202 Ga. App. 255, 414 S.E.2d 282 (1991), cert. denied, 202 Ga. App. 905, 414 S.E.2d 282 (1992); Vance v. T.R.C., 229 Ga. App. 608, 494 S.E.2d 714 (1997).

No private cause of action lies for a failure to report child abuse in accordance with O.C.G.A. § 19-7-5. Odem v. Pace Academy, 235 Ga. App. 648, 510 S.E.2d 326 (1998).

Psychologist was not subject to malpractice liability for failure to report suspected child sexual abuse pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 19-7-5; prior case law established that O.C.G.A. § 19-7-5 did not create a private cause of action for the failure to report child abuse. McGarrah v. Posig, 280 Ga. App. 808, 635 S.E.2d 219 (2006).

Person alleging child abuse held immune from liability for slander. —

As a tenant admitted at a deposition that the tenant's son was sometimes in their home, which the tenant knew was contaminated with toxic mold, without a mask, the landlord had reasonable cause to allege to authorities that the tenant was guilty of child abuse, and was thus entitled to immunity from the tenant's slander claim under O.C.G.A. § 19-7-5(f). Brown v. Rader, 299 Ga. App. 606, 683 S.E.2d 16 (2009).

No immunity for false reports of child abuse. —

Trial court did not err in granting a protective order under O.C.G.A. § 16-5-90(a)(1) against a foster parent who had placed a family under extensive surveillance through a combination of Internet searches and third party observations of the family's home and contacted law enforcement, causing groundless investigations. The foster parent was not immune from liability under O.C.G.A. § 19-7-5(f) because the foster parent had not received any information that a child in the home had been subjected to abuse. Owen v. Watts, 307 Ga. App. 493, 705 S.E.2d 852 (2010).

Plaintiff, staff member at defendant's school, was not within class of protected persons contemplated by O.C.G.A. § 19-7-5, and the plaintiff's claim for damages under O.C.G.A. § 51-1-6 could not survive summary judgment. Odem v. Pace Academy, 235 Ga. App. 648, 510 S.E.2d 326 (1998).

Immunity from liability of person participating in report. — Grant of immunity from liability, under O.C.G.A. § 19-7-5, extended to a psychologist to whom a child welfare agency referred a child for evaluation as part of an investigation of suspected child abuse and the evidence did not establish bad faith on the part of the psychologist in making a report to the agency that the child had been sexually abused. Michaels v. Gordon, 211 Ga. App. 470, 439 S.E.2d 722 (1993).

Doctor had to report suspected abuse. — When children's allegations were sufficient to cause a reasonable person to suspect that child abuse occurred, a doctor had to report the suspected abuse and had immunity from suit for that report. O'Heron v. Blaney, 276 Ga. 871, 583 S.E.2d 834 (2003).

Supervisory decisions were discretionary acts. —

As a student's personal injury damages claims against three school employees were based on the employees negligent failure to supervise the student when the student was with a non-party, and that such failure allegedly led to the student being molested by the third-party, the supervisory decisions made were discretionary acts requiring personal deliberation and judgment; hence, any reliance on O.C.G.A. § 19-7-5 did not provide a basis for civil liability against the employees for a negligent breach of a ministerial duty, and the student's claims were barred by the doctrine of official immunity as a matter of law. Reece v. Turner, 284 Ga. App. 282, 643 S.E.2d 814 (2007).

Hospital's report of the results of a drug test administered to a child was not made in bad faith, and summary judgment for the hospital based on the good faith immunity provision of O.C.G.A. § 19-7-5(f) was warranted. Baldwin County Hosp. Auth. v. Trawick, 233 Ga. App. 539, 504 S.E.2d 708 (1998).

No liability for failure to discover abuse. — O.C.G.A. § 19-7-5 does not require that notice be given by those physicians who should have had reasonable cause to suspect child abuse, and it does not penalize those physicians who fail to discover and report suspected instances of child abuse. Cechman v. Travis, 202 Ga. App. 255, 414 S.E.2d 282 (1991), cert. denied, 202 Ga. App. 905, 414 S.E.2d 282 (1992).

As a general rule, when the injury is not due to the fault of the person to be charged, the fact that a person sees another who is injured does not, of itself, impose on that person any legal obligation to afford relief or assistance, but the person may have a strong moral and humanitarian obligation to do so. O.C.G.A. § 19-7-5 may change this common-law rule to the extent of imposing upon the physician, who has reasonable cause to believe that a child has been abused, a legal duty to the state to report that suspicion. That section does not, however, change that common-law rule by imposing upon the physician, who merely failed to discover and report suspected child abuse, a legal liability to the child for future acts of child abuse. Cechman v. Travis, 202 Ga. App. 255, 414 S.E.2d 282 (1991), cert. denied, 202 Ga. App. 905, 414 S.E.2d 282 (1992).

Denial of immunity not a final judgment. — Denial of the plea in bar, asserting immunity from prosecution pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 19-7-5, does not constitute a final judgment, nor is the order otherwise directly appealable. Austin v. State, 179 Ga. App. 235, 345 S.E.2d 688 (1986).

Refusal to give jury instruction proper. — Trial court did not err by refusing to charge the jury regarding O.C.G.A. § 19-7-5 because the defendant cited no authority in support of the defendant's proposition that the trial court erred in refusing to give the instruction; the individual whom the defendant alleged failed to report the abuse as required by the statute was not a witness at trial, and the issue was irrelevant to the jury's determination of the defendant's guilt. Hamrick v. State, 304 Ga. App. 378, 696 S.E.2d 403 (2010).

Cited in Lipsey v. State, 170 Ga. App. 770, 318 S.E.2d 184 (1984); Perguson v. State, 221 Ga. App. 212, 470 S.E.2d 909 (1996); Moss v. State, 244 Ga. App. 295, 535 S.E.2d 292 (2000); Hubert v. State, 297 Ga. App. 71, 676 S.E.2d 436 (2009).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

"Cause to believe" is equivalent to "cause to suspect." — For purposes of Georgia's child abuse reporting statute, providing for protection of children whose health and welfare are adversely affected and threatened, "cause to believe" is equivalent to "cause to suspect." 1976 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 76-131.

"Deprived" child includes one who is abused, neglected, or exploited. — Although the statute did not explicitly mention "deprived" children as defined in Juvenile Court Code, the definition was certainly inclusive of a child who is abused, neglected, or exploited. 1976 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 76-131.

Phrase "participating in any judicial proceeding" clearly extended to filing of petition as well as mere testimony in proceeding initiated by others. 1967 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 67-70.

"Caretakers." — Personnel of public and private schools are "caretakers" as defined in O.C.G.A. § 19-7-5. 1987 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 87-29.

Scope of authority to investigate. — Department of Human Resources, pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 19-7-5, has authority and responsibility only for investigating reports of suspected abuse when it is alleged or reasonably suspected that the abuse of the child was by a parent or caretaker. 1987 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 87-29.

19-7-6. Reporting of juvenile drug use.

(a) The purpose of this Code section is to provide for the protection of children whose health and welfare are adversely affected and further threatened by the unlawful use and abuse of controlled substances or marijuana. The General Assembly recognizes the need for early intervention, counseling, and treatment as an effective means of addressing the problem of child controlled substance and marijuana abuse. It is intended that the reporting of the unlawful use of any controlled substance or marijuana will cause the protective services of the state to be brought to bear on this situation in an effort to protect and enhance the welfare of children. This Code section shall be liberally construed so as to carry out the purposes thereof.

(b) Any person exercising in loco parentis control over a child under the age of 18 years who has reasonable cause to believe that the child is habitually using in an unlawful manner any controlled substance or marijuana, as defined in Code Section 16-13-21, is encouraged to report such information to the child's parents and a child welfare agency providing protective services, as designated by the Department of Human Services.

(c) When the attendance of the person exercising in loco parentis control over a child is pursuant to the performance of services as a member of the staff of any school, social agency, or similar facility, the reporting person shall notify the person in charge of the facility or his designated delegate; and such person or his delegate shall report or cause reports to be made in accordance with this Code section.

(d) An oral report shall be made as soon as possible by telephone or otherwise and shall be followed by a report in writing, if requested, to the child welfare agency providing protective services, as designated by the Department of Human Services. Such report shall contain the names and addresses of the child and his parents or caretakers, if known, the child's age, and the nature and extent of the child's controlled substance or marijuana abuse history, if known.

(e) No agency or political subdivision of this state shall enact or enforce any disciplinary rule or penalty against an employee of the state or of any political subdivision of the state for failure to make any report referred to in subsection (b), (c), or (d) of this Code section.

(f) Any person or persons, partnership, firm, corporation, association, hospital, or other entity participating in the making of a report or causing a report to be made to a child welfare agency providing protective services pursuant to this Code section or any other law or participating in any judicial proceeding or any other proceeding resulting therefrom shall, in doing so, be immune from any civil or criminal liability that might otherwise be incurred or imposed if such participation, pursuant to this Code section or any other law, is made in good faith. Any person making a report, whether required by this Code section or not, shall be immune from liability as provided in this subsection.

(g) Any person or official required to report under this Code section shall be exempt from reporting any information received from the child during a counseling or treatment program.

(h) The child welfare agency providing protective services, as designated by the Department of Human Services, shall forward a copy of all reports wherein the reporting person or official has actual knowledge that a child under the age of 18 has unlawfully consumed or otherwise used any controlled substance or marijuana to the juvenile court. As used in this subsection, the term "juvenile court" means the court exercising jurisdiction over juvenile matters, as defined under Code Section 15-11-2, in the county where the report was made. (Code 1981, § 19-7-6, enacted by Ga. L. 1987, p. 1000, § 1; Ga. L. 2009, p. 453, § 2-2/HB 228.)

LEGITIMACY

19-7-20. What children are legitimate; disproving legitimacy; legitimation by marriage of parents and recognition of child.

(a) All children born in wedlock or within the usual period of gestation thereafter are legitimate.

(b) The legitimacy of a child born as described in subsection (a) of this Code section may be disputed. Where possibility of access exists, the strong presumption is in favor of legitimacy and the proof must be clear to establish the contrary. If pregnancy existed at the time of the marriage and a divorce is sought and obtained on that ground, the child, although born in wedlock, will not be legitimate.

(c) The marriage of the mother and reputed father of a child born out of wedlock and the recognition by the father of the child as his shall render the child legitimate; in such case the child shall immediately take the surname of his father. (Orig. Code 1863, §§ 1736, 1737; Code 1868, § 1777; Code 1873, § 1786; Code 1882, § 1786; Civil Code 1895, § 2493; Civil Code 1910, § 3012; Code 1933, § 74-101; Ga. L. 1988, p. 1720, § 4.)

ANALYSIS

GENERAL CONSIDERATION APPLICATION

Primary purpose of the legitimation and paternity statutes is to provide for the establishment rather than the disestablishment of legitimacy and paternity. Ghrist v. Fricks, 219 Ga. App. 415, 465 S.E.2d 501 (1995), overruled on other grounds, Brine v. Shipp, 291 Ga. 376, 729 S.E.2d 393 (2012).

Law favors legitimation. — Law favors marriage, and likewise the legitimizing of children, when it can be done with safety to society. Harrison v. Odum, 148 Ga. 489, 96 S.E. 1038 (1918).

Presumption of legitimacy arises only when child is born in wedlock. Mincey v. Mincey, 233 Ga. 512, 212 S.E.2d 345 (1975).

When child may avail itself of presumption. — Absent evidence that mother was ever married, child cannot avail itself of benefit of presumption. Mincey v. Mincey, 233 Ga. 512, 212 S.E.2d 345 (1975).

Statute presumed child born within wedlock to be legitimate. Mims v. State, 43 Ga. App. 100, 157 S.E. 901 (1931); Ellis v. Woods, 214 Ga. 105, 103 S.E.2d 297 (1958); Boone v. Boone, 225 Ga. 610, 170 S.E.2d 414 (1969); B-B v. Califano, 476 F. Supp. 970 (M.D. Ga. 1979), aff'd sub. nom. B.B. ex rel. A.L.B. v. Schweiker, 643 F.2d 1069 (5th Cir. 1981).

Child born in wedlock is presumed to be child of husband. Mims v. State, 43 Ga. App. 100, 157 S.E. 901 (1931); Ellis v. Woods, 214 Ga. 105, 103 S.E.2d 297 (1958); Boone v. Boone, 225 Ga. 610, 170 S.E.2d 414 (1969).

Presumption of legitimacy is one of the strongest and most persuasive known to the law, and to overcome such presumption proof should be clear to establish contrary where possibility of access between husband and wife exists. Stephens v. State, 80 Ga. App. 823, 57 S.E.2d 493 (1950).

Presumption is rebuttable. — Presumption that child born in wedlock is legitimate is rebuttable. McDonald v. Hester, 115 Ga. App. 740, 155 S.E.2d 720 (1967); B-B v. Califano, 476 F. Supp. 970 (M.D. Ga. 1979), aff'd sub nom. B-B v. Schweiker, 643 F.2d 1069 (5th Cir. 1981); Parks v. State, 155 Ga. App. 44, 270 S.E.2d 271 (1980); Families First v. Gooden, 211 Ga. App. 272, 439 S.E.2d 34 (1993).

When presumption may be rebutted. — In civil action, or on criminal prosecution, by evidence of nonaccess, or other testimony, presumption of legitimacy of offspring may be rebutted. Thornton v. State, 129 Ga. App. 574, 200 S.E.2d 298 (1973).

Presumption not rebutted. — Mother failed to rebut the presumption of legitimacy raised by a child's birth during the marriage pursuant to O.C.G.A. §§ 19-7-20 and 19-8-1(6) since the mother and husband knew that another man was the biological father of the child, the husband was listed with the mother's consent on the child's birth certificate as the child's father and had always provided financial and emotional support for the child, and when, if the husband had attempted to rebut the presumption of legitimacy the husband would have still been required to make child support payments. Baker v. Baker, 276 Ga. 778, 582 S.E.2d 102 (2003).

No absolute right to validate child. — Because the juvenile court failed to determine if one parent abandoned their opportunity interest to develop a relationship with the subject child, and failed to conduct a test of that parent's fitness or make a determination based upon the best interests of the child, the court's speculative conclusions were not equivalent to an examination of the benefit that might flow to the child if legitimated. Thus, the court, in essence, interpreted the parent's right to legitimate the child as absolute, without qualification, which was erroneous, requiring reversal. In the Interest of M.K., 288 Ga. App. 71, 653 S.E.2d 354 (2007).

Standard of proof needed to overcome presumption. — Presumption of legitimacy of children born in wedlock can be overcome by clear and convincing proof, the common-law doctrine not being of force in Georgia. Harris v. Shelton, 151 Ga. 615, 107 S.E. 842 (1921).

Whether presumption has been rebutted is for jury determination. — It is duty of jury to weigh evidence against presumption and to decide, as in exercise of the jury's judgment, the truth as it may appear. Parks v. State, 155 Ga. App. 44, 270 S.E.2d 271 (1980).

Effect of rebuttal of presumption. — When there was uncontradicted testimony of the child's mother that she had lived apart from and not even seen her former husband for more than two years preceding conception of the child, the presumption of legitimacy did not apply, and the trial court's refusal of the putative father's request to give a charge on this principle was not error. Rainwater v. State, 210 Ga. App. 594, 436 S.E.2d 772 (1993).

Legitimated child may inherit from father's estate. Morris v. Dilbeck, 71 Ga. App. 470, 31 S.E.2d 93 (1944).

"Children," as a general rule, means legitimate children. Hicks v. Smith, 94 Ga. 809, 22 S.E. 153 (1895).

Husband of woman at time of conception or birth is party at interest when another man claims fatherhood of the child in a legitimation proceeding; therefore, due process requires that the "legal father" must be served, but that service may be perfected in the same manner as provided for in adoption proceedings. In re White, 254 Ga. 678, 333 S.E.2d 588 (1985).

Initial burden of proving legitimacy. — Evidence of the presumption of legitimacy arising from the birth of a child requires the production of contrary evidence from the husband, but it does not relieve the wife of her burden of proof to establish legitimacy in the first place. Miller v. Miller, 258 Ga. 168, 366 S.E.2d 682 (1988).

Virtual adoption. — Trial court erred by granting a biological son's motion for partial summary judgment on the issue of virtual adoption asserted by the purported adopted daughter because the court clearly erred by misinterpreting the requirement of partial performance of the agreement to adopt and erroneously concluded that an established virtual adoption can be undone by showing that the purported adopted daughter formed a relationship with their natural father after learning of his existence when a teenager. Sanders v. Riley, 296 Ga. 693, 770 S.E.2d 570 (2015).

Application

Mother may testify that "legal father" is not biological father of her child, and testify as to the identity of the biological father. In re White, 254 Ga. 678, 333 S.E.2d 588 (1985) (overruling Colson v. Huber, 74 Ga. App. 339, 39 S.E.2d 539 (1946), to the extent that it holds otherwise).

Mother of child born during wedlock is precluded by public policy from asserting the child's illegitimacy to show consideration for contract with man other than her husband, providing for payment of certain monthly sum for the child's support. Colson v. Huber, 74 Ga. App. 339, 39 S.E.2d 539 (1946), overruled on other grounds, In re White, 254 Ga. 678, 333 S.E.2d 588 (1985).

Witness cannot testify that husband denied paternity. — Testimony that husband, in life, at time of delivery of testimony, said to witnesses that child born during marriage is not his is insufficient to overcome presumption that all children born in wedlock, whether begotten before or after marriage or within usual period of gestation thereafter, are legitimate, and presumptively the children of the husband; such declarations of the husband in life at time witnesses testified are not admissible evidence to show child is illegitimate or to bastardize the child. Richards v. State, 55 Ga. App. 184, 189 S.E. 682 (1937).

When plea of not guilty raises issue of legitimacy. — Husband, by plea of not guilty in criminal case of abandonment of his minor child, or of bastardy, may put legitimacy of child in issue, and method of proving illegitimacy must be in accordance with rules of law. Richards v. State, 55 Ga. App. 184, 189 S.E. 682 (1937).

Issue of legitimacy is appropriate in divorce proceeding. McDonald v. Hester, 115 Ga. App. 740, 155 S.E.2d 720 (1967).

Marriage of parents and father's recognition of child legitimates child. — Child born out of wedlock is made legitimate by subsequent valid marriage of child's parents, and recognition of child by father as his own. Morris v. Dilbeck, 71 Ga. App. 470, 31 S.E.2d 93 (1944).

Order requiring genetic testing erroneous following marriage and recognition of child. — In an action wherein a juvenile court approved the state's plan for nonreunification of two twin children, the juvenile court erred by ordering a parent to submit to genetic testing and by holding that the parent lacked standing in any future related proceedings until that parent submitted to such testing as the parent had married the children's other parent and recognized the children as the parent's own. Further, the Department of Family and Children services failed to fully comply with O.C.G.A. § 19-7-43(d) by not supporting the motion with a sworn statement either alleging or denying the parent's paternity. In the Interest of T.W., 288 Ga. App. 386, 654 S.E.2d 218 (2007).

Illegitimate child may be legitimated by marriage of mother and reputed father and recognition of such child as his. Kersey v. Gardner, 264 F. Supp. 887 (M.D. Ga. 1967).

Legitimation by marriage dates from birth. — Former Code 1933, §§ 74-101 and 74-201 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 19-7-20 and 19-7-23) made child whose parents marry after the child's birth legitimate for all purposes from date of birth. Morris v. Dilbeck, 71 Ga. App. 470, 31 S.E.2d 93 (1944).

Legitimation of issue of bigamous marriage by cohabitation and recognition after death of first wife. See Smith v. Reed, 145 Ga. 724, 89 S.E. 815, 1917a L.R.A. 492 (1916).

Opportunity of access raises strong presumption in favor of legitimacy. — When husband and wife have had opportunity of sexual intercourse, a very strong presumption arises that it must have taken place, and that child in question is the fruit; but it is only a very strong presumption, and no more. This presumption may be rebutted by evidence showing, inter alia, the habits of life and relative situations of the parties, their conduct and declarations connected with conduct, such as, for example, in birth certificates, or impossibility of access. Gibbons v. Maryland Cas. Co., 114 Ga. App. 788, 152 S.E.2d 815 (1966).

Husband not biological father. — Former husband was improperly awarded the former wife's biological child, who was born before the parties' marriage; the husband's marriage to the wife after the child was born and acknowledgement of the child did not render the child legitimate under O.C.G.A. § 19-7-20(c), as O.C.G.A. § 19-7-20(c), which applied to reputed fathers, was inapplicable as the parties always acknowledged that the husband was not the biological father of the child. Veal v. Veal, 281 Ga. 128, 636 S.E.2d 527 (2006).

When sexual intercourse is proved, nothing short of impossibility should impugn legitimacy of offspring. Simeonides v. Zervis, 120 Ga. App. 883, 172 S.E.2d 649 (1969), aff'd, 127 Ga. App. 506, 194 S.E.2d 324 (1972).

Once sexual intercourse between husband and wife is proved, nothing short of impossibility will rebut presumption of legitimacy of child born to wife. Herrin v. Herrin, 242 Ga. 256, 248 S.E.2d 651 (1978).

When sexual intercourse is presumed from propinquity of parties, slighter proof is required to rebut presumption. Simeonides v. Zervis, 120 Ga. App. 883, 172 S.E.2d 649 (1969), aff'd, 127 Ga. App. 506, 194 S.E.2d 324 (1972).

That four children previously were born of marriage shows only presumption of sexual intercourse between parties. Simeonides v. Zervis, 120 Ga. App. 883, 172 S.E.2d 649 (1968), aff'd, 127 Ga. App. 506, 194 S.E.2d 324 (1972).

Responsibility for illegitimate child placed upon parent who is present. This placing of full parental power in mother is consistent with public policy favoring marriage and family because father can choose to join the family. Quilloin v. Walcott, 238 Ga. 230, 232 S.E.2d 246 (1977), aff'd, 434 U.S. 246, 98 S. Ct. 549, 54 L. Ed. 2d 511 (1978).

Intervention in legitimation proceeding. — Trial court erred in granting a putative biological father's legitimation petition while a husband's timely, meritorious motion to intervene of right under O.C.G.A. § 9-11-24(a) was pending because when the husband moved to intervene in the legitimation proceeding he was the child's legal father and had parental and custodial rights to the child, and the husband clearly had an interest in the legitimation proceeding; the husband's interest as the child's legal father would be impaired by a decision of the trial court that was unfavorable to him, and his interest was not adequately represented by the parties to the action since the child's mother consented to the legitimation action. Baker v. Lankford, 306 Ga.

App. 327, 702 S.E.2d 666 (2010).

Denial of legitimation petition proper. — Trial court properly denied the father's petition to legitimate a child since the father abandoned the father's interest when the father took no action during the wife's pregnancy or birth and did not seek to legitimate the child until more than five years after receiving the DNA results. Matthews v. Dukes, 314 Ga. App. 782, 726 S.E.2d 95 (2012), overruled on other grounds, Brine v. Shipp, 291 Ga. 376, 729 S.E.2d 393 (2012).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Statute placed strong presumption in favor of legitimacy of child born in wedlock, and while this legitimacy may be disputed, it would take clear and positive evidence to rebut presumption in favor of child's legitimacy. 1945-47 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 418.

Mere indication that husband is not natural father of child is insufficient to rebut this presumption. 1945-47 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 418.

Issue born of common-law marriage would be legitimate. 1958-59 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 89.

All children born within wedlock or within the usual period of gestation thereafter who have been conceived by means of artificial insemination are irrebuttably presumed legitimate if both spouses have consented in writing to the use and administration of artificial insemination. 19-7-21.1. “Acknowledgment of legitimation” and “legal father” defined; signing acknowledgment of legitimation; when acknowledgment not recognized; making false statement; rescinding acknowledgment.

(a) As used in this Code section, the term:

(1) “Acknowledgment of legitimation” means a written statement contained in a voluntary acknowledgment of paternity form indicating that a mother and father of a child born out of wedlock have freely agreed and consented that the child may be legitimated.

(2) “Legal father” means a male who:

(A) Has legally adopted a child;

(B) Was married to the biological mother of that child at the time the child was conceived or was born, unless such paternity was disproved by a final order pursuant to Article 3 of this chapter;

(C) Married the legal mother of the child after the child was born and recognized the child as his own, unless such paternity was disproved by a final order pursuant to Article 3 of this chapter;

(D) Has been determined to be the father by a final paternity order pursuant to Article 3 of this chapter;

(E) Has legitimated the child by a final order pursuant to Code Section 19-7-22; or

(F) Has legitimated a child pursuant to this Code section and who has not surrendered or had terminated his rights to the child.

(b) Prior to the child's first birthday, a father of a child born out of wedlock may render his relationship with the child legitimate when both the mother and father have freely agreed, consented, and signed a voluntary acknowledgment of paternity and an acknowledgment of legitimation which have been made and have not been rescinded pursuant to Code Section 19-7-46.1. The State Office of Vital Records shall provide notice, in writing, of the alternatives to, legal consequences of, and the rights and responsibilities of signing a voluntary acknowledgment of legitimation.

(c) Voluntary acknowledgment of legitimation shall not be recognized if:

(1) The mother was married to another man when the child was born;

(2) The mother was married to another man at any time within the usual period of gestation;

(3) There is another legal father;

(4) The mother has voluntarily and in writing surrendered all of her parental rights pursuant to the provisions of subsection (a) of any of Code Section 19-8-4, 19-8-5, 19-8-6, or 19-8-7 and has not withdrawn her surrender as permitted by the provisions of subsection (b) of Code Section 19-8-9 or the mother's parental rights have been judicially terminated by a court of competent jurisdiction or an action to terminate such rights has been initiated and is pending;

(5) The mother has signed a voluntary acknowledgment of legitimation with another man; or

(6) The child is one year of age or older.

(d) If any of the circumstances described in subsection (c) of this Code section exists, the provisions of Code Section 19-7-22 shall be the only method of legitimation.

(e) Voluntary acknowledgment of legitimation shall not authorize the father to receive custody or visitation until there is a judicial determination of custody or visitation.

(f) It shall be unlawful to make a false statement on a voluntary acknowledgment of legitimation, and the making of a false statement shall be punishable as an act of false statements and writings under Code Section 16-10-20.

(g) Where a voluntary acknowledgment of paternity is timely rescinded and includes a voluntary acknowledgment of legitimation, the legitimation shall also be deemed rescinded. (Code 1981, § 19-7-21.1, enacted by Ga. L. 2008, p. 667, § 4/SB 88.)

Editor's notes. — Ga. L. 2008, p. 667, § 1/SB 88, not codified by the General Assembly, provides: "This Act shall be known and may be cited as the 'Care of a Grandchild Act.'"

Ga. L. 2008, p. 667, § 2/SB 88, not codified by the General Assembly, provides: "The General Assembly finds that:

"(1) An increasing number of relatives in Georgia, including grandparents and great-grandparents, are providing care to children who cannot reside with their parents due to the parent's incapacity or inability to perform the regular and expected functions to provide such care and support;

"(2) Parents need a means to confer to grandparents or great-grandparents the authority to act on behalf of grandchildren without the time and expense of a court proceeding; and

"(3) Providing a statutory mechanism for granting such authority enhances family preservation and stability."

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Adoption petition failed to address statutory factors. — In a step-father's appeal, a trial court erred by denying the step-father's petition for adoption because the adoption petition did not address the issue of whether the biological father was a parent of the child for purposes of the adoption statutes, O.C.G.A. §§ 19-7-21.1(a)(2)(F) and 19-8-1(6). Allifi v. Raider, 323 Ga. App. 510, 746 S.E.2d 763 (2013).

Denial of petition for legitimation improperly set aside. — Trial court erred by setting aside the denial of a biological father's petition for legitimation because the voluntary acknowledgment of paternity preempted the denial as the father failed to make the trial court aware of the acknowledgment and could not subsequently use the document to set aside the trial court's final judgment. Allifi v. Raider, 323 Ga. App. 510, 746 S.E.2d 763 (2013).

Out of state paternity order substantially equivalent to Georgia legitimation order. — Trial court properly denied the applicants' motion to terminate a father's parental rights and denied the applicants' adoption petition because a State of Alabama paternity order obtained by the father was substantially equivalent to a Georgia legitimation order such that the father had not lost his right to contest the adoption and the father properly domesticated the Alabama order with the trial court. Park v. Bailey, 329 Ga. App. 569, 765 S.E.2d 721 (2014).

19-7-22. Petition for legitimation of child; requirement that mother be named as a party; court order; effect; claims for custody or visitation; third-party action for legitimation in response to petition to establish paternity.

(a) A father of a child born out of wedlock may render his relationship with the child legitimate by petitioning the superior court of the county of the residence of the child's mother or other party having legal custody or guardianship of the child; provided, however, that if the mother or other party having legal custody or guardianship of the child resides outside the state or cannot, after due diligence, be found within the state, the petition may be filed in the county of the father's residence or the county of the child's residence. If a petition for the adoption of the child is pending, the father shall file the petition for legitimation in the county in which the adoption petition is filed.

(b) The petition shall set forth the name, age, and sex of the child, the name of the mother, and, if the father desires the name of the child to be changed, the new name. If the mother is alive, she shall be named as a party and shall be served and provided an opportunity to be heard as in other civil actions under Chapter 11 of Title 9, the "Georgia Civil Practice Act."

(c) Upon the presentation and filing of the petition, the court may pass an order declaring the father's relationship with the child to be legitimate, and that the father and child shall be capable of inheriting from each other in the same manner as if born in lawful wedlock and specifying the name by which the child shall be known.

(d) A legitimation petition may be filed, pursuant to Code Section 15-11-11, in the juvenile court of the county in which a dependency proceeding regarding the child is pending.

(e) Except as provided by subsection (f) of this Code section, the court shall upon notice to the mother further establish such duty as the father may have to support the child, considering the facts and circumstances of the mother's obligation of support and the needs of the child as provided under Code Section 19-6-15.

(f) After a petition for legitimation is granted, if a demand for a jury trial as to support has been properly filed by either parent, then the case shall be transferred from juvenile court to superior court for such jury trial.

(f.1) The petition for legitimation may also include claims for visitation, parenting time, or custody. If such claims are raised in the legitimation action, the court may order, in addition to legitimation, visitation, parenting time, or custody based on the best interests of the child standard. In a case involving allegations of family violence, the provisions of paragraph (4) of subsection (a) of Code Section 19-9-3 shall also apply.

(g)(1) In any petition to establish paternity pursuant to paragraph (4) of subsection (a) of Code Section 19-7-43, the alleged father's response may assert a third-party action for the legitimation of the child born out of wedlock. Upon the determination of paternity or if a voluntary acknowledgment of paternity has been made and has not been rescinded pursuant to Code Section 19-7-46.1, the court or trier of fact as a matter of law and pursuant to the provisions of Code Section 19-7-51 may enter an order or decree legitimating a child born out of wedlock, provided that such is in the best interest of the child. Whenever a petition to establish the paternity of a child is brought by the Department of Human Services, issues of name change, visitation, and custody shall not be determined by the court until such time as a separate petition is filed by one of the parents or by the legal guardian of the child, in accordance with Code Section 19-11-8; if the petition is brought by a party other than the Department of Human Services or if the alleged father seeks legitimation, the court may determine issues of name change, visitation, and custody in accordance with subsections (b) and (f.1) of this Code section. Custody of the child shall remain in the mother unless or until a court order is entered addressing the issue of custody.

(2) In any voluntary acknowledgment of paternity which has been made and has not been rescinded pursuant to Code Section 19-7-46.1, when both the mother and father freely agree and consent, the child may be legitimated by the inclusion of a statement indicating a voluntary acknowledgment of legitimation. (Orig. Code 1863, § 1738; Code 1868, § 1778; Code 1873, § 1787; Code 1882, § 1787; Civil Code 1895, § 2494; Civil Code 1910, § 3013; Code 1933, § 74-103; Ga. L. 1985, p. 279, § 2; Ga. The 2013 amendment, effective January 1, 2014, in subsection (d), substituted "Code Section 15-11-11" for "paragraph (2) of subsection (e) of Code Section 15-11-28" near the beginning, and substituted "dependency" for "deprivation" near the end. See editor's note for applicability.

ANALYSIS

PROCEDURAL ISSUES.

APPLICATION.

General Consideration.

Constitutionality. — O.C.G.A. § 19-7-22 does not violate constitutional guarantees of due process and equal protection. Pruitt v. Lindsey, 261 Ga. 540, 407 S.E.2d 750 (1991).

Rights afforded a mother in the scheme for legitimating the mother’s child render the mother a defendant within the meaning of Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VI; thus, that portion of O.C.G.A.

§ 19-7-22(a) that provides for venue in the county of the putative father, when different from the county of the mother, offends the Georgia Constitution. If one portion of a statute is unconstitutional, the Supreme Court of Georgia has the power to sever that portion of the statute and preserve the remainder if the remaining portion of the act accomplishes the purpose the Georgia General Assembly intended; accordingly, severance of this venue provision does not affect the purpose of the remainder of the statute, and the remaining provisions of O.C.G.A. § 19-7-22(a) are to be given full effect. Holmes v. Traweek, 276 Ga. 296, 577 S.E.2d 777 (2003).

Application of amended statute. — As there were no vested substantive rights that would have been impaired by application of the current version of O.C.G.A. § 19-7-22(b) to an appeal by a putative father, although the prior version was in effect at the time of the juvenile court's ruling, the current version was used for appellate review of the issues raised. In the Interest of A.H., 279 Ga. App. 77, 630 S.E.2d 587 (2006).

Effect of legitimation order. — Because the juvenile court erred in the court's application of O.C.G.A. § 19-7-1(b.1), as a child's legal father was not one of the limited number of related third parties who could seek custody from a legal parent, and in light of the superior court's grant of a legitimation petition to the child's biological father, which the legal father did not challenge by way of an appeal, the legal father lacked standing to challenge the biological father's custody under present Georgia law, and therefore no longer had rights to the custody of the child. In the Interest of C.L., 284 Ga. App. 674, 644 S.E.2d 530 (2007).

No absolute right to legitimate child. — Because the juvenile court failed to determine if one parent abandoned their opportunity interest to develop a relationship with the subject child, and failed to conduct a test of that parent's fitness or make a determination based upon the best interests of the child, the court's speculative conclusions were not equivalent to an examination of the benefit that might flow to the child if legitimated. Thus, the court, in essence, interpreted the parent's right to legitimate the child as absolute, without qualification, which was erroneous, requiring reversal. In the Interest of M.K., 288 Ga. App. 71, 653 S.E.2d 354 (2007).

Construction of section. — Being in derogation of common law, statute must be strictly construed. In re Pickett, 131 Ga. App. 159, 205 S.E.2d 522 (1974).

Construction with § 15-11-96. — Because a father failed to give written notice to the juvenile court that a legitimation petition was filed, as required by O.C.G.A. § 15-11-96(h), within 30 days of receiving notification of a termination proceeding, the juvenile court properly entered an order terminating the father's parental rights, and the father was thus denied the right to object. In the Interest of S.M.R., 286 Ga. App. 139, 648 S.E.2d 697 (2007).

There is no statutory provision for inheritance by illegitimates, per se, from their fathers. Savage v. Blanks, 117 Ga. App. 316, 160 S.E.2d 461 (1968).

Section provides exclusive procedure for legitimizing children. — Exclusive procedure by which fathers may render children legitimate was set forth in the statute. Savage v. Blanks, 117 Ga. App. 316, 160 S.E.2d 461 (1968).

Only a father can by voluntary unilateral action make an illegitimate child legitimate. Parham v. Hughes, 441 U.S. 347, 99 S. Ct. 1742, 60 L. Ed. 2d 269 (1979).

Right is with father only. — Clear language of statute showed legislative intent to be that father alone has right to legitimate a child, whether father was married or single. In re Pickett, 131 Ga. App. 159, 205 S.E.2d 522 (1974).

It was not intent of legislature that legitimation proceedings be only available to unmarried fathers. In re Pickett, 131 Ga. App. 159, 205 S.E.2d 522 (1974).

Qualification on father's right to legitimate child. — Under statute, father's right to legitimate was absolute, subject only to qualification that natural mother may object and if she showed valid reasons why petition should not be granted, judge may deny the petition. In re Pickett, 131 Ga. App. 159, 205 S.E.2d 522 (1974).

Mother's rights. — Mother of illegitimate child is entitled to file objections to a petition brought by putative father to legitimate such child. Murphy v. Thomas, 89 Ga. App. 687, 81 S.E.2d 26 (1954).

Complaint for legitimation under O.C.G.A. § 19-7-22 cannot be maintained by the mother. Pruitt v. Lindsey, 261 Ga. 540, 407 S.E.2d 750 (1991).

Putative father who filed a legitimation petition pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 17-9-22 had to serve the mother with the petition in a timely manner, pursuant to the service requirements under O.C.G.A. § 19-7-22(b), as the juvenile court which was ruling on a county agency's petition to terminate parental rights over the child had only orally and provisionally terminated the mother's rights at the time that the putative father's petition for legitimation was filed and, accordingly, the mother was entitled to service. In the Interest of A.H., 279 Ga. App. 77, 630 S.E.2d 587 (2006).

Children born through adulterous relationships. — Statute did not deny legitimization to children born through adulterous relationships. In re Pickett, 131 Ga. App. 159, 205 S.E.2d 522 (1974).

If a father wants to gain the right to custody or visitation, he must take the steps required by O.C.G.A. § 19-7-22 to "legitimate the child," or, more correctly, to legitimate the relationship between himself and the child. Pruitt v. Lindsey, 261 Ga. 540, 407 S.E.2d 750 (1991).

Father of illegitimate child, legitimated by court order has claim to parental and custodial rights with respect to his child. Mitchell v. Ward, 231 Ga. 671, 203 S.E.2d 484 (1974).

Because an alleged legal father failed to provide the juvenile court with sufficient evidence that the father legitimated the child at issue, the father lacked standing to contest both the custody of the child and the court's order granting custody to DFCS; thus, the custody order was vacated and the case was remanded for further proceedings in which the father could legitimate the child, and if that occurred the court should enter a further order addressing the father's request for custody. In the Interest of A.D., 286 Ga. App. 352, 648 S.E.2d 786 (2007).

Legitimation does not immunize father against loss of custody. — Fact that children have been legitimated does not ipso facto immunize their father from proper showing that children should be removed from his custody. Sims v. Pope, 228 Ga. 289, 185 S.E.2d 80 (1971).

Scope of rights conferred upon legitimated child. — Legitimation under statute did not render illegitimate child legitimate according to full significance of that term, but only renders him so far legitimate as will enable him to inherit from his father. Hicks v. Smith, 94 Ga. 809, 22 S.E. 153 (1895).

Statute did not have effect of rendering legitimate an illegitimate child according to full significance of that term, but only to legitimate so as to enable child to inherit from father, to enjoy his name and like amenities. The authorized right to inherit does not extend to his father's wife who is not his mother nor to his half brothers and sisters. In re Pickett, 131 Ga. App. 159, 205 S.E.2d 522 (1974).

Legitimation of illegitimate child gives the child no more right to support, and no more right than he already had not to be discriminated against because of his birth. Mabry v. Tadlock, 157 Ga. App. 257, 277 S.E.2d 688 (1981).

Visitation rights not at issue upon petition to legitimate. — O.C.G.A. § 19-7-22 contains no language which can be read as requiring a trial court to consider a visitation issue when determining the merits of a petition to legitimate. In re J.B.K., 169 Ga. App. 450, 313 S.E.2d 147 (1984).

By asserting a counterclaim for paternity, the mother of a child born out of wedlock converted the putative father's legitimation action into a paternity suit; therefore, the trial court did not have the authority to consider an award of visitation to the putative father. Petersen v. Tyson, 253 Ga. App. 431, 559 S.E.2d 164 (2002).

Biological father had no absolute right to grant of legitimacy for purpose of obtaining visitation privileges with his children, and trial judge did not abuse the judge's inherent discretion in refusing to legitimate such children on ground that best interests of children would be served by maintaining status quo in stable family unit of children's mother and mother's present husband. Mabry v. Tadlock, 157 Ga. App. 257, 277 S.E.2d 688 (1981).

Mother is entitled to notice of petition to legitimate and may voice objection. Gregg v. Barnes, 203 Ga. App. 549, 417 S.E.2d 206, cert. denied, 203 Ga. App. 906, 417 S.E.2d 206 (1992).

Father's legitimacy order was properly granted as the father never abandoned his opportunity interest in forming a bond with his child; the father loved the child, continued to make efforts to contact him, and financially supported him. Carden v. Warren, 269 Ga. App. 275, 603 S.E.2d 769 (2004).

Out of state paternity order substantially equivalent to Georgia legitimation order and resulted in adoption denial. — Trial court properly denied the applicants' motion to terminate a father's parental rights and denied the applicants' adoption petition because a State of Alabama paternity order obtained by the father was substantially equivalent to a Georgia legitimation order such that the father had not lost his right to contest the adoption and the father properly domesticated the Alabama order with the trial court. Park v. Bailey, 329 Ga. App. 569, 765 S.E.2d 721 (2014).

Delay in filing petition. — After the lapse of thirteen years, public policy forbids the court from becoming involved in a paternity suit when the plaintiff had an opportunity in 1983 to establish paternity even though the plaintiff alleges that the delay was partially a result of his reliance on counsel's correspondence. Grice v. Detwiler, 227 Ga. App. 280, 488 S.E.2d 755 (1997).

Delay based on genetic testing. — Appellate court rejected a father's contention that the juvenile court erred in holding that a delay in instituting legitimation proceedings justified a finding that the father abandoned his opportunity interest, as the father's reason for the delay, specifically, waiting to obtain the results of genetic testing, was not a condition precedent to filing a legitimation petition; moreover, even with the delay, the father could have filed his legitimation petition and then sought court-ordered genetic testing. In the Interest of J.L.E., 281 Ga. App. 805, 637 S.E.2d 446 (2006).

Order terminating a biological parent's parental rights was upheld on appeal, as the parent failed to file for legitimation of the affected children within 30 days of being notified of the termination petition, despite repeatedly being notified to do so, and despite the appointment of an attorney in the termination proceedings. In the Interest of S.M.G., 284 Ga. App. 64, 643 S.E.2d 296 (2007).

Trial court properly terminated a parent's parental rights to a child as a result of the parent failing to timely file a notice of the petition to legitimate the child with the juvenile court within 30 days. The fact that the termination petition misstated relevant statutes did not relieve the parent of the obligation to file both a petition to legitimate and a notice. In the Interest of M.D., 293 Ga. App. 700, 667 S.E.2d 693 (2008).

Failure to file civil case filing form not fatal to legitimation petition. — Putative biological father's failure to pay a filing fee and a civil case filing form required by O.C.G.A. § 9-11-3(b) was not fatal to the father's legitimation claim because the clerk, when asked by the father, did not require payment of a filing fee, and the father's attorney merely followed the procedure suggested by the clerk. Brewton v. Poss, 316 Ga. App. 704, 728 S.E.2d 837 (2012).

Continuance to complete service. — Within the context of a parental rights termination proceeding, a juvenile court had the discretion to determine whether to grant an extension of time for a putative father to serve the legitimation petition on the mother, pursuant to O.C.G.A. §§ 15-11-96(i), 19-7-22(b), and Georgia case law that allowed application of the procedural rules set out in the Civil Practice Act, including O.C.G.A. § 9-11-4(c) relating to service and extensions thereto; accordingly, the juvenile court's refusal to hear the legitimation petition was error as was the decision to terminate the putative father's parental rights under O.C.G.A. § 15-11-94 without first determining that he had standing or not under the legitimation action. In the Interest of A.H., 279 Ga. App. 77, 630 S.E.2d 587 (2006).

Denial of motion to sever improper. — Trial court abused the court's discretion by denying a putative biological father's motion to sever his petition for legitimation of a son from a husband's adoption proceeding because the father's petition substantially complied with the substance of the legitimation statute, O.C.G.A.

Procedural Issues. (Cont'd)

§ 19-7-22; the petition contained the requisite information, it was served on the wife, and it was timely filed in the proper court, and the father's failure to file his petition as a separate civil action caused no prejudice to anyone. Brewton v. Poss, 316 Ga. App. 704, 728 S.E.2d 837 (2012).

Father's wife has no legal status to object to legitimation even though child was conceived by another woman during wife's marriage to father. In re Pickett, 131 Ga. App. 159, 205 S.E.2d 522 (1974).

Standing of legitimated father as to challenges to custody. — Upon legitimation, father stands in same position as any other parent regarding challenges to custody for good and legal cause. Sims v. Pope, 228 Ga. 289, 185 S.E.2d 80 (1971).

Right to file objections to petition. — Although O.C.G.A. § 19-7-22 only provides for notice to the mother, this notice implies a right to file objections to the petition. In re Ashmore, 163 Ga. App. 194, 293 S.E.2d 457 (1982); Adamavage v. Holloway, 206 Ga. App. 156, 424 S.E.2d 837 (1992).

Georgia Civil Practice Act rules applicable. — Court of Appeals of Georgia, First Division interprets the language of O.C.G.A. § 19-7-22(b) to mean that the procedural rules set out in the Georgia Civil Practice Act and Georgia case law interpreting those rules should apply to the service of a legitimation petition; accordingly, the Court of Appeals of Georgia, First Division concluded that a juvenile court has discretion to grant a putative biological father a continuance of a legitimation or parental rights termination hearing in order to allow him additional time to perfect service of his legitimation petition upon the biological mother, irrespective of whether the 30-day limitation period set out in O.C.G.A. § 15-11-96(i) has passed. In the Interest of A.H., 279 Ga. App. 77, 630 S.E.2d 587 (2006).

Right to trial by jury. — O.C.G.A. § 19-7-40 expressly prohibited jury trials in paternity actions, and since the mother and former boyfriend consolidated a paternity action with a legitimation proceeding, which did allow for a jury trial, the right to a jury trial under the legitimation statute, O.C.G.A. § 19-7-22, had to give way because otherwise the goals of the paternity statute would be thwarted; accordingly, the mother had no right to a jury trial in the consolidated action. Banks v. Hopson, 275 Ga. 758, 571 S.E.2d 730 (2002).

Petitions for legitimation separate civil actions. — Father's petition for legitimation should have been filed as a separate civil action because the language within O.C.G.A. § 19-7-22 suggested that legitimation petitions were separate civil actions; the absence of language explicitly providing for a similar avenue in the adoption context implies that the legislature intended legitimation petitions to be stand-alone actions. Brewton v. Poss, 316 Ga. App. 704, 728 S.E.2d 837 (2012).

Application.

Evidence supported denial of legitimation petition. — Because the evidence presented before the juvenile court showed that a biological father: (1) initially refused to take a DNA test to establish paternity; (2) was hostile toward the child's case worker; (3) waited over two years after the child's birth to file a legitimation petition; (4) never visited the child and apparently spoke to the child only once on the telephone after the child was placed in foster care; and (5) failed to provide financial support for the child, the evidence was sufficient to allow the juvenile court to determine that the father abandoned any opportunity and interest to develop a relationship with the child and to deny the father's legitimation petition. In the Interest of L.S.T., 286 Ga. App. 638, 649 S.E.2d 841 (2007).

Husband could not legitimize child. — Former husband was improperly awarded the former wife's biological child; the husband was unable to legitimize the child under O.C.G.A. §§ 19-7-22 and 19-7-25, as those legitimation procedures only applied to biological fathers, and the husband and wife always acknowledged that the child, born before the parties' marriage, was not the husband's biological father. Veal v. Veal, 281 Ga. 128, 636 S.E.2d 527 (2006).

Petition for legitimation denied when not filed in good faith. — When gist of mother's objections to father's petition to legitimate child was that he had no paternal interest in the child but sought only to deprive her of the child by delivering the child into the possession of his mother and father, which if true would authorize the trial court in the exercise of the court's discretion to find that the petition was not filed in good faith and to deny the application for legitimation, the trial court did not err in overruling demurrer (now motion to dismiss) to the mother's objections. Murphy v. Thomas, 89 Ga. App. 687, 81 S.E.2d 26 (1954).

Denial of petition improperly set aside. — Trial court erred by setting aside the denial of a biological father's petition for legitimation because the voluntary acknowledgment of paternity preempted the denial as the father failed to make the trial court aware of the acknowledgment and could not subsequently use the document to set aside the trial court's final judgment. Allifi v. Raider, 323 Ga. App. 510, 746 S.E.2d 763 (2013).

Evidence did not support denial of legitimation petition. — Trial court erred in denying a parent's petition to legitimate a child because the parent's constant payment of financial support coupled with the parent's avowed interest in establishing and maintaining a relationship with the child mitigated against a finding of abandonment. Binns v. Fairnot, 292 Ga. App. 336, 665 S.E.2d 36 (2008), cert. denied, 2008 Ga. LEXIS 876 (Ga. 2008).

New trial after mother participated in fraudulent scheme. — Trial court erred in denying a child's extraordinary motion for new trial based on the mother's participation in a fraudulent scheme to have the child legitimated by someone other than the child's father. Clements v. Phillips, 235 Ga. App. 588, 510 S.E.2d 311 (1998).

Stepfather could not be awarded custody. — It was error for a trial court to award a child's legal and physical custody to the child's stepfather because: (1) the child's mother was permitted to exercise all parental power over the child since the child's father had not legitimated the child under O.C.G.A. § 19-7-22; (2) the stepfather had not adopted the child; and (3) as a result, the stepfather did not have the same status as any of the nonparents specified in O.C.G.A. § 19-7-1(b.1), leaving the trial court with no discretion to award the child's custody to the stepfather. Phillips v. Phillips, 316 Ga. App. 829, 730 S.E.2d 548 (2012).

Grandparents' rights to bring action for custody not dependent on legitimation. — Paternal grandparents' right to bring an action for custody of a child was controlled by a showing that their son was the parent of the child, not by their son legitimating that child; a trial court's order dismissing the paternal grandparents' custody action for lack of standing due to a void legitimation of the child was reversed. Reeves v. Hayes, 266 Ga. App. 297, 596 S.E.2d 668 (2004).

Legitimation judgment authorized. — When the mother had notice and had additionally consented to try all issues between the parties, which included competing claims for custody of the child, and when no objection to the legitimation appears of record, the judgment of legitimation was authorized. Gregg v. Barnes, 203 Ga. App. 549, 417 S.E.2d 206, cert. denied, 203 Ga. App. 906, 417 S.E.2d 206 (1992).

Intervention by adoption agency and adoptive parents. — As legal custodians of the child, adoption agency and adoptive parents had an interest in the father's petition to legitimate the child, and when their rights were not represented, they had a right to intervene. In re Ashmore, 163 Ga. App. 194, 293 S.E.2d 457 (1982).

Adoptive parents need not reveal their true identity in their objections to the father's petition to legitimate the child they seek to adopt. In re Ashmore, 163 Ga. App. 194, 293 S.E.2d 457 (1982).

Modification of support in context of legitimation proceeding. — Even though a petition for modification of child support could be brought in the context of a legitimation proceeding, a showing of changed circumstances is required before an existing award may be modified. Department of Human Resources v. Jones, 215 Ga. App. 322, 450 S.E.2d 339 (1994).

Order granting legitimation overturned. — It was error to grant the petition of the probable biological father to legitimate a minor child whom the legal father had been raising since birth as his own son since the biological father had abandoned his opportunity by failing to take action for nearly three years, the court did not inquire into and apply the best interests of the child standard, and the court did not consider the legal father's prior order. LaBrec v. Davis, 243 Ga. App. 307, 534 S.E.2d 84 (2000).

Termination of parental rights. — Pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28(a)(2)(C), the superior court did not have subject matter jurisdiction to terminate the husband's parental rights because the biological father's petition to legitimate a child who was born in wedlock was a petition to terminate the parental rights of the legal father; after the superior court determined that the biological father had not abandoned his opportunity interest, the issue became whether the superior court could grant the petition to legitimate the child, and to grant the legitimation petition required the superior court to first terminate the parental rights of the husband, who was the legal father. Brine v. Shipp, 291 Ga. 376, 729 S.E.2d 393 (2012).

Name change. — Trial court did not abuse the court's discretion in granting a father's name change petition, pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 19-7-22(g)(1), when he filed a legitimation petition because the evidence supported the trial court's ruling that it was in the child's best interest, would strengthen the father and son bond, and the child and mother no longer shared the same surname. Riggins v. Stirgus, 319 Ga. App. 790, 738 S.E.2d 635 (2013).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Illegitimate child defined. — Illegitimate child, or bastard, is a child born out of wedlock and whose parents do not subsequently intermarry. 1952-53 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 138.

19-7-23. "Child born out of wedlock" defined.

The term "child born out of wedlock" means:

(1) A child whose parents are not married when that child is born or who do not subsequently intermarry;

(2) A child who is the issue of adulterous intercourse of the wife during wedlock; or

(3) A child who is not legitimate within the meaning of Code Section 19-7-20. (Orig. Code 1863, § 1748; Code 1868, § 1788; Code 1873, § 1797; Code 1882, § 1797; Civil Code 1895, § 2507; Civil Code 1910, § 3026; Code 1933, § 74-201; Ga. L. 1988, p. 1720, § 6.)

Statute codifies common law that child born out of wedlock whose parents did not subsequently intermarry was illegitimate. Hobby v. Burke, 227 F.2d 932 (5th Cir. 1955).

Construction with O.C.G.A. § 19-7-1. — Because the juvenile court erred in the court's application of O.C.G.A. § 19-7-1(b.1), as a child's legal father was not one of the limited number of related third parties who could seek custody from a legal parent, and in light of the superior court's grant of a legitimation petition to the child's biological father, which the legal father did not challenge by way of an appeal, the legal father lacked standing to challenge the biological father's custody under present Georgia law, and therefore no longer had rights to the custody of the child. In the Interest of C.L., 284 Ga. App. 674, 644 S.E.2d 530 (2007).

Marriage of parents and father's recognition of child legitimates child. — Illegitimate child may be legitimated by marriage of mother and reputed father and recognition of such child as his. Kersey v. Gardner, 264 F. Supp. 887 (M.D. Ga. 1967).

Legitimation by marriage dates from birth. — Former Code 1933, §§ 74-101 and 74-201 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 19-7-20 and 19-7-23) make child whose parents marry after child's birth legiti-mate for all purposes from date of birth. Morris v. Dilbeck, 71 Ga. App. 470, 31 S.E.2d 93 (1944).

Legitimate child may inherit from father's estate. — See Morris v. Dilbeck, 71 Ga. App. 470, 31 S.E.2d 93 (1944).

Mother of child born during wedlock is precluded by public policy from asserting the child's illegitimacy to show consideration for contract with man other than her husband, providing for payment of certain monthly sum for the child's support. Colson v. Huber, 74 Ga. App. 339, 39 S.E.2d 539 (1946), overruled on other grounds, In re White, 254 Ga. 678, 333 S.E.2d 588 (1985).

While there is a strong presumption that child born during wedlock is legitimate, this presumption is not conclusive, and will be held to have been rebutted, when proof to contrary is clear. McLoud v. State, 122 Ga. 393, 50 S.E. 145 (1905); Jones v. State, 11 Ga. App. 760, 76 S.E. 72 (1912).

Rebuttal of presumption of legitimacy. — Presumption of legitimacy of children born in wedlock may be rebutted by evidence of nonaccess or other testimony. Thornton v. State, 129 Ga. App. 574, 200 S.E.2d 298 (1973); Parks v. State, 155 Ga. App. 44, 270 S.E.2d 271 (1980).

Whether presumption has been rebutted is for jury determination. — It is duty of jury to weigh evidence against presumption, and to decide, in exercise of the jury's judgment, the truth as it may appear. Parks v. State, 155 Ga. App. 44, 270 S.E.2d 271 (1980).

When child of married woman is illegitimate. — Child of married woman begotten by one who is not her husband is illegitimate. Jones v. State, 11 Ga. App. 760, 76 S.E. 72 (1912).

Legitimacy of children born of bigamous marriage is unclear. — Because it was not possible to determine from former Code 1933, §§ 74-201 and 53-104 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 19-7-23 and 19-3-5, respectively) whether General Assembly intended children born following wedding between single man and woman already married to another man to be legitimate or illegitimate children, the man's trustors executing trusts must be charged with knowledge that the word "children" as used in their trusts would not per se include illegitimate children. King v. King, 218 Ga. 534, 129 S.E.2d 147 (1962), appeal dismissed, 375 U.S. 17, 84 S. Ct. 101, 11 L. Ed. 2d 45 (1963).

When children of bigamous marriages are legitimate. — Construing former Code 1933, § 74-201 (see now O.C.G.A. § 19-7-23) in connection with former Code 1933, § 53-104 (see now O.C.G.A. § 19-3-5) which provided that children of marriages of persons unable, unwilling, or fraudulently induced to contract were legitimate although such marriages were void, the Supreme Court concluded that the legislature intended to remove stigma of bastardy from innocent children if their parents go through a marriage ceremony, even though marriage was void because one of the parties was unable to contract marriage by reason of an existing marriage. Brazziel v. Spivey, 219 Ga. 445, 133 S.E.2d 885 (1963).

Word "children" does not per se include illegitimate children. King v. King, 218 Ga. 534, 129 S.E.2d 147 (1962), appeal dismissed, 375 U.S. 17, 84 S. Ct. 101, 11 L. Ed. 2d 45 (1963).

Statutory scheme relating to illegitimate children and remedies available to state require support from both parents and both are subject to criminal prosecution. Hudgins v. State, 243 Ga. 798, 256 S.E.2d 899 (1979).

Liability for period prior to paternity adjudication. — Trial court erred in refusing to award back support to the mother of a child for those periods prior to an adjudication of paternity when she had been supporting the child without the benefit of public assistance payments. Weaver v. Chester, 195 Ga. App. 471, 393 S.E.2d 715 (1990).

Both parents are responsible for illegitimate child's support. — Although under common law an illegitimate child was the legal responsibility only of the mother, the statute also made the father responsible for the child's support. Thorpe v. Collins, 245 Ga. 77, 263 S.E.2d 115 (1980).

Strict construction as to liability of father of illegitimate child. — Statutes imposing liability on illegitimate child's father for child's support and education, being in derogation of common law, must be strictly construed. Washington v. Martin, 75 Ga. App. 466, 43 S.E.2d 590 (1947).

Support when alleged father is deceased. — Because at the time of father's death child's mother was in the process of establishing deceased as child's father for the purpose of obtaining child support and because father had responsibly fulfilled his child support obligations to his other child, the child had a reasonable expectation that the deceased father would fulfill his statutorily imposed obligation to support her as well. In re Adventure Bound Sports, Inc., 858 F. Supp. 1192 (S.D. Ga. 1994).

Civil action by mother of illegitimate child for child support. — Mother of an illegitimate child may maintain a civil action to compel the father to support the child. Poulos v. McMahan, 250 Ga. 354, 297 S.E.2d 451 (1982); Evans v. State, 178 Ga. App. 1, 341 S.E.2d 865 (1986); Coxwell v. Matthews, 263 Ga. 444, 435 S.E.2d 33 (1993).

When there is an absent parent who does not provide support, and the payment of public assistance is for the support of both the dependent child and the custodial parent who is not able, without the benefit of public assistance, to provide support and maintenance for the child, it is inconsistent with both the goals of the Public Assistance Act and the Child Support Recovery Act to conclude that the payment of Aid to Families with Dependent Children imposes upon the custodial parent a debt due and owing the state under O.C.G.A. § 19-11-5. Cox v. Cox ex rel. State Dep't of Human Resources, 255 Ga. 6, 334 S.E.2d 683 (1985).

Adequate pre-natal medical care. — Duty to protect and maintain a child includes the duty to ensure that the child receives adequate medical care prior to and during birth. Coxwell v. Matthews, 263 Ga. 444, 435 S.E.2d 33 (1993).

Health care insurance. — In a mother's paternity suit to establish the legitimation, custody, and support of her minor child by the father, the trial court did not err in failing to require the father to pay for the child's health insurance under O.C.G.A. § 19-7-24 if not employed by the NFL. Jackson v. Irvin, 316 Ga. App. 560, 730 S.E.2d 48 (2012).

19-7-25. In whom parental power over child born out of wedlock lies.

Only the mother of a child born out of wedlock is entitled to custody of the child, unless the father legitimates the child as provided in Code Section 19-7-21.1 or 19-7-22. Otherwise, the mother may exercise all parental power over the child. (Orig. Code 1863, § 1750; Code 1868, § 1790; Code 1873, § 1799; Code 1882, § 1799; Civil Code 1895, § 2509; Civil Code 1910, § 3028; Code 1933, § 74-203; Ga. L. 1988, p. 1720, § 8; Ga. "(1) An increasing number of relatives in Georgia, including grandparents and great-grandparents, are providing care to children who cannot reside with their parents due to the parent's incapacity or inability to perform the regular and expected functions to provide such care and support;

"(2) Parents need a means to confer to grandparents or great-grandparents the authority to act on behalf of grandchildren without the time and expense of a court proceeding; and

"(3) Providing a statutory mechanism for granting such authority enhances family preservation and stability."

Constitutionality of section. — Statute did not violate U.S. Const., amends. 5 and 14. Quilloin v. Walcott, 238 Ga. 230, 232 S.E.2d 246 (1977), aff'd, 434 U.S. 246, 98 S. Ct. 549, 54 L. Ed. 2d 511 (1978).

Statute did not necessarily deprive natural father of his parental rights under due process and equal protection under U.S. Const., amends. 5 and 14. Quilloin v. Walcott, 434 U.S. 246, 98 S. Ct. 549, 54 L. Ed. 2d 511 (1978).

Consideration of custody issues is not precluded in a situation when that claim as well as legitimation is pending before the court by consent of the parties and there is jurisdiction of the parents, child, and subject matter in the court. Ganny v. Ganny, 238 Ga. App. 123, 518 S.E.2d 148 (1999).

When mother has prima facie rights conferred by statute. — Unless child is illegitimate, mother does not prima facie have rights conferred by statute. Therefore, a contract which mother alone entered into with her aunt, consenting for custody and adoption of child, does not constitute a superior right which would prevent trial judge in action for habeas corpus to award child to another aunt, and her husband. Connor v. Rainwater, 200 Ga. 866, 38 S.E.2d 805 (1946).

Prima facie right to custody was in mother. Kilgore v. Tiller, 194 Ga. 527, 22 S.E.2d 150 (1942); Skinner v. Skinner, 204 Ga. 635, 51 S.E.2d 420 (1949).

Former Code 1933, § 74-203 (see now O.C.G.A. § 19-7-25) must be construed in connection with former Code 1933, § 50-121 (see now O.C.G.A. § 9-14-2). Kilgore v. Tiller, 194 Ga. 527, 22 S.E.2d 150 (1942).

Discretion reposed in trial judge was inapplicable unless parental rights have been lost. Skinner v. Skinner, 204 Ga. 635, 51 S.E.2d 420 (1949).

Mother is entitled to custody as against third parties. — Mother under former Code 1933, § 74-203 (see now O.C.G.A. § 19-7-25) cannot be denied custody of child in habeas corpus proceeding against third parties unless it was shown that parental power was lost under provisions of former Code 1933, §§ 74-108—74-110 (see now O.C.G.A. § 19-7-1 or O.C.G.A. § 19-7-4). McMillan v. McMillan, 224 Ga. 790, 164 S.E.2d 839 (1968).

Mother within definition of former Code 1933, § 74-203 (see now O.C.G.A. § 19-7-25) cannot be denied custody of child at habeas corpus proceeding against third parties unless it was shown her parental rights were lost under provisions of former Code 1933, § 74-108—74-110 (see now O.C.G.A. § 19-7-1 or O.C.G.A. § 19-7-4) or that she was unfit. Pettiford v. Mott, 230 Ga. 692, 198 S.E.2d 662 (1973).

Control of minor illegitimate child not legitimated by father belongs exclusively to mother. Perry v. State, 113 Ga. 936, 39 S.E. 315 (1901); Blakemore v. Blakemore, 217 Ga. 174, 121 S.E.2d 642 (1961).

Standing of father of illegitimate child. — Father of illegitimate child, unless he legitimates the child, has no standing with reference to child. Hall v. Hall, 222 Ga. 820, 152 S.E.2d 737 (1966).

Because an alleged legal father failed to provide the juvenile court with sufficient evidence that the father legitimated the child at issue, the father lacked standing to contest both the custody of the child and the court's order granting custody to DFCS; thus, the custody order was vacated and the case was remanded for further proceedings in which the father could legitimate the child, and if that occurred the court should enter a further order addressing the father's request for custody. In the Interest of A.D., 286 Ga. App. 352, 648 S.E.2d 786 (2007).

Husband could not legitimize child. — Former husband was improperly awarded the former wife's biological child; the husband was unable to legitimize the child under O.C.G.A. §§ 19-7-22 and 19-7-25 as those legitimation procedures only applied to biological fathers, and the husband and wife always acknowledged that the child, born before the parties' marriage, was not the husband's biological father. Veal v. Veal, 281 Ga. 128, 636 S.E.2d 527 (2006).

Convicting putative father of cruelty by depriving sustenance. — Even though the mother of an illegitimate child is entitled to custody, the putative father has rights and duties with respect to the child; thus, evidence supported conviction of the father of a four-year-old illegitimate child for cruelty by depriving the child of necessary sustenance. Strickland v. State, 211 Ga. App. 48, 438 S.E.2d 161 (1993).

Mother of illegitimate child was not the only recognized parent under the law; the putative father was also a parent. Nelson v. Taylor, 244 Ga. 657, 261 S.E.2d 579 (1979).

Mother may relinquish control to father. — When mother of illegitimate children relinquishes all of her rights to father of such children, she cannot thereafter regain possession of children in habeas corpus proceeding, when condition of father to maintain and support them is unchanged. Kirkland v. Canty, 122 Ga. 261, 50 S.E. 90 (1905).

Contest between father of illegitimate child and third persons to whom mother relinquished control. See Day v. Hatton, 210 Ga. 749, 83 S.E.2d 6 (1954).

Appellate court reversed the trial court's judgment awarding custody of a father's daughters to the daughters' grandmother because the trial court did not find that awarding custody to the father, who legitimized his daughters after he learned that their mother had died, would harm the children physically or emotionally. Jones v. Burks, 267 Ga. App. 390, 599 S.E.2d 322 (2004).

When father has prima facie right of custody. — When mother of child is dead, father has prima facie right of custody, and in order to sustain contention that he has lost his parental power by reason of failure to provide necessities for his child or by abandonment of his family, a clear and strong case must be made.

Best interest standard applied after child legitimized. — Trial court erred in applying the change in circumstances standard to a father's custody petition as the father had legitimized the child, but no previous custody determination had been made; the best interest of the child standard set forth in O.C.G.A. § 19-9-3(a) should have been used. Braynon v. Hilbert, 275 Ga. App. 511, 621 S.E.2d 529 (2005).

(A) Written materials about paternity establishment;

(B) The forms necessary to voluntarily acknowledge paternity;

(C) A written description of the rights and responsibilities of acknowledging paternity; and

(D) The opportunity, prior to discharge from the hospital, to speak with staff, either by telephone or in person, who are trained to clarify information and answer questions about paternity establishment. (Code 1981, § 19-7-27, enacted by Ga. L. 1994, p. 1270, § 2; Ga. L. 1999, p. 81, § 19.)

ARTICLE 3DETERMINATION OF PATERNITY

Editor's notes. — Section 3 of Ga. L. 1980, p. 1374, § 1 of which enacted this article, provided as follows: "The provisions of this Act and the remedy provided herein [see § 19-10-1] are intended to be in addition to and cumulative of all other existing laws related to paternity, child support, or other subjects covered herein; and this Act shall not be construed to limit the operation of or repeal any such existing law."

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Neither illegitimate child nor mother barred from bringing paternity suit. — An illegitimate child cannot be barred from bringing a paternity suit under O.C.G.A. Art. 3, Ch. 7, T. 19, and because the natural mother should be made a party to such a suit, notwithstanding a private contract to the contrary, the natural mother is prevented neither from initiating, nor from participating as a party in an action under that article. Worthington v. Worthington, 250 Ga. 730, 301 S.E.2d 44 (1983).

Illegitimate child precluded from relitigating paternity. — When the issue of paternity of a child had previously been adjudicated pursuant to divorce proceedings, the principles of estoppel by judgment and res judicata applied. Macuch v. Pettey, 170 Ga. App. 467, 317 S.E.2d 262 (1984).

Finality of paternity determination. — When the parties were divorced in 1982 with the former husband contesting paternity, the trial court erred in 1990 in finding the former husband was not the child's father, and relieving him from his support obligation. Once there has been a final determination of paternity, a party may not relitigate that issue without first showing, inter alia, that his failure to contest paternity earlier was not the result of a lack of due diligence. Gearing v. Gearing, 261 Ga. 250, 403 S.E.2d 809 (1991).

19-7-40. Jurisdiction; administrative determination of paternity.

(a) The superior and state courts of the several counties shall have concurrent jurisdiction in all proceedings for the determination of paternity of children who are residents of this state. The state courts shall have such concurrent jurisdiction notwithstanding any contrary provision of local law. Parties to an action to establish paternity shall not be entitled to a trial by jury.

(b) Whenever the Department of Human Services seeks to establish paternity of a child, the Office of State Administrative Hearings shall have authority to adjudicate the issue of paternity, pursuant to Chapter 13 of Title 50, the "Georgia Administrative Procedure Act"; provided, however, that if the putative father demands a trial in the superior court, it shall be the duty of the judge to cause an issue to be made and tried at the first session of the next term of court succeeding the putative father's demand for trial. The administrative determination shall have the same force and effect as a judicial decree. (Code 1933, § 74-301, enacted by Ga. L. 1980, p. 1374, § 1; Ga. L. 1994, p. 1270, § 3; Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 15; Ga. L. 2009, p. 453, § 2-2/HB 228.)

Editor's notes. — Ga. L. 1980, p. 1374, § 3, which enacted this article, provides that this article and the remedy provided herein are intended to be in addition to and cumulative of all other existing laws related to paternity, child support, or other subjects covered herein and that this article shall not be construed to limit the operation of or repeal any such existing law.

Superior Court lacked jurisdiction under O.C.G.A. § 19-7-40 to hear a child's complaint that the defendant administrator's decedent was the child's father and the child was the sole heir to his estate; the case was not a paternity action, it was a matter of descent and distribution subject to the exclusive jurisdiction of the probate court. Rodriguez v. Nunez, 252 Ga. App. 56, 555 S.E.2d 514 (2001).

Trial by jury. — Retroactive application of the 1997 amendment, Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 15, which extinguished the right to a jury trial in a paternity suit, was unconstitutional. Hargis v. Department of Human Resources, 272 Ga. 617, 533 S.E.2d 712 (2000).

O.C.G.A. § 19-7-40 expressly prohibited jury trials in paternity actions, and since the mother and former boyfriend consolidated a paternity action with a legitimation proceeding, which did allow for a jury trial, the right to a jury trial under the legitimation statute, O.C.G.A. § 19-7-22, had to give way because otherwise the goals of the paternity statute would be thwarted; accordingly, the mother had no right to a jury trial in the consolidated action. Banks v. Hopson, 275 Ga. 758, 571 S.E.2d 730 (2002).

Residency requirement. — Georgia court does not have jurisdiction in a paternity action if neither the former husband, former wife, nor child are Georgia residents. Meredith v. Meredith, 257 Ga. 458, 360 S.E.2d 586 (1987).

O.C.G.A. § 19-7-40 does not limit paternity actions in Georgia to cases in which the child is a Georgia resident. Rather, the section broadens the jurisdiction to allow an action on behalf of a child who is a resident against a putative father who is a nonresident. Jones v. Alfone, 261 Ga. 258, 404 S.E.2d 119 (1991).

19-7-41. Service outside state.

In a proceeding under this article, the court, pursuant to Chapter 11 of Title 9, may order service upon a person outside the state upon a finding that there is a constitutionally permissible basis for jurisdiction over the person, including those enumerated in Article 3 of Chapter 11 of this title. (Code 1933, § 74-302, enacted by Ga. L. 1980, p. 1374, § 1; Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 16.)

Section satisfies minimum contacts test for judgment against out-of-state defendant. — Now that the capias ad respondendum has given way to personal service of summons or other form of notice, due process requires only that in order to subject defendant to judgment in personam, if defendant is not present within territory of forum, he must have certain minimum contacts such that maintenance of suit does not offend traditional notions of fair play and substantial justice. O.C.G.A. § 19-7-41 satisfies this requirement. Bell v. Arnold, 248 Ga. 9, 279 S.E.2d 449 (1981).

Service based on statute's requirements not inconsistent with ends of justice. — When it was shown that the minor child was conceived as a result of sexual intercourse between the child's mother and the defendant in Georgia and that the child's mother continued to reside in Georgia, the trial court erred in finding that out-of-state service upon the defendant pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 19-7-41 would be inconsistent with the ends of justice. Department of Human Resources v. Estes, 208 Ga. App. 872, 432 S.E.2d 613 (1993).

No bar to paternity action by natural mother or child. — Illegitimate child cannot be barred from bringing a paternity suit under O.C.G.A. Art. 3, Ch. 7, T. 19, and because the natural mother should be made a party to such a suit, notwithstanding a private contract to the contrary, the natural mother is prevented neither from initiating, nor from participating as a party in an action under that article. Worthington v. Worthington, 250 Ga. 730, 301 S.E.2d 44 (1983).

Service barred if conception was outside state. — When the plaintiff asserted that her child was conceived as a result of an act of sexual intercourse in California, the essential fact necessary to support personal service of process outside Georgia was absent. Garvey v. Mendenhall, 199 Ga. App. 241, 404 S.E.2d 613, cert. denied, 199 Ga. App. 906, 404 S.E.2d 613 (1991).

Denial of motion to order service held error. — Denial of a motion made under O.C.G.A. § 19-7-41 in connection with an action to determine paternity and establish child support obligations of the putative, nonresident father was error since there was no question that the child was conceived as a result of an act of sexual intercourse within this state while either parent was a resident of this state and since it appeared that the trial court's ruling was based solely on a URESA (O.C.G.A. § 19-11-1 et seq.) analysis, although § 19-7-41 does not require the court to order service. Department of Human Resources v. McCormick, 208 Ga. App. 751, 431 S.E.2d 740 (1993).

Transfer of paternity portion of case. — Although a petition for determination of paternity must be brought where the child resides when the father lives out of the state, the superior court should not have dismissed an entire motion/petition, which included a motion to set aside the judgment for want of jurisdiction, simply because one aspect of the case should have been heard elsewhere; the superior court should have transferred the paternity portion of the case, not dismissed it. Suggs v. Suggs, 204 Ga. App. 72, 418 S.E.2d 427 (1992).

19-7-43. Petition; by whom brought; effect of agreement on right to bring petition; stay pending birth of child; court order for blood tests; genetic tests.

(a) A petition to establish the paternity of a child may be brought by:

(1) The child;

(2) The mother of the child;

(3) Any relative in whose care the child has been placed;

(4) The Department of Human Services in the name of and for the benefit of a child for whom public assistance is received or in the name of and for the benefit of a child not the recipient of public services whose custodian has applied for services for the child; or

(5) One who is alleged to be the father.

(b) Regardless of its terms, an agreement, other than an agreement approved by the court in accordance with this article, between an alleged or presumed father and the mother or child does not bar a petition under this Code section.

(c) If a petition under this article is brought before the birth of the child, all proceedings shall be stayed until after the birth except service of process, discovery, and the taking of depositions.

(d) In any case in which the paternity of a child or children has not been established, any party may make a motion for the court to order the mother, the alleged father, and the child or children to submit to genetic tests as specified in Code Section 19-7-45. Such motion shall be supported by a sworn statement (1) alleging paternity and setting forth facts establishing a reasonable possibility of the requisite sexual contact between the parties; or (2) denying paternity and setting forth facts establishing a reasonable possibility of the nonexistence of sexual contact between the parties. Appropriate orders shall be issued in accordance with the provisions of this article. The court shall grant the motion unless it finds good cause as defined by the federal Social Security Act or if other good excuse for noncooperation is established.

(e) In any case for the collection of child support involving the Department of Human Services in which the paternity of a child or children has not been established or in which the individual receiving services alleges that paternity rests in a person other than the previously established father, the Department of Human Services shall order genetic testing of the mother, the alleged father, and the child or children as specified in Code Section 19-7-45. No genetic testing shall be undertaken by the Department of Human Services if the child was adopted either by the applicant for services or other alleged parent or if the child was conceived by means of artificial insemination. The need for genetic testing shall be supported by a sworn statement alleging paternity and setting forth facts establishing a reasonable possibility of the requisite sexual contact between the parties. The parties shall be given notice and an opportunity to contest the order before the Department of Human Services prior to the testing or the imposition of any noncooperation sanction.

(f) In any case in which the court or the Department of Human Services orders genetic testing and one or both of the parties to the action is receiving child support services pursuant to Code Section 19-11-6, the Department of Human Services shall pay the costs of such tests subject to recoupment from the alleged father if paternity is established. If the genetic test excludes the possibility of the alleged father being the biological father, then the applicant for services who named the alleged father shall be liable to the Department of Human Services for reimbursement of the paternity testing fee. Upon completion of the first test, but prior to the entry of any order, a second genetic test shall be ordered if the person making the request tenders payment in full of the cost of the initial test as well as the cost of the second test at the time of the request. Any party who, after notice sent by mail to his or her last known address, fails to cooperate with paternity testing or fails to make any child available for paternity testing may be sanctioned by the Department of Human Services. Such sanctions may include but shall not be limited to loss of the opportunity for paternity testing, loss of state benefits, denial of services, and administrative case closure. The Department of Human Services may bring a petition for contempt in the event of such noncooperation in violation of any court order. (Code 1933, § 74-304, enacted by Ga. L. 1980, p. 1374, § 1; Ga. L. 1985, p. 279, § 3; Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 17; Ga. L. 2002, p. 1247, § 4; Ga. L. 2009, p. 453, § 2-2/HB 228; Ga. L. 2015, p. 1433, § 1/HB 568.)

The 2015 amendment, effective July 1, 2015, substituted the present provisions of subsections (e) and (f) for the former provisions, which read: “(e) In any case in which the paternity of a child or children has not been established, the Department of Human Services may order the mother, the alleged father, and the child or children to submit to genetic tests as specified in Code Section 19-7-45. The request for the order shall be supported by a sworn statement alleging paternity and setting forth facts establishing a reasonable possibility of the requisite sexual contact between the parties. The parties shall be given notice and an opportunity to contest the order before the department prior to the testing or the imposition of any noncooperation sanction.

“(f) In any case in which the court or the department orders genetic testing and one or both of the parties to the action is receiving child support services pursuant to Code Section 19-11-6, the department shall pay the costs of such tests subject to recoupment from the alleged father if paternity is established. A second genetic test shall be ordered by the department if an order for paternity has not been issued and if the person making the request tenders payment of the cost of the test at the time of the request.”

Constitutionality. — Statutory scheme for paternity actions set forth in O.C.G.A. § 19-7-43 et seq. is not unconstitutional, notwithstanding the contention that the statutes create an improper gender-based classification that permits a male to be adjudged to be the father of a child and ordered to make corresponding child support payments without according him the same parental rights which automatically enure to the mother of that same child since: (1) the paternity statutes recognize the intrinsic differences in the circumstances of fathers and mothers of illegitimate children and eliminated the gender-based discrimination of the common law, which placed a duty of support on the mother, but not on the father; and (2) a father can achieve the same benefits as the mother by acknowledging a child as his own and filing a counterclaim for legitimation. Palmer v. Bertrand, 273 Ga. 475, 541 S.E.2d 360 (2001), cert. denied, 534 U.S. 951, 122 S. Ct. 346, 151 L. Ed. 2d 262 (2001).

Not applicable to probate court proceedings involving descent and distribution. — In a proceeding for year’s support by the purported widow of a decedent on behalf of herself and her child, the widow incorrectly relied on O.C.G.A. § 19-7-43 to support her claim that the administrator of the decedent’s estate did not have standing to bring a petition to establish the paternity of the widow’s child as that statute was not applicable to probate court proceedings involving estate descent and distribution issues. Crowther v. Estate of Crowther, 258 Ga. App. 498, 574 S.E.2d 607 (2002).

Putative father waived venue rights by choosing the county of the residence of the mother and the child and deciding to forego filing his action in the county of his own residence. Holcomb v. Ellis, 259 Ga. 625, 385 S.E.2d 670 (1989).

Delay in pursuing paternity. — After the lapse of thirteen years, public policy forbids the court from becoming involved in a paternity suit when the plaintiff had an opportunity in 1983 to establish paternity even though the plaintiff alleges that the delay was partially a result of his reliance on counsel’s correspondence. Grice v. Detwiler, 227 Ga. App. 280, 488 S.E.2d 755 (1997).

Delay in filing legitimation petition. — Appellate court rejected a father’s contention that the juvenile court erred in holding that a delay in instituting legitimation proceedings justified a finding that the father abandoned his opportunity interest as the father’s reason for the delay, specifically, waiting to obtain the results of genetic testing, was not a condition precedent to filing a legitimation petition; moreover, even with the delay, the father could have filed his legitimation petition and then sought court-ordered genetic testing. In the Interest of J.L.E., 281 Ga. App. 805, 637 S.E.2d 446 (2006).

Order requiring a parent to submit to genetic testing erroneous and not supported. — In an action wherein a juvenile court approved the state’s plan for nonreunification of two twin children, the juvenile court erred by ordering a parent to submit to genetic testing and by holding that the parent lacked standing in any future related proceedings until that parent submitted to such testing as the parent had married the children's other parent and recognized the children as the parent's own. Further, the Department of Family and Children Services failed to fully comply with O.C.G.A. § 19-7-43(d) by not supporting the motion with a sworn statement either alleging or denying the parent's paternity. In the Interest of T.W., 288 Ga. App. 386, 654 S.E.2d 218 (2007).

Trial court's order requiring that an alleged father and a mother submit to paternity blood testing was erroneous because the doctrine of res judicata clearly proscribed the trial court's reconsideration of the issue of paternity; an unappealed and unmodified final order establishing paternity and child support, which was predicated on the parties' settlement agreement and paternity acknowledgment expressly consented to by the father, adjudged that he was the father of the mother's child, and while the father moved to set aside the final order, the trial court found that he had failed to meet his burden of disestablishing paternity under O.C.G.A. § 19-7-54 and denied the motion. Venable v. Parker, 307 Ga. App. 880, 706 S.E.2d 211 (2011).

Agreement waiving support following artificial insemination. — Because the trial court by the court's judgment of dismissal enforced a contract under which a mother relinquished her right to hold a sperm donor responsible for any resulting child as a valid contract, there was no violation of O.C.G.A. § 19-7-43(b) for lack of a court order approving the contract. Brown v. Gadson, 288 Ga. App. 323, 654 S.E.2d 179 (2007), cert. denied, 2008 Ga. LEXIS 236 (Ga. 2008).

19-7-45. Genetic tests.

(a) All orders requiring parties to submit to genetic tests shall be issued in conformance with Code Sections 19-7-43, 19-7-46, and 19-7-54. In all cases such tests shall be conducted by a laboratory certified by the American Association of Blood Banks and shall be conducted so that the results meet the standards the American Association of Blood Banks requires in order for such results to be admitted as evidence in a court of law.

(b) When an action to determine paternity is initiated prior to the birth of a child, the court shall order that the genetic tests be made as soon as medically feasible after the birth.

(c) Genetic tests shall be performed by a duly qualified licensed practicing physician, duly qualified immunologist, or other qualified person. In all cases, however, the court shall determine the number and qualifications of the experts. In all cases the results shall be made known to all parties at interest as soon as available.

(d) An order issued under this Code section is enforceable by contempt, provided that, if the petitioner refuses to submit to an order for a genetic test, the court may dismiss the action upon motion of the respondent.

(e)(1) The Department of Human Services and any court issuing an order with respect to a determination of paternity shall not, insofar as possible, attach the written results from a genetic test to any pleading or court order.

(2) The genetic material collected for a genetic test shall be destroyed within a reasonable time, as set forth by rule of the Department of Human Services.

(3) The genetic material collected for a genetic test shall not be shared with any other person or entity. (Code 1933, § 74-306, enacted by Ga. L. 1980, p. 1374, § 1; Ga. L. 1982, p. 3, § 19; Ga. JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Not applicable to probate court proceedings involving descent and distribution. — In a proceeding for year's support by the purported widow of a decedent on behalf of herself and her child, the widow incorrectly relied on O.C.G.A. § 19-7-45 to challenge the validity of a genetic test establishing the paternity of her child as that statute was not applicable to probate court proceedings involving estate descent and distribution issues. Crowther v. Estate of Crowther, 258 Ga. App. 498, 574 S.E.2d 607 (2002).

Requiring submission to blood test. — Requiring individual to submit to a blood test for purpose of proving or disproving paternity, pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 19-7-45, does not compel him to be a witness against himself within the meaning of U.S. Const., amend. 5, nor would such procedure compel him "to give testimony tending in any manner to incriminate himself" within the meaning of the Georgia Constitution. Raines v. White, 248 Ga. 406, 284 S.E.2d 7 (1981); Pinson v. State, 194 Ga. App. 506, 391 S.E.2d 28 (1990).

State was entitled to compel the defendant to submit to a second blood test when the previous test was in connection with a civil action and when there was no indication that repetition of the test was unusually burdensome to the defendant or caused by negligence on the part of the state. Rainwater v. State, 210 Ga. App. 594, 436 S.E.2d 772 (1993).

Requiring putative father to pay costs of blood test. — It is a violation of due process for the state to require a putative father to pay the costs of a blood test for the purpose of determining paternity when no hearing has been conducted on the merits of the case. Boone v. State, Dep't of Human Resources ex rel. Carter, 250 Ga. 379, 297 S.E.2d 727 (1982).

Enforcement of motion to compel testing. — Claims of the Department of Human Resources against a putative father for reimbursement of public assistance and future support and a contempt complaint for the father's failure to appear for a court-ordered paternity test were not barred by the equitable doctrine of laches. Department of Human Resources v. Mitchell, 232 Ga. App. 560, 501 S.E.2d 508 (1998).

Delay in filing legitimation petition. — Appellate court rejected a father's contention that the juvenile court erred in holding that a delay in instituting legitimation proceedings justified a finding that the father abandoned his opportunity interest as the father's reason for the delay, specifically, waiting to obtain the results of genetic testing, was not a condition precedent to filing a legitimation petition; moreover, even with the delay, the father could have filed his legitimation petition

19-7-46. Evidence at trial.

(a) The results of medical tests and comparisons ordered by the court, including the statistical likelihood of the alleged parent's parentage, if available, unless a party to the paternity genetic test objects in writing at least 30 days prior to a hearing at which the results of the testing may be introduced into evidence, shall be admitted in evidence without the need for foundation testimony or other proof of authenticity or accuracy. When an objection is filed at least 30 days prior to a hearing at which the results may be introduced into evidence, the results of medical tests and comparisons ordered by the court including the statistical likelihood of the alleged parent's parentage, if available, shall be admitted in evidence when offered by a duly qualified, licensed practicing physician, duly qualified immunologist, duly qualified geneticist, or other duly qualified person.

(b) There shall exist a rebuttable presumption of paternity of a child born out of wedlock if there has been performed scientifically credible parentage-determination genetic testing which establishes at least a 97 percent probability of paternity. The rebuttable presumption of paternity can be overcome by the presentation of clear and convincing evidence as determined by the trier of fact. Parentage-determination testing shall include, but not necessarily be limited to, red cell antigen, human leukocyte antigen (HLA), red cell enzyme, and serum protein electrophoresis tests or testing by deoxyribonucleic acid (DNA) probes.

(c) Evidence of a refusal to submit to a genetic test or other ordered medical or anthropological test is admissible to show that the alleged father is not precluded from being the father of the child.

(d) An expert's opinion concerning the time of conception is as admissible as is other expert testimony.

(e) Testimony relating to sexual access to the mother by any person on or about the probable time of conception of the child is admissible in evidence.

19-7-46.1. Name or social security number on birth certificate or other record as evidence of paternity; signed voluntary acknowledgment of paternity.

(a) The appearance of the name or social security account number of the father, entered with his written consent, on the certificate of birth or a certified copy of such certificate or records on which the name of the alleged father was entered with his written consent from the vital records department of another state or the registration of the father, entered with his written consent, in the putative father registry of this state, pursuant to subsection (d) of Code Section 19-11-9, shall constitute a prima-facie case of establishment of paternity and the burden of proof shall shift to the putative father to rebut such in a proceeding for the determination of paternity.

(b) When both the mother and father have signed a voluntary acknowledgment of paternity and the acknowledgment is recorded in the putative father registry established by subsection (d) of Code Section 19-11-9, the acknowledgment shall constitute a legal determination of paternity, subject to the right of any signatory to rescind the acknowledgment prior to the date of the support order, any other order adjudicating paternity, or 60 days from the signing of the agreement, whichever is earlier. Recording such information in the putative father registry shall constitute a legal determination of paternity for purposes of establishing a future order for support, visitation privileges, and other matters under Code Section 19-7-51. Acknowledgment of paternity shall not constitute a legal determination of legitimation pursuant to Code Section 19-7-21.1 or 19-7-22.

(c) After the 60 day rescission period specified in subsection (b) of this Code section, the signed voluntary acknowledgment of paternity may be challenged in court only on the basis of fraud, duress, or material mistake of fact, with the burden of proof on the person challenging the acknowledgment. The legal responsibilities of any signatory, including child support obligations, arising from the acknowledgment may not be suspended during the challenge, except for good cause shown. "(2) Parents need a means to confer to grandparents or great-grandparents the authority to act on behalf of grandchildren without the time and expense of a court proceeding; and

“(3) Providing a statutory mechanism for granting such authority enhances family preservation and stability.”

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Order requiring a parent to submit to genetic testing. — In an action wherein a juvenile court approved the state’s plan for nonreunification of two twin children, the juvenile court erred by ordering a parent to submit to genetic testing and by holding that the parent lacked standing in any future related proceedings until that parent submitted to such testing as the parent had married the children’s other parent and recognized the children as the parent’s own. Further, the Department of Family and Children Services failed to fully comply with O.C.G.A. § 19-7-43(d) by not supporting the motion with a sworn statement either alleging or denying the parent’s paternity. In the Interest of T.W., 288 Ga. App. 386, 654 S.E.2d 218 (2007).

Trial court’s order requiring that an alleged father and a mother submit to paternity blood testing was erroneous because the doctrine of res judicata clearly proscribed the trial court’s reconsideration of the issue of paternity; an unappealed and unmodified final order establishing paternity and child support, which was predicated on the parties’ settlement agreement and paternity acknowledgment expressly consented to by the father, adjudged that he was the father of the mother’s child, and while the father moved to set aside the final order, the trial court found that he had failed to meet his burden of disestablishing paternity under O.C.G.A. § 19-7-54 and denied the motion. Venable v. Parker, 307 Ga. App. 880, 706 S.E.2d 211 (2011).

Denial of petition for legitimation improperly set aside. — Trial court erred by setting aside the denial of a biological father’s petition for legitimation because the voluntary acknowledgment of paternity preempted the denial as the father failed to make the trial court aware of the acknowledgment and could not subsequently use the document to set aside the trial court’s final judgment. Allifi v. Raider, 323 Ga. App. 510, 746 S.E.2d 763 (2013).

19-7-46.2. Temporary order of support.

(a) Upon motion by a party to a paternity action, a temporary order shall be issued in accordance with the guidelines prescribed in Code Section 19-6-15 if there is clear and convincing evidence of paternity. Such temporary order will be valid pending an administrative or judicial determination of parentage.

(b) All child support payments made pursuant to the temporary order prescribed in subsection (a) of this Code section shall be paid to the court which shall deposit the amount of the payment in a separate account in a bank approved as a federal depository. Such bank shall hold the amount as a special escrow fund and, except as provided in this Code section, shall not distribute any portion of the payment to any party to the action. Each full payment made into the escrow account pursuant to this Code section shall be effective to discharge any duty of the putative father to pay the ordered child support amount.

(c) Upon final judgment in a paternity action that the alleged putative father is the father of the child, the court shall order that the amount retained in the special escrow fund shall be paid to the appropriate person or entity along with any interest that may have accrued.

(d) Upon final judgment in a paternity action that the alleged putative father is not the father of the child, the amount retained in the special escrow fund shall be returned to the putative father along with any interest that may have accrued. (Code 1981, § 19-7-46.2, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 21.)

19-7-47. Civil action; testimony of mother and alleged father; default judgments.

(a) Any proceeding brought under this article is a civil action governed by the rules of civil procedure. The mother of the child and the alleged father are competent to testify and may be compelled to appear and testify.

(b) If in any paternity action an answer has not been filed within the time required by Chapter 11 of Title 9, the “Georgia Civil Practice Act,” the case shall automatically become in default unless the time for filing the answer has been extended as provided by law. The default may be opened as a matter of right by the filing of such defenses within 15 days of the day of default, upon the payment of costs. If the case is still in default after the expiration of the period of 15 days, the plaintiff at any time thereafter shall be entitled to verdict and judgment by default, in open court or in chambers, as if every item and paragraph of the complaint or other original pleading were supported by proper evidence. (Code 1933, § 74-308, enacted by Ga. L. 1980, p. 1374, § 1; Ga. L. 1994, p. 1270, § 5; Ga. L. 1999, p. 81, § 19.)

19-7-48. Settlement, dismissal, or termination.

The child must be a party to a settlement agreement with the alleged father. The court must approve any settlement agreement, dismissal, or termination of the action which does not adjudicate the merits of the case. (Code 1933, § 74-309, enacted by Ga. L. 1980, p. 1374, § 1.)

19-7-49. Decree; jury instructions on test results; costs.

(a) On a finding that the alleged father is the father of the child, the court shall issue an order designating the alleged father as the father of the child. The sole effect of the order shall be to establish the duty of the father to support the child.

(b) On a finding that the alleged father is not the father of the child, the court shall issue an order declaring this finding.

(c) The trier of fact shall receive without foundation or the need for third-party testimony evidence of costs of pregnancy, child birth, and genetic testing. The evidence so presented shall constitute prima-facie evidence of amounts incurred for such services or for testing on behalf of the child. The court may award such costs as part of its final decree. (Code 1933, § 74-310, enacted by Ga. L. 1980, p. 1374, § 1; Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 22.)

Credibility of expert is question for jury. — O.C.G.A. § 19-7-49 plainly requires the jury to determine whether the expert presenting the test results is credible. Until the jury makes the decision that the tests were properly conducted and that the expert presenting the results testified truthfully, the test results are not entitled to any greater deference than any other evidence of paternity. Howard v. Howard, 258 Ga. 846, 375 S.E.2d 852 (1989).

Test results not binding on jury. — In divorce action, the issue of parentage is to be decided by the jury, and the fact that a human leukocyte antigen typing test concluded that the alleged father could not be the biological father of the child was not conclusive on the question of parentage; thus, the jury decision finding paternity could not be overturned on appeal. Jackson v. Jackson, 253 Ga. 576, 322 S.E.2d 725 (1984).

When the jury was instructed in accordance with O.C.G.A. § 19-7-49(c), and there was at least some basis upon which the jurors could have discounted the results of the prior testing as being unreliable, the jurors were authorized to reject those test results and to rely instead on the other evidence tending to show that the defendant was the child's father. Williamson v. Ward, 192 Ga. App. 857, 386 S.E.2d 727 (1989).

Paternity disproven pursuant to subsection (b). — Ending a previously established duty to support or ordering a retroactive rescission of previously awarded child support may be in the best interest of the putative father who has proven his nonpaternity, but it is hardly in the best interest of the child. Thus, the issue of child support obligations that is conferred upon the trial court by O.C.G.A. § 19-7-51 would seemingly extend only to the case wherein paternity has been initially established pursuant to subsection (a) of O.C.G.A. § 19-7-49 not to the case wherein paternity has been disproven pursuant to subsection (b) of § 19-7-49. Department of Human Resources v. Morton, 204 Ga. App. 638, 420 S.E.2d 89 (1992).

19-7-50. Costs.

The court may order reasonable fees of counsel, experts, and the child's guardian ad litem and other costs of the action and pretrial proceedings, including blood and other tests, to be paid by the parties in proportions and at times determined by the court. (Code 1933, § 74-311, enacted by Ga. L. 1980, p. 1374, § 1.)

Requiring payment of costs prior to trial violates constitution. — To the extent that O.C.G.A. § 19-7-50 allows the state to compel prepayment of court costs without a hearing on the merits, the statute is unconstitutional under the provisions of Ga. Const. 1976, Art. I, Sec. I, Para. I (see now Ga. Const. 1983, Art. I, Sec. I, Para. I). Boone v. State, Dep't of Human Resources ex rel. Carter, 250 Ga. 379, 297 S.E.2d 727 (1982).

Court may place initial burden on state for blood test costs. — In cases involving determinations of paternity, the court is authorized to initially place the burden of paying the cost of blood tests upon the state. Georgia Dep't of Human Resources ex rel. Jackson v. Jackson, 252 Ga. 403, 314 S.E.2d 105 (1984).

Denying request that state pay for blood tests. — Trial court's denial of a putative father's request to require the state to make pretrial payment of the costs of the blood tests to determine paternity effectively denied the putative father access to blood test evidence and amounted to a violation of due process. Peterson v. Moffitt ex rel. Dep't of Human Resources, 253 Ga. 253, 319 S.E.2d 449 (1984).

Requiring putative father to pay costs of blood test. — It is a violation of due process for the state to require a putative father to pay the costs of a blood test for the purpose of determining paternity when no hearing has been conducted on the merits of the case. Boone v. State, Dep't of Human Resources ex rel. Carter, 250 Ga. 379, 297 S.E.2d 727 (1982).

Attorney's fees award could not be sustained on record. — In a paternity proceeding, an award of attorney fees to the mother that did not specify a contractual or statutory basis for the award could not be sustained based on O.C.G.A. § 19-7-50 as the record did not contain the petition for attorney fees, the evidence considered by the trial court, or a transcript of the fee hearing. Accordingly, remand was required to determine whether the mother could recover attorney fees under § 19-7-50. Sinkwich v. Conner, 288 Ga. App. 320, 654 S.E.2d 182 (2007).

Trial court did not fail to award adequate fees. — In a mother's paternity suit to establish the legitimation, custody, and support of her minor child by the father, the mother asked for an award of $20,000 in attorney fees. The trial court recognized that the court had awarded the mother $5,000 in fees during the pendency of the action; therefore, the court did not abuse the court's discretion by awarding the mother an additional $5,000 in fees under the authority of O.C.G.A. § 19-7-50 at the final hearing. Jackson v. Irvin, 316 Ga. App. 560, 730 S.E.2d 48 (2012).

Custody not determined in legitimation action. — In a proceeding on a father's petition for custody, when the issue of custody had not been determined in a prior legitimation action, the court erred in requiring the father to show a material change of condition affecting the well being of the child; rather, the dispute must be resolved under the best interest of the child test. Kennedy v. Adams, 218 Ga. App. 120, 460 S.E.2d 540 (1995).

19-7-54. Motion to set aside determination of paternity.

(a) Unless otherwise specified in this Code section, in any action in which a male is required to pay child support as the father of a child, a motion to set aside a determination of paternity may be made at any time upon the grounds set forth in this Code section. Any such motion shall be filed in the superior or state court that entered the order and shall include:

(1) An affidavit executed by the movant that the newly discovered evidence has come to movant's knowledge since the entry of judgment; and

(2) The results from scientifically credible parentage-determination genetic testing, as authorized under Code Section 19-7-46 and administered within 90 days prior to the filing of such motion, that finds that there is a 0 percent probability that the male ordered to pay such child support is the father of the child for whom support is required.

(b) The court shall grant relief on a motion filed in accordance with subsection (a) of this Code section upon a finding by the court of all of the following:

(1) The genetic test required in paragraph (2) of subsection (a) of this Code section was properly conducted;

(2) The male ordered to pay child support has not adopted the child;

(3) The child was not conceived by artificial insemination while the male ordered to pay child support and the child's mother were in wedlock;

(4) The male ordered to pay child support did not act to prevent the biological father of the child from asserting his paternal rights with respect to the child; and

(5) The male ordered to pay child support with knowledge that he is not the biological father of the child has not:

(A) Married the mother of the child and voluntarily assumed the parental obligation and duty to pay child support;

(B) Acknowledged his paternity of the child in a sworn statement;

(C) Been named as the child's biological father on the child's birth certificate with his consent;

(D) Been required to support the child because of a written voluntary promise;

(E) Received written notice from the Department of Human Services, any other state agency, or any court directing him to submit to genetic testing which he disregarded;

(F) Signed a voluntary acknowledgment of paternity as provided in Code Section 19-7-46.1; or

(G) Proclaimed himself to be the child's biological father.

(c) In the event movant fails to make the requisite showing provided in subsection (b) of this Code section, the court may grant the motion or enter an order as to paternity, duty to support, custody, and visitation privileges as otherwise provided by law.

(d) In any case when the underlying child support order was issued by a court of this state or by the Department of Human Services and is being enforced by the Department of Human Services, a movant may request a genetic test from the Department of Human Services, contingent upon advance payment of the genetic test fee by such movant. In any case when the custodian of the child does not consent to testing, a movant may petition the court to ask for testing of the other parent and the child or children.

(e) In the event relief is granted pursuant to subsection (b) of this Code section, relief shall be limited to the issues of prospective child support payments, past due child support payments, termination of parental rights, custody, and visitation rights. In any case when the underlying order was obtained by the Department of Human Services, a court granting the motion to set aside a determination of paternity may relieve the obligor of responsibility for any future or past due amounts, or both, owed to the state. The court may also relieve the obligor of the same that is owed to any other person or entity so long as the obligor adds that person or entity to the underlying motion and provides that person or entity with notice of the action. In all motions brought under this Code section when there is any amount owed to the state, the Department of Human Services shall be made a party. Failure to include the Department of Human Services as a party shall prevent the waiver of any amount owed to the state.

(f) The duty to pay child support and other legal obligations for the child shall not be suspended while the motion is pending except for good cause shown; however, the court may order the child support be held in the registry of the court until final determination of paternity has been made.

(g)(1) In any action brought pursuant to this Code section, if the genetic test results submitted in accordance with paragraph (2) of subsection (a) of this Code section are provided solely by the male ordered to pay child support, the court on its own motion may, and on the motion of any party shall, order the child's mother, the child, and the male ordered to pay child support to submit to genetic tests. The court shall provide that such genetic testing be done no more than 30 days after the court issues its order.

(2) If the mother of the child or the male ordered to pay child support willfully fails to submit to genetic testing, or if either such party is the custodian of the child and willfully fails to submit the child for testing, the court shall issue an order determining the relief on the motion against the party so failing to submit to genetic testing. If a party shows good cause for failing to submit to genetic testing, such failure shall not be considered willful.

(3) The party requesting genetic testing shall pay any fees charged for the tests. If the custodian of the child is receiving services from an administrative agency in its role as an agency providing enforcement of child support orders, such agency shall pay the cost of genetic testing if it requests the test and may seek reimbursement for the fees from the person against whom the court assesses the costs of the action.

(h) If relief on a motion filed in accordance with this Code section is not granted, the court shall assess the costs of the action and attorney's fees against the movant. (Code 1981, § 19-7-54, enacted by Ga. L. 2002, p. 596, § 1; Ga. L. 2009, p. 453, § 2-2/HB 228; Ga. L. 2015, p. 1433, § 3/HB 568.)

The 2015 amendment, effective July 1, 2015, in subsection (a), in the introductory paragraph, substituted "Unless otherwise specified in this Code section, in any action" for "In any action" at the beginning of the first sentence, and substituted "or state court that entered the order" for "court" in the last sentence; added subsection (d); and redesignated former subsections (d) through (g) as present subsections (e) through (h), respectively; and, in subsection (e), added the second, third, fourth, and fifth sentences.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Attempt to rebut presumption of legitimacy by mother. — Mother failed to rebut the presumption of legitimacy raised by a child's birth during the marriage pursuant to O.C.G.A. §§ 19-7-20 and 19-8-1(6) since the mother and husband knew that another man was the biological father of the child, the husband was listed with the mother's consent on the child's birth certificate as the child's father and had always provided financial and emotional support for the child, and since, if the husband had attempted to rebut the presumption of legitimacy the husband would have still been required to make child support payments. Baker v. Baker, 276 Ga. 778, 582 S.E.2d 102 (2003).

Child's best interest must be considered. — Trial court did not err in denying a wife's motion for genetic testing of her husband in order to delegitimize their child based on a determination of the child's best interest pursuant to O.C.G.A.

§ 19-7-54. The wife came forward with no evidence that delegitimization would be in the child's best interest, and the husband and son shared a very strong bond. Williamson v. Williamson, 302 Ga. App. 115, 690 S.E.2d 257 (2010).

Res judicata proscribed reconsideration of paternity. — Trial court's order requiring that an alleged father and a mother submit to paternity blood testing was erroneous because the doctrine of res judicata clearly proscribed the trial court's reconsideration of the issue of paternity; an unappealed and unmodified final order establishing paternity and child support, which was predicated on the parties' settlement agreement and paternity acknowledgment expressly consented to by the father, adjudged that he was the father of the mother's child, and while the father moved to set aside the final order, the trial court found that he had failed to meet his burden of disestablishing paternity under O.C.G.A. § 19-7-54 and denied the motion. Venable v. Parker, 307 Ga. App. 880, 706 S.E.2d 211 (2011).

Editor’s notes. — In light of the similarity of the statutory provisions, decisions under former Chapter 8 of Title 19 are included in the annotations for this chapter.

Adoption statutes should be strictly construed and meticulously followed so that beyond all preadventure the adoption will not later be subject to attack. Nelson v. Taylor, 244 Ga. 657, 261 S.E.2d 579 (1979); Johnson v. Smith, 251 Ga. 1, 302 S.E.2d 542 (1983) (decided under former chapter 8 of title 19).

Rights and obligations not altered until date of final order. — General intent appears to be that rights and obligations of a natural parent, and those of an adopting parent, to a child are not conclusively altered until the date of a final order of adoption. Johnson v. Parrish, 159 Ga. App. 613, 284 S.E.2d 111 (1981) (decided under former chapter 8 of title 19).

Attorney for child not required. — Adoption statutes do not require the appointing of an attorney for the child. Arrington v. Hand, 193 Ga. App. 457, 388 S.E.2d 52 (1989) (decided under former chapter 8 of title 19).

Appeal of adoption decision. — When a father's petition for legitimation was denied, the appellate court did not have jurisdiction to review the order because the father had failed to follow the discretionary procedures to appeal pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 5-6-35(a)(2), nor did he file his application for such review within the time period allowed by § 5-6-35(d); his appeal from an order terminating his parental rights and allowing adoption of the minor by the stepfather, pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 19-8-1 et seq., was also denied since the issues that the father raised related to the lack of a hearing on his legitimation proceeding, which was already determined to not be reviewable. In the Interest of C.M.L., 260 Ga. App. 502, 580 S.E.2d 276 (2003).

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the statutory provisions, opinions under former Chapter 8 of Title 19 are included in the annotations for this chapter.

Effect of 1977 revision of chapter on Ch. 10 of T. 31. — Although 1977 revision of this chapter did not deal with legitimation or subsequent marriage of parents, interpretation of relevant birth certificate provisions in Ch. 10 of T. 31 must take into account this latest legislative statement of public policy. 1980 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 80-58 (decided under former chapter 8 of title 19).

GENERAL PROVISIONS

Editor's notes. — The existing provisions of Chapter 8 were designated as Article 1 by Ga. L. 2009, p. 800, § 1, effective July 1, 2009.

19-8-1. Definitions.

For purposes of this chapter, the term:

(1) “Biological father” means the male who impregnated the biological mother resulting in the birth of the child.

(2) “Child” means a person who is under 18 years of age and who is sought to be adopted.

(3) “Child-placing agency” means an agency licensed as a child-placing agency pursuant to Chapter 5 of Title 49.

(4) “Department” means the Department of Human Services.

(4.1) “Evaluator” means the person or agency that conducts a home study. An evaluator shall be a licensed child-placing agency, the department, or a licensed professional with at least two years of adoption related professional experience, including a licensed clinical social worker, licensed master social worker, licensed marriage and family therapist, or licensed professional counselor; provided, however, that where none of the foregoing evaluators are available, the court may appoint a guardian ad litem or court appointed special advocate to conduct the home study.

(5) “Guardian” means a legal guardian of the person of a child.

(5.1) “Home study” means an evaluation by an evaluator of the petitioner’s home environment for the purpose of determining the suitability of the environment as a prospective adoptive home for a child. Such evaluation shall consider the petitioner’s physical health, emotional maturity, financial circumstances, family, and social background and shall conform to the rules and regulations established by the department for child-placing agencies for adoption home studies.

(5.2) “Home study report” means the written report generated as a result of the home study.

(6) “Legal father” means a male who:

(A) Has legally adopted a child;

(B) Was married to the biological mother of that child at the time the child was conceived or was born, unless such paternity was disproved by a final order pursuant to Article 3 of Chapter 7 of this title;

(C) Married the legal mother of the child after the child was born and recognized the child as his own, unless such paternity was disproved by a final order pursuant to Article 3 of Chapter 7 of this title;

(D) Has legitimated the child by a final order pursuant to Code Section 19-7-22; or

(E) Has legitimated the child pursuant to Code Section 19-7-21.1 and who has not surrendered or had terminated his rights to the child.

(7) “Legal mother” means the female who is the biological or adoptive mother of the child and who has not surrendered or had terminated her rights to the child.

(8) “Parent” means either the legal father or the legal mother of the child.

(9) “Petitioner” means a person who petitions to adopt or terminate rights to a child pursuant to this chapter.

(10) “Putative father registry” means the registry established and maintained pursuant to subsections (d) and (e) of Code Section 19-11-9. (Code 1981, § 19-8-1, enacted by Ga. L. 1990, p. 1572, § 5; Ga. L. 1997, p. 1686, § 4; Ga. L. 2008, p. 667, § 7/SB 88; Ga. L. 2009, p. 453, § 2-2/HB 228; Ga. L. 2011, p. 573, § 1/SB 172.)

Editor’s notes. — Ga. L. 2008, p. 667, § 1/SB 88, not codified by the General Assembly, provides: “This Act shall be known and may be cited as the ‘Care of a Grandchild Act.’”

Ga. L. 2008, p. 667, § 2/SB 88, not codified by the General Assembly, provides: “The General Assembly finds that:

“(1) An increasing number of relatives in Georgia, including grandparents and great-grandparents, are providing care to children who cannot reside with their parents due to the parent’s incapacity or inability to perform the regular and expected functions to provide such care and support;

“(2) Parents need a means to confer to grandparents or great-grandparents the authority to act on behalf of grandchildren without the time and expense of a court proceeding; and

Ga. L. 2011, p. 573, § 8, not codified by the General Assembly, provides that the amendment to this Code section shall apply to all placements of children for adoption and all petitions for adoption filed on or after July 1, 2011.

Law reviews. — For annual survey of domestic relations law, see 56 Mercer L. Rev. 221 (2004).

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Bona fide resident. — Phrase bona fide resident, as used in O.C.G.A. § 19-8-3(a)(3), requires a showing of status as a state of Georgia domiciliary for at least six months immediately before the filing of the petition for adoption with domicile referring to a single fixed place of abode with the intention of remaining there indefinitely, or the single fixed place of abode where a person intends to return, even though the person may in fact be residing elsewhere. Sastre v. McDaniel, 293 Ga. App. 671, 667 S.E.2d 896 (2008).

“Guardian.” — Grandmother who was temporary legal custodian of child under juvenile court deprivation order was not a legal guardian for purposes of surrendering rights in adoption proceedings. Edgar v. Shave, 205 Ga. App. 337, 422 S.E.2d 234 (1992).

“Legal father.” — Maternal great aunt and uncle had standing to file objections to an adoption petition of aunt and uncle who had obtained a written surrender of rights from the child’s putative biological father; the latter was not the “legal father” as defined by O.C.G.A. § 19-8-1. Echols v. Cochran, 214 Ga. App. 348, 447 S.E.2d 700 (1994).

Plaintiff was the legal father of a child under O.C.G.A. § 19-8-1 because the plaintiff was married to the mother at the time of the child’s birth, before the marriage was declared void. Hall v. Coleman, 242 Ga. App. 576, 530 S.E.2d 485 (2000).

Mother failed to rebut the presumption of legitimacy raised by a child’s birth during the marriage pursuant to O.C.G.A. §§ 19-7-20 and 19-8-1(6) since the mother and husband knew that another man was the biological father of the child, the husband was listed with the mother’s consent on the child’s birth certificate as the child’s father and had always provided financial and emotional support for the child, and since, if the husband had attempted to rebut the presumption of legitimacy the husband would have still been required to make child support payments. Baker v. Baker, 276 Ga. 778, 582 S.E.2d 102 (2003).

Adoptive parents. — Limiting language of O.C.G.A. § 19-7-3(b), forbidding original actions for grandparent visitation if the parents are together and living with the child, includes adoptive parents because in the absence of language limiting the term “parent” to only “natural parents” or “biological parents,” there is no legislative intent to withhold from adoptive parents the same constitutionally protected status enjoyed by biological parents to raise their children without state interference; in construing § 19-7-3(b), the definition of parent in the adoption statute, O.C.G.A. § 19-8-1(6) and (8), which gives full legal status to adoptive parents, cannot be ignored, and the clear intent of the adoption statute is to give adoptive parents full legal rights. Bailey v. Kunz, 307 Ga. App. 710, 706 S.E.2d 98 (2011), aff’d, 290 Ga. 361, 720 S.E.2d 634 (2012).

Grandmother was not a “parent” of the child within the meaning of O.C.G.A. § 19-8-1 or O.C.G.A. § 19-11-3(7). Stills v. Johnson, 272 Ga. 645, 533 S.E.2d 695 (2000).

(a) The superior courts of the several counties shall have exclusive jurisdiction in all matters of adoption, except such jurisdiction as may be granted to the juvenile courts.

(b) All petitions under this chapter shall be filed in the county in which any petitioner resides, except that:

(1) Upon good cause being shown, the court of the county of the child’s domicile or of the county in which is located any child-placing agency having legal custody of the child sought to be adopted may, in its discretion, allow the petition to be filed in that court; and

(2) Any person who has been a resident of any United States Army post or military reservation within this state for six months next preceding the filing of the petition for adoption may file the petition in any county adjacent to the United States Army post or military reservation. JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the statutory provisions, decisions under former Code 1933, § 74-405 and former § 19-8-2 are included in the annotations for this Code section.

In matters of adoption, superior courts have very broad discretion which will not be controlled by appellate courts except in cases of plain abuse. Johnson v. Taylor, 153 Ga. App. 15, 264 S.E.2d 512 (1980) (decided under former Code 1933, § 74-405).

Proceeding instituted under this chapter is purely statutory and does not fall within classification of any cases of which Supreme Court has jurisdiction. Criswell v. Jones, 187 Ga. 55, 199 S.E. 804 (1938) (decided under former Code 1933, § 74-405); Herrin v. Graham, 209 Ga. 281, 71 S.E.2d 550 (1952) (decided under former Code 1933, § 74-405); Hendrix v. Hunter, 214 Ga. 722, 107 S.E.2d 195 (1959) (decided under former Code 1933, § 74-405).

Natural parent is not a party defendant to adoption proceedings. Thus, the requirement that the petition for adoption be filed in the county where the adopting parents reside, as provided for in former Code 1933, § 74-405, was not in conflict with the provisions of Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VI, Sec. XIV, Para. VI (see now Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VI) which requires that venue in civil cases be in the county where the defendants reside. Chandler v. Cochran, 247 Ga. 184, 275 S.E.2d 23, cert. denied, 454 U.S. 872, 102 S. Ct. 342, 70 L. Ed. 2d 177 (1981) (decided under former Code 1933, § 74-405).

Natural parents' residence immaterial. — Venue is proper when the adoption petition has been filed in the county in which the adopting parents reside, regardless of where the natural parents reside. Spires v. Bittick, 171 Ga. App. 914, 321 S.E.2d 407 (1984) (decided under former § 19-8-2).

Residence or domicile of child in this state is not a jurisdictional prerequisite to adoption if adoption proceeding is brought in county of adopting parents' residence. Davey v. Evans, 156 Ga. App. 698, 275 S.E.2d 769 (1980) (decided under former Code 1933, § 74-405).

Jurisdiction of adoption during deprivation proceeding in juvenile court. — Superior court has exclusive jurisdiction in adoption matters and had jurisdiction to entertain adoption petition notwithstanding pendency of deprivation proceedings in the juvenile court involving the same child. Edgar v. Shave, 205 Ga. App. 337, 422 S.E.2d 234 (1992).

Trial court did not err in concluding that the court had jurisdiction over adoption and termination of parental rights proceeding as statutory law granted the trial court jurisdiction over adoption proceedings and other proceedings that were not granted exclusively to the juvenile courts; since the juvenile courts were granted exclusive jurisdiction over deprivation proceedings, those types of matters were to be heard by the juvenile courts, but the trial court had the authority to hear adoption and other matters, such as the adoptive parents' adoption petition filed to adopt the biological parents' minor child. Snyder v. Carter, 276 Ga. App. 426, 623 S.E.2d 241 (2005).

Jurisdiction properly exercised. — Trial court did not err in exercising jurisdiction in a petition for adoption because the Georgia Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Enforcement Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-9-40 et seq., did not govern adoption proceedings. Barr v. Gregor, 316 Ga. App. 269, 728 S.E.2d 868 (2012).

Actions not brought in connection with adoption proceeding. — Proceeding for termination of parental rights brought for the purpose of awarding custody to the Department of Family and Children Services so that children could be placed for adoption some time in the future was not brought in connection with a petition for adoption; therefore, jurisdiction was proper in the juvenile court. In re C.D.C., 230 Ga. App. 237, 495 S.E.2d 872 (1998).

Welfare and best interests of child in custody disputes. — Court, having jurisdiction, has jurisdiction to fullest extent granted the court under adoption statute, and is confronted with one paramount question, which, in all controversies or proceedings for custody of children, is welfare and best interests of child. Herrin v. Graham, 87 Ga. App. 291, 73 S.E.2d 572 (1952), overruled on other grounds, Davey v. Evans, 156 Ga. App. 698, 275 S.E.2d 769 (1980) (decided under former Code 1933, § 74-405).

Termination of father's parental rights. — Trial court had jurisdiction over an action to terminate a father's parental rights pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 19-8-2, which granted exclusive jurisdiction to superior courts in all adoption proceedings, and made venue proper in the county in which the adopting parents reside. Rokowski v. Gilbert, 275 Ga. App. 305, 620 S.E.2d 509 (2005).

Error to grant adoption petition. — Because the evidence showed that the child's needs could be equally met in either the mother's or the grandparent's home, the trial court abused the court's discretion in terminating the mother's parental rights under O.C.G.A. §§ 19-8-10(a), (b)(1), (2), and § 15-11-94(b)(4) and granting the grandmother's and the step-grandfather's petition for adoption under O.C.G.A. § 19-8-2. McCollum v. Jones, 274 Ga. App. 815, 619 S.E.2d 313 (2005).

Construction with other law. — Trial court erred in denying an aunt and uncle's petition to adopt their nephew under O.C.G.A. § 19-8-8, and should have applied O.C.G.A. § 19-8-7 as: (1) the former was not intended to be a general rule regarding the adoption of foreign children; (2) the aunt and uncle satisfied the jurisdictional and venue requirements of O.C.G.A. § 19-8-2 by filing the adoption petition in the superior court of their county of residence; and (3) as the child's aunt and uncle, they were relatives eligible to adopt under O.C.G.A. § 19-8-7(a). OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the statutory provisions, opinions under former Code 1933, § 74-405 are included in the annotations for this Code section.

When superior court may terminate parent-child relationship in adoption proceeding. — Although both superior and juvenile courts have jurisdiction to terminate parent-child relationship, the superior court may do so only in conjunction with an adoption proceeding which has been filed in that court. 1977 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U77-52 (decided under former Code 1933, § 74-405).

Juvenile court termination of parental rights. — Only juvenile court can terminate parental rights without concomitant adoption proceeding in process. 1977 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U77-52 (decided under former Code 1933, § 74-405).

19-8-3. Who may adopt a child; when petition must be filed in names of both spouses.

(a) Any adult person may petition to adopt a child if the person:

(1) Is at least 25 years of age or is married and living with his spouse;

(2) Is at least ten years older than the child;

(3) Has been a bona fide resident of this state for at least six months immediately preceding the filing of the petition; and

(4) Is financially, physically, and mentally able to have permanent custody of the child.

(b) Any adult person, including but not limited to a foster parent, meeting the requirements of subsection (a) of this Code section shall be eligible to apply to the department or a child-placing agency for consideration as an adoption applicant in accordance with the policies of the department or the agency.

(c) If a person seeking to adopt a child is married, the petition must be filed in the name of both spouses; provided, however, that, when the child is the stepchild of the party seeking to adopt, the petition shall be filed by the stepparent alone. JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the statutory provisions, decisions under former Code 1933, § 74-402 and former § 19-8-3 are included in the annotations for this Code section.

Bona fide resident defined. — Phrase bona fide resident, as used in O.C.G.A. § 19-8-3(a)(3), requires a showing of status as a state of Georgia domiciliary for at least six months immediately before the filing of the petition for adoption with domicile referring to a single fixed place of abode with the intention of remaining there indefinitely, or the single fixed place of abode where a person intends to return, even though the person may in fact be residing elsewhere. Sastre v. McDaniel, 293 Ga. App. 671, 667 S.E.2d 896 (2008).

Adoption laws of this state do not preclude adoption of child by the child's natural parents. McDonald v. Hester, 115 Ga. App. 740, 155 S.E.2d 720 (1967) (decided under former Code 1933, § 74-402).

Foster parents have no standing to contest legal custodian's discretion. — Although foster parents may have standing to bring adoption petition in sense that they are legally eligible to apply to agency, they have no standing to contest legal custodian's absolute discretion whether to give consent requisite to successful petition for adoption. Drummond v. Fulton County Dep't of Family & Children Servs., 237 Ga. 449, 228 S.E.2d 839 (1976), cert. denied, 432 U.S. 905, 97 S. Ct. 2949, 53 L. Ed. 2d 1077 (1977) (decided under former Code 1933, § 74-402).

Statute or policy precluding adoption of biracial children unconstitutional. — State statute or policy that every child having mixed black and white parentage cannot be adopted by a white family cannot be countenanced under United States Constitution. Drummond v. Fulton County Dep't of Family & Children's Servs., 547 F.2d 835 (5th Cir.), on rehearing, 563 F.2d 1200 (5th Cir. 1977), cert. denied, 437 U.S. 910, 98 S. Ct. 3103, 57 L. Ed. 2d 1141 (1978) (decided under former Code 1933, § 74-402).

Stepparent may petition without spouse. — Petitioner, who had been the child's stepfather until he and the natural mother divorced, could petition to adopt the child without joining his current spouse. In re J.S.G., 233 Ga. App. 690, 505 S.E.2d 70 (1998) (decided under former § 19-8-3).

No prohibition against denying single individual right to adopt. — Trial court abused the court's discretion by denying a foster parent's petition to adopt the parent's foster child on the ground that placing the child with the foster parent, who was not married to the individual with whom the foster parent lived, violated the state's public policy because all of the evidence showed that the adoption would be in the child's best interest, and the trial court failed to apply the law as written and determine whether it was in the child's best interest to allow the adoption; all of the witnesses, including the guardian ad litem the trial court appointed to represent the child's interests and the Department of Family and Children's Services adoption specialist, testified that the adoption was in the child's best interest and that to remove the child from the only family the child had ever known would be devastating to the child, and O.C.G.A. § 19-8-3 clearly did not prohibit the adoption because the General Assembly did not prohibit unmarried couples from adopting. In re Goudeau, 305 Ga. App. 718, 700 S.E.2d 688 (2010).

Nonresidents cannot institute adoption proceedings in the courts of this state. H.C.S. v. Grebel, 253 Ga. 404, 321 S.E.2d 321 (1984) (decided under former Code Section 19-8-3); In re Stroh, 240 Ga. App. 835, 523 S.E.2d 887 (1999) (decided under former Code Section 19-8-3).

Adequate showing of domicile for six months preceding adoption petition. — Trial court erred by dismissing a couple's adoption petition upon finding that the couple were not residents of Georgia under the adoption statute, O.C.G.A. § 19-8-3(a)(3), based on moving out-of-state for one to attend a seminary and intending to move back after those studies were complete since the statute required only a showing of domiciliary for the six months preceding the petition, which the couple established. Sastre v. McDaniel, 293 Ga. App. 671, 667 S.E.2d 896 (2008).

Construction with other law. — Superior court properly dismissed a grandmother's adoption petition on collateral estoppel grounds based on the juvenile court's previous order granting temporary custody to the maternal grandfather and grant of visitation rights to the grandmother; as a result, the superior court was not authorized to readjudicate the issue of permanent custody involving the child at issue. Smith v. Hutcheson, 283 Ga. App. 117, 640 S.E.2d 690 (2006).

Trial court erred in denying an aunt and uncle's petition to adopt their nephew under O.C.G.A. § 19-8-8, and should have applied O.C.G.A. § 19-8-7 as: (1) the former was not intended to be a general rule regarding the adoption of foreign children; (2) the aunt and uncle satisfied the jurisdictional and venue requirements of O.C.G.A. § 19-8-2 by filing the adoption petition in the superior court of their county of residence; and (3) as the child's aunt and uncle, they were relatives eligible to adopt under O.C.G.A. § 19-8-7(a). In re Adoption of D.J.F.M., 284 Ga. App. 420, 643 S.E.2d 879 (2007).

19-8-4. When surrender or termination of parental or guardian's rights required; consent of child of 14 or older necessary; acknowledgment of surrender; compliance with Interstate Compact on Placement of Children.

(a) Except as otherwise authorized in this chapter, a child who has any living parent or guardian may be adopted through the department or any child-placing agency only if each such parent and each such guardian:

(1) Has voluntarily and in writing surrendered all of his rights to the child to the department or to a child-placing agency as provided in this Code section and the department or agency thereafter consents to the adoption; or

(2) Has had all of his rights to the child terminated by order of a court of competent jurisdiction, the child has been committed by the court to the department or to a child-placing agency for placement for adoption, and the department or agency thereafter consents to the adoption.

(b) In the case of a child 14 years of age or older, the written consent of the child to his adoption must be given and acknowledged in the presence of the court.

(c) The surrender to the department or to a child-placing agency specified in paragraphs (1) and (2) of subsection (e) of this Code section shall be executed following the birth of the child, and the pre-birth surrender to the department or to a child-placing agency specified in paragraph (3) of subsection (e) of this Code section shall be executed prior to the birth of the child. Each surrender shall be executed in the presence of a representative of the department or the agency and a notary. A copy shall be delivered to the individual signing the surrender at the time of the execution thereof.

(d) A person signing a surrender pursuant to this Code section shall have the right to withdraw the surrender as provided in subsection (b) of Code Section 19-8-9.

(e)(1) The surrender by a parent or guardian specified in paragraph (1) of subsection (a) of this Code section shall meet the requirements of subsection (a) of Code Section 19-8-26.

(2) The biological father who is not the legal father of a child may surrender all his rights to the child for the purpose of an adoption pursuant to this Code section. That surrender shall meet the requirements of subsection (d) of Code Section 19-8-26.

(3)(A) The biological father who is not the legal father of a child may execute a surrender of his rights to the child prior to the birth of the child for the purpose of an adoption pursuant to this Code section. A pre-birth surrender, when signed under oath by the alleged biological father, shall serve to relinquish the alleged biological father's rights to the child and to waive the alleged biological father's right to notice of any proceeding with respect to the child's adoption, custody, or guardianship. The court in any adoption proceeding shall have jurisdiction to enter a final order of adoption of the child based upon the pre-birth surrender and in other proceedings to determine the child's legal custody or guardianship shall have jurisdiction to enter an order for those purposes.

(B) The responsibilities of an alleged biological father are permanently terminated only upon the entry of a final order of adoption. A person executing a pre-birth surrender pursuant to this Code section shall have the right to withdraw the surrender within ten days from the date of execution thereof, notwithstanding the date of birth of the child.

(C) If a final order of adoption is not entered after the execution of a pre-birth surrender and paternity is established by acknowledgment, by administrative order, or by judicial order, then the alleged biological father shall be responsible for child support or other financial obligations to the child or to the child's mother, or to both.

(D) The pre-birth surrender shall not be valid for use by a legal father as defined under paragraph (6) of Code Section 19-8-1 or for any man who has executed either a voluntary acknowledgment of legitimation pursuant to the provisions of paragraph (2) of subsection (g) of Code Section 19-7-22 or a voluntary acknowledgment of paternity pursuant to the provisions of Code Section 19-7-46.1.

(E) The pre-birth surrender may be executed at any time after the biological mother executes a sworn statement identifying such person as an alleged biological father of the biological mother's unborn child.

(F) The pre-birth surrender shall meet the requirements of subsection (f) of Code Section 19-8-26.

(f) A surrender of rights shall be acknowledged by the person who surrenders those rights by also signing an acknowledgment meeting the requirements of subsection (g) of Code Section 19-8-26.

(g) Whenever the legal mother surrenders her parental rights pursuant to this Code section, she shall execute an affidavit meeting the requirements of subsection (h) of Code Section 19-8-26.

(h) Whenever rights are surrendered to the department or to a child-placing agency, the department or agency representative before whom the surrender is signed shall execute an affidavit meeting the requirements of subsection (j) of Code Section 19-8-26.

(i) A surrender pursuant to this Code section may be given by any parent or biological father who is not the legal father of the child irrespective of whether such parent or biological father has arrived at the age of majority. The surrender given by any such minor shall be binding upon him as if the individual were in all respects sui juris.

(j) In any surrender pursuant to this Code section, the provisions of Chapter 4 of Title 39, relating to the Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children, if applicable, shall be complied with. (Code 1981, § 19-8-4, enacted by Ga. L. 1990, p. 1572, § 5; Ga. L. 1999, p. 252, § 3; Ga. L. 2007, p. 342, §§ 1, 2/HB 497.)

Ga. L. 2007, p. 342, § 10/HB 497, not codified by the General Assembly, provides that the amendment to this Code section shall apply to proceedings under this chapter on or after July 1, 2007.

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the statutory provisions, decisions under Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 3 prior to revision of this chapter by Ga. L. 1977, p. 201 and former § 19-8-3 are included in the annotations for this Code section.

Judge hearing adoption case has wide discretion which will not be overturned unless the judge's discretion has been abused so that even slight evidence will support the judgment denying the petition. Owens v. Griggs, 151 Ga. App. 730, 261 S.E.2d 463 (1979) (decided under Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 3).

In adoption proceedings, best interest of child is always a prime factor to be considered. Owens v. Griggs, 151 Ga. App. 730, 261 S.E.2d 463 (1979) (decided under Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 3).

Consent of child's legal custodian is an absolute requirement. — Absolute requirement that consent of legal custodian be obtained as prerequisite to adoption applies as fully when Department of Family and Children Services is custodian as it does when natural parents have custody. Roberts v. Muscogee County Dep't of Family & Children Servs., 150

Ga. App. 750, 258 S.E.2d 689 (1979) (decided under Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 3).

Termination of parental right requires parent's consent or forfeiture. — Evidence terminating parental right of living parent must be legally sufficient to authorize finding of fact by court that consent has been given or that parent has forfeited right to relationship. Owens v. Griggs, 151 Ga. App. 730, 261 S.E.2d 463 (1979) (decided under Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 3).

Intervention of county agency in adoption proper after parental rights terminated. — County Department of Family and Children Services was properly permitted to intervene with regard to a couple's petition seeking to adopt a child as the child was adjudicated deprived and placed in the temporary custody of the Department. While the biological parents' surrender of their parental rights was the basis for the adoption petition, the Department remained the temporary legal custodian of the child and, given that the Department's interest in the child, the juvenile court did not err by allowing the Department to intervene through the De-

When court is required to deny adoption. — If there is no parental consent and the natural parent has not abandoned the child, the court is required to deny the adoption. Spires v. Bittick, 171 Ga. App. 914, 321 S.E.2d 407 (1984) (decided under former § 19-8-3).

No time limitation in filing adoption petition. — Because a parent's written surrender of parental rights did not expire, and O.C.G.A. § 19-8-4 did not have a time limitation for filing an adoption petition, the appeals court rejected that parent's argument that such became invalid when the Department of Family and Children Services did not pursue adoption. In the Interest of A.C., 283 Ga. App. 743, 642 S.E.2d 418 (2007).

Failure to pay child support. — Mere failure to pay child support does not in and of itself evince such abandonment of the child as to render the natural parent's consent to adoption unnecessary; however, abandonment is a separate issue from failure to pay child support, which though admittedly a type of abandonment, constitutes a separate ground for terminating parental rights under the law. Ward v. Weymouth, 151 Ga. App. 341, 259 S.E.2d 727 (1979) (decided under Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 3).

Failure to pay child support. — Mere failure to promptly pay child support or to be persistent in exercising visitation rights is insufficient to terminate parental rights. Spires v. Bittick, 171 Ga. App. 914, 321 S.E.2d 407 (1984) (decided under former § 19-8-3).

Revocation of consent to adoption. — Consent for adoption given freely and voluntarily may not be revoked as matter of right, but revocation may be had for good and sufficient cause. Wellfort v. Bowick, 147 Ga. App. 565, 249 S.E.2d 363 (1978) (decided under Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 3).

Father, after giving consent to third party to adopt, cannot consent to adoption by grandparents. Irwin v. Smith, 240 Ga. 553, 242 S.E.2d 64 (1978) (decided under Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 3).

Unwed father entitled to same fitness test afforded unwed mothers. — Because Georgia law affords an unwed mother a fitness test or veto power under the same circumstances the law must also afford an unwed father a fitness test or veto power, provided he has not abandoned his opportunity interest. In re Baby Girl Eason, 257 Ga. 292, 358 S.E.2d 459 (1987) (decided under former § 19-8-3).

Virtual adoption. — Law of virtual adoption does not require technical words or formality in execution of agreements and it is not necessary that the parties be much acquainted with the law; the nature of the parties' intended and agreed upon provision for the child in question is controlling. Anderson v. Maddox, 257 Ga. 478, 360 S.E.2d 590 (1987) (decided under former § 19-8-3).

Assignment of adoption rights not authorized. — There is nothing in the adoption statute which authorizes an assignment of adoption rights from one third party to another. Tyson v. Department of Human Resources, 165 Ga. App. 414, 301 S.E.2d 485 (1983) (decided under former § 19-8-3).

Intent of phrase "failed significantly ... to provide ... support" contained in former § 19-8-6(b) was to require more, or significant, support before parental consent would be required as provided in former § 19-8-3. Prescott v. Judy, 157 Ga. App. 735, 278 S.E.2d 493 (1981) (decided under former § 19-8-3).

If any evidence supports judgment in adoption proceeding, the judgment must be affirmed by the Court of Appeals. Prescott v. Judy, 157 Ga. App. 735, 278 S.E.2d 493 (1981) (decided under former § 19-8-3).

Amendment of petition to cure omission of marriage certificate. — Although when appellees filed their petition for adoption, their marriage certificate was not attached, it was supplied by amendment which related back to date pleading was filed, thus curing omission from the petition. Owens v. Worley, 163 Ga. App. 488, 295 S.E.2d 199 (1982) (decided under former § 19-8-3).

Adoption laws are to be strictly construed in favor of natural parents. Johnson v. Strickland, 88 Ga. App. 281, 76

Adoption is a right which did not exist at common law. Thus, since it is statutory in nature, it must be strictly construed in favor of natural parents. Johnson v. Edison, 235 Ga. 820, 221 S.E.2d 813 (1976) (decided under Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 3).

Consideration given to natural parents. — Although best interest of child is ultimate concern, focus must first be on natural parents. Johnson v. Edison, 235 Ga. 820, 221 S.E.2d 813 (1976) (decided under Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 3).

Written consent of living parents freely and voluntarily given is essential prerequisite to adoption proceedings. Ritchie v. Dillon, 103 Ga. App. 7, 118 S.E.2d 115 (1961) (decided under Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 3).

Natural fathers have rights in their children and termination of those rights is required in adoption proceeding. Wojciechowski v. Allen, 238 Ga. 556, 234 S.E.2d 325 (1977) (decided under Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 3).

When inducements securing consent prevent free exercise of parents' will, court must deny adoption. Keheley v. Koonce, 85 Ga. App. 893, 70 S.E.2d 522 (1952) (decided under Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 3).

Failure to obtain father's consent to adoption of legitimate child. — If child is legitimate, failure to obtain father's consent to the child's adoption will bar adoption. Ellis v. Woods, 214 Ga. 105, 103 S.E.2d 297 (1958) (decided under Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 3).

Consent by one who has lost parental rights by order of a court of competent jurisdiction is not required. McDonald v. Hester, 115 Ga. App. 740, 155 S.E.2d 720 (1967) (decided under Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 3).

When one parent's rights have been forfeited. — Both parents need not be in same category respecting adoption of their child, that is, both consenting or both being in position of having abandoned child. If either parent consents, that is sufficient to meet requirements of section as to consent so far as that parent is concerned, and if either parent has abandoned child that, too, would meet requirements of exception to statute as to that parent. Therefore, if one parent consents to the adoption and the other parent has abandoned the child so that consent of such parent is not necessary, the essential provisions of the law relating to parental rights are satisfied. Phillips v. Massey, 74 Ga. App. 239, 39 S.E.2d 493 (1946) (decided under Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 3).

Adoption agency as legal custodian stands in loco parentis and has all legal rights of natural parent, including benefit of prima facie right to custody. Drummond v. Fulton County Dep't of Family & Children Servs., 237 Ga. 449, 228 S.E.2d 839 (1976), cert. denied, 432 U.S. 905, 97 S. Ct. 2949, 53 L. Ed. 2d 1077 (1977) (decided under Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 3).

Placement agency has right to choose adoptive parents by giving or refusing consent to adopt. Drummond v. Fulton County Dep't of Family & Children Servs., 237 Ga. 449, 228 S.E.2d 839 (1976), cert. denied, 432 U.S. 905, 97 S. Ct. 2949, 53 L. Ed. 2d 1077 (1977) (decided under Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 3).

Child has no right to choose adoptive parents or consent to adoption until age of 14. Drummond v. Fulton County Dep't of Family & Children Servs., 237 Ga. 449, 228 S.E.2d 839 (1976), cert. denied, 432 U.S. 905, 97 S. Ct. 2949, 53 L. Ed. 2d 1077 (1977) (decided under Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 3).

Contract of adoption is irrelevant and immaterial in adoption case other than on question of consent. Wheeler v. Little, 113 Ga. App. 106, 147 S.E.2d 352 (1966) (decided under Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 3).

When consent not free and voluntary. — After child's natural mother was offered plane fare if she would sign adoption agreement, consent to adoption, at least as to natural mother, was not freely and voluntarily given as required so as to preclude right to withdraw such consent as a matter of right because consent was based upon a contract which was void as against public policy. Downs v. Wortman, 228 Ga. 315, 185 S.E.2d 387 (1971) (decided under Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 3).

Consent given before mother saw offspring. — Mere fact that natural mother consented to adoption before seeing her offspring would not permit her, as a matter of right, to repudiate contract under which her child had received valuable benefits, and to withdraw her consent. Hendrix v. Hunter, 99 Ga. App. 785, 110 S.E.2d 35 (1959) (decided under Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 3).

Mother's knowledge of who adoptive parents are. — While it is true that it is certainly best for all concerned that the natural mother not know who the adoptive parents are, and while it is generally true that welfare agencies will not recommend adoption when such is the case, nevertheless, such knowledge on the part of the natural mother is not, in and of itself, sufficient cause to withdraw her consent. Hendrix v. Hunter, 99 Ga. App. 785, 110 S.E.2d 35 (1959) (decided under Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 3).

Consent to adoption in exchange for money is void. — Contract wherein mother of child agrees to adoption by another in consideration of monetary consideration to herself is void as against public policy. Downs v. Wortman, 228 Ga. 315, 185 S.E.2d 387 (1971) (decided under Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 3).

If monetary consideration flows to child, contract is not void. — Contract wherein mother of child agrees to adoption of her child by another in consideration of monetary consideration which is to flow to child is not void as against public policy. Downs v. Wortman, 228 Ga. 315, 185 S.E.2d 387 (1971) (decided under Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 3).

Photostatic copy of mother's purported consent to adoption was properly admitted in evidence. Smith v. Smith, 224 Ga. 442, 162 S.E.2d 379 (1968) (decided under Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 3).

Admissibility of translation of consent from German to English. — Admission in evidence of translation into English from German of mother's written consent was not error when the witness, a university professor of the German language, submitted the document, which the professor swore was a correct translation of written consent. Smith v. Smith, 224 Ga. 442, 162 S.E.2d 379 (1968) (decided under Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 3).

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the statutory provisions, opinions under Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 3 and former § 19-8-3 are included in the annotations for this Code section.

Minor mother's consent to adoption of illegitimate child. — Minor mother may give binding consent to adoption of her illegitimate child. 1948-49 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 615 (decided under Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 3).

Parental rights must be addressed. — If an adoption petition is presented to the court, and the rights of the natural parents or putative father have never been addressed, the court is required to deny the petition. 1985 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U85-34 (decided under former § 19-8-3).

Foreign adoptions. — When the only documentation submitted by a child-placing agency is a statement of consent to overseas adoption presumably signed by the foreign guardian of the child, it is not sufficient to comply with the requirements of Georgia adoption law.

19-8-5. Surrender or termination of parental or guardian's rights where child to be adopted by third party.

(a) Except as otherwise authorized in this chapter, a child who has any living parent or guardian may be adopted by a third party who is neither the stepparent nor relative of that child, as described in subsection (a) of Code Sections 19-8-6 and 19-8-7, only if each such living parent and each such guardian has voluntarily and in writing surrendered all of his or her rights to such child to that third party for the purpose of enabling that third party to adopt such child. Except as provided in subsection (m) of this Code section, no child shall be placed with a third party for purposes of adoption unless prior to the date of placement a home study shall have been completed, and the home study report recommends placement of a child in such third party's home.

(b) In the case of a child 14 years of age or older, the written consent of the child to his adoption must be given and acknowledged in the presence of the court.

(c) The surrender specified in paragraphs (1) and (2) of subsection (e) of this Code section shall be executed following the birth of the child, and the pre-birth surrender specified in paragraph (3) of subsection (e) of this Code section shall be executed prior to the birth of the child. Each surrender shall be executed in the presence of a notary. The name and address of each person to whom the child is surrendered may be omitted to protect confidentiality, provided the surrender sets forth the name and address of his agent for purposes of notice of withdrawal as provided for in subsection (d) of this Code section. A copy shall be delivered to the individual signing the surrender at the time of the execution thereof.

(d) A person signing a surrender pursuant to this Code section shall have the right to withdraw the surrender as provided in subsection (b) of Code Section 19-8-9.

(e)(1) The surrender by a parent or guardian specified in subsection (a) of this Code section shall meet the requirements of subsection (c) of Code Section 19-8-26.

(2) The biological father who is not the legal father of a child may surrender all his rights to the child for purposes of an adoption pursuant to this Code section. That surrender shall meet the requirements of subsection (d) of Code Section 19-8-26.

(3)(A) The biological father who is not the legal father of a child may execute a surrender of his rights to the child prior to the birth of the child for the purpose of an adoption pursuant to this Code section. A pre-birth surrender, when signed under oath by the alleged biological father, shall serve to relinquish the alleged biological father's rights to the child and to waive the alleged biological father's right to notice of any proceeding with respect to the child's adoption, custody, or guardianship. The court in any adoption proceeding shall have jurisdiction to enter a final order of adoption of the child based upon the pre-birth surrender and in other proceedings to determine the child's legal custody or guardianship shall have jurisdiction to enter an order for those purposes.

(B) The responsibilities of an alleged biological father are permanently terminated only upon the entry of a final order of adoption. A person executing a pre-birth surrender pursuant to this Code section shall have the right to withdraw the surrender within ten days from the date of execution thereof, notwithstanding the date of birth of the child.

(C) If a final order of adoption is not entered after the execution of a pre-birth surrender and paternity is established by acknowledgment, by administrative order, or by judicial order, then the alleged biological father shall be responsible for child support or other financial obligations to the child or to the child's mother, or to both.

(D) The pre-birth surrender shall not be valid for use by a legal father as defined under paragraph (6) of Code Section 19-8-1 or for any man who has executed either a voluntary acknowledgment of legitimation pursuant to the provisions of paragraph (2) of subsection (g) of Code Section 19-7-22 or a voluntary acknowledgment of paternity pursuant to the provisions of Code Section 19-7-46.1.

(E) The pre-birth surrender may be executed at any time after the biological mother executes a sworn statement identifying such person as an alleged biological father of the biological mother's unborn child.

(F) The pre-birth surrender shall meet the requirements of subsection (f) of Code Section 19-8-26.

(f) A surrender of rights shall be acknowledged by the person who surrenders those rights by also signing an acknowledgment meeting the requirements of subsection (g) of Code Section 19-8-26.

(g) Whenever the legal mother surrenders her parental rights pursuant to this Code section, she shall execute an affidavit meeting the requirements of subsection (h) of Code Section 19-8-26.

(h) Whenever rights are surrendered pursuant to this Code section, the representative of each petitioner shall execute an affidavit meeting the requirements of subsection (k) of Code Section 19-8-26.

(i) A surrender pursuant to this Code section may be given by any parent or biological father who is not the legal father of the child sought to be adopted irrespective of whether such parent or biological father has arrived at the age of majority. The surrender given by any such minor shall be binding upon him as if the individual were in all respects sui juris.

(j) A copy of each surrender specified in subsection (a) of this Code section, together with a copy of the acknowledgment specified in subsection (f) of this Code section and a copy of the affidavits specified in subsections (g) and (h) of this Code section and the name and address of each person to whom the child is surrendered, shall be mailed, by registered or certified mail or statutory overnight delivery, return receipt requested, to the

Office of Adoptions
Georgia Department of Human Services
Atlanta, Georgia

within 15 days from the execution thereof. Upon receipt of the copy the department may commence its investigation as required in Code Section 19-8-16.

(k) A petition for adoption pursuant to subsection (a) of this Code section shall be filed within 60 days from the date of the surrender. If the petition is not filed within the time period specified by this subsection or if the proceedings resulting from the petition are not concluded with an order granting the petition, the surrender shall operate as follows according to the election made therein by the legal parent or guardian of the child:

(1) In favor of that legal parent or guardian, with the express stipulation that neither this nor any other provision of the surrender shall be deemed to impair the validity, absolute finality, or totality of the surrender under any other circumstance, once the revocation period has elapsed;

(2) In favor of the licensed child-placing agency designated in the surrender of rights, if any; or

(3) If the legal parent or guardian is not designated and no child-placing agency is designated in the surrender of rights, or if the designated child-placing agency declines to accept the child for placement for adoption, in favor of the department for placement for adoption pursuant to subsection (a) of Code Section 19-8-4. The court may waive the 60 day time period for filing the petition for excusable neglect.

(l) In any surrender pursuant to this Code section, the provisions of Chapter 4 of Title 39, relating to the Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children, if applicable, shall be complied with.

(m) If the home study for a third-party adoption has not occurred prior to the date of placement, then the third party shall, at the time of the filing of the petition for adoption, file a motion with the court seeking an order authorizing placement of such child prior to the completion of the home study. Such motion shall identify the evaluator that the petitioner has selected to perform the home study. The court may waive the requirement of a preplacement home study in cases when a child to be adopted already resides in the prospective adoptive home pursuant to a court order of guardianship, testamentary guardianship, or custody.

(n) The court may grant the motion for placement prior to the completion of a home study if the court finds that such placement is in the best interest of the child.

(o) If the court grants the motion for placement prior to the completion of a home study and authorizes placement of a child prior to the completion of the home study, then:

(1) Such child shall be permitted to remain in the home of the third party with whom the parent or guardian placed such child pending further order of the court;

(2) A copy of the order authorizing placement of such child prior to the completion of the home study shall be delivered to the department and the evaluator selected to perform the home study by the clerk of the court within 15 days of the date of the entry of such order; and

(3) The home study, if not already in process, shall be initiated by the evaluator selected by the petitioner or appointed by the court within ten days of such evaluator's receipt of the court's order. Editor's notes. — Ga. L. 1999, p. 252, § 11, not codified by the General Assembly, provides that: "The provisions of this Act shall apply to petitions for adoption filed on or after July 1, 1999, except that each surrender of rights filed pursuant to a petition filed on or after July 1, 1999, shall be effective if such surrender of rights complies with the provisions of law in effect on the date of the execution of such surrender of rights."

Ga. L. 2007, p. 342, § 10/HB 497, not codified by the General Assembly, provides that the amendment to this Code section shall apply to proceedings under this chapter on or after July 1, 2007.

Ga. L. 2011, p. 573, § 8/SB 172, not codified by the General Assembly, provides that the amendment to this Code section shall apply to all placements of children for adoption and all petitions for adoption filed on or after July 1, 2011.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Custodian not legal guardian. — Grandmother who was temporary legal custodian of child under juvenile court deprivation order was not a legal guardian for purposes of surrendering rights in adoption proceedings. Edgar v. Shave, 205

Foster parents did not have right to adopt child when rights were surrendered in favor of grandmother. — Foster parents did not have standing to pursue an adoption of a foster child that had been living happily with the child's grandmother for three years because the biological parents did not surrender their rights in favor of the foster parents under O.C.G.A. § 19-8-5, and the Foster Parent's Bill of Rights, O.C.G.A. § 49-5-281, did not grant adoption rights. Owen v. Watts, 303 Ga. App. 867, 695 S.E.2d 62, cert. denied, U.S. , 131 S. Ct. 156, 178 L. Ed. 2d 93 (2010).

(a) Except as otherwise authorized in this chapter:

(1) A child whose legal father and legal mother are both living but are not still married to each other may be adopted by the spouse of either parent only when the other parent voluntarily and in writing surrenders all of his rights to the child to that spouse for the purpose of enabling that spouse to adopt the child and the other parent consents to the adoption and, where there is any guardian of that child, each such guardian has voluntarily and in writing surrendered to such spouse all of his rights to the child for purposes of such adoption; or

(2) A child who has only one parent still living may be adopted by the spouse of that parent only if that parent consents to the adoption and, where there is any guardian of that child, each such guardian has voluntarily and in writing surrendered to such spouse all of his rights to the child for the purpose of such adoption.

(b) In the case of a child 14 years of age or older, the written consent of the child to his adoption must be given and acknowledged in the presence of the court.

(c) The surrender specified in this Code section shall be executed, following the birth of the child, in the presence of a notary. A copy shall be delivered to the individual signing the surrender at the time of the execution thereof.

(d) A person signing a surrender pursuant to this Code section shall have the right to withdraw the surrender as provided in subsection (b) of Code Section 19-8-9.

(e)(1) The surrender by a parent or guardian specified in subsection (a) of this Code section shall meet the requirements of subsection (e) of Code Section 19-8-26.

(2) The biological father who is not the legal father of a child may surrender all his rights to the child for purposes of an adoption pursuant to this Code section. That surrender shall meet the requirements of subsection (d) of Code Section 19-8-26.

(f) A surrender of rights shall be acknowledged by the person who surrenders those rights by also signing an acknowledgment meeting the requirements of subsection (g) of Code Section 19-8-26.

(g) Whenever the legal mother surrenders her parental rights or consents to the adoption of her child by her spouse pursuant to this Code section, she shall execute an affidavit meeting the requirements of subsection (h) of Code Section 19-8-26.

(h) Whenever rights are surrendered pursuant to this Code section, the representative of each petitioner shall execute an affidavit meeting the requirements of subsection (k) of Code Section 19-8-26.

(i) A surrender or consent pursuant to this Code section may be given by any parent or biological father who is not the legal father of the child sought to be adopted irrespective of whether such parent or biological father has arrived at the age of majority. The surrender given by any such minor shall be binding upon him as if the individual were in all respects sui juris.

(j) The parental consent by the spouse of a stepparent seeking to adopt a child of that spouse and required by subsection (a) of this Code section shall be as provided in subsection (l) of Code Section 19-8-26. (Code 1981, § 19-8-6, enacted by Ga. L. 1990, p. 1572, § 5; Ga. L. 1991, p. 1640, § 2; Ga. L. 1999, p. 252, § 5.)

Editor's notes. — Ga. L. 1999, p. 252, § 11, not codified by the General Assembly, provides that: "The provisions of this Act shall apply to petitions for adoption filed on or after July 1, 1999, except that each surrender of rights filed pursuant to a petition filed on or after July 1, 1999, shall be effective if such surrender of rights complies with the provisions of law in effect on the date of the execution of such surrender of rights."

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the statutory provisions, decisions under former § 19-8-6 are included in the annotations for this Code section.

Constitutionality. — Grant of adoption pursuant to former § 19-8-6(b), prior to the Supreme Court's ruling in Thorne v. Padgett, 259 Ga. 650, 386 S.E.2d 155 (1990), must be reversed because former subsection (b) foreclosed an inquiry into a parent's reasons for failure to support the child to be adopted, thus denying due process. Moore v. Butler, 195 Ga. App. 1, 392 S.E.2d 285 (1990) (decided under former § 19-8-6).

Findings of fact and conclusions of law are mandatory. — Adoption decree terminating a father's parental rights failed to set forth mandatory findings of fact and conclusions of law, pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 19-8-18(b), based on the criteria of O.C.G.A. § 19-8-10(b)(1) as to whether the father's failure to communicate with the child for two years occurred immediately prior to the filing of the petition for adoption, whether the father made a bona fide attempt to communicate with the child, whether the father's failure to communicate was without justifiable cause, and the basis for the opinion regarding the best interests of the child. Maynard v. Brown, 276 Ga. App. 229, 622 S.E.2d 901 (2005).

Trial court erred by terminating a biological father's parental rights and ordering step-father adoption because the court failed to set forth specific findings of fact to support the conclusion that the requisites of O.C.G.A. § 19-8-10(b) as to abandonment of the child had been met. Ray v. Hann, 323 Ga. App. 45, 746 S.E.2d 600 (2013).

Stepparent adoption. — Trial court erred by holding a biological father, who was not the legal father of the child, could not surrender all his rights to the child for purposes of adoption by the child's stepfather. In re C.N.W., 274 Ga. 765, 560 S.E.2d 1 (2002).

Because a father failed to communicate with the children or to pay the court-ordered support for more than one year, the father's consent to the adoption of the children by their stepparent, the mother's new husband, was not required. McCurry v. Harding, 270 Ga. App. 416, 606 S.E.2d 639 (2004).

Trial court did not abuse the court's broad discretion in finding the adoption of a child by a stepparent to be in the child's best interest and thereby terminating a biological parent's parental rights as the evidence established that the biological parent failed to see the child for over five years, never provided financial support for the child, and failed to communicate with the child with no justifiable cause for such

Stepparent adoption reversed when natural parent without notice. — Trial court erred by granting a stepparent's petition to adopt an eight-year-old child and by terminating the parental rights of one of the child's natural parents as the trial court failed to make any finding in the court's adoption decree as to whether the natural parent's lack of communication with the child was without justifiable cause as required by O.C.G.A. § 19-8-18(b). Further, the trial court erred by basing the court's adoption decision, in part, on O.C.G.A. § 19-8-10(a)(4) as the stepparent's petition did not assert any claim pursuant to § 19-8-10(a) and, instead, relied exclusively on § 19-8-10(b); thus, the natural parent was not served with a petition making allegations under subsection (a) and, therefore, received no notification that the natural parent had to prepare to show cause why the natural parent's parental rights should not be terminated pursuant to subsection (a). Smallwood v. Davis, 292 Ga. App. 173, 664 S.E.2d 254 (2008).

Mother's affidavit containing knowingly false statements purporting to address the material issues of the natural father's lack of parental involvement does not substantially comply with the requirements of O.C.G.A. §§ 19-8-6(g) and 19-8-26(h) so as to sustain a judgment terminating the father's parental rights based thereon. Coleman v. Grimes, 250 Ga. App. 880, 553 S.E.2d 185 (2001).

Although a mother failed to provide an affidavit as required by O.C.G.A. § 19-8-26(h) in an adoption petition by the new husband over the mother's three minor children, such was deemed immaterial and therefore harmless because the statutory requisites had been met because the mother alleged that the father did not live with the children, that he failed to pay the court-ordered support for them for more than a year, and the mother asserted that the father provided no financial assistance. McCurry v. Harding, 270 Ga. App. 416, 606 S.E.2d 639 (2004).

Cited in Moore v. Pope, 196 Ga. App. 475, 396 S.E.2d 243 (1990) (decided prior to 1990 revision of Title 19, Chapter 8).

19-8-7. Surrender or termination of parental or guardian's rights where child adopted by relative.

(a) Except as otherwise authorized in this Code section, a child who has any living parent or guardian may be adopted by a relative who is related by blood or marriage to the child as a grandparent, great-grandparent, aunt, uncle, great aunt, great uncle, or sibling only if each such living parent and each such guardian has voluntarily and in writing surrendered to that relative and any spouse of such relative all of his or her rights to the child for the purpose of enabling that relative and any such spouse to adopt the child.

(b) In the case of a child 14 years of age or older, the written consent of the child to his adoption must be given and acknowledged in the presence of the court.

(c) The surrender specified in paragraphs (1) and (2) of subsection (e) of this Code section shall be executed following the birth of the child, and the pre-birth surrender specified in paragraph (3) of subsection (e) of this Code section shall be executed prior to the birth of the child. Each surrender shall be executed in the presence of a notary. A copy shall be delivered to the individual signing the surrender at the time of the execution thereof.

(d) A person signing a surrender pursuant to this Code section shall have the right to withdraw the surrender as provided in subsection (b) of Code Section 19-8-9.

(e)(1) The surrender by a parent or guardian specified in subsection (a) of this Code section shall meet the requirements of subsection (e) of Code Section 19-8-26.

(2) The biological father who is not the legal father of the child may surrender all his rights to the child for purposes of an adoption pursuant to this Code section. That surrender shall meet the requirements of subsection (d) of Code Section 19-8-26.

(3)(A) The biological father who is not the legal father of a child may execute a surrender of his rights to the child prior to the birth of the child for the purpose of an adoption pursuant to this Code section. A pre-birth surrender, when signed under oath by the alleged biological father, shall serve to relinquish the alleged biological father's rights to the child and to waive the alleged biological father's right to notice of any proceeding with respect to the child's adoption, custody, or guardianship. The court in any adoption proceeding shall have jurisdiction to enter a final order of adoption of the child based upon the pre-birth surrender and in other proceedings to determine the child's legal custody or guardianship shall have jurisdiction to enter an order for those purposes.

(B) The responsibilities of an alleged biological father are permanently terminated only upon the entry of a final order of adoption. A person executing a pre-birth surrender pursuant to this Code section shall have the right to withdraw the surrender within ten days from the date of execution thereof, notwithstanding the date of birth of the child.

(C) If a final order of adoption is not entered after the execution of a pre-birth surrender and paternity is established by acknowledgment, by administrative order, or by judicial order, then the alleged biological father shall be responsible for child support or other financial obligations to the child or to the child's mother, or to both.

(D) The pre-birth surrender shall not be valid for use by a legal father as defined under paragraph (6) of Code Section 19-8-1 or for any man who has executed either a voluntary acknowledgment of legitimation pursuant to the provisions of paragraph (2) of subsection (g) of Code Section 19-7-22 or a voluntary acknowledgment of paternity pursuant to the provisions of Code Section 19-7-46.1.

(E) The pre-birth surrender may be executed at any time after the biological mother executes a sworn statement identifying such person as an alleged biological father of the biological mother's unborn child.

(F) The pre-birth surrender shall meet the requirements of subsection (f) of Code Section 19-8-26.

(f) A surrender of rights shall be acknowledged by the person who surrenders those rights by also signing an acknowledgment meeting the requirements of subsection (g) of Code Section 19-8-26.

(g) Whenever the legal mother surrenders her parental rights pursuant to this Code section, she shall execute an affidavit meeting the requirements of subsection (h) of Code Section 19-8-26.

(h) Whenever rights are surrendered pursuant to this Code section the representative of each petitioner shall execute an affidavit meeting the requirements of subsection (k) of Code Section 19-8-26.

(i) A surrender pursuant to this Code section may be given by any parent or biological father who is not the legal father of the child sought to be adopted irrespective of whether such parent or biological father has arrived at the age of majority. The surrender given by any such minor shall be binding upon him as if the individual were in all respects sui juris. (Code 1981, § 19-8-7, enacted by Ga. L. 1990, p. 1572, § 5; Ga. L. 1991, p. 1640, § 3; Ga. L. 1999, p. 252, § 6; Ga. L. 2003, p. 503, § 3; Ga. L. 2007, p. 342, §§ 5, 6/HB 497; Ga. L. 2008, p. 324, § 19/SB 455.)

Editor's notes. — Ga. L. 1999, p. 252, § 11, not codified by the General Assembly, provides that: "The provisions of this Act shall apply to petitions for adoption filed on or after July 1, 1999, except that each surrender of rights filed pursuant to a petition filed on or after July 1, 1999, shall be effective if such surrender of rights complies with the provisions of law in effect on the date of the execution of such surrender of rights."

Ga. L. 2007, p. 342, § 10/HB 497, not codified by the General Assembly, provides that the amendment to this Code section shall apply to proceedings under this chapter on or after July 1, 2007.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Relinquishment not determinative of adoption petition. — Fact that the child's father surrendered his rights to the child over to the paternal grandparents pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 19-8-7(a) was not determinative of the adoption petition filed by the paternal grandparents; since there was evidence to support the trial court's findings that the paternal grandparents would have denied the maternal grandparents contact with the child if the adoption petition were granted, and that the granting of the petition was not in the child's best interests, the denial of the petition was affirmed. Madison v. Barnett, 268 Ga. App. 348, 601 S.E.2d 704 (2004).

Relinquishment was sufficient because it met the standards of the state in which it was signed. — Relatives of the mother of a child born with Fetal Alcohol Syndrome were not required to comply with the requirements of O.C.G.A. § 19-8-7 as the father's relinquishment of the father's rights was valid because it was knowingly and voluntarily made in accordance with New Mexico law pursuant to former O.C.G.A. § 24-7-24 (see now

O.C.G.A. § 24-9-922). Rokowski v. Gilbert, 275 Ga. App. 305, 620 S.E.2d 509 (2005).

Construction with other law. — Superior court properly dismissed a grandmother's adoption petition on collateral estoppel grounds based on the juvenile court's previous order granting temporary custody to the maternal grandfather and grant of visitation rights to the grandmother; as a result, the superior court was not authorized to readjudicate the issue of permanent custody involving the child at issue. Smith v. Hutcheson, 283 Ga. App. 117, 640 S.E.2d 690 (2006).

Trial court erred in denying an aunt and uncle's petition to adopt their nephew under O.C.G.A. § 19-8-8, and should have applied O.C.G.A. § 19-8-7 as: (1) the former was not intended to be a general rule regarding the adoption of foreign children; (2) the aunt and uncle satisfied the jurisdictional and venue requirements of O.C.G.A. § 19-8-2 by filing the adoption petition in the superior court of their county of residence; and (3) as the child's aunt and uncle, they were relatives eligible to adopt under O.C.G.A. § 19-8-7(a). In re Adoption of D.J.F.M., 284 Ga. App. 420, 643 S.E.2d 879 (2007).

Adoption by stepparent. — Trial court erred by granting a stepparent's petition to adopt an eight-year-old child and by terminating the parental rights of one of the child's natural parents as the trial court failed to make any finding in the court's adoption decree as to whether the natural parent's lack of communication with the child was without justifiable cause as required by O.C.G.A. § 19-8-18(b). Further, the trial court erred by basing the court's adoption decision, in part, on O.C.G.A. § 19-8-10(a)(4) as the stepparent's petition did not assert any claim pursuant to § 19-8-10(a) and, instead, relied exclusively on § 19-8-10(b); thus, the natural parent was not served with a petition making allegations under subsection (a) and, therefore, received no notification that the natural parent had to prepare to show cause why the natural parent's parental rights should not be terminated pursuant to subsection (a). Smallwood v. Davis, 292 Ga. App. 173, 664 S.E.2d 254 (2008).

19-8-8. Adoption based upon foreign decrees and valid visa.

A child may be adopted pursuant to the provisions of this chapter based upon:

(1) A decree which has been entered pursuant to due process of law by a court of competent jurisdiction outside the United States establishing the relationship of parent and child by adoption between each petitioner and a child born in such foreign country; and

(2) The child's having been granted a valid visa by the United States Immigration and Naturalization Service. (Code 1981, § 19-8-8, enacted by Ga. L. 1990, p. 1572, § 5; Ga. L. 1991, p. 94, § 19.)

Construction with other law. — Trial court erred in denying an aunt and uncle's petition to adopt their nephew under O.C.G.A. § 19-8-8, and should have applied O.C.G.A. § 19-8-7 as: (1) the former was not intended to be a general rule regarding the adoption of foreign children; (2) the aunt and uncle satisfied the jurisdictional and venue requirements of O.C.G.A. § 19-8-2 by filing the adoption petition in the superior court of their county of residence; and (3) as the child's aunt and uncle, they were relatives eligible to adopt under O.C.G.A. § 19-8-7(a). In re Adoption of D.J.F.M., 284 Ga. App. 420, 643 S.E.2d 879 (2007).

19-8-9. Surrender of parental rights where legal mother puts up for adoption child she previously adopted herself; withdrawal of surrender; expiration of rights.

(a) In those cases where the legal mother of the child being placed for adoption has herself previously adopted such child, said adoptive mother shall execute, in lieu of the affidavit specified in subsection (g) of Code Section 19-8-4, 19-8-5, 19-8-6, or 19-8-7, an affidavit meeting the requirements of subsection (i) of Code Section 19-8-26.

(b) A person signing a surrender pursuant to Code Section 19-8-4, 19-8-5, 19-8-6, or 19-8-7 shall have the right to withdraw the surrender by written notice delivered in person or mailed by registered mail or statutory overnight delivery within ten days after signing; and the surrender document shall not be valid unless it so states. The ten days shall be counted consecutively beginning with the day immediately following the date the surrender is executed, however, if the tenth day falls on a Saturday, Sunday, or legal holiday then the last day on which the surrender may be withdrawn shall be the next day that is not a Saturday, Sunday, or legal holiday. After ten days, a surrender may not be withdrawn. The notice of withdrawal of surrender shall be delivered in person or mailed by registered mail or statutory overnight delivery to the address designated in the surrender document.

(c) If a legal mother has voluntarily and in writing surrendered all of her parental rights pursuant to the provisions of subsection (a) of Code Section 19-8-4, 19-8-5, 19-8-6, or 19-8-7 and has not withdrawn her surrender within the ten-day period after signing as permitted by the provisions of subsection (b) of this Code section, she shall have no right or authority to sign either a voluntary acknowledgment of legitimation pursuant to the provisions of paragraph (2) of subsection (g) of Code Section 19-7-22 or a voluntary acknowledgment of paternity pursuant to the provisions of Code Section 19-7-46.1 regarding the same child. (Code 1981, § 19-8-9, enacted by Ga. L. 1990, p. 1572, § 5; Ga. L. 2000, p. 1589, § 4; Ga. L. 2007, p. 342, § 7/HB 497.)

Editor's notes. — Ga. L. 2007, p. 342, § 10/HB 497, not codified by the General Assembly, provides that subsection (c) shall apply to proceedings under this chapter on or after July 1, 2007.

Revocation of consent. — Even though revocation of consent may be allowed more than ten days after consent is given, when the mother had acted freely and voluntarily and the trial court found her competent, the court did not err in finding that she failed to establish good and sufficient cause to void the surrender. Schumacher v. Sexton, 216 Ga. App. 628, 455 S.E.2d 348 (1995).

Parent may not revoke his or her valid surrender after 10 days; such limitation does not limit the right of a surrendering parent to establish that there was no valid, voluntary consent given initially. In re B.G.D., 224 Ga. App. 124, 479 S.E.2d 439 (1996).

Parent seeking to withdraw consent to adoption after 10 days must show duress, fraud, or incapacity, and then, as with all contracts, the consent is invalidated and the surrender becomes voidable. Hicks v. Stargel, 226 Ga. App. 639, 487 S.E.2d 428 (1997).

Mother did not revoke her surrender within the 10 days provided under O.C.G.A. § 19-8-9(b), and a later attempt to revoke her surrender was ineffective; without the transcript of the trial, the appellate court assumed that the evidence supported the trial court's factual finding that the mother showed no cause for invalidating the surrender. Ueal v. AAA Ptnrs. in Adoption, Inc., 269 Ga. App. 258, 603 S.E.2d 672 (2004).

Surrender of parental rights voidable based on caseworker misconduct. — Based upon newly discovered evidence that the caseworker of a parent who surrendered parental rights was a friend of the foster parents and had engaged in fraud and other illegalities, the trial court properly restored the parent's parental rights pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 15-11-40(a)(3). Thus, O.C.G.A. § 19-8-9, requiring a parent to revoke a surrender within 10 days, did not prevent the surrenders from being voidable. In the Interest of K.W., 291 Ga. App. 623, 662 S.E.2d 255 (2008), cert. dismissed, 2008 Ga. LEXIS 767 (Ga. 2008).

Duress not shown. — Even though the mother was under emotional and financial pressure when she made the decision to surrender her parental rights, that pressure did not constitute legal duress. Mabou v. Eller, 232 Ga. App. 635, 502 S.E.2d 760 (1998).

Cited in In the Interest of T.C.D., 281 Ga. App. 517, 636 S.E.2d 704 (2006).

19-8-10. When surrender or termination of parental rights not required; service on parents in such cases.

(a) Surrender or termination of rights of a parent pursuant to subsection (a) of Code Section 19-8-4, 19-8-5, 19-8-6, or 19-8-7 shall not be required as a prerequisite to the filing of a petition for adoption of a child of that parent pursuant to Code Section 19-8-13 where the court determines by clear and convincing evidence that the:

- (1) Child has been abandoned by that parent;
- (2) Parent cannot be found after a diligent search has been made;
- (3) Parent is insane or otherwise incapacitated from surrendering such rights; or
- (4) Parent has failed to exercise proper parental care or control due to misconduct or inability, as set out in paragraph (3), (4), or (5) of subsection (a) of Code Section 15-11-310, and the court is of the opinion that the adoption is in the best interests of that child, after considering the physical, mental, emotional, and moral condition and needs of the child who is the subject of the proceeding, including the need for a secure and stable home.

(b) Surrender of rights of a parent pursuant to subsection (a) of Code Section 19-8-6 or 19-8-7 shall not be required as a prerequisite to the filing of a petition for adoption of a child of that parent pursuant to Code Section 19-8-13, if that parent, for a period of one year or longer immediately prior to the filing of the petition for adoption, without justifiable cause, has significantly failed:

(1) To communicate or to make a bona fide attempt to communicate with that child in a meaningful, supportive, parental manner; or

(2) To provide for the care and support of that child as required by law or judicial decree, and the court is of the opinion that the adoption is for the best interests of that child.

(c) Whenever it is alleged by any petitioner that surrender or termination of rights of a parent is not a prerequisite to the filing of a petition for adoption of a child of that parent in accordance with subsection (a) or (b) of this Code section, that parent shall be personally served with a conformed copy of the adoption petition, together with a copy of the court's order thereon specified in Code Section 19-8-14, or, if personal service cannot be perfected, by registered or certified mail or statutory overnight delivery, return receipt requested, at his last known address. If service cannot be made by either of these methods that parent shall be given notice by publication once a week for three weeks in the official organ of the county where the petition has been filed and of the county of his last known address. A parent who receives notification pursuant to this paragraph may appear in the pending adoption action and show cause why such parent's rights to the child sought to be adopted in that action should not be terminated by that adoption. Notice shall be deemed to have been received the date:

(1) Personal service is perfected;

(2) Of delivery shown on the return receipt of registered or certified mail or statutory overnight delivery; or

The 2013 amendment, effective January 1, 2014, substituted “paragraph (3), (4), or (5) of subsection (a) of Code Section 15-11-310” for “paragraph (2), (3), or (4) of subsection (b) of Code Section 15-11-94” in paragraph (a)(4). See editor's note for applicability.

Editor's notes. — Ga. L. 1999, p. 252, § 11, not codified by the General Assembly, provides that: “The provisions of this Act shall apply to petitions for adoption filed on or after July 1, 1999, except that each surrender of rights filed pursuant to a petition filed on or after July 1, 1999, shall be effective if such surrender of rights complies with the provisions of law in effect on the date of the execution of such surrender of rights.”

Ga. L. 2013, p. 294, § 5-1/HB 242, not codified by the General Assembly, provides that: "This Act shall become effective on January 1, 2014, and shall apply to all offenses which occur and juvenile proceedings commenced on and after such date. Any offense occurring before January 1, 2014, shall be governed by the statute in effect at the time of such offense and shall be considered a prior adjudication for the purpose of imposing a disposition that provides for a different penalty for subsequent adjudications, of whatever class, pursuant to this Act. The enactment of this Act shall not affect any prosecutions for acts occurring before January 1, 2014, and shall not act as an abatement of any such prosecutions."

ANALYSIS

ABANDONMENT

SIGNIFICANT FAILURE TO COMMUNICATE OR SUPPORT

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the statutory provisions, decisions under Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 9 and former § 19-8-6 are included in the annotations for this Code section.

Due process requirements. — Due process clause of the Fourteenth Amendment requires that before a state may sever the rights of a parent in the parent's natural child, the state must support its allegations of the parent's unfitness "by at least clear and convincing evidence." Thorne v. Padgett, 259 Ga. 650, 386 S.E.2d 155 (1989) (decided under former § 19-8-6).

Because former subsection (b) foreclosed an inquiry into the reasons for a parent's failure to provide care and support, thus depriving that parent of a meaningful opportunity to be heard, it denies due process of law. Thorne v. Padgett, 259 Ga. 650, 386 S.E.2d 155 (1989) (decided under former § 19-8-6).

Findings of fact and conclusions of law. — Since a trial court failed to make any specific findings of fact in support of the court's recitation under O.C.G.A. § 19-8-10 that a child's father had failed without justifiable cause to communicate with the child for a period of one year immediately prior to the filing of the adoption petition, the order did not comply with the requirements of O.C.G.A. § 19-8-18, and the court had to remand the matter to the trial court to make the appropriate findings of fact and conclusions of law. Sauls v. Atchison, 316 Ga. App. 792, 730 S.E.2d 459 (2012).

Trial court erred by terminating a biological father's parental rights and ordering adoption because the court failed to set forth specific findings of fact to support the conclusion that the requisites of O.C.G.A. § 19-8-10(b) as to abandonment of the child had been met. Ray v. Hann, 323 Ga. App. 45, 746 S.E.2d 600 (2013).

Impact of failing to include findings of fact and conclusions of law. — Mother was entitled to order vacating the grant of the stepmother's petition for adoption because the final order did not include findings of fact and conclusions of law as required to support the termination of parental rights. Dell v. Dell, 324 Ga. App. 297, 748 S.E.2d 703 (2013).

Superior court's order was deficient because the order did not address any of the criteria for termination of parental rights pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 15-11-94, it did not include specific findings of fact showing that the mother abandoned the child, and the order did not include specific factual findings showing that the mother failed to provide care and support for the child without justifiable cause. Moreover, the superior court's conclusion that adoption was in the child's best interest also lacked particularity and, therefore, the mother was entitled to an order vacating the grant of the stepmother's petition for adoption. Dell v. Dell, 324 Ga. App. 297, 748 S.E.2d 703 (2013).

Due process and equal protection rights not denied. — Former § 19-8-6 did not deny due process and equal protection by discriminating against incarcerated persons. It would emasculate child-support laws to relieve parents of natural and statutory child-support obligations because they have voluntarily committed offenses resulting in their imprisonment and possible inability to earn funds with which to support their children. Chandler v. Cochran, 247 Ga. 184, 275 S.E.2d 23, cert. denied, 454 U.S. 872, 102 S. Ct. 342, 70 L. Ed. 2d 177 (1981) (decided under former § 19-8-6).

Deprivation. — Trial court properly terminated a father's parental rights to the daughter pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 15-11-94(b); the child was deprived as the father had made no attempts to help care for the child, who was born with Fetal Alcohol Syndrome, and the adoption of the child by the mother's relatives pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 19-8-10 was in the best interest of the child. Rokowski v. Gilbert, 275 Ga. App. 305, 620 S.E.2d 509 (2005).

Facts rendering section applicable must be alleged. — When applicable, parental rights need not be surrendered or terminated prior to filing of a petition for adoption, but facts demonstrating the applicability of former § 19-8-6 must be alleged. Chandler v. Cochran, 247 Ga. 184, 275 S.E.2d 23, cert. denied, 454 U.S. 872, 102 S. Ct. 342, 70 L. Ed. 2d 177 (1981) (decided under former § 19-8-6).

Compliance with service and notice provisions of former § 19-8-6 must be alleged in petition for adoption. Chandler v. Cochran, 247 Ga. 184, 275 S.E.2d 23, cert. denied, 454 U.S. 872, 102 S. Ct. 342, 70 L. Ed. 2d 177 (1981) (decided under former § 19-8-6).

Because the natural father was not afforded the 30-day period mandated as a prerequisite to the termination of his parental rights and the subsequent stepparent adoption of his natural child, vacation of the decree of adoption was required. McKinney v. Jennings, 246 Ga. App. 862, 542 S.E.2d 580 (2000).

Trial court erred by granting a stepparent's petition to adopt an eight-year-old child and by terminating the parental rights of one of the child's natural parents as the trial court failed to make any finding as to whether the natural parent's lack of communication with the child was without justifiable cause as required by O.C.G.A. § 19-8-18(b). Further, the trial court erred by basing the court's adoption decision, in part, on O.C.G.A. § 19-8-10(a)(4) as the stepparent's petition did not assert any claim pursuant to § 19-8-10(a) and, instead, relied exclusively on § 19-8-10(b). The natural parent was not served with a petition making allegations under subsection (a) and, therefore, received no notification that the natural parent had to prepare to show cause why the natural parent's parental rights should not be terminated. Smallwood v. Davis, 292 Ga. App. 173, 664 S.E.2d 254 (2008).

When mother tells father he need not pay. — Even when father fails to make child support payments as a result of mother telling him that he need not make further payments or the mother and father agreeing that continuance of payments is not required, father has no legal excuse not to pay. Hix v. Patton, 147 Ga. App. 14, 248 S.E.2d 28 (1978) (decided under Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 9).

When adoption is in child's best interest. — Determination that the adoption is for the best interest of the child, in addition to and separately from the finding of the unfitness of a parent, is a statutory condition precedent to the application of former § 19-8-6. Cain v. Lane, 168 Ga. App. 405, 309 S.E.2d 401 (1983) (decided under former § 19-8-6).

Imprisonment as justifiable cause. — For purposes of determining the existence of “justifiable cause”, within the meaning of subsection (b) of O.C.G.A. § 19-8-10, incarceration is merely one relevant factor to be considered by the trial court; incarceration does not per se give rise to justifiable cause, although in certain circumstances “justifiable cause” can be shown to arise therefrom. Jones v. Sauls, 213 Ga. App. 55, 443 S.E.2d 693 (1994) (decided under former § 19-8-6).

If any evidence supports findings of trial judge in adoption proceedings, Court of Appeals must affirm. Crumb v. Gordon, 157 Ga. App. 839, 278 S.E.2d 725 (1981) (decided under former § 19-8-6).

Findings assumed supportable in absence of record. — In the absence of a transcript of the evidence in the record on appeal, it was assumed that the findings of the trial court as to adoption were supported by the evidence. Gaskins v. Fowler, 171 Ga. App. 681, 320 S.E.2d 890 (1984) (decided under former § 19-8-6).

Father’s failure to provide a transcript of the trial court proceedings, in which the father’s parental rights were terminated under O.C.G.A. § 19-8-10(a), required the appellate court to assume that the evidence supported the trial court’s findings. Farley v. Hawkins, 277 Ga. App. 880, 627 S.E.2d 913 (2006).

Husband of woman at time of conception or birth is party at interest when another man claims fatherhood of the child in a legitimation proceeding; therefore, due process requires that the “legal father” must be served but that service may be perfected in the same manner as provided for in adoption proceedings. In re White, 254 Ga. 678, 333 S.E.2d 588 (1985) (decided under former § 19-8-6).

Consideration of enumerations of error on appeal when brief did not comply with rules. — Although a couple’s brief in an adoption case filed under O.C.G.A. § 19-8-10 did not comply with Ga. Ct. App. R. 25(c)(1) because the couple did not number their arguments in their brief so as to correspond with their enumerations of error, the court would address their enumerations of error because the best interest of the child was the overriding concern in an adoption case. Thaggard v. Willard, 285 Ga. App. 384, 646 S.E.2d 479 (2007).

Construction with other law. — Superior court properly dismissed a grandmother’s adoption petition on collateral estoppel grounds based on the juvenile court’s previous order granting temporary custody to the maternal grandfather and grant of visitation rights to the grandmother; as a result, the superior court was not authorized to readjudicate the issue of permanent custody involving the child at issue. Smith v. Hutcheson, 283 Ga. App. 117, 640 S.E.2d 690 (2006).

Due process rights of father denied. — Trial court erred in granting the step-father’s petition for stepparent adoption under O.C.G.A. § 19-8-10(b) because the father’s due process rights were violated when, during the presentation of the step-father’s evidence, the trial court sua sponte ended the matter and refused to allow the father to present witnesses and other evidence to show cause why the father’s parental rights should not be terminated. Hafer v. Lowry, 320 Ga. App. 76, 739 S.E.2d 84 (2013).

Adoption petition failed to address statutory factors. — In a step-father’s appeal, a trial court erred by denying the step-father’s petition for adoption because the adoption petition did not address the issue of whether the biological father was a parent of the child for purposes of the adoption statutes, O.C.G.A. §§ 19-7-21.1(a)(2)(F) and 19-8-1(6). Allifi v. Raider, 323 Ga. App. 510, 746 S.E.2d 763 (2013).

Order deficient. — Superior court’s order in termination of parental rights action was deficient because the order did not include specific findings of fact showing that the mother abandoned the child, and the order did not include specific factual findings showing that the mother failed to provide care and support for the child without justifiable cause. Moreover, the superior court’s conclusion that adoption was in the child’s best interest also lacked particularity. Dell v. Dell, 324 Ga. App. 297, 748 S.E.2d 703 (2013).

App. 880, 553 S.E.2d 185 (2001).

Abandonment

Abandonment is a separate issue from failure to pay child support which, though admittedly a type of abandonment, constitutes a separate ground for terminating parental rights under the law. Findley v. Sanders, 153 Ga. App. 146, 264 S.E.2d 659 (1980) (decided under Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 9).

Finding of abandonment pursuant to former subsection (a) of former § 19-8-6 was not a prerequisite to a consideration of the elements of former subsection (b). Abandonment was a separate issue from the failure to pay support. Dubose v. Richardson, 193 Ga. App. 104, 387 S.E.2d 156 (1989) (decided under former § 19-8-6).

Standard to be used in abandonment cases is whether alleged abandonment is such as to show a settled purpose to forego all parental duties and claims; there must be an actual desertion, accompanied with intention to entirely sever, so far as possible to do so, the parental relation, and throw off all obligations growing out of the relationship. Crumb v. Gordon, 157 Ga. App. 839, 278 S.E.2d 725 (1981) (decided under former § 19-8-6).

Appellate standard of review of a finding of abandonment is whether after reviewing the evidence in the light most favorable to the appellee, any rational trier of fact could have found by clear and convincing evidence that the natural parent's rights to custody were lost in the manner found. Griffith v. Brooks, 193 Ga. App. 762, 389 S.E.2d 246 (1989) (decided under former § 19-8-6).

Evidence sufficient to support abandonment. In re A.J.A., 164 Ga. App. 210, 296 S.E.2d 103 (1982) (decided under former § 19-8-6).

Evidence insufficient to show abandonment. Griffith v. Brooks, 193 Ga. App. 762, 389 S.E.2d 246 (1989) (decided under former § 19-8-6).

When a child's parent pursued litigation concerning the petition of the child's prospective adoptive parents to adopt the child, it was incorrect to grant the petition on the basis of the parent's abandonment, under O.C.G.A. § 19-8-10(a) because the parent's pursuit of litigation did not show the parent's intent to entirely sever the parent's relations with the child as was a prerequisite for a finding of abandonment. Hall v. Coleman, 264 Ga. App. 650, 592 S.E.2d 120 (2003).

Significant Failure to Communicate or Support

In applying former subsection (b) of Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 9, superior courts have very broad discretion which will not be controlled by appellate courts except in cases of plain abuse. Johnson v. Taylor, 153 Ga. App. 15, 264 S.E.2d 512 (1980) (decided under Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 9).

Construction with O.C.G.A. § 19-8-18(b). — When the trial court denied a couple's petition to adopt a child and to terminate the parental rights of the child's legal father, it was not required to enter findings in accordance with O.C.G.A. § 19-8-18(b), which applied when an adoption petition was granted and parental rights terminated. The court had entered findings and conclusions sufficient to satisfy O.C.G.A. § 19-8-10(b) when the court found that the father had paid child support and had communicated with the child and that the adoption was not in the child's best interest. Thaggard v. Willard, 285 Ga. App. 384, 646 S.E.2d 479 (2007).

Failure to support the child financially was not dispositive of the issue of adoption because subsection (b) of former § 19-8-6 required the trial court to determine, prior to the grant of an adoption, whether adoption was in the best interests of the child, when a natural parent has failed to support his/her child. Arrington v. Hand, 193 Ga. App. 457, 388 S.E.2d 52 (1989) (decided under former § 19-8-6).

Failure to provide for care and support. — Paragraph (b)(2) of former § 19-8-6 was applicable in a case where no court order has been entered. Pacella v. Sanchez, 191 Ga. App. 611, 382 S.E.2d 371 (1989) (decided under former § 19-8-6).

Father's failure to dispute the stepfather's claim that the father had failed to pay $ 7,249 in support for the daughter for at least a year before the stepfather's adoption petition was filed provided clear and convincing evidence to support the finding that the father had failed for over a year to provide for the care and support of the daughter under O.C.G.A. § 19-8-10(b)(2). Meeks v. Thompson, 277 Ga. App. 346, 626 S.E.2d 564 (2006).

Phrase "failed significantly" allows a degree of latitude for the trial judge's discretion, but such discretion is necessary and desirable in adoption proceedings and was intended by the legislature to be applied to particular facts in each individual case. Chandler v. Cochran, 247 Ga. 184, 275 S.E.2d 23, cert. denied, 454 U.S. 872, 102 S. Ct. 342, 70 L. Ed. 2d 177 (1981) (decided under former § 19-8-6).

Clear and convincing evidence required. — Former § 19-8-6 did not require proof of wanton and willful failure to communicate with a child prior to adoption, but "clear and convincing" evidence was required. In re S.D.S., 166 Ga. App. 344, 304 S.E.2d 85, cert. denied, 464 U.S. 997, 104 S. Ct. 496, 78 L. Ed. 2d 689 (1983) (decided under former § 19-8-6).

Proof of willfulness unnecessary. — In seeking to establish that the father failed significantly to communicate with the child or to provide for the child's support, it was not necessary to demonstrate that he willfully failed in these respects. Proof of willfulness was not necessary in order to find a significant failure under subsection (b) of former § 19-8-6. Allen v. Helewski, 184 Ga. App. 450, 361 S.E.2d 711 (1987) (decided under former § 19-8-6).

Necessary specific and articulated findings. — Order granting adoption need only contain specific and articulated findings that parent "has failed significantly" for one-year period to communicate with or provide support for that parent's child and that adoption would be in the child's "best interest." Kirkland v. Lee, 160 Ga. App. 446, 287 S.E.2d 365 (1981); Keys v. Ankerich, 193 Ga. App. 107, 386 S.E.2d 736 (1989) (decided under former § 19-8-6).

Findings of fact and conclusions of law are mandatory. — Adoption decree terminating the father's parental rights failed to set forth mandatory findings of fact and conclusions of law, pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 19-8-18(b), based on the criteria of O.C.G.A. § 19-8-10(b)(1) as to whether the father's failure to communicate with the child for two years occurred immediately prior to the filing of the petition for adoption, whether the father made a bona fide attempt to communicate with the child, whether the father's failure to communicate was without justifiable cause, and the basis for the opinion regarding the best interests of the child. Maynard v. Brown, 276 Ga. App. 229, 622 S.E.2d 901 (2005).

Discretion of trial judge. — Question of significant failure to communicate or to provide support for a one-year period, as well as an additional question of best interests of child, are all threshold matters of discretion with the trial court who has opportunity to observe parties and hear evidence. Westberg v. Stamm, 162 Ga. App. 369, 291 S.E.2d 439 (1982) (decided under former § 19-8-6).

While the trial judge might determine in the court's discretion that the evidence did not authorize an adoption, and thus deny the adoption, it was improper to grant a directed verdict to the mother and to then say no exercise of discretion was authorized. Westberg v. Stamm, 162 Ga. App. 369, 291 S.E.2d 439 (1982) (decided under former § 19-8-6).

Because the evidence showed that the child's needs could be equally met in either the mother's or the grandparent's home, the trial court abused the court's discretion in terminating the mother's parental rights under O.C.G.A. §§ 15-11-94(b)(4) and 19-8-10(a), (b)(1), (2), and in granting the grandmother's and the step-grandfather's petition for adoption under O.C.G.A. § 19-8-2. McCollum v. Jones, 274 Ga. App. 815, 619 S.E.2d 313 (2005).

Trial court did not abuse the court's broad discretion in finding the adoption of a child by a stepparent to be in the child's best interest and thereby terminating a biological parent's parental rights as the evidence established that the biological parent failed to see the child for over five years, never provided financial support for the child, and failed to communicate with the child with no justifiable cause for such failure shown. Johnson v. Taylor, 292 Ga. App. 354, 665 S.E.2d 49 (2008).

Court need not make specific finding as to "significant failure." — Intent of legislature in enacting Ga. L. 1979, p. 1182 clearly was to omit any requirement of a specific finding that a parent's "significant failure" was without justifiable cause as an absolute prerequisite to entry of decree of adoption and to substitute best interest of child as criterion for adoption determination. Kirkland v. Lee, 160 Ga. App. 446, 287 S.E.2d 365 (1981) (decided under former § 19-8-6).

Without justifiable cause. — General Assembly intended that no order of adoption ever be reversed for failure of the trial court to make a specific finding on issue of "justifiable cause." Kirkland v. Lee, 160 Ga. App. 446, 287 S.E.2d 365 (1981) (decided under former § 19-8-6).

It must be presumed that the legislature when reenacting Ga. L. 1979, p. 1182 had knowledge of requirement of preexisting provisions found at Ga. L. 1977, p. 201 and intended to delete requirement that a parent's significant failure to communicate with or to provide support for the parent's child further be "without justifiable cause" and that such a finding is no longer a prerequisite to adoption without the consent of the natural parent. Kirkland v. Lee, 160 Ga. App. 446, 287 S.E.2d 365 (1981) (decided under former § 19-8-6).

Since the language "without justifiable cause" was no longer in former § 19-8-6, it is not necessary that the trial judge find that the father's failure to support or communicate was without justifiable cause. Curtis v. Jones, 160 Ga. App. 904, 288 S.E.2d 615 (1982) (decided under former § 19-8-6).

"Justifiable cause" determined in context of child's best interest. — It is apparent that in enacting Ga. L. 1979, p. 1182, the legislature intended that in adoption proceedings any issue of natural parent's justification for parent's significant failure to support or communicate with the parent's child be subsumed into and resolved in the context of whether severance of the parental relationship would be in the best interest of the child. Kirkland v. Lee, 160 Ga. App. 446, 287 S.E.2d 365 (1981) (decided under former § 19-8-6).

When paragraph (b)(2) not necessarily violated. — While divorce decree wherein mother waived child support was ineffective to modify statutory duty imposed upon father by § 19-7-2, his good faith reliance upon it constitutes a reasonable excuse for failing to provide for care and support of the child; if an excuse is reasonable, although not legal, the absence of a legal excuse does not demand a finding that paragraph (b)(2) of former § 19-8-6 had been violated. Crumb v. Gordon, 157 Ga. App. 839, 278 S.E.2d 725 (1981) (decided under former § 19-8-6).

Intent of phrase "failed significantly ... to provide ... support" contained in subsection (b) of former § 19-8-6 was to require more, or significant, support before parental consent would be required as provided in former § 19-8-3. Prescott v. Judy, 157 Ga. App. 735, 278 S.E.2d 493 (1981) (decided under former § 19-8-6).

"Sporadic and de minimis" efforts insufficient. — In determining whether "significant" steps have been taken with regard to support and communication,

Significant Failure to Communicate or Support (Cont'd)

“sporadic and de minimis” efforts do not require the court to find that there have been significant steps. In re J.S.J., 180 Ga. App. 873, 350 S.E.2d 843 (1986); Dubose v. Richardson, 193 Ga. App. 104, 387 S.E.2d 156 (1989) (decided under former § 19-8-6).

Order terminating a father’s parental rights and allowing adoption pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 19-8-10 was supported by sufficient evidence as the father made no child support payments for the one year immediately before the filing of the petition, and, while the father was incarcerated for a part of that period, the support payments were sporadic even before the incarceration; testimony showed that the adoptive parent and the child were close and that the adoptive parent was capable and willing to take parental responsibility of the child. Ray v. Denton, 278 Ga. App. 69, 628 S.E.2d 180 (2006).

Support payment after petition filed. — Payment of delinquent child support coming after filing of adoption petition is too late to rely upon it as evidence that the parent did not significantly fail to provide child support. Kirkland v. Lee, 160 Ga. App. 446, 287 S.E.2d 365 (1981) (decided under former § 19-8-6).

Denial of petition proper. — Trial court did not err in denying a couple’s petition to adopt a child and to terminate a father’s parental rights under O.C.G.A. § 19-8-10; although the father had not provided a stable or wholesome relationship with the child based on his drug violations and repeated incarcerations, he had paid some child support and had communicated with the child. Thaggard v. Willard, 285 Ga. App. 384, 646 S.E.2d 479 (2007).

Effect of imprisonment. — Parents are not relieved of natural and statutory child support obligations because they have voluntarily committed offenses resulting in their imprisonment and possible inability to earn funds with which to support their child. Curtis v. Jones, 160 Ga. App. 904, 288 S.E.2d 615 (1982) (decided under former § 19-8-6).

Trial court properly granted a stepmother’s petition to adopt a biological mother’s child because under O.C.G.A. § 19-8-10(b) there was sufficient clear and convincing evidence that the mother failed to provide for the child’s support; although the mother had been incarcerated, the mother received social security disability payments but did not use those payments to pay child support. Sellers v. Sellers, 277 Ga. App. 814, 627 S.E.2d 882 (2006).

Justifiable cause in incarceration situation. — Parental rights could not be terminated to permit adoption without the father’s consent since the evidence sustained a finding that the failure of the father, who was incarcerated, to provide support for the child was not without justifiable cause. Jones v. Sauls, 213 Ga. App. 55, 443 S.E.2d 693 (1994).

Evidence failed to show failure to communicate while incarcerated. — Stepmother seeking adoption of an incarcerated mother’s child failed to carry her burden of proving by clear and convincing evidence that the mother failed to attempt to communicate with the child and that such failure was without justifiable cause under O.C.G.A. § 19-8-10(b)(1); the mother wrote to the child frequently, but the father confiscated the letters. In re Marks, 300 Ga. App. 239, 684 S.E.2d 364 (2009).

Effect of omission of language “wantonly and willfully.” — It was error to base denial of adoption petition on failure to prove “willful failure” of father to communicate and support since the 1977 amendment to former § 19-8-6 removed that requirement. In re S.B.P., 164 Ga. App. 50, 296 S.E.2d 236 (1982) (decided under former § 19-8-6).

Evidence sufficient to show significant failure to communicate or support. — See In re D.P.T., 176 Ga. App. 409, 336 S.E.2d 330 (1985); In re C.D.B., 182 Ga. App. 263, 355 S.E.2d 759 (1987); Curde v. Matson, 190 Ga. App. 782, 380 S.E.2d 71 (1989); Cafagno v. Hagan, 213 Ga. App. 631, 445 S.E.2d 380 (1994); Bateman v. Futch, 232 Ga. App. 271, 501 S.E.2d 615 (1998) (decided under former § 19-8-6).

Adoption was properly granted based on a parent’s failure to have contact with or support the child, under O.C.G.A. § 19-8-10(b), since the parent, despite pursuing litigation concerning the petition of the child's prospective adoptive parents to adopt the child, had almost no contact with the child, despite opportunities to do so, and willfully refused to provide for the child's support as long as the child was not in the parent's custody. Hall v. Coleman, 264 Ga. App. 650, 592 S.E.2d 120 (2003).

Evidence insufficient to show failure to communicate or support. — Trial court erred in granting a stepfather's adoption petition and in terminating a natural father's parental rights because there was not clear and convincing evidence that the father's failure to communicate with and care for the child was without justifiable cause under O.C.G.A. § 19-8-10(b), and the stepfather failed to present any evidence of the father's financial condition during the year prior to the filing of the petition; the mother confirmed that she refused to let the father visit the child, and the stepfather failed to present any evidence contradicting the father's evidence that the father was unable to earn sufficient income because of his back injuries. Weber v. Livingston, 309 Ga. App. 665, 710 S.E.2d 864 (2011).

Trial court erred in terminating a parent's rights and allowing the maternal aunt to adopt a two-year-old child because the parent had completed the parent's reunification plan and there was no deprivation or any factors in O.C.G.A. § 19-8-10(a) or (b); the trial court relied on improper factors such as the parent's non-citizen status, the parent's lack of a driver's license, and the verifiability of the parent's income. Alizota v. Stanfield, 329 Ga. App. 550, 765 S.E.2d 707 (2014).

19-8-11. Petitioning superior court to terminate parental rights; service of process.

(a)(1) In those cases where the department or a child-placing agency has either obtained:

(A) The voluntary written surrender of all parental rights from one of the parents or the guardian of a child; or

(B) An order of a court of competent jurisdiction terminating all of the rights of one of the parents or the guardian of a child, the department or child-placing agency may in contemplation of the placement of such child for adoption petition the superior court of the county where the child resides to terminate the parental rights of the remaining parent pursuant to this Code section.

(2) In those cases where a person who is the resident of another state has obtained the voluntary written surrender of all parental rights from one of the parents or the guardian of a child, each such person to whom the child has been surrendered may in contemplation of the adoption of such child in such other state petition the superior court of the county where the child resides to terminate the parental rights of the remaining parent pursuant to this Code section.

(3) Parental rights may be terminated pursuant to paragraph (1) or (2) of this subsection where the court determines by clear and convincing evidence that the:

(A) Child has been abandoned by that parent;

(B) Parent of the child cannot be found after a diligent search has been made;

(C) Parent is insane or otherwise incapacitated from surrendering such rights; or

(D) Parent has failed to exercise proper parental care or control due to misconduct or inability, as set out in paragraph (3), (4), or (5) of subsection (a) of Code Section 15-11-310, and the court shall set the matter down to be heard in chambers not less than 30 and not more than 60 days following the receipt by such remaining parent of the notice under subsection (b) of this Code section and shall enter an order terminating such parental rights if it so finds and if it is of the opinion that adoption is in the best interests of the child, after considering the physical, mental, emotional, and moral condition and needs of the child who is the subject of the proceeding, including the need for a secure and stable home.

(b) Whenever a petition is filed pursuant to subsection (a) of this Code section, the parent whose rights the petitioner is seeking to terminate shall be personally served with a conformed copy of the petition, and a copy of the court's order setting forth the date upon which the petition shall be considered or, if personal service cannot be perfected, by registered or certified mail or statutory overnight delivery, return receipt requested, at his last known address. If service cannot be made by either of these methods, that parent shall be given notice by publication once a week for three weeks in the official organ of the county where the petition has been filed and of the county of his last known address. A parent who receives notification pursuant to this subsection may appear and show cause why such parent's rights to the child sought to be placed for adoption should not be terminated. Notice shall be deemed to have been received the date:

(1) Personal service is perfected;

(2) Of delivery shown on the return receipt of registered or certified mail or statutory overnight delivery; or

The 2013 amendment, effective January 1, 2014, substituted "paragraph (3), (4), or (5) of subsection (a) of Code Section 15-11-310" for "paragraph (2), (3), or (4) of subsection (b) of Code Section 15-11-94" in subparagraph (a)(3)(D). See editor's note for applicability.

Editor's notes. — Ga. L. 1999, p. 252, § 11, not codified by the General Assembly, provides that: "The provisions of this Act shall apply to petitions for adoption filed on or after July 1, 1999, except that each surrender of rights filed pursuant to a petition filed on or after July 1, 1999, shall be effective if such surrender of rights complies with the provisions of law in effect on the date of the execution of such surrender of rights."

Ga. L. 2013, p. 294, § 5-1/HB 242, not codified by the General Assembly, provides that: "This Act shall become effective on January 1, 2014, and shall apply to all offenses which occur and juvenile proceedings commenced on and after such date. Any offense occurring before January 1, 2014, shall be governed by the statute in effect at the time of such offense and shall be considered a prior adjudication for the purpose of imposing a disposition that provides for a different penalty for subsequent adjudications, of whatever class, pursuant to this Act. The enactment of this Act shall not affect any prosecutions for acts occurring before January 1, 2014, and shall not act as an abatement of any such prosecutions."

Waiver of notice requirements. — Adoption decree was not invalid because the father was not served with the petition for adoption at least 30 days prior to the hearing pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 19-8-11(a); the father waived the notice requirement by refusing an offer made by counsel to reopen the evidence, permit additional discovery, and to continue the hearing for 30 days. Rokowski v. Gilbert, 275 Ga. App. 305, 620 S.E.2d 509 (2005).

19-8-12. Notice to biological father; procedure when identity or location of father not known; petition, hearing, and order; when rights of biological father terminated; legitimation of child by father; rights of mother.

(a) The General Assembly finds that:

(1) The state has a compelling interest in promptly providing stable and permanent homes for adoptive children, and in preventing the disruption of adoptive placements;

(2) Adoptive children have a right to permanence and stability in adoptive placements;

(3) Adoptive parents have a constitutionally protected liberty and privacy interest in retaining custody of children;

(4) A biological father who is not the legal father may have an interest in his biological child. This inchoate interest is lost by failure to develop a familial bond with the child and acquires constitutional protection only if the biological father who is not the legal father develops a familial bond with the child;

(5) The subjective intent of a biological father who is not a legal father, whether expressed or otherwise, unsupported by evidence of acts manifesting such intent, shall not preclude a determination that the biological father who is not a legal father has failed to develop a familial bond with the child; and

(6) A man who has engaged in a nonmarital sexual relationship with a woman is deemed to be on notice that a pregnancy and adoption proceeding regarding a child may occur and has a duty to protect his own rights and interests in that child. He is therefore entitled to notice of an adoption proceeding only as provided in this Code section.

(b) If there is a biological father who is not the legal father of a child and he has not executed a surrender as specified in paragraph (2) of subsection (e) of Code Section 19-8-4, 19-8-5, 19-8-6, or 19-8-7, he shall be notified of adoption proceedings regarding the child in the following circumstances:

(1) If his identity is known to the petitioner, department, or licensed child-placing agency or to the attorney for the petitioner, department, or licensed child-placing agency;

(2) If he is a registrant on the putative father registry who has acknowledged paternity of the child in accordance with subparagraph (d)(2)(A) of Code Section 19-11-9;

(3) If he is a registrant on the putative father registry who has indicated possible paternity of a child of the child's mother during a period beginning two years immediately prior to the child's date of birth in accordance with subparagraph (d)(2)(B) of Code Section 19-11-9; or

(4) If the court finds from the evidence, including but not limited to the affidavit of the mother specified in subsection (g) of Code Section

19-8-4, 19-8-5, 19-8-6, or 19-8-7 in the form provided in subsection (h) of Code Section 19-8-26, that such biological father who is not the legal father has performed any of the following acts:

- (A) Lived with the child;
- (B) Contributed to the child's support;
- (C) Made any attempt to legitimate the child; or
- (D) Provided support or medical care for the mother either during her pregnancy or during her hospitalization for the birth of the child.

(c) Notification provided for in subsection (b) of this Code section shall be given to a biological father who is not a legal father by the following methods:

(1) Registered or certified mail or statutory overnight delivery, return receipt requested, at his last known address, which notice shall be deemed received upon the date of delivery shown on the return receipt;

(2) Personal service, which notice shall be deemed received when personal service is perfected; or

(3) Publication once a week for three weeks in the official organ of the county where the petition has been filed and of the county of his last known address, which notice shall be deemed received upon the date of the last publication.

If feasible, the methods specified in paragraph (1) or (2) of this subsection shall be used before publication.

(d)(1) Where the rights of a parent or guardian of a child have been surrendered or terminated in accordance with subsection (a) of Code Section 19-8-4, the department or a child-placing agency may file, under the authority of this paragraph, a petition to terminate such biological father's rights to the child with the superior court of the county where the child resides.

(2) Where the rights of a parent or guardian of a child have been surrendered in accordance with subsection (a) of Code Section 19-8-5, 19-8-6, or 19-8-7 or a consent to adopt has been executed pursuant to paragraph (2) of subsection (a) of Code Section 19-8-6, the petitioner shall file, under the authority of this paragraph, with the superior court either a motion, if a petition for adoption of the child has previously been filed with the court, or a petition to terminate such biological father's rights to the child.

(3) Where a petition or motion is filed pursuant to paragraph (1) or (2) of this subsection, the court shall, within 30 days from such filing, conduct a hearing in chambers to determine the facts in the matter. The court shall be authorized to consider the affidavit of the mother specified in subsection (g) of Code Section 19-8-4, 19-8-5, 19-8-6, or 19-8-7, as applicable, in making its determination pursuant to this paragraph. If the court finds from the evidence that such biological father has not performed any of the following acts:

- (A) Lived with the child;
- (B) Contributed to the child's support;
- (C) Made any attempt to legitimate the child; or
- (D) Provided support or medical care for the mother, either during her pregnancy or during her hospitalization for the birth of the child, and the petitioner provides a certificate as of the date of the petition or the motion, as the case may be, from the putative father registry stating that there is no entry on the putative father registry either acknowledging paternity of the child or indicating possible paternity of a child of the child's mother for a period beginning no later than two years immediately prior to the child's date of birth, then it shall be rebuttably presumed that the biological father who is not the legal father is not entitled to notice of the proceedings. Absent evidence rebutting the presumption, then no further inquiry or notice shall be required by the court and the court shall enter an order terminating the rights of such biological father to the child.

(e) When notice is to be given pursuant to subsection (b) of this Code section, it shall advise such biological father who is not the legal father that he loses all rights to the child and will neither receive notice nor be entitled to object to the adoption of the child unless, within 30 days of receipt of such notice, he files:

(1) A petition to legitimate the child pursuant to Code Section 19-7-22 or an acknowledgment of legitimation pursuant to Code Section 19-7-21.1; and

(2) Notice of the filing of the petition to legitimate or acknowledgment of legitimation with the court in which the action under this Code section, if any, is pending and to the person who provided such notice to such biological father.

(f) A biological father who is not the legal father loses all rights to the child and the court shall enter an order terminating all such father's rights to the child and such father may not thereafter object to the adoption and is not entitled to receive further notice of the adoption if within 30 days from his receipt of the notice provided for in subsection (b) of this Code section he:

(1) Does not file a legitimation petition and give notice as required in subsection (e) of this Code section;

(2) Files a legitimation petition which is subsequently dismissed for failure to prosecute; or

(3) Files a legitimation petition and the action is subsequently concluded without a court order declaring a finding that he is the father of the child.

(g) If the child is legitimated by his or her biological father, the adoption shall not be permitted except as provided in Code Sections 19-8-4 through 19-8-7.

(h) If the child is legitimated by his or her biological father and in the subsequent adoption proceeding the petition for adoption is either withdrawn with prejudice or denied by the court, then a surrender of parental rights final release for adoption executed by the legal mother pursuant to the provisions of subsection (a) of Code Section 19-8-4, 19-8-5, or 19-8-7 shall be dissolved by operation of law and her parental rights shall be restored to her. The fact that the legal mother executed a surrender of parental rights final release for adoption, now dissolved, shall not be admissible evidence in any proceedings against the legal mother. (Code 1981, § 19-8-12, enacted by Ga. L. 1990, p. 1572, § 5; Ga. L. 1997, p. 1686, § 5; Ga. L. 2000, p. 1589, § 3; Ga. L. 2004, p. 631, § 19; Ga. L. 2007, p. 342, § 8/HB 497; Ga. Code Commission notes. — Pursuant to Code Section 28-9-5, in 1997, in subsection (b), “subparagraph (d)(2)(A)” was substituted for “subparagraph (A) of paragraph (2) of subsection (d)” in paragraph (b)(2), and “subparagraph (d)(2)(B)” was substituted for “subparagraph (B) of paragraph (2) of subsection (d)” in paragraph (b)(3).

Editor’s notes. — Ga. L. 2007, p. 342, § 10/HB 497, not codified by the General Assembly, provides that subsection (h) shall apply to proceedings under this chapter on or after July 1, 2007.

Ga. L. 2008, p. 667, § 1/SB 88, not codified by the General Assembly, provides: “This Act shall be known and may be cited as the ‘Care of a Grandchild Act.’”

Ga. L. 2008, p. 667, § 2/SB 88, not codified by the General Assembly, provides: “The General Assembly finds that:

“(1) An increasing number of relatives in Georgia, including grandparents and great-grandparents, are providing care to children who cannot reside with their parents due to the parent’s incapacity or inability to perform the regular and expected functions to provide such care and support;

“(2) Parents need a means to confer to grandparents or great-grandparents the authority to act on behalf of grandchildren without the time and expense of a court proceeding; and

“(3) Providing a statutory mechanism for granting such authority enhances family preservation and stability.”

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the statutory provisions, decisions under Ga. L. 1977, p. 201, § 1 and former § 19-8-7 are included in the annotations for this Code section.

Venue. — Since venue in an action to recognize a mother's voluntary surrender of parental rights was not challenged below, the issue was waived on appeal; also, proper venue was shown under O.C.G.A. § 19-8-12(d)(1) as the case was filed in the county where the child lived, and since the mother failed to include in the record the transcript of the trial on the petition, the appellate court assumed that the evidence showed proper venue. Ueal v. AAA Ptnrs. in Adoption, Inc., 269 Ga. App. 258, 603 S.E.2d 672 (2004).

Notice to putative father not a jurisdictional issue. — Determination of whether the notice to the putative father required by former § 19-8-7 had been given affected whether a judgment terminating his rights to the child could be properly entered; it did not affect the question of whether the superior court had jurisdiction of the case. H.C.S. v. Grebel, 253 Ga. 404, 321 S.E.2d 321 (1984) (decided under former § 19-8-7).

Unknown parent. — Biological father of a child sought to be adopted by a stepparent petitioner was not "known" in the context of O.C.G.A. § 19-8-12 since the mother knew the identity of the father but exercised her right not to disclose his name and address. Cowdell v. Doe, 225 Ga. App. 97, 483 S.E.2d 347 (1997), overruled on other grounds, 274 Ga. 765, 560 S.E.2d 1 (2002).

Right to intervene in father's petition to legitimate child. — Agency and adoptive parents had interest, as legal custodians of child, in father's petition to legitimate the child, and when their rights were not represented, they had a right to intervene. In re Ashmore, 163 Ga. App. 194, 293 S.E.2d 457 (1982) (decided under former § 19-8-7).

Due process notice. — Grant of adoption to a mother's new husband pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 19-8-6 was proper as it was found to be in the children's best interests; the fact that the father alleged that the father had made several support payments right around the time that the adoption petition was filed did not affect the determination that the father failed in his support duties as there was insubstantial evidence to support a finding as to those payments and there was also evidence that the father did not make payments for the three years prior thereto; the father's claim that his due process rights were violated by not receiving notice that his parental rights could be terminated, pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 19-8-12, lacked merit as the father was personally served with the adoption petition which indicated that his rights could be terminated without his consent and such a possibility was discussed in opening statements. McCurry v. Harding, 270 Ga. App. 416, 606 S.E.2d 639 (2004).

Petitions for legitimation separate civil actions. — Father's petition for legitimation should have been filed as a separate civil action because the language within O.C.G.A. § 19-7-22 suggested that legitimation petitions were separate civil actions; the absence of language explicitly providing for a similar avenue in the adoption context implies that the legislature intended legitimation petitions to be stand-alone actions. Brewton v. Poss, 316 Ga. App. 704, 728 S.E.2d 837 (2012).

Adoption petition failed to address statutory factors. — In a step-father's appeal, a trial court erred by denying the step-father's petition for adoption because the adoption petition did not address the issue of whether the biological father was a parent of the child for purposes of the adoption statutes, O.C.G.A. §§ 19-7-21.1(a)(2)(F) and 19-8-1(6). Allifi v. Raider, 323 Ga. App. 510, 746 S.E.2d 763 (2013).

Out of state paternity order substantially equivalent to Georgia legitimation order. — Trial court properly denied the applicants' motion to terminate a father's parental rights and denied the applicants' adoption petition because a State of Alabama paternity order obtained by the father was substantially equivalent to a Georgia legitimation order such that the father had not lost his right to contest the adoption and the father properly domesticated the Alabama order with the trial court. Park v. Bailey, 329 Ga. App. 569, 765 S.E.2d 721 (2014).

19-8-13. Petition; filing and contents; financial disclosures; attorney's affidavit.

(a) The petition for adoption, duly verified, together with one conformed copy thereof, must be filed with the clerk of the superior court having jurisdiction and shall conform to the following guidelines:

(1) The petition shall set forth:

(A) The name, age, marital status, and place of residence of each petitioner;

(B) The name by which the child is to be known should the adoption ultimately be completed;

(C) The date of birth and the sex of the child;

(D) The date and circumstances of the placement of the child with each petitioner;

(E) Whether the child is possessed of any property and, if so, a full and complete description thereof;

(F) Whether the child has one or both parents or his biological father who is not the legal father living; and

(G) Whether the child has a guardian.

(2) Where the adoption is pursuant to subsection (a) of Code Section 19-8-4 the following shall be provided or attached or its absence explained when the petition is filed:

(A) An affidavit from the department or a child-placing agency stating that all of the requirements of Code Sections 19-8-4 and 19-8-12 have been complied with;

(B) The written consent of the department or agency to the adoption;

(C) A copy of the appropriate form verifying the allegation of compliance with the requirements of Chapter 4 of Title 39, relating to the Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children; and

(D) A completed form containing background information regarding the child to be adopted, as required by the adoption unit of the department.

(3) Where the adoption is pursuant to subsection (a) of Code Section 19-8-5, the following shall be provided or attached or its absence explained when the petition is filed:

(A) The written voluntary surrender of each parent or guardian specified in subsection (e) of Code Section 19-8-5;

(B) The written acknowledgment of surrender specified in subsection (f) of Code Section 19-8-5;

(C) The affidavits specified in subsections (g) and (h) of Code Section 19-8-5;

(D) Allegations of compliance with Code Section 19-8-12;

(E) Allegations of compliance with Chapter 4 of Title 39, relating to the Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children;

(F) The accounting required by subsection (c) of this Code section;

(G) Copies of appropriate certificates or forms verifying allegations contained in the petition as to guardianship or custody of the child, the marriage of each petitioner, the divorce or death of each parent of the child, and compliance with Chapter 4 of Title 39, relating to the Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children;

(H) A completed form containing background information regarding the child to be adopted, as required by the adoption unit of the department; and

(I) A copy of the home study report.

(4) Where the adoption is pursuant to subsection (a) of Code Section 19-8-6, the following shall be provided or attached or its absence explained when the petition is filed:

(A) The written voluntary surrender of the parent or guardian specified in subsection (e) of Code Section 19-8-6;

(B) The written acknowledgment of surrender specified in subsection (f) of Code Section 19-8-6;

(C) The affidavits specified in subsections (g) and (h) of Code Section 19-8-6;

(D) The consent specified in subsection (j) of Code Section 19-8-6;

(E) Allegations of compliance with Code Section 19-8-12;

(F) Copies of appropriate certificates verifying allegations contained in the petition as to guardianship of the child sought to be adopted, the birth of the child sought to be adopted, the marriage of each petitioner, and the divorce or death of each parent of the child sought to be adopted; and

(G) A completed form containing background information regarding the child to be adopted, as required by the adoption unit of the department.

(5) Where the adoption is pursuant to subsection (a) of Code Section 19-8-7, the following shall be provided or attached or its absence explained when the petition is filed:

(A) The written voluntary surrender of each parent specified in subsection (e) of Code Section 19-8-7;

(B) The written acknowledgment of surrender specified in subsection (f) of Code Section 19-8-7;

(C) The affidavits specified in subsections (g) and (h) of Code Section 19-8-7;

(D) Allegations of compliance with Code Section 19-8-12;

(E) Copies of appropriate certificates or forms verifying allegations contained in the petition as to guardianship of the child sought to be adopted, the birth of the child sought to be adopted, the marriage of each petitioner, and the divorce or death of each parent of the child sought to be adopted; and

(F) A completed form containing background information regarding the child to be adopted, as required by the adoption unit of the department.

(6)(A) Where the adoption is pursuant to Code Section 19-8-8, the following shall be provided or attached or its absence explained when the petition is filed:

(i) A certified copy of the final decree of adoption from the foreign country along with a verified English translation. The translator shall provide a statement regarding his qualification to render the translation, his complete name, and his current address. Should the current address be a temporary one, his permanent address shall also be provided;

(ii) A verified copy of the visa granting the child entry to the United States;

(iii) A certified copy along with a verified translation of the child's amended birth certificate or registration showing each petitioner as parent; and

(iv) A copy of the home study which was completed for United States Immigration and Naturalization Service.

(B) It is not necessary to file copies of surrenders or termination on any parent or biological father who is not the legal father when the petition is filed pursuant to paragraph (1) of Code Section 19-8-8.

(7) Where Code Section 19-8-10 is applicable, parental rights need not be surrendered or terminated prior to the filing of the petition; but any petitioner shall allege facts demonstrating the applicability of Code Section 19-8-10 and shall allege compliance with subsection (c) of Code Section 19-8-10.

(8) If the petition is filed in a county other than that of the petitioners' residence, the reason therefor must also be set forth in the petition.

(b) At the time of filing the petition, the petitioner shall deposit with the clerk the deposit required by Code Section 9-15-4; the fees shall be those established by Code Sections 15-6-77 and 15-6-77.1.

(c) Each petitioner in any proceeding for the adoption of a minor pursuant to the provisions of Code Section 19-8-5 shall file with the petition, in a manner acceptable to the court, a report fully accounting for all disbursements of anything of value made or agreed to be made, directly or indirectly, by, on behalf of, or for the benefit of the petitioner in connection with the adoption, including, but not limited to, any expenses incurred in connection with:

(1) The birth of the minor;

(2) Placement of the minor with the petitioner;

(3) Medical or hospital care received by the mother or by the minor during the mother's prenatal care and confinement; and

(4) Services relating to the adoption or to the placement of the minor for adoption which were received by or on behalf of the petitioner, either natural parent of the minor, or any other person.

(d) Every attorney for a petitioner in any proceeding for the adoption of a minor pursuant to the provisions of Code Section 19-8-5 shall file, in a manner acceptable to the court, before the decree of adoption is entered, an affidavit detailing all sums paid or promised to that attorney, directly or indirectly, from whatever source, for all services of any nature rendered or to be rendered in connection with the adoption; provided, however, that if the attorney received or is to receive less than $500.00, the affidavit need only state that fact.

(e) Any report made under this Code section must be signed and verified by the individual making the report.

(f) Whenever a petitioner is a blood relative of the child to be adopted and a grandparent other than the petitioner has visitation rights to the child granted pursuant to Code Section 19-7-3, the petitioner shall cause a copy of the petition for adoption to be served upon the grandparent with the visitation rights or upon such person's counsel of record.

(g) Notwithstanding the provisions of Code Sections 19-8-5 and 19-8-7 and this Code section which require obtaining and attaching a written voluntary surrender and acknowledgment thereof and affidavits of the legal mother and a representative of the petitioner, when the adoption is sought under subsection (a) of Code Section 19-8-5 or 19-8-7 following the termination of parental rights and the placement of the child by the juvenile court pursuant to Code Section 15-11-321, obtaining and attaching to the petition a certified copy of the order terminating parental rights of the parent shall take the place of obtaining and attaching those otherwise required surrenders, acknowledgments, and affidavits.

(h) A petition for adoption regarding a child or children who have a living biological father who is not the legal father and who has not surrendered his rights to the child or children shall include a certificate from the putative father registry disclosing the name, address, and social security number of any registrant acknowledging paternity of the child or children pursuant to subparagraph (d)(2)(A) of Code Section 19-11-9 or indicating the possibility of paternity of a child of the child's mother pursuant to subparagraph (d)(2)(B) of Code Section 19-11-9 for a period beginning no later than two years immediately prior to the child's date of birth. Such certificate shall indicate a search of the registry on or after the earliest of the following:

- (1) The date of the mother's surrender of parental rights;
- (2) The date of entry of the court order terminating the mother's parental rights;
- (3) The date of the mother's consent to adoption pursuant to Code Section 19-8-6; or
- (4) The date of the filing of the petition for adoption, in which case the certificate may be filed as an amendment to the petition for adoption.

Such certificate shall include a statement that the registry is current as of the earliest date listed in paragraphs (1) through (4) of this subsection, or as of a specified date that is later than the earliest such date. (Code 1981, § 19-8-13, enacted by Ga. L. 1990, p. 1572, § 5; Ga. L. 1991, p. 1640, §§ 4, 5; Ga. L. 1992, p. 6, § 19; Ga. L. 1997, p. 1686, § 6; Ga. L. 2000, p. 20, § 13; Ga. L. 2011, p. 573, § 4/SB 172; Ga. L. 2013, p. 294, § 4-27/HB 242.)

The 2013 amendment, effective January 1, 2014, in subsection (g), substituted "when the adoption" for "where the adoption" near the middle, and substituted "Code Section 15-11-321" for "paragraph (1) of subsection (a) of Code Section 15-11-103" near the end. See editor's notes for applicability.

Code Commission notes. — Pursuant to Code Section 28-9-5, in 1990, "acknowledgment" was substituted for "acknowledgement" in subparagraph (a)(5)(B).

Editor's notes. — Ga. L. 2011, p. 573, § 8/ SB 172, not codified by the General Assembly, provides that the amendment to this Code section shall apply to all placements of children for adoption and all petitions for adoption filed on or after July 1, 2011.

Ga. L. 2013, p. 294, § 5-1/HB 242, not codified by the General Assembly, provides that: "This Act shall become effective on January 1, 2014, and shall apply to all offenses which occur and juvenile proceedings commenced on and after such date. Any offense occurring before January 1, 2014, shall be governed by the statute in effect at the time of such offense and shall be considered a prior adjudication for the purpose of imposing a disposition that provides for a different penalty for subsequent adjudications, of whatever class, pursuant to this Act. The enactment of this Act shall not affect any prosecutions for acts occurring before January 1, 2014, and shall not act as an abatement of any such prosecutions."

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the statutory provisions, decisions under Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 4, Ga. L. 1977, p. 201, and former § 19-8-8 are included in the annotations for this Code section.

Best interest of child. — In adoption proceedings, best interest of child is always a prime factor to be considered.

Davey v. Evans, 156 Ga. App. 698, 275 S.E.2d 769 (1980) (decided under Ga. L. 1977, p. 201).

Appointment of guardian. — There is no requirement that guardian must be appointed before adoption is legally permissible. Davey v. Evans, 156 Ga. App. 698, 275 S.E.2d 769 (1980) (decided under Ga. L. 1977, p. 201).

Identity of biological father in adoption petition. — When petitioners for an adoption learned that the man named by the child's biological mother in her affidavit as the father was excluded by DNA evidence, they amended the petition to state that the mother did not know the father's identity, and the mother so testified at trial. This cured any problem with the petition and the mother's affidavit. Blount v. Knighton, 298 Ga. App. 448, 680 S.E.2d 522 (2009).

Grant of name change required if requested. — Trial court erred in denying the mother's and adoptive father's request to change the child's surname from the deceased father's name to the adoptive father's name, pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 19-8-13(a)(1)(B). Evans v. Sangster, 330 Ga. App. 533, 768 S.E.2d 278 (2015).

Factual error in adoption petition in no way deprives court of subject matter jurisdiction. Burrell v. Wood, 237 Ga. 162, 227 S.E.2d 60 (1976) (decided prior to revision of chapter by Ga. L. 1977, p. 201).

Amendment of petition to cure omission of marriage certificate. — Although when appellees filed their petition for adoption, their marriage certificate was not attached, it was supplied by amendment which related back to the date the pleading was filed, thus curing omission from the petition. Owens v. Worley, 163 Ga. App. 488, 295 S.E.2d 199 (1982) (decided under former § 19-8-8).

Failure to attach marriage license to petition. — That a petition for adoption failed to contain the petitioners' marriage license as required by O.C.G.A. § 19-8-13(a)(3)(G) did not invalidate the adoption as the petitioners testified as to the date of their marriage and presented the license at trial. Blount v. Knighton, 298 Ga. App. 448, 680 S.E.2d 522 (2009).

Defects in an adoption petition regarding the name, age, marital status, and residence of the petitioners, the affidavit of the adoptive parents' legal representative, and information pertaining to the circumstances of the adoption, were timely cured by amendment. Mabou v. Eller, 232 Ga. App. 635, 502 S.E.2d 760 (1998).

Petition lacking documentation required reversal. — Reversal of an order granting a petition was required because the petition failed to include the affidavit of the legal mother, allegation of compliance with O.C.G.A. § 19-8-12, birth certificate of the child, marriage certificate of the custodial parents, and background information regarding the child. Spires v. Tarleton, 225 Ga. App. 117, 483 S.E.2d 337 (1997).

Discretion of court regarding financial transactions. — Former provisions granted broad discretion to the trial court in determining whether there have been improper financial transactions associated with adoption. Owens v. Worley, 163 Ga. App. 488, 295 S.E.2d 199 (1982) (decided under former § 19-8-8); Messer v. Marchman, 205 Ga. App. 364, 422 S.E.2d 250 (1992); Lee v. Stringer, 212 Ga. App. 401, 441 S.E.2d 861 (1994), overruled on other grounds 224 Ga. App. 124, 479 S.E.2d 439 (1996).

Foster parents did not have right to adopt child without consent of department. — Foster parents did not have standing to pursue an adoption of a foster child that had been living happily with the child's grandmother for three years because the biological parents did not surrender their rights in favor of the foster parents under O.C.G.A. § 19-8-5, and the Foster Parent's Bill of Rights, O.C.G.A. § 49-5-281, did not grant adoption rights. Additionally, the Department of Human Services was required to consent to any adoption. Owen v. Watts, 303 Ga. App. 867, 695 S.E.2d 62, cert. denied, U.S. , 131 S. Ct. 156, 178 L. Ed. 2d 93 (2010).

19-8-14. Timing of adoption hearing; required records; filing.

(a) It is the policy of this state that, in the best interest of the child, uncontested adoption petitions should be heard as soon as possible but not later than 120 days after the date of filing, unless the petitioner has failed to arrange for the court to receive the report required by the provisions of Code Section 19-8-16 or has otherwise failed to provide the court with all exhibits, surrenders, or certificates required by this chapter within that time period. It is the policy of this state that, in contested adoption petitions, the parties shall make every effort to have the petition considered by the court as soon as practical after the date of filing taking into account the circumstances of the petition and the best interest of the child.

(b) Upon the filing of the petition for adoption, accompanied by the filing fee unless such fee is waived, it shall be the responsibility of the clerk to accept the petition as filed.

(c) Upon the filing of the petition for adoption the court shall fix a date upon which the petition shall be considered, which date shall be not less than 45 days from the date of the filing of the petition.

(d) Notwithstanding the provisions of subsections (a) and (c) of this Code section, it shall be the petitioner's responsibility to request that the court hear the petition on a date that allows sufficient time for fulfillment of notice requirements of Code Section 19-8-10 and Code Section 19-8-12, where applicable.

(e) In the best interest of the child the court may hear the petition less than 45 days from the date of filing upon a showing by the petitioner that either no further notice is required or that any statutory requirement of notice to any person will be fulfilled at an earlier date, and provided that any report required by Code Section 19-8-16 has been completed or will be completed at an earlier date.

(f) The court in the child's best interest may grant such expedited hearings or continuances as may be necessary for completion of applicable notice requirements, investigations, a home study, and reports or for other good cause shown.

(g) Copies of the petition and all documents filed in connection therewith, including, but not limited to, the order fixing the date upon which the petition shall be considered, and all exhibits, surrenders, or certificates required by this chapter, shall be forwarded by the clerk to the department within 15 days after the date of the filing of the petition for adoption.

(h) Copies of the petition, the order fixing the date upon which the petition shall be considered, and all exhibits, surrenders, or certificates required by this chapter shall be forwarded by the clerk to the child-placing agency or other agent appointed by the court pursuant to the provisions of Code Section 19-8-16 within 15 days after the filing of the petition for adoption, together with a request that a report and investigation be made as required by law.

(i) Copies of all motions, amendments, and other pleadings filed and of all orders entered in connection with the petition for adoption shall be forwarded by the clerk to the department within 15 days after such filing or entry. (Code 1981, § 19-8-14, enacted by Ga. L. 1990, p. 1572, § 5; Ga. L. 1991, p. 1640, § 6; Ga. L. 2003, p. 503, § 4; Ga. L. 2011, p. 573, § 5/SB 172.)

C.J.S. — 2 C.J.S., Adoption of Persons, § 93.

19-8-15. When objections may be filed by relatives to petition for adoption.

If the child sought to be adopted has no legal father or legal mother living, it shall be the privilege of any person related by blood to the child to file objections to the petition for adoption. A grandparent with visitation rights to a child granted pursuant to Code Section 19-7-3 shall have the privilege to file objections to the petition of adoption if neither parent has any further rights to the child and if the petition for adoption has been filed by a blood relative of the child. The court, after hearing such objections, shall determine, in its discretion, whether or not the same constitute a good reason for denying the petition and the court shall have the authority to grant or continue such visitation rights of the grandparent to the child in the adoption order in the event the adoption by the blood relative is approved by the court. (Code 1981, § 19-8-15, enacted by Ga. L. 1990, p. 1572, § 5.)

Editor’s notes. — In light of the similarity of the statutory provisions, decisions under Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 9 and former § 19-8-10 are included in the annotations for this Code section.

One who objects to proceeding must establish blood relationship to child. McDonald v. Hester, 115 Ga. App. 740, 155 S.E.2d 720 (1967) (decided under Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 9 prior to revision of chapter by Ga. L. 1977, p. 201).

Standing to object when babies inadvertently switched in hospital. — Parents who adopted petitioner’s child, after the child had been inadvertently exchanged with another woman’s baby in the hospital shortly after delivery, were not “related by blood” to the other woman’s child and had no authority to object when petitioner sought to adopt the other woman’s child, whom she had loved and cared for since she left the hospital with that child. Pope v. Moore, 261 Ga. 253, 403 S.E.2d 205 (1991) (decided under former § 19-8-10 prior to 1990 revision of this chapter).

Relatives of child may not object to adoption as long as one natural parent is living and has consented, and may not intervene in action as they lack required interest in adoption. Lockey v. Bennett, 244 Ga. 339, 260 S.E.2d 56 (1979) (decided under Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 9); Brant v. Bazemore, 173 Ga. App. 294, 325 S.E.2d 905 (1985) (decided under former § 19-8-10).

Relatives had standing to object when “legal father” not established. — Maternal great aunt and uncle had standing to file objections to an adoption petition of aunt and uncle who had obtained a written surrender of rights from the child’s putative biological father; the latter was not the “legal father” as defined by O.C.G.A. § 19-8-1. Echols v. Cochran, 214 Ga. App. 348, 447 S.E.2d 700 (1994).

Former husband lacked standing to object to adoption. — When former husband had no blood relationship to the child, the natural father had surrendered his parental rights to present husband, and his wife, the natural mother, consented to the adoption, the former husband had no standing to object to the adoption. Kelly v. Silverstein, 207 Ga. App. 381, 427 S.E.2d 851 (1993).

O.C.G.A. § 19-8-15 does not limit the court’s authority to award grandparent visitation pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 19-7-3. O.C.G.A. § 19-8-15 pertains to objections that certain relatives of the child sought to be adopted may make to the petition to adopt in those circumstances where both of the child’s parents are either deceased or no longer have parental rights. Evans v. Sangster, 330 Ga. App. 533, 768 S.E.2d 278 (2015).

Grandparent lacks standing to object to adoption while natural parent is in life, and it is error to allow a grandparent to file objections to a petition, even if the grandparent has an interest in seeing his blood line continue into the future. Hester v. Mathis, 147 Ga. App. 257, 248 S.E.2d 538 (1978) (decided under Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 9).

Grandparents may file objections to petitions for adoption only if there is no father or mother living; otherwise, they have no standing to object. Mead v. Owens, 149 Ga. App. 303, 254 S.E.2d 431 (1979) (decided under Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 9).

Grandparents were not statutorily authorized to intervene in adoption proceedings brought by a married couple who were not blood relatives of the child since the child's parents were living, and the grandparents did not intervene to seek visitation rights, but instead intervened to object to the adoption and to seek to adopt the child themselves. Murphy v. McCarthy, 201 Ga. App. 101, 410 S.E.2d 198 (1991).

Grandmother who was temporary legal custodian of child under juvenile court deprivation order did not have standing to intervene in adoption proceedings. Edgar v. Shave, 205 Ga. App. 337, 422 S.E.2d 234 (1992).

O.C.G.A. § 19-7-1(b.1) did not give grandparents the right to intervene in adoption proceedings brought by third parties after the parents had voluntarily surrendered their parental rights and agreed to the adoption. Baum v. Moore, 230 Ga. App. 255, 496 S.E.2d 307 (1998).

Construction with other law. — Superior court properly dismissed a grandmother's adoption petition on collateral estoppel grounds based on the juvenile court's previous order granting temporary custody to the maternal grandfather and grant of visitation rights to the grandmother; as a result, the superior court was not authorized to readjudicate the issue of permanent custody involving the child at issue. Smith v. Hutcheson, 283 Ga. App. 117, 640 S.E.2d 690 (2006).

19-8-16. Investigation by child-placing agency or other agent.

(a) Prior to the date set by the court for a hearing on the petition for adoption, it shall be the duty of a child-placing agency appointed by the court or any other independent agent appointed by the court to verify the allegations in the petition for adoption, to make a complete and thorough investigation of the entire matter, including a criminal records check of each petitioner, and to report its findings and recommendations in writing to the court where the petition for adoption was filed. The department, child-placing agency, or other independent agent appointed by the court shall also provide the attorney for petitioner with a copy of the report to the court. If for any reason the child-placing agency or other agent finds itself unable to make or arrange for the proper investigation and report, it shall be the duty of the agency or agent to notify the court immediately, or at least within 20 days after receipt of the request for investigation service, that it is unable to make the report and investigation, so that the court may take such other steps as in its discretion are necessary to have the entire matter investigated.

(b) If the petition has been filed pursuant to subsection (a) of Code Section 19-8-6 or 19-8-7, the court is authorized but not required to appoint a child-placing agency or other independent agent to make an investigation in whatever form the court specifies.

(c) If the petition has been filed pursuant to Code Section 19-8-8, or if the department has conducted an investigation and has consented to the adoption, an investigation shall not be required.

(d) The court shall require the petitioner submit to a criminal history records check. The petitioner shall submit his or her fingerprints to the Georgia Crime Information Center with the appropriate fee. The center shall promptly transmit the fingerprints to the Federal Bureau of Investigation for a search of bureau records and shall obtain an appropriate report. The Georgia Crime Information Center shall also promptly conduct a search of its records and any records to which it has access. The center shall notify the court in writing of the presence or absence of any derogatory finding, including but not limited to any conviction data, regarding the fingerprint records check.

(e) The court may appoint the department to serve as its agent to conduct the investigation required by this Code section if an appropriate child-placing agency or independent agent is not available. If for any reason the department finds itself unable to make or arrange for the proper investigation and report, it shall be the duty of the commissioner of human services to notify the court immediately, or at least within 20 days after receipt of the request for investigation service, that it is unable to make the report and investigation, so that the court may take such other steps as in its discretion are necessary to have the entire matter investigated.

(f) The court shall require the petitioner to reimburse the child-placing agency or other independent agent, including the department, for the full cost of conducting the investigation and preparing the report. Such cost shall not exceed $250.00 unless specifically authorized by the court. (Code 1981, § 19-8-16, enacted by Ga. L. 1990, p. 1572, § 5; Ga. L. 1991, p. 1640, § 7; Ga. L. 1992, p. 6, § 19; Ga. JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the statutory provisions, decisions under Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 7 and former § 19-8-11 are included in the annotations for this Code section.

Many of the cases cited below were decided prior to the amendments by Ga. L. 1992, p. 2505, § 1, which substituted references to "child-placing agency" for references to "department."

Failure to obtain investigative report from agency not reversible error. — While former § 19-8-11 required that the Department of Human Resources file an investigative report in adoption proceedings, failure to obtain this report from the agency was not reversible error. Chandler v. Cochran, 247 Ga. 184, 275 S.E.2d 23 (1981) (decided under former § 19-8-11).

Father's failure to request access to investigation report upon which the trial court relied in granting adoption to the grandparents, or to subpoena the investigator for examination at the hearing, constituted waiver of the father's right to do so. Cafagno v. Hagan, 213 Ga. App. 631, 445 S.E.2d 380 (1994).

Failure to require investigation before entering judgment. — Trial court did not commit reversible error in entering judgment terminating a natural father's parental rights and granting an adoption petition by the mother's husband without first requiring an investigation by the Department of Human Resources as was provided for in former § 19-8-11. In re C.D.B., 182 Ga. App. 263, 355 S.E.2d 759 (1987) (decided under former § 19-8-11).

Legislature intended that judge receive information obtained in investigation. — Statute relating to adoption of children is perfectly clear that it was the intention of the legislature to provide the judge at an interlocutory adoption hearing with information obtained from the investigation by the Department of Human Resources for the judge's consideration in deciding the issue. Cox v. Bohannon, 86 Ga. App. 236, 71 S.E.2d 440 (1952) (decided under Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 7 prior to revision of chapter by Ga. L. 1977, p. 201).

Lack of report not reversible error. — Although the Department of Human Resources was statutorily required to prepare a report and recommendation concerning the adoption petition, there was no requirement that the report be entered into evidence, and therefore the lack of such a report in the record was not reversible error. Baugh v. Robinson, 179 Ga. App. 571, 346 S.E.2d 918 (1986) (decided under former § 19-8-11).

19-8-17. Report and recommendation of investigating agency; dismissal of petition; appointment of guardian ad litem.

(a) The report and findings of the investigating agency shall include, among other things, the following:

- (1) Verification of allegations contained in the petition;
- (2) Circumstances under which the child came to be placed for adoption;
- (3) Whether each proposed adoptive parent is financially, physically, and mentally able to have the permanent custody of the child; in considering financial ability any adoption supplement approved by the department shall be taken into account;
- (4) The physical and mental condition of the child, insofar as this can be determined by the aid of competent medical authority;
- (5) Whether or not the adoption is in the best interests of the child, including his general care;

(6) Suitability of the home to the child;

(7) If applicable, whether the identity and location of the biological father who is not the legal father are known or ascertainable and whether the requirements of Code Section 19-8-12 were complied with; and

(8) Any other information that might be disclosed by the investigation that would be of any value or interest to the court in deciding the case.

(b) If the report of the investigating agency or independent agent disapproves of the adoption of the child, motion may be made by the investigating agency or independent agent to the court to dismiss the petition and the court after hearing is authorized to do so. If the court denies the motion to dismiss, the court shall appoint a guardian ad litem who may appeal the ruling to the Georgia Court of Appeals or Supreme Court, as in other cases, as provided by law.

(c) If at any time it appears to the court that the interests of the child may conflict with those of any petitioner, the court may, in its discretion, appoint a guardian ad litem to represent the child and the cost thereof shall be a charge upon the funds of the county. (Code 1981, § 19-8-17, enacted by Ga. L. 1990, p. 1572, § 5; Ga. L. 1992, p. 2505, § 2.)

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the statutory provisions, decisions under Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 8 and former § 19-8-12 are included in the annotations for this Code section.

Legislature intended that judge receive information obtained in investigation. — Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 8, relating to adoption of children was perfectly clear that it was the intention of the legislature to provide the judge at the interlocutory adoption hearing with information obtained from investigation for the judge's consideration in deciding the issues. Cox v. Bohannon, 86 Ga. App. 236, 71 S.E.2d 440 (1952) (decided under Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 8, prior to revision of chapter by Ga. L. 1977, p. 201).

Judge must give consideration to recommendations of investigating agency. — It appears that, while the legislature invested the trial judge with utmost discretion in determining the child's best interests to the judge's own satisfaction, it included a mandatory provision that the judge should give consideration to recommendations in so doing. Cox v. Bohannon, 86 Ga. App. 236, 71 S.E.2d 440 (1952) (decided under Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 8 prior to revision of chapter by Ga. L. 1977, p. 201).

Goal is to duplicate relationship that most persons have with their natural parents during their entire lives. Drummond v. Fulton County Dep't of Family & Children's Servs., 563 F.2d 1200 (5th Cir. 1977), cert. denied, 437 U.S. 910, 98 S. Ct. 3103, 57 L. Ed. 2d 1141 (1978) (decided under Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 8).

Difficulties inherent in interracial adoption justify consideration of race as a relevant factor in adoption. Drummond v. Fulton County Dep't of Family & Children's Servs., 563 F.2d 1200 (5th Cir. 1977), cert. denied, 437 U.S. 910, 98 S. Ct. 3103, 57 L. Ed. 2d 1141 (1978) (decided under Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 8).

Lack of report not reversible error. — Although the Department of Human Resources is statutorily required to prepare a report and recommendation concerning the adoption petition, there is no requirement that the report be entered into evidence, and therefore the lack of such a report in the record is not reversible error. Baugh v. Robinson, 179 Ga. App. 571, 346 S.E.2d 918 (1986) (decided under former § 19-8-12).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the statutory provisions, opinions under Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 8 are included in the annotations for this Code section.

Word "verify" as used in Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 8, means to prove to be true, to confirm, substantiate, check, or test accuracy of various allegations of petition, and means more than a mere certificate by the welfare department that the petitioner, insofar as the petitioner knows, has pled the truth. 1948-49 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 613 (decided under Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 8 prior to revision of chapter by Ga. L. 1977, p. 201).

There is no requirement that names of natural parents be disclosed and in absence of such an affirmative requirement, such information need not be disclosed in the report. 1948-49 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 278 (decided under Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 8 prior to revision of chapter by Ga. L. 1977, p. 201).

19-8-18. Hearing and decree of adoption; district attorney to be directed to review inducement of violations; disposition of child on denial of petition.

(a)(1) Upon the date appointed by the court for a hearing of the petition for adoption or as soon thereafter as the matter may be reached for a hearing, the court shall proceed to a full hearing on the petition and the examination of the parties at interest in chambers, under oath, with the right of continuing the hearing and examinations from time to time as the nature of the case may require. The court at such times shall give consideration to the investigation report to the court provided for in Code Section 19-8-16 and the recommendations contained therein.

(2) The court shall examine the petition for adoption and the affidavit specified in subsection (g) of Code Section 19-8-5, 19-8-6, or 19-8-7, as appropriate, to determine whether Code Section 19-8-12 is applicable. If the court determines that Code Section 19-8-12 is applicable to the petition, it shall:

(A) Determine that an appropriate order has previously been entered;

(B) Enter an order consistent with Code Section 19-8-12; or

(C) Continue the hearing until Code Section 19-8-12 is complied with.

(3) If the adoption petition is filed pursuant to subsection (a) of Code Section 19-8-5, the court shall examine the financial disclosures required under subsections (c) and (d) of Code Section 19-8-13 and make such further examination of each petitioner and his attorney as the court deems appropriate in order to make a determination as to whether there is cause to believe that Code Section 19-8-24 has been violated with regard to the "inducement" of the placement of the child for adoption. Should the court determine that further inquiry is in order, the court shall direct the district attorney for the county to review the matter further and to take such appropriate action as the district attorney in his discretion deems appropriate.

(b) If the court is satisfied that each living parent or guardian of the child has surrendered or had terminated all his rights to the child in the manner provided by law prior to the filing of the petition for adoption or that each petitioner has satisfied his burden of proof under Code Section 19-8-10, that such petitioner is capable of assuming responsibility for the care, supervision, training, and education of the child, that the child is suitable for adoption in a private family home, and that the adoption requested is for the best interest of the child, it shall enter a decree of adoption, terminating all the rights of each parent and guardian to the child, granting the permanent custody of the child to each petitioner, naming the child as prayed for in the petition, and declaring the child to be the adopted child of each petitioner. In all cases wherein Code Section 19-8-10 is relied upon by any petitioner as a basis for the termination of parental rights, the court shall include in the decree of adoption appropriate findings of fact and conclusions of law relating to the applicability of Code Section 19-8-10.

(c) If the court determines that any petitioner has not complied with this chapter, it may dismiss the petition for adoption without prejudice or it may continue the case. Should the court find that any notice required to be given by any petitioner under this chapter has not been given or has not been properly given or that the petition has not been properly filed, the court is authorized to enter an order providing for corrective action and an additional hearing.

(d) If the court is not satisfied that the adoption is in the best interests of the child, it shall deny the petition. If the petition is denied because of such reason or for any other reason under law, the court shall commit the child to the custody of the department or to a child-placing agency, if the petition was filed pursuant to Code Section 19-8-4 or 19-8-5. If the petition was filed pursuant to Code Section 19-8-6, 19-8-7, or 19-8-8, the child shall remain in the custody of each petitioner if that petitioner is fit to have custody or the court may place the child with the department for the purpose of determining whether or not a petition should be initiated under Chapter 11 of Title 15.

(e) A decree of adoption issued pursuant to subsection (b) of this Code section shall not be subject to any judicial challenge filed more than six months after the date of entry of such decree.

(f) Any decree of adoption issued prior to the effective date of this action shall not be subject to any judicial challenge more than six months after July 1, 1995. (Code 1981, § 19-8-18, enacted by Ga. L. 1990, p. 1572, § 5; Ga. L. 1995, p. 791, § 1/HB 474.)

Code Commission notes. — Pursuant to Code Section 28-9-5, in 1995, “July 1, 1995” was substituted for “the effective date of this Act” in subsection (f).

Law reviews. — For note on the 1995 amendment of this Code section, see 12 Ga. St. U.L. Rev. 166 (1995).

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Editor’s notes. — In light of the similarity of the statutory provisions, decisions under Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 3 and former § 19-8-13 are included in the annotations for this section.

Purpose of hearing upon petition of adoption is to ascertain disposition in the child’s best interest. Hester v. Mathis, 147 Ga. App. 257, 248 S.E.2d 538 (1978) (decided under Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 3).

Petition for adoption properly granted. — Trial court did not abuse the court’s discretion in granting the petition for adoption filed by a child’s paternal grandmother and paternal step grandfather because the court properly found that the adoption was in the best interest of the child; the trial court recognized the importance of continuity, stability, and security that would come from allowing the paternal grandmother and paternal step grandfather to adopt the child and found that they applied themselves so as to promote or foster a positive relationship with all the child’s blood relatives. Barr v. Gregor, 316 Ga. App. 269, 728 S.E.2d 868 (2012).

Res judicata. — Superior court erred in granting a mother’s motion to dismiss a former partner’s petition to adopt the mother’s child because a judgment denying the mother’s motion to set aside the adoption decree was res judicata as to the validity of the adoption decree, and the superior court that dismissed the partner’s petition for custody was not entitled to revisit the validity of the decree; although a superior court ultimately denied the mother’s motion to set aside as untimely, the application of the time bar set out in O.C.G.A. § 19-8-18(e) presupposed that the adoption was one authorized by, and entered in accordance with, O.C.G.A. § 19-8-18(b). Bates v. Bates, 317 Ga. App. 339, 730 S.E.2d 482 (2012).

While it may be true that in some respects adoption statute may be liberally construed, as applied to severance forever of paternal relation, it must be construed strictly against applicant and favorably to parent. Wheeler v. Little, 113 Ga. App. 106, 147 S.E.2d 352 (1966) (decided under Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 3 prior to revision of chapter by Ga. L. 1977, p. 201).

Unmarried individuals may adopt. — Trial court abused the court's discretion by denying a foster parent's petition to adopt the foster child on the ground that placing the child with the foster parent, who was not married to the individual with whom the foster parent lived, violated the state's public policy because all of the evidence showed that the adoption would be in the child's best interest, and the trial court failed to apply the law as written and determine whether it was in the child's best interest to allow the adoption; all of the witnesses, including the guardian ad litem the trial court appointed to represent the child's interests and the Department of Family and Children's Services adoption specialist, testified that the adoption was in the child's best interest and that to remove the child from the only family the child had ever known would be devastating to the child, and O.C.G.A. § 19-8-3 clearly did not prohibit the adoption because the General Assembly did not prohibit unmarried couples from adopting. In re Goudeau, 305 Ga. App. 718, 700 S.E.2d 688 (2010).

In all adoption proceedings, judge exercises wide discretion which will not be set aside by appellate courts unless abused. McCall v. VanPopering, 124 Ga. App. 149, 183 S.E.2d 411 (1971) (decided under Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 3 prior to revision of chapter by Ga. L. 1977, p. 201).

In matters of adoption, superior court has very broad discretion which will not be controlled by appellate courts except in plain cases of abuse. If there is any evidence to support judgment entered in adoption proceeding, it must be affirmed. Nix v. Sanders, 136 Ga. App. 859, 223 S.E.2d 21 (1975) (decided under Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 3 prior to revision of chapter by Ga. L. 1977, p. 201).

Wide discretion is vested in the trial judge, who acts as both judge and jury, in adoption proceedings, and the judge's discretion will not be controlled unless manifestly abused. Ritchie v. Dillon, 103 Ga. App. 7, 118 S.E.2d 115 (1961) (decided under Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 3 prior to revision of chapter by Ga. L. 1977, p. 201).

Judge must consider recommendations of Department of Human Resources. — It appears that, while legislature invested trial judge with utmost discretion in determining child's best interests to the judge's own satisfaction, it included mandatory provision that judge should give consideration to recommendations of Department of Human Resources in so doing. Cox v. Bohannon, 86 Ga. App. 236, 71 S.E.2d 440 (1952) (decided under Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 7 prior to revision of chapter by Ga. L. 1977, p. 201).

Recommendations of investigating agency to be "given consideration". — Court properly granted a married couple's petition to adopt a child despite testimony from a representative of the Department of Family and Children Services (DFACS) that the child's interests would be best served by remaining in the care of relatives since the child had been there for a while. Although O.C.G.A. § 19-8-18(a)(1) required the trial court to "give consideration" to the DFACS investigative report, the law did not require the court to follow or adopt any conclusions in the report. Blount v. Knighton, 298 Ga. App. 448, 680 S.E.2d 522 (2009).

Only questions before court are: (1) do parents consent; (2) are adopting parents worthy and able to care for child; and (3) is adoption in best interests of child? Court is not required to declare adoption unless all three facts unequivocally appear. Allen v. Morgan, 75 Ga. App. 738, 44 S.E.2d 500 (1947) (decided under Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 7 prior to revision of chapter by Ga. L. 1977, p. 201).

Judge must determine whether parents have consented. — At full hearing, judge has jurisdiction and it is the judge's duty to inquire into whether both parents have consented to adoption, and whether, if one parent has not consented, the necessity for such consent has been rendered unnecessary under law providing for such cases. Murray v. Woodford, 86 Ga. App. 273, 71 S.E.2d 275 (1952) (decided under Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 7 prior to revision of chapter by Ga. L. 1977, p. 201).

Challenge to consent order time barred. — Challenge by the adoptive father and the biological mother to a consent order providing, inter alia, visitation to the biological father and the paternal grandmother, filed more than a year after the consent order was entered was time barred. Rimmer v. Tinch, 324 Ga. App. 65, 749 S.E.2d 236 (2013).

Consideration of investigative report of Department of Human Resources. — if existent, is mandatory in adoption proceedings. Chandler v. Cochran, 247 Ga. 184, 275 S.E.2d 23 (1981) (decided under former § 19-8-13).

Acceptance of recommendations. — While the trial court is required to “give consideration” to the investigative report, the court is not required to follow or adopt any conclusions in the report. Bragg v. State, 226 Ga. App. 588, 487 S.E.2d 137 (1997).

When the trial court considered the investigative report’s recommendations and scanned the report, although the court did not read the report in detail, there was no violation of paragraph (a)(1) of former § 19-8-13. Ridgley v. Helms, 168 Ga. App. 435, 309 S.E.2d 375 (1983) (decided under former § 19-8-13); Cafagno v. Hagan, 213 Ga. App. 631, 445 S.E.2d 380 (1994).

Challenge to adoption decree untimely. — Because any challenge to the adoption decree had to be brought within six months and the mother brought a challenge approximately 10 months after the decree was entered, the trial court erred in granting the mother’s motion to set aside the adoption. Oni v. Oni, 323 Ga. App. 467, 746 S.E.2d 641 (2013).

Denial of adoption petition affirmed. — Fact that the child’s father surrendered his rights to the child over to the paternal grandparents pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 19-8-7(a) was not determinative of the adoption petition filed by the paternal grandparents; since there was evidence to support the trial court’s findings that the paternal grandparents would have denied the maternal grandparents contact with the child if the adoption petition were granted, and that the granting of the petition was not in the child’s best interests, the denial of the petition was affirmed. Madison v. Barnett, 268 Ga. App. 348, 601 S.E.2d 704 (2004).

Decree met statutory requirements. — Trial court’s decree terminating a father’s parental rights and allowing the adoption of the child by the adoptive parent complied with the statutory requirements because the order provided specific findings of fact that at the time of filing the petition, there had been no payments on the monthly child support for the one-year period immediately prior, and that there had been no child support payments from the date of the father’s release from prison through a specific date; the trial court’s decree further stated that the court’s conclusions of law were based on the court’s findings of fact and the verified petition, which specifically referenced O.C.G.A. § 19-8-10 in seeking adoption due, in part, to the father’s failure to pay child support as required by a divorce decree and contempt order. Ray v. Denton, 278 Ga. App. 69, 628 S.E.2d 180 (2006).

Lack of notification to natural parent. — Trial court erred by granting a stepparent’s petition to adopt an eight-year-old child and by terminating the parental rights of one of the child’s natural parents as the trial court failed to make any finding as to whether the natural parent’s lack of communication with the child was without justifiable cause as required by O.C.G.A. § 19-8-18(b). Further, the trial court erred by basing the court’s adoption decision, in part, on O.C.G.A. § 19-8-10(a)(4) as the stepparent’s petition did not assert any claim pursuant to § 19-8-10(a) and, instead, relied exclusively on § 19-8-10(b). The natural parent was not served with a petition making allegations under subsection (a) and, therefore, received no notification that the natural parent had to prepare to show cause why the natural parent’s parental rights should not be terminated. Smallwood v. Davis, 292 Ga. App. 173, 664 S.E.2d 254 (2008).

Findings of fact and conclusions of law. — Since a trial court failed to make any specific findings of fact in support of the court’s recitation under O.C.G.A. § 19-8-10 that a child’s father had failed without justifiable cause to communicate with the child for a period of one year immediately prior to the filing of the adoption petition, the order did not comply with the requirements of O.C.G.A. § 19-8-18, and the court had to remand the matter to the trial court to make the appropriate findings of fact and conclu-

Trial court erred by terminating a biological father's parental rights and ordering adoption because the court failed to set forth specific findings of fact to support the conclusion that the requisites of O.C.G.A. § 19-8-10(b) as to abandonment of the child had been met. Ray v. Hann, 323 Ga. App. 45, 746 S.E.2d 600 (2013).

Best interests of child not shown. — Although a grandmother's testimony as to her care and support of her granddaughter supported a trial court's grant of the grandmother's adoption petition pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 19-8-18(b), there was no showing that such adoption was in the child's best interest. Owen v. Watts, 296 Ga. App. 449, 674 S.E.2d 665 (2009).

Construction with other law. — Superior court properly dismissed a grandmother's adoption petition on collateral estoppel grounds based on the juvenile court's previous order granting temporary custody to the maternal grandfather and grant of visitation rights to the grandmother; as a result, the superior court was not authorized to readjudicate the issue of permanent custody involving the child at issue. Smith v. Hutcheson, 283 Ga. App. 117, 640 S.E.2d 690 (2006).

When the trial court denied a couple's petition to adopt a child and to terminate the parental rights of the child's legal father, the court was not required to enter findings in accordance with O.C.G.A. § 19-8-18(b), which applied when an adoption petition was granted and parental rights terminated; the court entered findings and conclusions sufficient to satisfy O.C.G.A. § 19-8-10(b) when the court found that the father had paid child support and had communicated with the child and that the adoption was not in the child's best interest. Thaggard v. Willard, 285 Ga. App. 384, 646 S.E.2d 479 (2007).

Trial court erred in denying an aunt and uncle's petition to adopt their nephew under O.C.G.A. § 19-8-8, and should have applied O.C.G.A. § 19-8-7 as: (1) the former was not intended to be a general rule regarding the adoption of foreign children; (2) the aunt and uncle satisfied the jurisdictional and venue requirements of

O.C.G.A. § 19-8-2 by filing the adoption petition in the superior court of their county of residence; and (3) as the child's aunt and uncle, they were relatives eligible to adopt under O.C.G.A. § 19-8-7(a); hence, the matter was remanded for consideration of the relevant factors in making the determinations required under O.C.G.A. § 19-8-18(b). In re Adoption of D.J.F.M., 284 Ga. App. 420, 643 S.E.2d 879 (2007).

Limiting language of O.C.G.A. § 19-7-3(b), forbidding original actions for grandparent visitation if the parents are together and living with the child, includes adoptive parents because in the absence of language limiting the term "parent" to only "natural parents" or "biological parents," there is no legislative intent to withhold from adoptive parents the same constitutionally protected status enjoyed by biological parents to raise their children without state interference; in construing § 19-7-3(b), the definition of parent in the adoption statute, O.C.G.A. § 19-8-1(6) and (8), which gives full legal status to adoptive parents, cannot be ignored, and the clear intent of the adoption statute is to give adoptive parents full legal rights. Bailey v. Kunz, 307 Ga. App. 710, 706 S.E.2d 98 (2011), aff'd, 290 Ga. 361, 720 S.E.2d 634 (2012).

Public policy of the state is to consider best interest of the child. — Public policy of the state as enunciated by the General Assembly is to consider the best interest of the child when determining whether he or she should be adopted, O.C.G.A. § 19-8-18(b); in stating that marriage is encouraged, O.C.G.A. § 19-3-6 forbids most efforts to restrain or discourage marriage by contract, condition, limitation, or otherwise, and § 19-3-6 has nothing to do with the standards the courts must apply in determining whether to allow a child to be adopted. In re Goudeau, 305 Ga. App. 718, 700 S.E.2d 688 (2010).

19-8-19. Effect of decree of adoption.

(a) A decree of adoption, whether issued by a court of this state or by a court of any other jurisdiction, shall have the following effect as to matters within the jurisdiction of or before a court in this state:

(1) Except with respect to a spouse of the petitioner and relatives of the spouse, a decree of adoption terminates all legal relationships between the adopted individual and his relatives, including his parent, so that the adopted individual thereafter is a stranger to his former relatives for all purposes, including inheritance and the interpretation or construction of documents, statutes, and instruments, whether executed before or after the adoption is decreed, which do not expressly include the individual by name or by some designation not based on a parent and child or blood relationship; and

(2) A decree of adoption creates the relationship of parent and child between each petitioner and the adopted individual, as if the adopted individual were a child of biological issue of that petitioner. The adopted individual shall enjoy every right and privilege of a biological child of that petitioner; shall be deemed a biological child of that petitioner, to inherit under the laws of descent and distribution in the absence of a will, and to take under the provisions of any instrument of testamentary gift, bequest, devise, or legacy, whether executed before or after the adoption is decreed, unless expressly excluded therefrom; shall take by inheritance from relatives of that petitioner; and shall also take as a “child” of that petitioner under a class gift made by the will of a third person.

(b) Notwithstanding the provisions of subsection (a) of this Code section, if a parent of a child dies without the relationship of parent and child having been previously terminated by court order or unrevoked surrender of parental rights to the child, the child’s right of inheritance from or through the deceased parent shall not be affected by the adoption. JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Effect of adoption prior to Act severing adopted child's rights. — After the natural father died in 1982 and his daughter had been adopted by another person prior to the 1977 enactment which severed an adopted child's right of inheritance from the child's natural parents and severed the adopted child's former right to bring a wrongful death action for the homicide of the child's natural parent, the decedent's daughter was not an heir of her natural father and had no vested right to bring an action in tort for his death. Eig v. Savage, 177 Ga. App. 514, 339 S.E.2d 752 (1986) (decided under former § 19-8-14).

Res judicata. — Superior court erred in granting a mother's motion to dismiss a former partner's petition to adopt the mother's child because a judgment denying the mother's motion to set aside the adoption decree was res judicata as to the validity of the adoption decree; the superior court was competent to entertain the motion to set aside and to consider whether the court properly had jurisdiction when the court entered the adoption decree, and the court's denial of the motion to set aside was conclusive of the question of standing in the partner's case. Bates v. Bates, 317 Ga. App. 339, 730 S.E.2d 482 (2012).

Section 19-7-3 constitutes exception to rule. — Legislature's intent in enacting 1980 amendment to O.C.G.A. § 19-7-3 was to give grandparents standing to seek visitation in a situation in which their own child had lost his or her parental rights through death or termination; therefore, that section constitutes specific exception to provision of former § 19-8-14 that adopted child shall become a legal stranger to his former relatives for all purposes. Smith v. Finstad, 247 Ga. 603, 277 S.E.2d 736 (1981) (decided under former § 19-8-14).

When § 19-7-3 not an exception. — O.C.G.A. § 19-7-3, which provides visitation rights for grandparents in certain situations, is not an exception to former § 19-8-14 when both the natural mother and father have released the child for adoption. Mitchell v. Erdmier, 253 Ga. 335, 320 S.E.2d 163 (1984) (decided under former § 19-8-14).

“Grandparents’ Bill of Rights” in O.C.G.A. § 19-7-3 is not an exception to former § 19-8-14. The only provision which grants grandparents visitation rights after an adoption is the limited one of the death of one parent, the remarriage of the surviving parent, followed by the adoption of the child by the stepparent. In other adoptions, the severance of relationships provision of former § 19-8-14 controls, and no rights of visitation by former grandparents existed. Heard v. Coleman, 181 Ga. App. 899, 354 S.E.2d 164 (1987) (decided under former § 19-8-14).

No biological parent preference over adoptive parent. — In a custody dispute between a biological parent and an adoptive parent, preference cannot be given to the biological parent. The test is the best interest of the child. Ivey v. Ivey, 264 Ga. 435, 445 S.E.2d 258 (1994).

Adopting parent on equal footing as biological. — Trial court did not err in awarding primary physical custody of the couple’s biological child to the wife as the court’s determination that splitting the siblings would cause emotional harm to both children was sufficient to overcome the statutory presumption in favor of the husband with respect to custody of the older child, who was the biological child of the husband and adopted by the wife. Hastings v. Hastings, 291 Ga. 782, 732 S.E.2d 272 (2012).

Grandparents’ visitation precluded after child adopted by stepfather. — Paternal grandparents were not entitled to visitation rights after the child’s natural father’s parental rights had been terminated and the child had been adopted by the child’s stepfather. Campbell v. Holcomb, 193 Ga. App. 474, 388 S.E.2d 65 (1989) (decided under former § 19-8-14).

Limiting language of O.C.G.A. § 19-7-3(b), forbidding original actions for grandparent visitation if the parents are together and living with the child, includes adoptive parents because in the absence of language limiting the term “parent” to only “natural parents” or “biological parents”, there is no legislative intent to withhold from adoptive parents the same constitutionally protected status enjoyed by biological parents to raise their children without state interference; in construing § 19-7-3(b), the definition of parent in the adoption statute, O.C.G.A. § 19-8-1(6) and (8), which gives full legal status to adoptive parents, cannot be ignored, and the clear intent of the adoption statute is to give adoptive parents full legal rights. Bailey v. Kunz, 307 Ga. App. 710, 706 S.E.2d 98 (2011), aff’d, 290 Ga. 361, 720 S.E.2d 634 (2012).

Grandparents’ visitation rights precluded when child adopted by stepfather. — Term “parents” in O.C.G.A. § 19-7-3(b) did not exclude a child’s adoptive parent; therefore, because a child was living with the child’s mother and adoptive father, who were not separated, the child’s natural grandparents had no right to file an original action for visitation with the child under the statute. Upon their son’s termination of his parental rights to the child, the grandparents became strangers to the child, pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 19-8-19. Kunz v. Bailey, 290 Ga. 361, 720 S.E.2d 634 (2012).

Effect of termination of grandparent’s legal relationship. — Child’s biological grandmother lacked standing to bring an action for injuries arising from illegitimacy since the child was adopted and the grandmother’s legal relationship was terminated. Vance v. T.R.C., 229 Ga. App. 608, 494 S.E.2d 714 (1997).

Since the intervention of grandparents into a custody proceeding and an order granting them temporary custody had already occurred, the later adult adoption of the child’s father did not extinguish the legal status that the grandparents held; the trial court’s subsequent order dismissing the intervention of the grandparents, and setting aside the award of temporary custody to the grandparents was reversed. Walls v. Walls, 278 Ga. 206, 599 S.E.2d 173 (2004).

Child support arrearages not eradicated by adoption. — Arrearages in child support payments which accrued prior to adoption are not eradicated by the adoption decree. Sample v. Poteralski, 169 Ga. App. 448, 313 S.E.2d 145 (1984) (decided under former § 19-8-14).

Status of parent and child exists after parental rights terminated. However, “child” no longer exists between the natural parent and “child” but exists between the child and the adopting parent. Menard v. Fairchild, 254 Ga. 275, 328 S.E.2d 721 (1985) (decided under former § 19-8-14).

Right of adopted child to take under will. — In construing rights of adopted child to take under a will, it is not a question of right of adopted child to inherit, but simply a question of the testator’s intent with respect to those who are to share in the estate. Thomas v. Trust Co. Bank, 247 Ga. 693, 279 S.E.2d 440 (1981) (decided under former § 19-8-14).

Incest. — In a prosecution for incest, although the state did not introduce documentary evidence of adoption, un rebutted testimony of the adoption by the defendant, his wife, and the victim was sufficient to establish the relationship. Edmonson v. State, 219 Ga. App. 323, 464 S.E.2d 839 (1995), overruled on other grounds, Collins v. State, 229 Ga. App. 658, 495 S.E.2d 59 (1997).

Because adopted individuals “enjoy every right and privilege of a biological child,” they are statutorily protected from incest. Edmonson v. State, 219 Ga. App. 323, 464 S.E.2d 839 (1995), overruled on other grounds, Collins v. State, 229 Ga. App. 658, 495 S.E.2d 59 (1997).

Incest not applicable between adopted siblings. — Trial court erred when the court denied the defendant’s motion to quash the count of an indictment charging the defendant with incest because the defendant did not commit incest since the defendant’s adoptive sister was not a whole blood or half blood sibling; the incest statute does not prohibit sexual intercourse between a brother and an adoptive sister not related by blood. Smith v. State, 311 Ga. App. 757, 717 S.E.2d 280 (2011).

(a) Adult persons may be adopted on giving written consent to the adoption. In such cases, adoption shall be by a petition duly verified and filed, together with two conformed copies, in the superior court in the county in which either any petitioner or the adult to be adopted resides, setting forth the name, age, and residence of each petitioner and of the adult to be adopted, the name by which the adult is to be known, and his written consent to the adoption. The court may assign the petition for hearing at any time. After examining each petitioner and the adult sought to be adopted, the court, if satisfied that there is no reason why the adoption should not be granted, shall enter a decree of adoption and, if requested, shall change the name of the adopted adult. Effect of section's discretionary terms. — While couched in discretionary terms, Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 16 did not permit the trial judge to deny the adult adoption without a hearing. The legislature did not intend to grant to trial courts discretionary power to decide an adult's ex parte adoption case on pleadings and without giving the petitioner an opportunity to be heard. In re Chambers, 147 Ga. Adoptees have same rights as natural born children. — Under the 1967 amendment to former Code 1933, § 74-420, which was in effect when a testator died in 1970, an adult who was adopted by a life tenant was entitled to inherit a remainder interest to the same extent as would a natural-born child. The law granted adoptees the same rights as natural born children, and the will did not expressly exclude adoptees. Elrod v. Cowart, 284 Ga. 869, 672 S.E.2d 616 (2009).

19-8-22. Recognition and effect of foreign decrees.

(a) A decree of a court terminating the relationship of parent and child or establishing the relationship of parent and child by adoption, issued pursuant to due process of law by a court of any other jurisdiction within or outside the United States, or the clear and irrevocable release or consent to adoption by the guardian of a child where the appointment of the guardian has been certified by the appropriate and legally authorized court or agency of the government of the foreign country shall be recognized in this state; and the rights and obligations of the parties as to matters within the jurisdiction of this state shall be determined as though any such decree were issued by a court of this state and any such consent or release shall be deemed to satisfy the requirements of Code Sections 19-8-4, 19-8-5, 19-8-6, 19-8-7, and 19-8-12.

(b) Any adoption proceeding in this state in which a final order of adoption was entered by the court prior to April 1, 1986, and to which subsection (a) of this Code section would have been applicable if said subsection, as amended, had been effective at the time such proceeding was filed or concluded shall be governed by the provisions of subsection (a) of this Code section, as amended.

(c) Any adoption proceeding pending in a court of competent jurisdiction in this state in which no final order of adoption has been entered as of April 1, 1986, to which the provisions of subsection (a) of this Code section are applicable shall be governed by the provisions of subsection (a) of this Code section, as amended. (Code 1981, § 19-8-22, enacted by Ga. L. 1990, p. 1572, § 5.)

Status acquired by adoption is determined by state creating adoption. — Status acquired by adoption, like that acquired by marriage, is a personal one, and the adoption's validity is conclusively determined by law of state creating the adoption, and if validly created there it will be recognized and given effect here though procedure by which it was created under foreign law is different from that required here. *Watson v. 19-8-23. Where records of adoption kept; examination by parties and attorneys; use of information by agency and department.

(a) The original petition, all amendments and exhibits thereto, all motions, documents, affidavits, records, and testimony filed in connection therewith, and all decrees or orders of any kind whatsoever, except the original investigation report and background information referred to in Code Section 19-8-20, shall be recorded in a book kept for that purpose and properly indexed; and the book shall be part of the records of the court in each county which has jurisdiction over matters of adoption in that county. All of the records, including the docket book, of the court granting the adoption, of the department, and of the child-placing agency that relate in any manner to the adoption shall be kept sealed and locked. The records may be examined by the parties at interest in the adoption and their attorneys when, after written petition has been presented to the court having jurisdiction and after the department and the appropriate child-placing agency have received at least 30 days' prior written notice of the filing of such petition, the matter has come on before the court in chambers and, good cause having been shown to the court, the court has entered an order permitting such examination. Notwithstanding the foregoing, if the adoptee who is the subject of the records sought to be examined is less than 18 years of age at the time the petition is filed and the petitioner is someone other than one of the adoptive parents of the adoptee, then the department shall provide written notice of such proceedings to the adoptive parents by certified mail or statutory overnight delivery, return receipt requested, at the last address the department has for such adoptive parents and the court shall continue any hearing on the petition until not less than 60 days after the date the notice was sent. Each such adoptive parent shall have the right to appear in person or through counsel and show cause why such records should not be examined. Adoptive parents may provide the department with their current address for purposes of receiving notice under this subsection by mailing that address to:

Office of Adoptions
Department of Human Services
Atlanta, Georgia

(b) The department or the child-placing agency may, in its sole discretion, make use of any information contained in the records of the respective department or agency relating to the adoptive parents in connection with a subsequent adoption matter involving the same adoptive parents or to provide notice when required by subsection (a) of this Code section.

(c) The department or the child-placing agency may, in its sole discretion, make use of any information contained in its records on a child when an adoption disrupts after finalization and when such records are required for the permanent placement of such child, or when the information is required by federal law.

(d)(1) Upon the request of a party at interest in the adoption, a child, legal guardian, or health care agent of an adopted person or a provider of medical services to such a party, child, legal guardian, or health care agent when certain information would assist in the provision of medical care, a medical emergency, or medical diagnosis or treatment, the department or child-placing agency shall access its own records on finalized adoptions for the purpose of adding subsequently obtained medical information or releasing nonidentifying medical and health history information contained in its records pertaining to an adopted person or the biological parents or relatives of the biological parents of the adopted person. For purposes of this paragraph, the term "health care agent" has the meaning provided by Code Section 31-32-2.

(2) Upon receipt by the State Adoption Unit of the Division of Family and Children Services of the department or by a child-placing agency of documented medical information relevant to an adoptee, the office or child-placing agency shall use reasonable efforts to contact the adoptive parents of the adoptee if the adoptee is under 18 years of age or the adoptee if he or she is 18 years of age or older and provide such documented medical information to the adoptive parents or the adoptee. The office or child-placing agency shall be entitled to reimbursement of reasonable costs for postage and photocopying incurred in the delivery of such documented medical information to the adoptive parents or adoptee.

(e) Records relating in any manner to adoption shall not be open to the general public for inspection.

(f)(1) Notwithstanding Code Section 19-8-1, for purposes of this subsection, the term:

(A) "Biological parent" means the biological mother or biological father who surrendered that person's rights or had such rights terminated by court order giving rise to the adoption of the child.

(B) "Commissioner" means the commissioner of human services or that person's designee.

(C) "Department" means the Department of Human Services or, when the Department of Human Services so designates, the county department of family and children services which placed for adoption the person seeking, or on whose behalf is sought, information under this subsection.

(D) "Placement agency" means the child-placing agency, as defined in paragraph (3) of Code Section 19-8-1, which placed for adoption the person seeking or on whose behalf is sought information under this subsection.

(2) The department or a placement agency, upon the written request of an adopted person who has reached 18 years of age or upon the written request of an adoptive parent on behalf of that parent's adopted child, shall release to such adopted person or to the adoptive parent on the child's behalf nonidentifying information regarding such adopted person's biological parents and information regarding such adopted person's birth. Such information may include the date and place of birth of the adopted person and the genetic, social, and health history of the biological parents. No information released pursuant to this paragraph shall include the name or address of either biological parent or the name or address of any relative by birth or marriage of either biological parent.

(3)(A) The department or a placement agency upon written request of an adopted person who has reached 21 years of age shall release to such adopted person the name of such person's biological parent if:

(i) The biological parent whose name is to be released has submitted unrevoked written permission to the department or the placement agency for the release of that parent's name to the adopted person;

(ii) The identity of the biological parent submitting permission for the release of that parent's name has been verified by the department or the placement agency; and

(iii) The department or the placement agency has records pertaining to the finalized adoption and to the identity of the biological parent whose name is to be released.

(B) If the adopted person is deceased and leaves a child, such child, upon reaching 21 years of age, may seek the name and other identifying information concerning his or her grandparents in the same manner as the deceased adopted person and subject to the same procedures contained in this Code section.

(4)(A) If a biological parent has not filed written unrevoked permission for the release of that parent's name to the adopted child, the department or the placement agency, within six months of receipt of the written request of the adopted person who has reached 21 years of age, shall make diligent effort to notify each biological parent identified in the original adoption proceedings or in other records of the department or the placement agency relative to the adopted person. For purposes of this subparagraph, "notify" means a personal and confidential contact with each biological parent of the adopted person. The contact shall be by an employee or agent of the placement agency which processed the pertinent adoption or by other agents or employees of the department. The contact shall be evidenced by the person who notified each parent certifying to the department that each parent was given the following information:

(i) The nature of the information requested by the adopted person;

(ii) The date of the request of the adopted person;

(iii) The right of each biological parent to file an affidavit with the placement agency or the department stating that such parent's identity should not be disclosed;

(iv) The right of each biological parent to file a consent to disclosure with the placement agency or the department; and

(v) The effect of a failure of each biological parent to file either a consent to disclosure or an affidavit stating that the information in the sealed adoption file should not be disclosed.

(B) If a biological parent files an unrevoked consent to the disclosure of that parent's identity, such parent's name shall be released to the adopted person who has requested such information as authorized by this paragraph.

(C) If, within 60 days of being notified by the department or the placement agency pursuant to subparagraph (A) of this paragraph, a biological parent has filed with the department or placement agency an affidavit objecting to such release, information regarding that biological parent shall not be released.

(D)(i) If six months after receipt of the adopted person's written request the placement agency or the department has either been unable to notify a biological parent identified in the original adoption record or has been able to notify a biological parent identified in the original adoption record but has not obtained a consent to disclosure from the notified biological parent, then the identity of a biological parent may only be disclosed as provided in division (ii) or (iii) of this subparagraph.

(ii) The adopted person who has reached 21 years of age may petition the Superior Court of Fulton County to seek the release of the identity of each of that person's biological parents from the department or placement agency. The court shall grant the petition if the court finds that the department or placement agency has made diligent efforts to locate each biological parent pursuant to this subparagraph either without success or upon locating a biological parent has not obtained a consent to disclosure from the notified biological parent and that failure to release the identity of each biological parent would have an adverse impact upon the physical, mental, or emotional health of the adopted person.

(iii) If it is verified that a biological parent of the adopted person is deceased, the department or placement agency shall be authorized to disclose the name and place of burial of the deceased biological parent, if known, to the adopted person seeking such information without the necessity of obtaining a court order.

(5)(A) Upon written request of an adopted person who has reached 21 years of age or a person who has reached 21 years of age and who is the sibling of an adopted person, the department or a placement agency shall attempt to identify and notify the siblings of the requesting party, if such siblings are at least 18 years of age. Upon locating the requesting party's sibling, the department or the placement agency shall notify the sibling of the inquiry. Upon the written consent of a sibling so notified, the department or the placement agency shall forward the requesting party's name and address to the sibling and, upon further written consent of the sibling, shall divulge to the requesting party the present name and address of the sibling. If a sibling cannot be identified or located, the department or placement agency shall notify the requesting party of such circumstances but shall not disclose any names or other information which would tend to identify the sibling. If a sibling is deceased, the department or placement agency shall be authorized to disclose the name and place of burial of the deceased sibling, if known, to the requesting party without the necessity of obtaining a court order.

(B)(i) If six months after receipt of the written request from an adopted person who has reached 21 years of age or a person who has reached 21 years of age and who is the sibling of an adopted person, the placement agency or the department has either been unable to notify one or more of the siblings of the requesting party or has been able to notify a sibling of the requesting party but has not obtained a consent to disclosure from the notified sibling, then the identity of the siblings may only be disclosed as provided in division (ii) of this subparagraph.

(ii) The adopted person who has reached 21 years of age or a person who has reached 21 years of age and who is the sibling of an adopted person may petition the Superior Court of Fulton County to seek the release of the last known name and address of each of the siblings of the petitioning sibling, that are at least 18 years of age, from the department or placement agency. The court shall grant the petition if the court finds that the department or placement agency has made diligent efforts to locate such siblings pursuant to subparagraph (A) of this paragraph either without success or upon locating one or more of the siblings has not obtained a consent to disclosure from all the notified siblings and that failure to release the identity and last known address of said siblings would have an adverse impact upon the physical, mental, or emotional health of the petitioning sibling.

(C) If the adopted person is deceased and leaves a child, such child, upon reaching 21 years of age, may obtain the name and other identifying information concerning the siblings of his or her deceased parent in the same manner that the deceased adopted person would be entitled to obtain such information pursuant to the procedures contained in this Code section.

(6)(A) Upon written request of a biological parent of an adopted person who has reached 21 years of age, the department or a placement agency shall attempt to identify and notify the adopted person. Upon locating the adopted person, the department or the placement agency shall notify the adopted person of the inquiry.

Upon the written consent of the adopted person so notified, the department or the placement agency shall forward the biological parent's name and address to the adopted person and, upon further written consent of the adopted person, shall divulge to the requesting biological parent the present name and address of the adopted person. If the adopted person is deceased, the department or placement agency shall be authorized to disclose the name and place of burial of the deceased adopted person, if known, to the requesting biological parent without the necessity of obtaining a court order.

(B)(i) If six months after receipt of the written request from a biological parent of an adopted person who has reached 21 years of age the placement agency or the department has either been unable to notify the adopted person or has been able to notify the adopted person but has not obtained a consent to disclosure from the notified adopted person, then the identity of the adopted person may only be disclosed as provided in division (ii) of this subparagraph.

(ii) The biological parent of an adopted person who has reached 21 years of age may petition the Superior Court of Fulton County to seek the release of the last known name and address of the adopted person from the department or placement agency. The court shall grant the petition if the court finds that the department or placement agency has made diligent efforts to locate such adopted person pursuant to subparagraph (A) of this paragraph either without success or upon locating the adopted person has not obtained a consent to disclosure from the adopted person and that failure to release the identity and last known address of said adopted person would have an adverse impact upon the physical, mental, or emotional health of the petitioning biological parent.

(C) If the biological parent is deceased, a parent or sibling of the deceased biological parent, or both, may obtain the name and other identifying information concerning the adopted person in the same manner that the deceased biological parent would be entitled to obtain such information pursuant to the procedures contained in this Code section.

(7) If an adoptive parent or the sibling of an adopted person notifies the department or placement agency of the death of an adopted person, the department or placement agency shall add information regarding the date and circumstances of the death to its records so as to enable it to share such information with a biological parent or sibling of the adopted person if they make an inquiry pursuant to the provisions of this Code section.

(8) If a biological parent or parent or sibling of a biological parent notifies the department or placement agency of the death of a biological parent or a sibling of an adopted person, the department or placement agency shall add information regarding the date and circumstances of the death to its records so as to enable it to share such information with an adopted person or sibling of the adopted person if he or she makes an inquiry pursuant to the provisions of this Code section.

(9) The Office of Adoptions within the department shall maintain a registry for the recording of requests by adopted persons for the name of any biological parent, for the recording of the written consent or the written objections of any biological parent to the release of that parent's identity to an adopted person upon the adopted person's request, and for nonidentifying information regarding any biological parent which may be released pursuant to paragraph (2) of this subsection. The department and any placement agency which receives such requests, consents, or objections shall file a copy thereof with that office.

(10) The department or placement agency may charge a reasonable fee to be determined by the department for the cost of conducting any search pursuant to this subsection.

(11) Nothing in this subsection shall be construed to require the department or placement agency to disclose to any party at interest, including but not limited to an adopted person who has reached 21 years of age, any information which is not kept by the department or the placement agency in its normal course of operations relating to adoption.

(12) Any department employee or employee of any placement agency who releases information or makes authorized contacts in good faith and in compliance with this subsection shall be immune from civil or criminal liability for such release of information or authorized contacts.

(13) Information authorized to be released pursuant to this subsection may be released under the conditions specified in this subsection notwithstanding any other provisions of law to the contrary.

(14) A placement agency which demonstrates to the department by clear and convincing evidence that the requirement that such agency search for or notify any biological parent, sibling, or adopted person under subparagraph (A) of paragraph (4) of this subsection or subparagraph (A) of paragraph (5) of this subsection or subparagraph (A) of paragraph (6) of this subsection will impose an undue hardship upon that agency shall be relieved from that responsibility, and the department shall assume that responsibility upon such finding by the department of undue hardship. The department's determination under this subsection shall be a contested case within the meaning of Chapter 13 of Title 50, the "Georgia Administrative Procedure Act."

(15) Whenever this subsection authorizes both the department and a placement agency to perform any function or requires the placement agency to perform any function which the department is also required to perform, the department or agency may designate an agent to perform that function and in so performing it the agent shall have the same authority, powers, duties, and immunities as an employee of the department or placement agency has with respect to performing that function. 19-8-24. Unlawful advertisements; unlawful inducements; penalties.

(a) It shall be unlawful for any person, organization, corporation, hospital, or association of any kind whatsoever which has not been established as a child-placing agency by the department to:

(1) Advertise, whether in a periodical, by television, by radio, or by any other public medium or by any private means, including letters, circulars, handbills, and oral statements, that the person, organization, corporation, hospital, or association will adopt children or will arrange for or cause children to be adopted or placed for adoption; or

(2) Directly or indirectly hold out inducements to parents to part with their children.

As used in this subsection, "inducements" shall include any financial assistance, either direct or indirect, from whatever source, except payment or reimbursement of the medical expenses directly related to the mother's pregnancy and hospitalization for the birth of the child and medical care for the child.

(b) It shall be unlawful for any person to sell, offer to sell, or conspire with another to sell or offer to sell a child for money or anything of value, except as otherwise provided in this chapter.

(c) Any person who violates subsection (a) or (b) of this Code section shall be guilty of a felony and, upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by a fine not to exceed $10,000.00 or imprisonment for not more than ten years, or both, in the discretion of the court.

(d)(1) Paragraph (1) of subsection (a) of this Code section shall not apply to communication by private means, including only written letters or oral statements, by an individual seeking to:

(A) Adopt a child or children; or

(B) Place that individual's child or children for adoption, whether the communication occurs before or after the birth of such child or children.

(2) Paragraph (1) of subsection (a) of this Code section shall not apply to any communication described in paragraph (1) of this subsection which contains any attorney's name, address, telephone number, or any combination of such information and which requests any attorney named in such communication to be contacted to facilitate the carrying out of the purpose, as described in subparagraph (A) or (B) of paragraph (1) of this subsection, of the individual making such personal communication. OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Editor’s notes. — In light of the similarity of the statutory provisions, opinions under Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 17 and former § 19-8-19 are included in the annotations for this Code section.

Course of conduct of orally spreading information may constitute advertising. — General definition of advertisement would seem to dictate that when an individual, as a course of action, spreads information by word of mouth to various people with whom the individual comes into contact announcing that the individual occasionally knows unmarried mothers and would welcome inquiries from persons desiring to adopt their illegitimate children, such oral statements would be an advertisement and violative of Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 17. 1967 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 67-31 (decided under Ga. L. 1941, p. 300, § 17).

“Networking” letters are unlawful advertisements. — Although a potential adoptive couple may send personal communications expressing an interest in adoption, “networking” letters which involve an attorney in the placement of children are unlawful advertisements within the meaning of subsection (a) of O.C.G.A. § 19-8-24. Attorneys may provide necessary legal services in connection with adoptions; however, attorneys may not provide placement services unless licensed as a child-placing agency. 1990 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 90-42.

Payment of lost wages to an expectant mother of a child to be placed for adoption was clearly barred by subsection (b) of former § 19-8-19. 1986 Op. Att’y Gen. No. U86-21 (decided under former § 19-8-19).

19-8-25. Effect of prior consent or surrender.

(a) A written consent or surrender, executed on or before June 30, 1990, shall, for purposes of an adoption proceeding commenced on or after July 1, 1990, be deemed to satisfy the surrender requirements of this chapter and it shall not be necessary to have any parent or guardian execute the documents required by Code Section 19-8-4, 19-8-5, 19-8-6, or 19-8-7; however, all other applicable provisions of this chapter must be complied with.

(b) It is the legislative intent of this subsection to clarify and not to change the applicability of certain previously existing provisions of this chapter to adoption proceedings pending on July 1, 1990. Any decree of adoption issued in an adoption proceeding in which the adoption petition was filed in a superior court of this state prior to July 1, 1990, shall be valid if the adoption conformed to the requirements of this chapter either as they existed on June 30, 1990, or on July 1, 1990, and each such adoption decree is hereby ratified and confirmed. (Code 1981, § 19-8-25, enacted by Ga. L. 1990, p. 1572, § 5; Ga. L. 1991, p. 1640, § 12.)

19-8-26. How surrender of parental rights executed; how and when surrender may be withdrawn; forms.

(a) The surrender of rights by a parent or guardian pursuant to paragraph (1) of subsection (e) of Code Section 19-8-4 shall conform substantially to the following form:

SURRENDER OF RIGHTS

FINAL RELEASE FOR ADOPTION

NOTICE TO PARENT OR GUARDIAN:

This is an important legal document and by signing it you are surrendering all of your right, title, and claim to the child identified herein, so as to facilitate the child's placement for adoption. You are to receive a copy of this document and as explained below have the right to withdraw your surrender within ten days from the date you sign it.

I, the undersigned, being solicitous that my (male) (female) child, born (insert name of child) on (insert birthdate of child), should receive the benefits and advantages of a good home, to the end that

(she) (he) may be fitted for the requirements of life, consent to this surrender.

I, the undersigned, (insert relationship to child) of the aforesaid child, do hereby surrender the child to (insert name of child-placing agency or Department of Human Services, as applicable) and promise not to interfere in the management of the child in any respect whatever; and, in consideration of the benefits guaranteed by (insert name of child-placing agency or Department of Human Services, as applicable) in thus providing for the child, I do relinquish all right, title, and claim to the child herein named, it being my wish, intent, and purpose to relinquish absolutely all parental control over the child.

Furthermore, I hereby agree that the (insert name of child-placing agency or Department of Human Services, as applicable) may seek for the child a legal adoption by such person or persons as may be chosen by the (insert name of child-placing agency or Department of Human Services, as applicable) or its authorized agents, without further notice to me. I do, furthermore, expressly waive any other notice or service in any of the legal proceedings for the adoption of the child.

Furthermore, I understand that under Georgia law the Department of Human Services or the child-placing agency is required to conduct an investigation and render a report to the court in connection with the legal proceeding for the legal adoption of the child and I hereby agree to cooperate fully with such department or agency in the conduct of its investigation.

Furthermore, I hereby certify that I have received a copy of this document and that I understand I may only withdraw this surrender by giving written notice, delivered in person or mailed by registered mail or statutory overnight delivery, to (insert name and address of child-placing agency or Department of Human Services, as applicable) within ten days from the date hereof; that the ten days shall be counted consecutively beginning with the day immediately following the date hereof; however, if the tenth day falls on a Saturday, Sunday, or legal holiday then the last day on which the surrender may be withdrawn shall be the next day that is not a Saturday, Sunday, or legal holiday; and I understand that it may NOT be withdrawn thereafter.

Furthermore, I hereby certify that I have not been subjected to any duress or undue pressure in the execution of this surrender document and do so freely and voluntarily.

SURRENDER OF RIGHTS
FINAL RELEASE FOR ADOPTION
NOTICE TO PARENT OR GUARDIAN:

This is an important legal document and by signing it you are surrendering all of your right, title, and claim to the child identified herein so as to facilitate the child’s placement for adoption. You are to receive a copy of this document and as explained below have the right to withdraw your surrender within ten days from the date you sign it.

I, the undersigned, being solicitous that my (male) (female) child, born (insert name of child), on (insert birthdate of child), should receive the benefits and advantages of a good home, to the end that (she) (he) may be fitted for the requirements of life, consent to this surrender.

I, the undersigned, (insert relationship to child) of the aforesaid child, do hereby surrender the child to (insert name, surname not required, of each person to whom surrender is made), PROVIDED that each such person is named as petitioner in a petition for adoption of the child filed in accordance with Article 1 of Chapter 8 of Title 19 of the Official Code of Georgia Annotated within 60 days from the date hereof. Furthermore, I promise not to interfere in the management of the child in any respect whatever; and, in consideration of the benefits guaranteed by (insert name, surname not required, of each person to whom surrender is made) in thus providing for the child, I do relinquish all right, title, and claim to the child herein named, it being my wish, intent, and purpose to relinquish absolutely all parental control over the child.

It is also my wish, intent, and purpose that if each such person is not named as petitioner in a petition for adoption as provided for above within the 60 day period, other than for excusable neglect, or, if said petition for adoption is filed within 60 days but the adoption action is dismissed with prejudice or otherwise concluded without an order declaring the child to be the adopted child of each such person, then I do hereby surrender the child as follows:

— I wish the child returned to me, and I expressly acknowledge that this provision applies only to the limited circumstance that the child is not adopted by the person or persons designated herein and further that this provision does not impair the validity, absolute finality, or totality of this surrender under any circumstance other than the failure of the designated person or persons to adopt the child and that no other provision of this surrender impairs the validity, absolute finality, or totality of this surrender once the revocation period has elapsed; or

— I surrender the child to (insert name of designated licensed child-placing agency), a licensed child-placing agency, for placement for adoption; or

— I surrender the child to the Department of Human Services, as provided by subsection (k) of Code Section 19-8-5, for placement for adoption; and (insert name of designated licensed child-placing agency) or the Department of Human Services may petition the superior court for custody of the child in accordance with the terms of this surrender.

Furthermore, I hereby agree that the child is to be adopted either by each person named above or by any other such person as may be chosen by the (insert name of designated licensed child-placing agency) or the Department of Human Services and I do expressly waive any other notice or service in any of the legal proceedings for the adoption of the child.

Furthermore, I understand that under Georgia law an evaluator is required to conduct and provide to the court a home study and make recommendations to the court regarding the qualification of each person named above to adopt a child concerning the circumstances of placement of my child for adoption. I hereby agree to cooperate fully with such investigations.

Furthermore, I understand that under Georgia law, an agent appointed by the court is required to conduct an investigation and render a report to the court in connection with the legal proceeding for the legal adoption of the child, and I hereby agree to cooperate fully with such agent in the conduct of this investigation.

Furthermore, I hereby certify that I have received a copy of this document and that I understand I may only withdraw this surrender by giving written notice, delivered in person or mailed by registered mail or statutory overnight delivery, to (insert name and address of agent of each person to whom surrender is made) within ten days from the date hereof; that the ten days shall be counted consecutively beginning with the day immediately following the date hereof; provided, however, that if the tenth day falls on a Saturday, Sunday, or legal holiday, then the last day on which the surrender may be withdrawn shall be the next day that is not a Saturday, Sunday, or legal holiday; and I understand that it may NOT be withdrawn thereafter.

Furthermore, I hereby certify that I have not been subjected to any duress or undue pressure in the execution of this surrender document and do so freely and voluntarily.

(f) The pre-birth surrender of rights by a biological father who is not the legal father of the child pursuant to paragraph (3) of subsection (e) of Code Section 19-8-4, 19-8-5, or 19-8-7 shall conform substantially to the following form:

PRE-BIRTH SURRENDER OF RIGHTS
NOTICE TO ALLEGED BIOLOGICAL FATHER

This is an important legal document and by signing it you are surrendering any and all of your right, title, and claim to the child identified herein, so as to facilitate the child's placement for adoption. You have the right to wait to execute a Surrender of Rights Final Release for Adoption after the child is born, but by signing this document you are electing to surrender your rights prior to the birth of this child. You are to receive a copy of this document and as explained below have the right to withdraw your pre-birth surrender within ten days from the date you sign it.

I, the undersigned, understand that I have been named by _____, the mother of the child expected to be born in _____(city) _____(county) _____(state) on or about the _____day of _____(month), _____(year), as the biological father or possible biological father of her child. I further understand that the mother wishes to place this child for adoption.

To the best of my knowledge and belief, the child has not been born as of the date I am signing this pre-birth surrender; however, if in fact the child has been born, this surrender shall have the same effect as if it were a surrender executed following the birth of the child.

I understand that by signing this document I am not admitting that I am the biological father of this child, but if I am, I hereby agree that adoption is in this child's best interest. I consent to adoption of this child by any person chosen by the child's mother or by any public or private child-placing agency without further notice to me. I expressly waive any other notice or service in any of the legal proceedings for the adoption of the child.

I understand that I have the option to wait until after the child is born to execute a surrender of my rights (with a corresponding ten-day right of withdrawal) and, further, that by executing this document I am electing instead to surrender my rights before the child's birth.

I further understand that execution of this document does not fully and finally terminate my responsibilities until a final order of adoption is entered. I understand that if the child is not adopted, legal proceedings can be brought to establish paternity, and I may become liable for financial obligations related to the birth and support of this child.

Furthermore, I hereby certify that I have received a copy of this document and that I understand that I may only withdraw this pre-birth surrender by giving written notice, delivered in person or by statutory overnight delivery or registered mail, return receipt requested, to _____ within ten days from the date hereof; that the ten days shall be counted consecutively beginning with the day immediately following the date hereof; that, however, if the tenth day falls on a Saturday, Sunday, or legal holiday, then the last day on which the surrender may be withdrawn shall be the next day that is not a Saturday, Sunday, or legal holiday; and that it may NOT be withdrawn thereafter.

If prior to my signing this pre-birth surrender I have registered on Georgia's putative father registry then if I do not withdraw this surrender within the time permitted, I waive the notice I would be entitled to receive pursuant to the provisions of Code Section 19-8-12 of the Official Code of Georgia Annotated because of my registration on the putative father registry.

Furthermore, I hereby certify that I have not been subjected to any duress or undue pressure in the execution of this document and do so freely and voluntarily.

Code Commission notes. — Pursuant to Code Section 28-9-5, in 1990, a comma was deleted following “19-8-7” near the beginning of subsection (g) and semicolons were substituted for a comma following “executed” and for a period following “legal holiday” in (D) of the form set out in subsection (g).

Pursuant to Code Section 28-9-5, in 1991, a semicolon was substituted for the period at the end of (D) of the form in subsection (g).

Pursuant to Code Section 28-9-5, in 1999, “biological” was substituted for “Biological” in the signature line in the form in subsection (d) and “mother’s” was substituted for “Mother’s” in the signature line in the form in subsection (h).

Pursuant to Code Section 28-9-5, in 2007, “signature” was substituted for “Signature” in the signature line in the form in paragraph (h)(2).

Editor’s notes. — Ga. L. 1999, p. 252, § 11, not codified by the General Assembly, provides that: “The provisions of this Act shall apply to petitions for adoption filed on or after July 1, 1999, except that each surrender of rights filed pursuant to a petition filed on or after July 1, 1999, shall be effective if such surrender of rights complies with the provisions of law in effect on the date of the execution of such surrender of rights.”

Ga. L. 2007, p. 342, § 10/HB 497, not codified by the General Assembly, provides that subsection (f) shall apply to proceedings under this chapter on or after July 1, 2007.

Ga. L. 2009, p. 800, § 1HB/388, not codified by the General Assembly, provides that: “This Act shall be known and may be cited as the ‘Option of Adoption Act.’”

Ga. L. 2011, p. 573, § 8/SB 172, not codified by the General Assembly, provides that the amendment to this Code section shall apply to all placements of children for adoption and all petitions for adoption filed on or after July 1, 2011.

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the statutory provisions, decisions under former Code 1933, § 74-404 and former § 19-8-4 are included in the annotations for this Code section.

Requirement of procedural strict compliance. — Procedure for surrender of parental rights requires strict compliance. Johnson v. Smith, 251 Ga. 1, 302 S.E.2d 542 (1983) (decided under former § 19-8-4).

Absence from the record of the form required under O.C.G.A. § 19-8-26(a) and the affidavit required under O.C.G.A. § 19-8-26(j) invalidated a surrender document as a matter of law. In re Stroh, 240 Ga. App. 835, 523 S.E.2d 887 (1999).

One policy of former § 19-8-4 was to ensure that the parent giving up parental rights had knowledge of the surrender, had the surrender explained to her, had an opportunity to talk with a lawyer, and had freely agreed to the surrender. Bozeman v. Williams, 248 Ga. 606, 285 S.E.2d 9 (1981) (decided under former § 19-8-4).

False statements in affidavit. — "Mother's Affidavit" containing knowingly false statements purporting to address the material issues of the natural father's lack of parental involvement does not substantially comply with the requirements of O.C.G.A. §§ 19-8-6(g) and 19-8-26(h) so as to sustain a judgment terminating the father's parental rights based thereon. Coleman v. Grimes, 250 Ga. App. 880, 553 S.E.2d 185 (2001).

Surrender of rights freely and voluntarily given. — Finding that mother's surrender of her parental rights was freely and voluntarily given was not erroneous since, prior to signing the surrender and acknowledgment thereof, she had discussed her decision with members of her family and was fully aware of the legal consequences of her actions. Howard v.

Bridger, 189 Ga. App. 292, 375 S.E.2d 270 (1988) (decided under former § 19-8-4).

Different forms required for surrenders to third person and relatives. — Different form is required when the child is being surrendered to third persons than is necessary when the surrender is to relatives. Tyson v. Department of Human Resources, 165 Ga. App. 414, 301 S.E.2d 485 (1983) (decided under former § 19-8-4).

Written surrender of the natural mother's parental rights which conformed substantially to the form provided for in paragraph (c)(1) of former § 19-8-4 concerning adoption by a relative but declared invalid because prospective adoptive parent was not a relative of the natural mother could not be treated as a surrender of the mother's right to a third person under paragraph (c)(2) of former § 19-8-4 and resulted in the natural mother retaining her rights to the child. Tyson v. Department of Human Resources, 165 Ga. App. 414, 301 S.E.2d 485 (1983) (decided under former § 19-8-4).

Use of wrong form. — It was error for the trial court to dismiss an adoption petition solely on the technical ground that the wrong form had been used, when one of the adoption petitioners was a relative and the other was not, and they chose to use the "non-relative" form because the class of persons encompassed by it is broader than the class encompassed by the "relative" form. Dover v. Dover, 193 Ga. App. 433, 388 S.E.2d 35 (1989) (decided under former § 19-8-4).

Although a mother failed to provide an affidavit as required by O.C.G.A. § 19-8-26(h) in an adoption petition by the mother's new husband over her three minor children, such was deemed immaterial and therefore harmless because the statutory requisites had been met because the mother alleged that the father did not live with the children, that he failed to pay the court-ordered support for them for more than a year, and the mother asserted that the father provided no financial assistance. McCurry v. Harding, 270 Ga. App. 416, 606 S.E.2d 639 (2004).

Omission of language from form. — Surrender of parental rights form that did not contain language surrendering child to the Department of Human Resources if the adoptive parents failed to file a petition for adoption within 60 days did not render the surrender invalid when, under the facts of the case, the language would have been mere surplusage. Lee v. Stringer, 212 Ga. App. 401, 441 S.E.2d 861 (1994), overruled on other grounds 224 Ga. App. 124, 479 S.E.2d 439 (1996).

Acknowledgment of surrender of parental rights must be in writing and signed by parent. Nelson v. Taylor, 244 Ga. 657, 261 S.E.2d 579 (1979) (decided under former Code 1933, § 74-404).

Effect of revocation of parental consent within ten days. — When parental consent was freely and voluntarily revoked by them within ten days as prescribed by law, they were entitled to custody of child and rendered temporary custody order to prospective adopting parents and all subsequent adoption proceedings nugatory. Edwards v. Johnson, 244 Ga. 467, 260 S.E.2d 875 (1979) (decided under former Code 1933, § 74-404).

Failed adoption does not become surrender of parental rights. — When an intended adoption fails due to a lack of compliance with the adoption statutes, an alleged surrender of parental rights will not then be upheld under O.C.G.A. § 19-7-1(b)(1) as such a procedure would tend to vitiate the policies underlying the adoption statutes. Johnson v. Smith, 251 Ga. 1, 302 S.E.2d 542 (1983) (decided under former § 19-8-4).

Assignment of adoption rights not authorized. — There is nothing in the adoption statute which authorizes an assignment of adoption rights from one third party to another. Tyson v. Department of Human Resources, 165 Ga. App.

414, 301 S.E.2d 485 (1983) (decided under former § 19-8-4).

Natural mother's surrender of right automatically revocable within ten days. — When a natural mother has signed a surrender of parental rights, she would have an automatic right to withdraw the surrender by written notice within ten days after signing. Johnson v. Smith, 251 Ga. 1, 302 S.E.2d 542 (1983) (decided under former § 19-8-4).

Revocation prior to adoption for good and sufficient cause. — After ten days, although consent of the living parent or parents of a child to adoption may not be withdrawn as a matter of right, it does not preclude such revocation prior to final adoption for good and sufficient cause. Ridgley v. Helms, 168 Ga. App. 435, 309 S.E.2d 375 (1983) (decided under former § 19-8-4).

Affirmation of surrender. — Absence from the record of affidavits required under O.C.G.A. § 19-8-26 did not invalidate a surrender since the mother never contested the validity thereof but, instead, reaffirmed at the final hearing her intention to release the child to the parties seeking to adopt and her consent to their adoption of the child. In re Stroh, 240 Ga. App. 835, 523 S.E.2d 887 (1999).

Surrender not voided. — Even though revocation of consent may be allowed more than 10 days after consent is given, when the mother had acted freely and voluntarily and the trial court found her competent, the court did not err in finding that she failed to establish good and sufficient cause to void the surrender. Schumacher v. Sexton, 216 Ga. App. 628, 455 S.E.2d 348 (1995).

(a) As used in this Code section, the term "birth relative" means:

(1) A parent, biological father who is not the legal father, grandparent, brother, sister, half-brother, or half-sister who is related by blood or marriage to a child who is being adopted or who has been adopted; or

(2) A grandparent, brother, sister, half-brother, or half-sister who is related by adoption to a child who is being adopted or who has been adopted.

(b)(1) An adopting parent or parents and birth relatives or an adopting parent or parents, birth relatives, and a child who is 14 years of age or older who is being adopted or who has been adopted may voluntarily enter into a written postadoption contact agreement to permit continuing contact between such birth relatives and such child. A child who is 14 years of age or older shall be considered a party to a postadoption contact agreement.

(2) A postadoption contact agreement may provide for privileges regarding a child who is being adopted or who has been adopted, including, but not limited to, visitation with such child, contact with such child, sharing of information about such child, or sharing of information about birth relatives.

(3) In order to be an enforceable postadoption contact agreement, such agreement shall be in writing and signed by all of the parties to such agreement acknowledging their consent to its terms and conditions.

(4) Enforcement, modification, or termination of a postadoption contact agreement shall be under the continuing jurisdiction of the court that granted the petition of adoption; provided, however, that the parties to a postadoption contact agreement may expressly waive the right to enforce, modify, or terminate such agreement under this Code section.

(5) Any party to the postadoption contact agreement may, at any time, file the original postadoption contact agreement with the court that has or had jurisdiction over the adoption if such agreement provides for the court to enforce such agreement or such agreement is silent as to the issue of enforcement.

(c) A postadoption contact agreement shall contain the following warnings in at least 14 point boldface type:

(1) After the entry of a decree for adoption, an adoption cannot be set aside due to the failure of an adopting parent, a birth parent, a birth relative, or the child to follow the terms of this agreement or a later change to this agreement; and

(2) A disagreement between the parties or litigation brought to enforce, terminate, or modify this agreement shall not affect the validity of the adoption and shall not serve as a basis for orders affecting the custody of the child.

(d)(1) As used in this subsection, the term "parties" means the individuals who signed the postadoption contact agreement currently in effect, including the child if he or she is 14 years of age or older at the time of the action regarding such agreement, but such term shall exclude any third-party beneficiary to such agreement.

(2) A postadoption contact agreement may always be modified or terminated if the parties have voluntarily signed a written modified postadoption contact agreement or termination of a postadoption contact agreement. A modified postadoption contact agreement may be filed with the court if such agreement provides for the court to enforce such agreement or such agreement is silent as to the issue of enforcement.

(e) With respect to postadoption contact agreements that provide for court enforcement or termination or are silent as to such matters, any party, as defined in paragraph (1) of subsection (d) of this Code section, may file a petition to enforce or terminate such agreement with the court that granted the petition of adoption, and the court shall enforce the terms of such agreement or terminate such agreement if such court finds by a preponderance of the evidence that the enforcement or termination is necessary to serve the best interests of the child.

(f) With respect to postadoption contact agreements that provide for court modification or are silent as to modification, only the adopting parent or parents may file a petition seeking modification. Such petition shall be filed with the court that granted the petition of adoption, and the court shall modify such agreement if such court finds by a preponderance of the evidence that the modification is necessary to serve the best interests of the child and there has been a material change of circumstances since the current postadoption contact agreement was executed.

(g) A court may require the party seeking modification, termination, or enforcement of a postadoption contact agreement to participate in mediation or other appropriate alternative dispute resolution.

(h) All reasonable costs and expenses of mediation, alternative dispute resolution, and litigation shall be borne by the party, other than the child, filing the action to enforce, modify, or terminate a postadoption contact agreement when no party has been found by the court as failing to comply with an existing postadoption contact agreement. Otherwise, a party, other than the child, found by the court as failing to comply without good cause with an existing postadoption contact agreement shall bear all the costs and expenses of mediation, alternative dispute resolution, and litigation of the other party.

(i) A court shall not set aside a decree of adoption, rescind a surrender, or modify an order to terminate parental rights or any other prior court order because of the failure of an adoptive parent, a birth relative, or the child to comply with any or all of the original terms of, or subsequent modifications to, a postadoption contact agreement. (Code 1981, § 19-8-27, enacted by Ga. L. 2013, p. 1097, § 1/HB 21.)

Effective date. — This Code section became effective July 1, 2013.

ARTICLE 2

OPTION OF ADOPTION

Editor's notes. — Ga. L. 2009, p. 800, § 1/HB 388, not codified by the General Assembly, provides that: "This Act shall be known and may be cited as the 'Option of Adoption Act.'"

19-8-40. Definitions.

As used in this article, the term:

(1) “Embryo” or “human embryo” means an individual fertilized ovum of the human species from the single-cell stage to eight-week development.

(2) “Embryo relinquishment” or “legal transfer of rights to an embryo” means the relinquishment of rights and responsibilities by the person or persons who hold the legal rights and responsibilities for an embryo and the acceptance of such rights and responsibilities by a recipient intended parent.

(3) “Embryo transfer” means the medical procedure of physically placing an embryo into the uterus of a female.

(4) “Legal embryo custodian” means the person or persons who hold the legal rights and responsibilities for a human embryo and who relinquishes said embryo to another person or persons.

(5) “Recipient intended parent” means a person or persons who receive a relinquished embryo and who accepts full legal rights and responsibilities for such embryo and any child that may be born as a result of embryo transfer. (Code 1981, § 19-8-40, enacted by Ga. L. 2009, p. 800, § 2/HB 388.)

Law reviews. — For annual survey of law on domestic relations, see 62 Mercer L. Rev. 105 (2010).

19-8-41. Release of responsibility by legal embryo custodian; procedures; presumption of parentage.

(a) A legal embryo custodian may relinquish all rights and responsibilities for an embryo to a recipient intended parent prior to embryo transfer. A written contract shall be entered into between each legal embryo custodian and each recipient intended parent prior to embryo transfer for the legal transfer of rights to an embryo and to any child that may result from the embryo transfer. The contract shall be signed by each legal embryo custodian for such embryo and by each recipient intended parent in the presence of a notary public and a witness. Initials or other designations may be used if the parties desire anonymity. The contract may include a written waiver by the legal embryo custodian of notice and service in any legal adoption or other parentage proceeding which may follow.

(b) If the embryo was created using donor gametes, the sperm or oocyte donors who irrevocably relinquished their rights in connection with in vitro fertilization shall not be entitled to any notice of the embryo relinquishment, nor shall their consent to the embryo relinquishment be required.

(c) Upon embryo relinquishment by each legal embryo custodian pursuant to subsection (a) of this Code section, the legal transfer of rights to an embryo shall be considered complete, and the embryo transfer shall be authorized.

(d) A child born to a recipient intended parent as the result of embryo relinquishment pursuant to subsection (a) of this Code section shall be presumed to be the legal child of the recipient intended parent; provided that each legal embryo custodian and each recipient intended parent has entered into a written contract. (Code 1981, § 19-8-41, enacted by Ga. L. 2009, p. 800, § 2/HB 388.)

19-8-42. Petition for expedited order of adoption or parentage; notice; waiver of technical requirements.

(a) Prior to the birth of a child or following the birth of a child, a recipient intended parent may petition the superior court for an expedited order of adoption or parentage. In such cases, the written contract between each legal embryo custodian and each recipient intended parent shall be acceptable in lieu of a surrender of rights.

(b) All petitions under this article shall be filed in the county in which any petitioner or any respondent resides.

(c) The court shall give effect to any written waiver of notice and service in the legal proceeding for adoption or parentage.

(d) In the interest of justice, to promote the stability of embryo transfers, and to promote the interests of children who may be born following such embryo transfers, the court in its discretion may waive such technical requirements as the court deems just and proper. (Code 1981, § 19-8-42, enacted by Ga. L. 2009, p. 800, § 2/HB 388.)

19-8-43. Finality of orders of adoption or parentage.

Upon a filing of a petition for adoption or parentage and the court finding that such petition meets the criteria required by this article, an expedited order of adoption or parentage shall be issued and shall be a final order. Such order shall terminate any future parental rights and responsibilities of any past or present legal embryo custodian or gamete donor in a child which results from the embryo transfer and shall vest such rights and responsibilities in the recipient intended parent. (Code 1981, § 19-8-43, enacted by Ga. L. 2009, p. 800, § 2/HB 388.)

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the statutory provisions, decisions under former Civil Code 1910, § 2931 and former Code 1933, § 50-121, as it read prior to 1981 recodification are included in the annotations for this article.

For additional cases dealing with custody of children, see annotations under Code section § 9-14-2, dealing with habeas corpus on account of detention of child, and Code sections §§ 19-7-1 and 19-7-4 dealing with parental powers and loss of parental custody.

Court where custodial parent resides has exclusive jurisdiction to change custody. — General rule is that court where parent with legal custody resides has exclusive right to award change of custody. This is true whether legal custodian lives in another state or in another county, and irrespective of physical presence of child. Matthews v. Matthews, 238 Ga. 201, 232 S.E.2d 76 (1977) (decided under former Code 1933, § 50-121).

Acknowledged or established rights of parties. — In exercising discretion, judge shall not disregard or impair acknowledged or established rights of any party; to do so would constitute an abuse of discretion. Hill v. Rivers, 200 Ga. 354, 37 S.E.2d 386 (1946) (decided under former Code 1933, § 50-121).

When court's discretion should favor party with legal interest. — Court's discretion should be exercised in favor of party having legal right unless evidence shows that interest and welfare of child justify judge in awarding child's custody to another. Harper v. Ballensinger, 121 Ga. App. 390, 174 S.E.2d 182, rev'd in part on other grounds, 226 Ga. 828, 177 S.E.2d 693 (1970) (decided under former Code 1933, § 50-121).

While judge in awarding custody of child is vested with wide discretion, such discretion should be governed by rules of law, and when rivalry between parents for custody of child is not involved, discretion should be exercised in favor of the party having legal right, unless evidence shows that interest and welfare of the child justify the judge in awarding the child's custody to another. Harter v. Davis, 199 Ga. 503, 34 S.E.2d 657 (1945) (decided under former Code 1933, § 50-121).

Between parents, best interests of child controls. — In all cases between parents for custody of minor children, law imposes upon trial judge duty to exercise sound discretion and to let welfare of child control judges award. The judge is empowered to award such custody to a nonresident for one month each year, and to resident parent for other 11 months; and whether judge requires bond of nonresident for return of child is a matter solely in the judges discretion. Pruitt v. Butterfield, 189 Ga. 593, 6 S.E.2d 786 (1940) (decided under former Code 1933, § 50-121).

Standing of child's sister to seek change of custody. — When there is none having legal right to custody save the father, it would be a travesty to hold that none other, even a sister of the child, has standing to seek change of custody if it appears that welfare of child requires it. Harper v. Ballensinger, 121 Ga. App. 390, 174 S.E.2d 182, rev'd in part on other grounds, 226 Ga. 828, 177 S.E.2d 693 (1970) (decided under former Code 1933, § 50-121).

When trial court's disposition will not be disturbed. — If evidence material to inquiry into change of circumstances is in conflict, disposition made by trial court will not be controlled by appellate courts. Bosson v. Bosson, 223 Ga. 793, 158 S.E.2d 231 (1967) (decided under former Code 1933, § 50-121).

Material and proper showing of party's unfitness. — It is usually material and proper for one party to show that other is unfit to have custody of child. Beck v. Beck, 134 Ga. 137, 67 S.E. 543 (1910); Crapps v. Smith, 9 Ga. App. 400, 71 S.E. 501 (1911) (decided under former Civil Code 1910, § 2931).

"Changed circumstances." — Change of circumstances that would render prior judgment inconclusive is not necessarily limited to change in moral or financial condition of parent to whom initial award was made, but includes any new and material change in circumstances of either parent or of children, which might substantially affect the health, happiness, or welfare of the children. Handley v. Handley, 204 Ga. 57, 48 S.E.2d 827 (1948); Robinson v. Ashmore, 232 Ga. 498, 207 S.E.2d 484 (1974) (decided under former Code 1933, § 50-121).

Change in capacity, ability, or fitness of either parent. — Capacity, ability, or fitness of party to whom child was awarded in previous proceeding may thereafter become entirely different. Status of both such parties and child may have changed. Change of circumstances may render a change necessary in order to promote the health, happiness, or welfare of the child. Handley v. Handley, 204 Ga. 57, 48 S.E.2d 827 (1948) (decided under former Code 1933, § 50-121).

Parent may lose right to custody if found by clear and convincing evidence to be unfit. White v. Bryan, 236 Ga. 349, 223 S.E.2d 710 (1976) (decided under former Code 1933, § 50-121).

Mother's extramarital affairs as ground for giving custody to grandparents. — When husband was overseas with armed forces and wife had been engaging in illicit relations with another man while the children were left without adult supervision, the judge was authorized to find that it was in the best interests of three and five-year-old children to be left in the custody of the paternal grandmother. Harter v. Davis, 199 Ga. 503, 34 S.E.2d 657 (1945) (decided under former Code 1933, § 50-121).

Prisoner on parole is unfit for custody at that time. — While commission of crime might not absolutely forfeit father's right to custody of infant for all time, being a prisoner on parole makes him a person unfit to care for his child. Yancey v. Watson, 217 Ga. 215, 121 S.E.2d 772 (1961) (decided under former Code 1933, § 50-121).

Evidence of past homosexual conduct not basis for denying custody. — When there was no evidence that mother was presently engaged in homosexual relationship but merely some evidence of past conduct, custody should not have been denied on basis of unfitness. Gay v. Gay, 149 Ga. App. 173, 253 S.E.2d 846 (1979) (decided under former Code 1933, § 50-121).

Out-of-state custody awards entitled to full faith and credit. — Judgment of court of competent jurisdiction of sister state, awarding custody of minor child, which is regular on judgment's face and unimpeached for fraud, is entitled to full faith and credit in proceedings for custody of child in this state. Bowen v. Bowen, 223 Ga. 800, 158 S.E.2d 233 (1967), overruled on other grounds, Crumbley v. Stewart, 238 Ga. 169, 231 S.E.2d 772 (1977) (decided under former Code 1933, § 50-121).

Same considerations apply to modification of custody awards of other states. — Judgment of court of competent jurisdiction of sister state may be modified only when it appears that there has been such change in conditions since original decree as would authorize modification of similar judgment rendered by courts of this state. Bowen v. Bowen, 223 Ga. 800, 158 S.E.2d 233 (1967), overruled on other grounds, Crumbley v. Stewart, 238 Ga. 169, 231 S.E.2d 772 (1977) (decided under former Code 1933, § 50-121).

19-9-1. Parenting plans; requirements for plan.

(a) Except when a parent seeks emergency relief for family violence pursuant to Code Section 19-13-3 or 19-13-4, in all cases in which the custody of any child is at issue between the parents, each parent shall prepare a parenting plan or the parties may jointly submit a parenting plan. It shall be in the judge's discretion as to when a party shall be required to submit a parenting plan to the judge. A parenting plan shall be required for permanent custody and modification actions and in the judge's discretion may be required for temporary hearings. The final decree in any legal action involving the custody of a child, including modification actions, shall incorporate a permanent parenting plan.

(b)(1) Unless otherwise ordered by the judge, a parenting plan shall include the following:

(A) A recognition that a close and continuing parent-child relationship and continuity in the child's life will be in the child's best interest;

(B) A recognition that the child's needs will change and grow as the child matures and demonstrate that the parents will make an effort to parent that takes this issue into account so that future modifications to the parenting plan are minimized;

(C) A recognition that a parent with physical custody will make day-to-day decisions and emergency decisions while the child is residing with such parent; and

(D) That both parents will have access to all of the child's records and information, including, but not limited to, education, health, health insurance, extracurricular activities, and religious communications.

(2) Unless otherwise ordered by the judge, or agreed upon by the parties, a parenting plan shall include, but not be limited to:

(A) Where and when a child will be in each parent's physical care, designating where the child will spend each day of the year;

(B) How holidays, birthdays, vacations, school breaks, and other special occasions will be spent with each parent including the time of day that each event will begin and end;

(C) Transportation arrangements including how the child will be exchanged between the parents, the location of the exchange, how the transportation costs will be paid, and any other matter relating to the child spending time with each parent;

(D) Whether supervision will be needed for any parenting time and, if so, the particulars of the supervision;

(E) An allocation of decision-making authority to one or both of the parents with regard to the child's education, health, extracurricular activities, and religious upbringing, and if the parents agree the matters should be jointly decided, how to resolve a situation in which the parents disagree on resolution;

(F) What, if any, limitations will exist while one parent has physical custody of the child in terms of the other parent contacting the child and the other parent's right to access education, health, extracurricular activity, and religious information regarding the child; and

(G) If a military parent is a party in the case:

(i) How to manage the child's transition into temporary physical custody to a nondeploying parent if a military parent is deployed;

(ii) The manner in which the child will maintain continuing contact with a deployed parent;

(iii) How a deployed parent's parenting time may be delegated to his or her extended family;

(iv) How the parenting plan will be resumed once the deployed parent returns from deployment; and

(v) How divisions (i) through (iv) of this subparagraph serve the best interest of the child.

(c) If the parties cannot reach agreement on a permanent parenting plan, each party shall file and serve a proposed parenting plan on or before the date set by the judge. Failure to comply with filing a parenting plan may result in the judge adopting the plan of the opposing party if the judge finds such plan to be in the best interests of the child. (Orig. General Consideration

Statute deals with custody of minor children as between parents. Rogers v. Smith, 222 Ga. 841, 152 S.E.2d 859 (1967).

Superior courts of this state have subject matter jurisdiction over issues of child custody. Foltz v. Foltz, 238 Ga. 193, 232 S.E.2d 66 (1977).

Statute contemplated that judge, and not jury, shall dispose of children of marriage. Johnson v. Johnson, 131 Ga. 606, 62 S.E. 1044 (1908); Alf v. Alf, 226 Ga. 880, 178 S.E.2d 187 (1970).

When divorce is sought, court rather than jury has duty of disposing of custody of parties' minor children in their best interests. Weaver v. Weaver, 238 Ga. 101, 230 S.E.2d 886 (1976).

Power granted by section is one incident to divorce proceeding. — Trial judge can exercise power regarding custody of children only when divorces are granted, or can only make disposition of minor children of marriage during period divorce proceeding is pending. When case is terminated without divorce being granted to either party, court cannot exercise this power. Brinson v. Jenkins, 207 Ga. 218, 60 S.E.2d 440 (1950).

Court could make final disposition of children only when divorce was granted. This power was incidental to divorce proceeding, and was exercisable only when valid divorce was granted between parties. Harmon v. Harmon, 209 Ga. 474, 74 S.E.2d 75 (1953); Griffis v. Griffis, 229 Ga. 587, 193 S.E.2d 620 (1972).

Section does not apply unless divorce granted. — Court can make a final disposition of children only if divorce is granted. If case is terminated without divorce being granted to either party, court can exercise no such power. Keppel v. Keppel, 92 Ga. 506, 17 S.E. 976 (1893); Black v. Black, 165 Ga. 243, 140 S.E. 364 (1927).

Jurisdiction and venue. — Although a trial court may modify, sua sponte, visitation under certain circumstances pursuant to O.C.G.A. §§ 19-9-1(b) and 19-9-3(b), those provisions apply only when jurisdiction and venue are proper. Rogers v. Baudet, 215 Ga. App. 214, 449 S.E.2d 900 (1994).

When final award of custody ordinarily made. — Final award of custody can ordinarily be made only after divorce has been granted. Brinson v. Jenkins, 207 Ga. 218, 60 S.E.2d 440 (1950).

In custody case, state as parens patriae is materially concerned, and through agency of court is virtually a party to judgment, although action proceeded nominally as one between parents only. Fortson v. Fortson, 195 Ga. 750, 25 S.E.2d 518 (1943), later appeal, 197 Ga. 699, 30 S.E.2d 165 (1944).

Meaning of words "party not in default" in subsection (a). — Words "party not in default" in subsection (a) simply meant that in absence of proof of circumstances showing children's welfare will be better served by awarding custody to another party, judge must under this mandate of the law award custody to such party. But further provisions of that section plainly empowered judge in exercise of sound discretion to place children where in the judge's judgment based upon evidence, their best interest will be served, although this might deny custody to parent not in default in divorce case. Gunnells v. Gunnells, 225 Ga. 188, 167 S.E.2d 138 (1969).

O.C.G.A. §§ 19-9-1 and 19-9-3 construed together in child custody decisions. — Courts have construed former Code 1933, §§ 30-127 and 74-107 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 19-9-1 and 19-9-3) together in decisions involving child custody in divorce actions, and have recognized right of trial judge to exercise sound legal discretion, looking to best interest of child or children, in awarding custody of children. Brown v. Brown, 222 Ga. 446, 150 S.E.2d 615 (1966).

Former Code 1933, §§ 30-127 and 30-206 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 19-9-1 and 19-6-14), being in pari materia, must be construed together. Zachry v. Zachry, 140 Ga. 479, 79 S.E. 115 (1913).

Father's failure to file competing parenting plan. — Although a father failed to file a competing parenting plan in the mother's proceeding to modify their current plan, that did not compel adoption of the mother's plan. Gilchrist v. Gilchrist, 323 Ga. App. 555, 747 S.E.2d 75 (2013).

Terms of original parenting plan not modified remain in effect. — Contrary to the husband's argument, the trial court's ruling did contain a parenting plan as the trial court's order explicitly stated that all the terms and conditions of the original parenting plan not modified would remain in full force and effect unless it conflicted with the trial court's order. Williams v. Williams, 295 Ga. 113, 757 S.E.2d 859 (2014).

237 Ga. 886, 230 S.E.2d 272 (1976); Nipper v. Rich, 241 Ga. 123, 244 S.E.2d 237 (1978); Sweeney v. Sweeney, 241 Ga. 372, 245 S.E.2d 648 (1978); Munday v. Munday, 243 Ga. 863, 257 S.E.2d 282 (1979); Stephens v. Stephens, 244 Ga. 467, 260 S.E.2d 864 (1979); Lawrence v. Day, 247 Ga. 474, 277 S.E.2d 35 (1981); Kennedy v. Adams, 218 Ga. App. 120, 460 S.E.2d 540 (1995); Lewis v. Lewis, 252 Ga. App. 539, 557 S.E.2d 40 (2001); Midkiff v. Midkiff, 275 Ga. 136, 562 S.E.2d 177 (2002); Hammond v. Gordon County, 316 F. Supp. 2d 1262 (N.D. Ga. 2002); Carr-MacArthur v. Carr, 296 Ga. 30, 764 S.E.2d 840 (2014).

Trial Judge's Discretion Generally

Court must exercise discretion in awarding custody of minor children. Waller v. Waller, 202 Ga. 535, 43 S.E.2d 535 (1947); Jackson v. Jackson, 230 Ga. 499, 197 S.E.2d 705 (1973).

Trial judge exercises sound legal discretion in awarding custody of minor children pending application for divorce looking to best interest of children. Lynn v. Lynn, 202 Ga. 776, 44 S.E.2d 769 (1947); Brannen v. Brannen, 208 Ga. 88, 65 S.E.2d 161 (1951); Harbuck v. Harbuck, 210 Ga. 220, 78 S.E.2d 508 (1953).

Trial court has wide latitude and discretion regarding child's best interests. — Judge has wide latitude and discretion regarding children's best interest, welfare, and happiness. This discretion will be interfered with only in those cases when abuse is shown. Barnes v. Tant, 217 Ga. 67, 121 S.E.2d 125 (1961).

When custody of minor children is involved, the trial court has wide latitude and discretion so that best interests of children may be provided for, and this discretion will not be interfered with unless manifestly abused. Yde v. Yde, 231 Ga. 506, 202 S.E.2d 423 (1973).

Judicial discretion to make temporary custody award. — Pending divorce proceeding, judge in exercise of sound discretion may temporarily award custody of children. Cason v. Cason, 158 Ga. 395, 123 S.E. 713 (1924).

Award of custody not disturbed absent abuse of discretion. — In cases between parties involving custody of their minor children, rule is established that judge exercises sound legal discretion, looking to the best interest of the child or children, and that this court does not interfere with the judge's judgment unless that discretion appears to have been abused. Willingham v. Willingham, 192 Ga. 405, 15 S.E.2d 514 (1941); Adams v. Heffernan, 217 Ga. 404, 122 S.E.2d 735 (1961).

When a trial judge in awarding custody of a minor child as between divorced parents, exercises sound legal discretion, the judge's judgment in making an award will not be controlled by the Supreme Court. Bignon v. Bignon, 202 Ga. 141, 42 S.E.2d 426 (1947); Murphy v. Murphy, 238 Ga. 130, 231 S.E.2d 743 (1977).

Supreme Court will not interfere with the trial judge's award of custody unless an abuse of discretion appears. Lynn v. Lynn, 202 Ga. 776, 44 S.E.2d 769 (1947); Brannen v. Brannen, 208 Ga. 88, 65 S.E.2d 161 (1951); Harbuck v. Harbuck, 210 Ga. 220, 78 S.E.2d 508 (1953); Jackson v. Jackson, 230 Ga. 499, 197 S.E.2d 705 (1973).

When the trial judge exercises sound legal discretion looking to the best interests of the child in determining the custody, the Supreme Court will not interfere with the judge's judgment unless it is shown that the judge's discretion was abused. Harris v. Harris, 240 Ga. 276, 240 S.E.2d 30 (1977).

In deciding issues of custody, the court is granted the power to exercise the court's sound discretion in making an award to either party. When the trial judge exercises sound legal discretion looking to the best interests of the child, the appellate court will not interfere with the judge's judgment unless it is shown that the judge's discretion was abused. Sullivan v. Sullivan, 241 Ga. 7, 243 S.E.2d 35 (1978).

Award not disturbed. — Award of temporary alimony, attorney's fees, and child custody not disturbed absent abuse of discretion. Moody v. Moody, 193 Ga. 699, 19 S.E.2d 504 (1942).

Judicial discretion generally not subject to review. — Absent exception to decree, discretion of judge in awarding custody is not subject to review. Johnson v. Johnson, 131 Ga. 606, 62 S.E. 1044 (1908).

When evidence conflicts regarding willful violation of custody, discretion of trial court will not be disturbed. Shook v. Shook, 242 Ga. 55, 247 S.E.2d 855 (1978).

If any evidence supports custody award, it will not be disturbed. — On appeal in child custody award pursuant to divorce decree, the appellate court will not reverse the trial court on ground of abuse of discretion if there is any evidence to support child custody award. Gazaway v. Brackett, 241 Ga. 127, 244 S.E.2d 238 (1978).

Evidence requiring reversal of trial court discretion. — Evidence must demand contrary verdict before appellate court will reverse discretion of trial court. Weaver v. Weaver, 238 Ga. 101, 230 S.E.2d 886 (1976).

Award of Custody

1. In General

Between parents neither has a prima facie right of custody, and judge can award custody to either parent within the judge's discretion. Todd v. Todd, 234 Ga. 156, 215 S.E.2d 4 (1975).

Court must look to and determine best interests of child in exercising discretion regarding custody. Barnes v. Tant, 217 Ga. 67, 121 S.E.2d 125 (1961).

Trial court's determination that a child's custody should be with the wife in the parties' divorce proceedings was based on the evidence from the guardian ad litem and from a psychologist that such an award was in the best interests of the child; thus, the court acted within the court's discretion. Nguyen v. Dinh, 278 Ga. 887, 608 S.E.2d 211 (2005).

Between parents, best interests of child control. — In divorce action in which child custody is an issue, test for use by trial court in determining which parent shall have child custody is best interests of child. Gazaway v. Brackett, 241 Ga. 127, 244 S.E.2d 238 (1978).

Upon a review of the trial court's final custody order, despite the wife's contrary claims, nothing in the custody order or the record showed that the court's custody ruling was based on any standard other than what was in the best interests of the children, and nothing showed that the court required the wife to disprove any allegations asserted by the husband. Moreover, the final custody determination need not be the same as that of any temporary order. Hadden v. Hadden, 283 Ga. 424, 659 S.E.2d 353 (2008).

Children's best interests control, regardless of one parent's apparent willingness to give custody to other parent. Weaver v. Weaver, 238 Ga. 101, 230 S.E.2d 886 (1976).

Mother's relocation to another state. — Although a mother's relocation out of state was not in itself harmful to the children, but the relocation did interfere with the children's family associations in Georgia, the trial court did not abuse the court's discretion in granting custody to the father during the school year. Hardin v. Hardin, 274 Ga. App. 543, 618 S.E.2d 169 (2005).

Mother's relocation out of country. — Trial court properly awarded joint legal custody to the parties with physical custody to the mother, and allowed the mother, a French citizen like the father, to move to France with the child. The record supported the findings that there was a special bond between the child, the mother, and the mother's family in France and that the mother could not obtain gainful employment in the United States; furthermore, the trial court applied the proper best interests standard in determining custody. LaFont v. Rouviere, 283 Ga. 60, 656 S.E.2d 522 (2008).

Agreement or consent to custody not controlling on court. — Any agreement or consent to custody between husband and wife is not controlling on court. Weaver v. Weaver, 238 Ga. 101, 230 S.E.2d 886 (1976).

If child custody is unresolved at the end of the evidence, the trial judge should either resolve the question of child custody and so inform the jury prior to their deliberations or, if for any reason the judge does not wish to tell the jury which parent will have custody, the judge must provide the jury with alternative jury forms in which the jury may make different awards, if necessary, depending on which parent will have custody. Curtis v. Curtis, 255 Ga. 288, 336 S.E.2d 770 (1985), overruled on other grounds, Grissom v. Grissom, 282 Ga. 267, 647 S.E.2d 1 (2007).

Factors to be considered in awarding custody. — In awarding custody, court may properly consider each parent's fitness, character, personality, and general health. Weaver v. Weaver, 238 Ga. 101, 230 S.E.2d 886 (1976).

Improved health, conduct, and moral perspective, alone, will not require award of custody to that parent. Floyd v. Floyd, 218 Ga. 606, 129 S.E.2d 786 (1963).

Improvement of health is factor for consideration in awarding custody. — Improvement of health is now one of the many factors, germane but not of itself controlling, to be taken into consideration by trial judge in ascertaining to whom award of child custody should be made. Floyd v. Floyd, 218 Ga. 606, 129 S.E.2d 786 (1963).

Legitimacy of child is an appropriate issue in divorce proceeding. McDonald v. Hester, 115 Ga. App. 740, 155 S.E.2d 720 (1967).

Parent's conduct is relevant to issue of custody although divorce is granted on no-fault grounds. Harris v. Harris, 240 Ga. 276, 240 S.E.2d 30 (1977).

Adultery by both parents. — Trial court did not err in finding that the wife's adultery did not cause the dissolution of the parties' marriage as there was evidence of adultery by both parties as well as evidence that the husband had physically injured the wife and that the husband's return to Ohio to work for his father caused the dissolution of the marriage; accordingly, there was no merit to the husband's argument that he should have been awarded sole custody of the children on the theory that the wife was the "defaulting party." Alejandro v. Alejandro, 282 Ga. 453, 651 S.E.2d 62 (2007).

Court-imposed limitations upon custody awards. — In awarding custody, court may impose such limitations as may be required by existing facts adduced on trial of issue. Tanner v. Tanner, 221 Ga.

406, 144 S.E.2d 740 (1965).

Petition for divorce need not contain specific prayer for custody. — When petition for divorce alleged that there were minor children, naming the children, and that petitioner desired to have their custody, it was not necessary that such petition contain a specific prayer for custody. Hammock v. Hammock, 209 Ga. 647, 74 S.E.2d 859 (1953).

Court jurisdiction where parties move after action is instituted. — Where court had jurisdiction of parties at time action was instituted, removal by parties and minor child of their to another county pending final termination of cause as to custody of child, did not deprive court of jurisdiction to pass on question of custody. Rowell v. Rowell, 211 Ga. 127, 84 S.E.2d 23 (1954).

Effect of former decrees or judgments upon custody awards. — On final verdict for divorce, the court shall not be hampered by former decree of judgment, but will be at full liberty in providing for welfare of children. Zachry v. Zachry, 140 Ga. 479, 79 S.E. 115 (1913).

Court may reserve child custody issue for future determination. — When court, in entering final decree granting divorce and awarding permanent alimony, reserved therein for future determination prayers of parties as to custody of their minor child, court, at subsequent term, after notice and hearing, had jurisdiction to award custody of such child. Rowell v. Rowell, 211 Ga. 127, 84 S.E.2d 23 (1954).

When no award of child custody is made in final decree of divorce, court has power to reserve issue of child custody and determine custody at subsequent term of court. Harwell v. Harwell, 248 Ga. 578, 285 S.E.2d 12 (1981).

Custody of unborn child may be decided after birth. — When divorce decree does not determine custody of unborn child, issue may be passed upon in appropriate proceeding instituted for that purpose after birth. Daughtry v. Daughtry, 218 Ga. 557, 129 S.E.2d 788 (1963).

Best interest of child. — While the trial court may consider the conduct of the parties on the issue of custody, the court ultimately must decide the custody question based on the best interest of the child. Mock v. Mock, 258 Ga. 407, 369 S.E.2d 255 (1988).

Court awarding custody cannot retain exclusive jurisdiction of matter thereafter. — Order of court in divorce decree, to effect that child of parties should remain within jurisdiction of court and that court retained jurisdiction of cause and parties thereto, constituted attempt on part of trial court to retain exclusive jurisdiction of case, which may not be done. Gibbs v. North, 211 Ga. 231, 84 S.E.2d 833 (1954).

Court's attempt to retain exclusive jurisdiction is a nullity. — Award of custody in divorce cases is a final judgment and any attempt by the trial court to retain jurisdiction for further orders regarding custody is a nullity and will not divest the award of its finality. Taylor v. Taylor, 231 Ga. 742, 204 S.E.2d 129 (1974).

Children need not be present at interlocutory hearing. — It is not necessary at interlocutory hearing in action for divorce to entitle court to award temporary custody of children of parties that such children be brought personally into court. Moody v. Moody, 193 Ga. 699, 19 S.E.2d 504 (1942).

Award of sole custody to one parent proper. — Trial court did not abuse court's discretion in awarding sole physical custody of two minor children to one parent when the grant was in the children's best interests and the other parent had an extramarital affair, but was granted liberal visitation with no restriction on the presence of the person with whom the affair had been conducted. Patel v. Patel, 276 Ga. 266, 577 S.E.2d 587 (2003).

Noncustodial parent not relieved of legal obligation to support child. — When wife obtains decree granting her a divorce and awarding to her custody of minor child, and no question as to support of such child by father has been made or passed on, he is not relieved of his legal obligation for proper support of such child. Brown v. Brown, 132 Ga. 712, 64 S.E. 1092, 131 Am. St. R. 229 (1909).

Court erred in granting custody of children to separate parties. — When custody of one child was given to wife (thus a finding that she had not lost her right to custody), the trial court erred in giving custody of the other child to the paternal grandmother and in ordering that child support for such child be paid to the grandmother. Phelps v. Phelps, 230 Ga. 243, 196 S.E.2d 426 (1973).

Foreign custody decrees are recognized, but subject to modification. — Decree of divorce awarding custody of children of parties, rendered by court of another state having jurisdiction of subject matter and of parties, shall be given full effect in this state. But such decree cannot anticipate changes which may occur in condition of parents, or in their character and fitness for care of their children. Accordingly, when, in proceeding in this state involving custody of child, change is shown in circumstances of parties materially affecting welfare of child since foreign decree, court in exercise of sound discretion may protect such welfare accordingly, the same as if there has been such a change since the decree rendered in this state. Kniepkamp v. Richards, 192 Ga. 509, 16 S.E.2d 24 (1941).

Procedure for excepting to child custody awards by direct exception. — When losing party in child-custody case desires to except to the judgment awarding custody of the child, the proper procedure is by direct exceptions to decree, and not by motion for new trial. Alf v. Alf, 226 Ga. 880, 178 S.E.2d 187 (1970).

Complainant in contempt proceeding for noncompliance not subject to counterclaims. — Filing of mere motion seeking to have party held in contempt for failure to obey custody decree is not tantamount to filing complaint which would subject complainant to jurisdiction of court or to filing of counterclaims. Varn v. Varn, 242 Ga. 309, 248 S.E.2d 667 (1978).

2. Temporary Awards

Distinction between temporary and permanent custody awards. — Temporary award of custody differs from permanent award, as latter is a final adjudication of rights of parties on existing facts, is res judicata, and is subject to change only upon showing of change of conditions affecting the best interests of the child. No such finality exists as to a judgment awarding temporary custody. Adams v. State, 218 Ga. 130, 126 S.E.2d 624, answer conformed to, 106 Ga. App. 531, 127 S.E.2d 477 (1962).

Decree awarding temporary custody is not an adjudication of rights of parties, and is a matter of discretion with the court. Adams v. State, 218 Ga. 130, 126 S.E.2d 624, answer conformed to, 106 Ga. App. 531, 127 S.E.2d 477 (1962).

Court may award temporary custody pending divorce proceeding. — In all divorce suits, as well as suits for alimony without divorce, judges of superior courts are empowered to determine, not only who shall be entitled to care and custody of minor children pending litigation, but they are empowered to provide for their permanent custody thereafter. Kniepkamp v. Richards, 192 Ga. 509, 16 S.E.2d 24 (1941).

Court may award temporary custody to parent or third party. — Pending application for divorce, court may in the court's discretion award temporary custody of child to either party or to third party. Adams v. State, 218 Ga. 130, 126 S.E.2d 624, answer conformed to, 106 Ga. App. 531, 127 S.E.2d 477 (1962).

Permanent award not timely. — Court can make a final disposition of minor children of the parties only when a divorce is granted. Thus, the trial court erred in entering a "Permanent Order of Custody" before a divorce was granted. Rowe v. Rowe, 195 Ga. App. 493, 393 S.E.2d 750 (1990).

Award of temporary custody to grandmother a final judgment. — When court awarded temporary custody of minor children to grandmother, specifying a date on which further hearing would be held on request of either mother or father, the order was a final judgment and the court was without jurisdiction to amend or modify that judgment. Draper v. Draper, 170 Ga. App. 727, 318 S.E.2d 314 (1984).

3. Finality of Award

When doctrine of res judicata applies. — Doctrine of res judicata applies when award of custody of minor children has been made; judge may thereafter exercise discretion as to custody of children only so far as there may be new and material conditions and circumstances substantially affecting interest and welfare of children. Adams v. Heffernan, 217 Ga. 404, 122 S.E.2d 735 (1961).

Custody of children of parties seeking divorce is a vital issue to be determined when divorce decree is granted, and parties are entitled to decision on this question as much so as on question of divorce, or amount of permanent alimony, if any, and such a decree becomes final on facts then existing. Any attempt to modify award of custody by declaring it temporary, leaving this issue indefinitely pending in abeyance, and seeking to retain jurisdiction for further investigation will not divest award of the award's finality. Burton v. Furcron, 207 Ga. 637, 63 S.E.2d 650 (1951).

Award is final despite words of limitation. — Judgment fixing custody of minor child of divorced parents is final on facts then existing and any attempt by the trial judge to retain jurisdiction of the child is a nullity, and once custody is awarded "until further order of court" it is awarded on a permanent basis and only a subsequent change in conditions could justify a further modification. Yde v. Yde, 231 Ga. 506, 202 S.E.2d 423 (1973).

Custody award is conclusive between parties absent changed circumstances. — Decree of divorce in which custody of child is awarded to one of the parents is conclusive as between parties to such decree as to right of that parent to custody of child, unless change of circumstances affecting welfare of child is shown. Kniepkamp v. Richards, 192 Ga. 509, 16 S.E.2d 24 (1941).

When award of custody of minor child has been duly made, it is conclusive on parties unless there are new and material conditions and circumstances substantially affecting interest and welfare of child. Bagley v. Bagley, 226 Ga. 742, 177 S.E.2d 255 (1970).

Custody award is conclusive between parties though based on agreement. — When, on grant of divorce between parents, custody of minor children was awarded to the mother, the fact that the decree as to custody was based upon agreement did not deprive the decree of usual attribute of conclusiveness. While in all such cases, the paramount issue is the welfare of the children, the doctrine of res adjudicata is nevertheless applicable; and when an award has been made, the judge may thereafter exercise discretion as to the custody of the children only so far as there may be new and material conditions and circumstances substantially affecting their interest and welfare. Fortson v. Fortson, 195 Ga. 750, 25 S.E.2d 518 (1943), later appeal, 197 Ga. 699, 30 S.E.2d 165 (1944).

Custody cannot be modified in subsequent contempt proceedings. — Terms of final divorce decree as to custody cannot be modified in subsequent contempt proceedings because any change in custody must be accomplished through new proceedings based upon evidence showing change in circumstances affecting interest and welfare of minor children. Parker v. Parker, 242 Ga. 64, 247 S.E.2d 862 (1978).

Finality of order modifying custody. — An order modifying custody, issued following a "temporary" hearing under USCR 24.5, was final. In a post-decree custody modification action authorized by a prior version of O.C.G.A. § 19-9-3(b), the trial court was without authority to enter a "temporary" custody award. Hightower v. Martin, 198 Ga. App. 855, 403 S.E.2d 862 (1991), but see Massey v. Massey, 227 Ga. App. 906, 490 S.E.2d 205 (1997).

Parental Fitness

Question of fitness of parties seeking custody is always a proper subject of inquiry. Adams v. Heffernan, 217 Ga. 404, 122 S.E.2d 735 (1961).

Evidence of parties' character, conduct, and reputation is admissible. — Evidence touching character, conduct, and reputation of either of the parties, or any other evidence tending to throw light on their fitness to be the custodian of the child, is admissible; but conclusions deducible from this testimony are not subject-matter of opinion by witnesses. Moore v. Dozier, 128 Ga. 90, 57 S.E. 110

Husband's alcoholism and resulting cruel treatment to wife and children are relevant to custodial fitness. Weaver v. Weaver, 238 Ga. 101, 230 S.E.2d 886 (1976).

Admissibility of evidence tending to show immorality of wife. — See Goodin v. Goodin, 166 Ga. 38, 142 S.E. 158 (1928).

Finding that mother should have partial custody. — Judgment that there has been an improvement in health of mother and that such improvement has progressed to extent that she should have partial custody of children on stated occasions consistent with best interests and welfare of children is necessarily a holding that she was not a fit and proper person to have complete custody of children. Northcutt v. Northcutt, 220 Ga. 245, 138 S.E.2d 377 (1964).

Award of custody to grandparents proper. — When evidence of parents' fitness is in conflict, award of custody to grandparents is proper. Phillips v. Phillips, 161 Ga. 79, 129 S.E. 644 (1925).

Trial judge's determination of fitness generally not disturbed. — When evidence is in conflict in regard to fitness of each of the divorced parents of minor child to have custody of the child, discretion of trial judge in awarding child to the child's mother will not be controlled. Speer v. Speer, 217 Ga. 341, 122 S.E.2d 84 (1961).

In contest between mother and father over their minor child, when evidence respecting fitness of parties is in conflict, discretion of trial judge in making award of custody to mother during nine months each year will not be controlled by reviewing court. Everitt v. Everitt, 217 Ga. 425, 122 S.E.2d 920 (1961).

When there is contest between mother and father over their minor child, and evidence respecting fitness of parties is in conflict, discretion of trial judge in making award will not be controlled by appellate court. Brown v. Brown, 222 Ga. 446, 150 S.E.2d 615 (1966).

Unless evidence demands finding contrary to trial court's judgment that parent is "fit" or "unfit," judgment of trial court on such issue is conclusive and will not be disturbed on appeal. Hardy v. Hardee, 225 Ga. 585, 170 S.E.2d 417 (1969).

On appeal from a custody modification order entered against a parent, pretermittting whether there was any evidence to support the court's finding that the parent was unfit, and even if the court unnecessarily included such a finding in the court's modification order, the parent failed to demonstrate that this finding constituted reversible error. Weil v. Paseka, 282 Ga. App. 403, 638 S.E.2d 833 (2006).

Award of Custody to Third Party

Trial judge has discretion to award custody to third person in custody proceeding, provided it appeared that such disposition is in best interest of children. Shipps v. Shipps, 186 Ga. 494, 198 S.E. 230 (1938).

Focus in determining whether third party is entitled to custody is on natural parents and whether or not they have forfeited their rights or are unfit. Thus, any relationship between the child and the child's foster parents is primarily irrelevant. Drummond v. Fulton County Dep't of Family & Children Servs., 237 Ga. 449, 228 S.E.2d 839 (1976), cert. denied, 432 U.S. 905, 97 S. Ct. 2949, 53 L. Ed. 2d 1077 (1977).

When dispute was between natural parent and third party, the court must award custody of the child to the parent unless the parent has lost parental prerogatives under O.C.G.A. § 19-7-1 or was unfit. Drummond v. Fulton County Dep't of Family & Children Servs., 237 Ga. 449, 228 S.E.2d 839 (1976), cert. denied, 432 U.S. 905, 97 S. Ct. 2949, 53 L. Ed. 2d 1077 (1977).

Best interests of the child test is used only between parents who both have equal right to the child, not between a natural parent and a third party. Drummond v. Fulton County Dep't of Family & Children Servs., 237 Ga. 449, 228 S.E.2d 839 (1976), cert. denied, 432 U.S. 905, 97 S. Ct. 2949, 53 L. Ed. 2d 1077 (1977).

When parent is entitled to custody as against third party. — When a third party (e.g., a grandparent) is being awarded custody of child as part of divorce case, or when such third party sues to obtain child custody from the parent, the test is not simply the best interests or the welfare of the child because the parents are being deprived of the custody of their child. In such cases, a parent is entitled to be awarded custody by the trial court unless it is shown by clear and convincing evidence that such parent is unfit or otherwise not entitled to custody under the laws. Gazaway v. Brackett, 241 Ga. 127, 244 S.E.2d 238 (1978).

Custody of third party as opposed to natural parent. — Between a third party and a natural parent, the parent is entitled to custody unless it is shown by clear and convincing evidence that the parent either has lost the parental right to custody under O.C.G.A. §§ 19-7-1 and 19-7-4 or is unfit. Blackburn v. Blackburn, 168 Ga. App. 66, 308 S.E.2d 193 (1983).

When third person entitled to custody. — As between parent and third person, discretion of court does not exist and it is only when the parent has lost the right to custody that the child may be placed in the custody of the third person. Phelps v. Phelps, 230 Ga. 243, 196 S.E.2d 426 (1973); Bowman v. Bowman, 234 Ga. 348, 216 S.E.2d 103 (1975).

Judge cannot terminate parental rights in divorce proceedings. — Superior court judge, upon hearing divorce and child custody case, does not have jurisdiction to terminate parental rights, although the judge can exercise judicial discretion as to best interests of child to award custody to party other than parents. Cothran v. Cothran, 237 Ga. 487, 228 S.E.2d 872 (1976).

Custody award to third person based on parent's unfitness supported by reasonable evidence will be affirmed. Gazaway v. Brackett, 241 Ga. 127, 244 S.E.2d 238 (1978).

Custody award to third person requires clear and convincing evidence. — When custody is given to third persons, rather than one of natural parents, standard of proof to be applied is that of clear and convincing evidence.

Guest v. Williams, 240 Ga. 316, 240 S.E.2d 705 (1977).

Temporary custody of minor child to third party. — Temporary custody of minor child may be given to third party although parents are fit. Foster v. Foster, 230 Ga. 658, 198 S.E.2d 881 (1973).

Third parties awarded temporary custody cannot appeal revocation of order. — When presiding judge pending divorce proceeding places minor children of litigants in possession of third parties prior to final decree, such third parties do not become parties to divorce case, but are mere temporary custodians of children, agents of court, appointed for convenience of judge to aid the judge in seeing that children are adequately cared for until the judge's further order. Revocation of such an order by one subsequently entered, while divorce case is still pending, cannot be made subject of appeal by parties to whom children were temporarily entrusted. Graham v. Graham, 219 Ga. 193, 132 S.E.2d 66 (1963).

When judge may modify award of temporary custody. — Until final decree is entered, judge may modify the judge's orders in this respect and transfer possession of children from persons to whom custody was originally granted and commit the children into care of other and different parties. Graham v. Graham, 219 Ga. 193, 132 S.E.2d 66 (1963).

Discretion given trial judge in temporary award of custody of children pending suits for divorce is broad as long as case is in bosom of court and no permanent custody has been granted as in final divorce. Therefore, trial judge may, on the judge's own motion, change custody of children even in hearing set to hear contempt. Mathews v. Mathews, 230 Ga. 779, 199 S.E.2d 179 (1973).

Selection by Child

Constitutionality of this section's child selection provision. — Child selection provision of former Code 1933, § 30-127 (see now O.C.G.A. § 19-9-1) did not violate Ga. Const. 1976, Art. I, Sec. II, Para. IV (see now Ga. Const. 1983, Art. I, Sec. II, Para. III). Froug v. Harper, 220 Ga. 582, 140 S.E.2d 844 (1965).

Selection by Child (Cont'd)

Provision allowing children over 14 years to select custodial parent. — Intent of statute was to recognize that child of 14 years or more was mature enough to select parent with whom the child desires to live and that this right of selection was controlling despite previous adjudications of unfitness. Harbin v. Harbin, 238 Ga. 109, 230 S.E.2d 889 (1976).

Self-executing change of custody. — Absent a finding of unfitness, a self-executing change of custody, when a child's selection is controlling, serves the interest of judicial economy by effecting the change of custody and establishing child support obligations without the necessity of court proceedings. Weaver v. Jones, 260 Ga. 493, 396 S.E.2d 890 (1990).

Even as to children over 14 years, judge has discretion. — Though child 15 years of age has right to select which parent the child desires to live with, the trial judge must determine what is in the best interest, welfare, and happiness of the child and in making this determination the judge has wide latitude and discretion. Pritchett v. Pritchett, 219 Ga. 635, 135 S.E.2d 417 (1964).

Child's right to choose. — No parental right of custody by judgment or decree can defeat the child's right to choose. Adams v. Adams, 219 Ga. 633, 135 S.E.2d 428 (1964); Harbin v. Harbin, 238 Ga. 109, 230 S.E.2d 889 (1976).

Choice of child over 14 years is controlling. — Language of statute allowing selection by child who has reached age of 14 years of parent with whom he or she desires to live was controlling save and except in one situation which was expressly recited therein. That exception is when parent so selected is determined by trial court not to be a fit and proper custodian. Froug v. Harper, 220 Ga. 582, 140 S.E.2d 844 (1965).

Prior adjudication of unfitness of parent. — To hold that prior adjudication of unfitness is res judicata or evidence of present unfitness would overly restrict statutory right of child who has reached 14 years of age to select parent with whom the child wishes to live. Harbin v. Harbin,

When court has no discretion regarding child's selection. — Child's selection of parent with whom the child desires to live, when child has reached 14 years of age, is controlling absent finding that such parent is unfit. Without finding of unfitness, child's selection must be recognized and court has no discretion to act otherwise. Harbin v. Harbin, 238 Ga. 109, 230 S.E.2d 889 (1976).

Showing required to defeat child's right of selection. — Right of selection of child over 14 years can only be defeated by showing of present unfitness. Harbin v. Harbin, 238 Ga. 109, 230 S.E.2d 889 (1976).

Testimony of children unheard after parent found unfit. — Trial court did not err in a divorce proceeding by declining to hear the testimony of the parties' two minor children as to their preferences because the trial court declared the mother to be an unfit parent. Moon v. Moon, 277 Ga. 375, 589 S.E.2d 76 (2003).

Effect of denying child's request. — When trial court awards 14-year-old child to parent selected by such child as parent with whom the child desires to live, it is tantamount to finding that such parent is fit, just as denial of such child's request must be construed as finding that such parent is unfit. Hardy v. Hardee, 225 Ga. 585, 170 S.E.2d 417 (1969).

Effect of older child's selection on younger child. — After a 15-year-old daughter indicated that she wanted to change her custody arrangement and live with her mother, and the mother was found to be a fit and proper custodial parent, such change was ordered pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 19-9-1; upon such custody change of the older daughter, a material change in circumstances occurred such that the trial court should have made a determination whether it was in the younger daughter's best interests to also change custody to the mother as she wished and pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 19-9-3(a)(2). Durham v. Gipson, 261 Ga. App. 602, 583 S.E.2d 254 (2003).

Award of 14-year-old to parent of choice will not be disturbed. — When court awarded custody of 14-year-old to parent with whom the child expressed a desire to live and evidence does not demand finding that such parent is unfit, judgment of trial court must be affirmed. Hardy v. Hardee, 225 Ga. 585, 170 S.E.2d 417 (1969).

Since there were no allegations of parental unfitness, a 14-year-old child was entitled to select which parent to live with; therefore, the trial court properly approved the parents' settlement agreement that reflected the child's desire to change residential custodians. Ford v. Hanna, 293 Ga. App. 863, 668 S.E.2d 271 (2008).

Parent resisting child's selection must bear burden of proving that parent selected is unfit. Harbin v. Harbin, 238 Ga. 109, 230 S.E.2d 889 (1976).

Change of Custody

1. In General

Requirement of new proceedings. — Petition for change of custody must be accomplished through new proceedings, not by motion. Blalock v. Blalock, 247 Ga. 548, 277 S.E.2d 655 (1981).

Limitation period inapplicable to parental request for change of custody. — Father's petition for a change in child custody that contained sufficient allegations of events materially affecting the child's welfare was not subject to the two-year limitation otherwise imposed by O.C.G.A. § 19-9-1. Petry v. Romo, 249 Ga. App. 99, 547 S.E.2d 736 (2001).

Trial judge has discretion in deciding to change custody. — While proof of changed conditions and that child's welfare will be protected by changing custody will authorize judgment to that effect, yet, if evidence does not demand finding to that effect, the matter is left to the discretion of the trial judge. Floyd v. Floyd, 218 Ga. 606, 129 S.E.2d 786 (1963).

When exercising court's discretion in relocation cases, as in all child custody cases, the trial court must consider the best interests of the child and cannot apply a bright-line test; this means that an initial custodial award will not always control after any new and material change in circumstances that affects the child is considered. When there was competent evidence in the record that a father was neglecting the medical needs of his children and that the children were doing much better while living with the mother, such evidence was sufficient evidence of a material change in circumstances affecting the best interests of the children that warranted a transfer of custody from the father to the mother. Frank v. Lake, 266 Ga. App. 60, 596 S.E.2d 223 (2004).

Custody award may be forfeited by subsequent actions. — When divorce decree, awarding custody to father, vests prima facie right of custody in father, that prima facie right of custody may be forfeited by actions of father subsequent to rendition of decree. Sessions v. Oliver, 204 Ga. 425, 50 S.E.2d 54 (1948).

Parent awarded custody does not have vested right. — When award of custody is made to parent in divorce action and subsequently there is a change of circumstances and conditions affecting welfare of child, parent to whom custody was awarded does not have vested right of custody that will defeat further action by courts. Adams v. Adams, 219 Ga. 633, 135 S.E.2d 428 (1964).

Change of custody to promote child's health, happiness, or welfare. — Altered circumstances may render change in custody necessary in order to promote health, happiness, or welfare of child, and in determining whether or not there has been such a change, the trial judge is vested with discretion which will not be controlled by the appellate court unless the discretion is abused. Madison v. Montgomery, 206 Ga. 199, 56 S.E.2d 292 (1949).

Child's interests and welfare are main considerations in custody change based on new conditions. Elders v. Elders, 206 Ga. 297, 57 S.E.2d 83 (1950).

Judge cannot change custody absent evidence of new, material conditions. — Although the judge is given wide discretion, the judge is restricted to evidence, and is unauthorized to change custody if there is no evidence to show new and material conditions that affect the welfare of the children. Young v. Young, 216 Ga. 521, 118 S.E.2d 82 (1961); Danner v. Robertson, 221 Ga. 516, 145 S.E.2d 554 (1965).

Change of Custody (Cont'd)1. In General (Cont'd)

Findings of fact required. — Case was remanded to the trial court for the entry of findings of fact because without an explicit statement specifying the factual bases for the court's implicit conclusion that a change in material conditions or circumstances justified a change in custody, the Court of Appeals was not in a position to evaluate whether the court acted within the limits of the court's discretion. Gordy v. Gordy, 246 Ga. App. 802, 542 S.E.2d 536 (2000).

Change of custody from one natural parent to the other. — As between natural parents, change in custody of minor child may be awarded only upon a showing of a change in material conditions or circumstances of the parties or the child, subsequent to the original decree of divorce and award of custody, and that the change of custody would be in the best interests of the child. Blackburn v. Blackburn, 168 Ga. App. 66, 308 S.E.2d 193 (1983).

Court's continuing jurisdiction to modify decree due to changed circumstances. — Judge of superior court granting divorce is not only vested with plenary authority in awarding custody of child but has continuing jurisdiction over that subject matter, in event it should later be made to appear that there has been a subsequent change of circumstances materially affecting the welfare of the child. Ponder v. Ponder, 198 Ga. 781, 32 S.E.2d 801 (1945).

Court awarding custody in divorce does not retain exclusive jurisdiction. — It cannot be said that the judge of the superior court, by awarding custody of minor children in decree of divorce, acquired exclusive jurisdiction as to their future custody, under former Code 1933, § 30-127 (see now O.C.G.A. § 19-9-1) and Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VI, Sec. IV, Para. I (see now Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. IV, Para. I). Interest and welfare of minor children being paramount issue, even in contest between parents, or by other persons against parents, state is also parens patriae, and neither child nor state was finally concluded by divorce proceedings.

Fortson v. Fortson, 200 Ga. 116, 35 S.E.2d 896 (1945).

Court can change custody when custodial parent resides in Georgia. — When mother and child now reside in this state, and when father filed petition in superior court of this state for injunction against mother, court would be authorized, if there was competent evidence of change in condition of parties since decree, materially affecting child's welfare, to make new award of custody. Kniepkamp v. Richards, 192 Ga. 509, 16 S.E.2d 24 (1941).

Where change of custody actions must be brought. — Proceedings relating to custody of minor children, against person awarded custody by divorce court, must be brought in county of such person's residence. Brinson v. Jenkins, 207 Ga. 218, 60 S.E.2d 440 (1950).

Trial court has no jurisdiction to modify original divorce decree to change custody of minor children, when action is not brought in jurisdiction of residence of parent having legal custody, who in legal contemplation has possession of children. Fernandez v. Fernandez, 232 Ga. 697, 208 S.E.2d 498 (1974).

Despite child's attaining age of 14 and residing in Georgia with noncustodial parent, Georgia court is not authorized to relitigate issue of legal custody. Only a court where custodial parent resides has right to award change in custody. Bayard v. Willis, 241 Ga. 459, 246 S.E.2d 315 (1978).

Any action for a change of legal custody shall be brought as a separate action in the county of residence of the legal custodian of the child, and the trial court cannot entertain a counterclaim for a change of custody in the county of legal residence of the non-custodial parent. Bullington v. Bullington, 181 Ga. App. 256, 351 S.E.2d 700 (1986).

Inasmuch as the record shows that divorce action terminated with the entry of a final judgment and decree; that the wife subsequently changed her residence to another county; and that the husband filed his motion to modify outside the term of court, the trial court erred in ruling on the husband's motion to modify visitation. Ward v. Ward, 194 Ga. App. 669, 391 S.E.2d 480 (1990).

Full faith and credit principles do not prevent custody change. — It is well established that giving full faith and credit to custody decree of sister state does not bar court of this state from considering and changing custody based on a change of condition subsequent to decree. Lodge v. Lodge, 230 Ga. 652, 198 S.E.2d 861 (1973).

Judgments of other states awarding custody are subject to modification. — Judgment awarding custody of child, whether rendered by courts of sister state or by courts of Georgia, may be modified upon application when it is shown that there is such change of conditions since rendition of decree as will affect the welfare of the child. Peeples v. Newman, 209 Ga. 53, 70 S.E.2d 749 (1952).

Court did not lose jurisdiction despite age of child. — Trial court did not lose jurisdiction to consider a parent's petition for a change in custody. While the child had selected the parent as the custodial parent, the court had authority to intervene in that selection at the time the petition was filed, and the trial court did not lose that authority simply because the child turned 18 by the time the court was considering the petition. Wade v. Corinthian, 283 Ga. 514, 661 S.E.2d 532 (2008).

Change in custody not reversed when supported by reasonable evidence. — If the trial judge finds from evidence that welfare of children is affected and changes their custody, that decision will be affirmed on appeal when there is reasonable evidence to support the decision. However, if the trial judge finds from evidence that welfare of children is not affected and refuses to change their custody, that decision also will be affirmed on appeal. Hawkins v. Hawkins, 240 Ga. 30, 239 S.E.2d 358 (1977).

On appeal when the permanent child custody award has been made, the appellate court will not reverse if there is any reasonable evidence to support the change in custody. Gazaway v. Brackett, 241 Ga. 127, 244 S.E.2d 238 (1978).

When a change of custody between natural parents has been awarded because of a material change of conditions affecting the welfare of the child, the Court of Appeals will affirm if there is reasonable evidence to support the decision. Blackburn v. Blackburn, 168 Ga. App. 66, 308 S.E.2d 193 (1983).

Contempt proceeding. — Trial court cannot modify terms of divorce decree and change child custody in a contempt proceeding. Groover v. Simpson, 234 Ga. 714, 217 S.E.2d 163 (1975).

Trial court exceeded the court's authority by entering an order within the context of a contempt proceeding which had the effect of modifying custody. McCall v. McCall, 246 Ga. App. 770, 542 S.E.2d 168 (2000).

Custody cannot be changed by modification of visitation rights. — Trial court cannot seek to effect a change in legal custody under the exercise of the court's power to modify a parent's visitation rights. It was therefore error to indirectly effect a custody change by modifying a visitation schedule. Martin v. Buglioli, 185 Ga. App. 702, 365 S.E.2d 866 (1988).

2. Application

Evidence of change confined to matters transpiring subsequent to decree. — In action for child custody based on change of conditions after original decree awarded custody to one parent, evidence of unfitness of parties must be confined to matters transpiring subsequent to decree. Mallette v. Mallette, 220 Ga. 401, 139 S.E.2d 322 (1964).

Record supported the trial court's judgment transferring primary physical custody of three children from their mother to their father after their mother entered into a relationship with another woman who displayed hostility towards their father, their mother moved to California to take care of her parents, and their mother showed financial irresponsibility. Weickert v. Weickert, 268 Ga. App. 624, 602 S.E.2d 337 (2004).

Change of custody based on changes since custody award. — Once a permanent child custody award has been entered, the test for use by a trial court in change of child custody suits is whether there has been a change of conditions affecting the welfare of the child.

Gazaway v. Brackett, 241 Ga. 127, 244 S.E.2d 238 (1978).

Evidence of conditions existing before decree. — Since on inquiry as to custody of child after previous divorce decree, only evidence showing change of conditions is material, evidence as to former finances, alleged misconduct, or character and temperament, all existing before decree, ordinarily are incompetent. Kniepkamp v. Richards, 192 Ga. 509, 16 S.E.2d 24 (1941).

Change in custody based on denial of visitation. — Mother repeatedly precluding the father from exercising court-ordered visitation with the parties' six-year-old son was a change in circumstances adversely affecting the child which entitled the father to obtain a change in custody. Jones v. Kimes, 287 Ga. App. 526, 652 S.E.2d 171 (2007).

Divorce decree is prima facie evidence in mother's favor. — Decree in divorce suit awarding custody to mother is prima facie evidence in her favor and father cannot regain custody without showing affirmatively that material change in circumstances affecting welfare of children has occurred since original decree. Fortson v. Fortson, 195 Ga. 750, 25 S.E.2d 518 (1943), later appeal, 197 Ga. 699, 30 S.E.2d 165 (1944).

Voluntary surrender of custody is change in condition authorizing court to consider a new issue of custody. Wilt v. Wilt, 229 Ga. 658, 193 S.E.2d 833 (1972); Lodge v. Lodge, 230 Ga. 652, 198 S.E.2d 861 (1973).

Surrender of custody is change of condition. — Surrender by mother of custody of children to their paternal grandmother is such a change in condition as will authorize court to consider again the question of custody. Askew v. Askew, 212 Ga. 46, 90 S.E.2d 409 (1955).

Forfeiture of custody by custodial parent automatically vests prima facie right in noncustodial parent. Sessions v. Oliver, 204 Ga. 425, 50 S.E.2d 54 (1948).

Upon death of custodial parent under divorce decree, right to custody automatically inures to surviving parent.

Girtman v. Girtman, 191 Ga. 173, 11 S.E.2d 782 (1940); Howard v. Greenway, 223 Ga. 252, 154 S.E.2d 367 (1967).

Natural rights of father are not annulled by award of custody in divorce proceedings but are only suspended for time being and are revived in full force and effect upon death of parent to whom custody was awarded. Adams v. State, 218 Ga. 130, 126 S.E.2d 624, answer conformed to, 106 Ga. App. 531, 127 S.E.2d 477 (1962).

When parents themselves cannot transfer custody by new agreement. — After custody decree, parents themselves cannot by new agreement transfer custody to father without consent of court as representative of state and children. Nor would their private recitals in an attempted agreement be binding upon court as evidence of change in condition. Fortson v. Fortson, 195 Ga. 750, 25 S.E.2d 518 (1943), later appeal, 197 Ga. 699, 30 S.E.2d 165 (1944).

Changes relating primarily to parents and not affecting child's welfare. — When evidence as to change in circumstances and conditions subsequent to divorce decree related primarily to parents and not child, and there was no evidence showing material change of circumstances or conditions affecting welfare of child, court erred in awarding custody to defendant mother. Young v. Young, 216 Ga. 521, 118 S.E.2d 82 (1961).

Showing of custodial parent's unfitness not essential. — It is not essential when seeking custody change to show unfitness of custodial parent. Adams v. Heffernan, 217 Ga. 404, 122 S.E.2d 735 (1961).

When moral unfitness may be considered regarding custody change. — Moral unfitness may be considered in petition for change of custody if substantial change materially affecting welfare of child can be shown. Johnson v. Edison, 235 Ga. 820, 221 S.E.2d 813 (1976).

Changed circumstances not limited to moral or financial condition. — Change of circumstances that would render prior judgment inconclusive is not necessarily limited to change in moral or financial condition of parent to whom initial award was made. Adams v. Heffernan,

Improvement in parent's health. — Continued progress by an alcoholic parent in a 12-step program and continued sobriety over a substantial period of time constitutes a factual predicate from which a court may infer that the parent's health has improved, and this constitutes one factor which can be considered in determining a change of condition. In re R.R., 222 Ga. App. 301, 474 S.E.2d 12 (1996).

Past mental problems of parent are insufficient grounds for change. — Although past mental problems of parent are insufficient grounds on which to base present change of custody, reasonable evidence which supports finding that conditions have changed that have had present affect on child, warrants custody change. McNair v. McNair, 242 Ga. 105, 249 S.E.2d 572 (1978).

Remarriage of parent alone is insufficient to authorize modification of custody award; an engagement to marry would likewise be insufficient. North v. North, 209 Ga. 883, 76 S.E.2d 617 (1953).

Remarriage alone of one of the parties is not such a change of circumstances affecting welfare of child as will justify change in custody. Fennell v. Fennell, 209 Ga. 815, 76 S.E.2d 387 (1953).

Remarriage of father is not such change of condition as authorizes modification of custody award. Bagley v. Bagley, 226 Ga. 742, 177 S.E.2d 255 (1970).

Custodial parent's remarriage and plans to move to another state. — Fact that defendant has remarried, and intends to remove children to another state with her present husband, does not constitute or amount to such change of condition as would authorize modification of decree. Mercer v. Foster, 210 Ga. 546, 81 S.E.2d 458 (1954).

Relocation to another state. — Georgia law does not permit a modification of custody based solely on a custodial parent's relocation to another state. Ofchus v. Isom, 239 Ga. App. 738, 521 S.E.2d 871 (1999).

Notice of relocation. — Lack of notice to the other parent of relocation of a child, standing alone, does not constitute a material change affecting the welfare of the child; however, any adverse emotional impact caused a child by the child's sudden unannounced relocation constitutes a factor which can be considered in the totality of the circumstances. In re R.R., 222 Ga. App. 301, 474 S.E.2d 12 (1996).

Custodial parents could not simply pick up and move on a moment's notice given the requirements of O.C.G.A. § 19-9-1 and that fact supported the holding that any self-executing change of child custody provision that failed to give paramount import to a child's best interests in a change of custody as between parents violated Georgia's public policy. Scott v. Scott, 276 Ga. 372, 578 S.E.2d 876 (2003).

Refusing to permit visitation and turning children against noncustodial parent. — Allegations that father had moved the children over 1000 miles away from mother's residence, that when she travels that distance to see children, he refuses to let her visit them or lets her see them only when it pleases him, that he has insulted her and intimidated her, has prejudiced children against her, instructed them not to call her mother and told them that she was not their mother, were such allegations of fact as would support conclusion that he was an unfit person to have their custody and, if proven to be true, to authorize change in custody. Jones v. White, 209 Ga. 412, 73 S.E.2d 187 (1952).

Effect of 14-year-old's change of custody upon younger child. — Award of custody of the 14-year-old child to father was a sufficient change in condition to warrant change of custody of a younger child to the father as well since the trial court found that the younger child had become dependent upon the 14-year-old and that it was in the younger child's best interest that the child not be separated from the older child after an election to live with the father. Parkerson v. Parkerson, 167 Ga. App. 265, 306 S.E.2d 97 (1983).

Evidence supported finding of no material change in condition. — There was ample evidence to support the trial judge's finding that there was no material change in condition warranting a change in custody since there was evidence that both parties were involved in meretricious relationships in the presence of the child but no evidence that either party committed sexual acts in the presence of the child. Hayes v. Hayes, 199 Ga. App. 132, 404 S.E.2d 276, cert. denied, 199 Ga. App. 906, 404 S.E.2d 276 (1991).

Parties' disagreement not a change in circumstance. — Fact that parties had been in agreement but, at the time of modification, were not in agreement, was not a change of circumstance. Templeman v. Earnest, 209 Ga. App. 557, 434 S.E.2d 106 (1993).

Visitation Rights

Portion of custody award concerning visitation may be modified. — In any case in which judgment has been entered awarding custody of minor, on motion of any party or on motion of court, that portion of judgment concerning visitation rights between parties and their minor children may be subject to review and modification or alteration. Tirado v. Shelnutt, 159 Ga. App. 624, 284 S.E.2d 641 (1981).

Jurisdiction over custody issues includes visitation rights. — Court whose jurisdiction over issues involving custody was first invoked has full authority to determine all such issues, including visitation rights. Tirado v. Shelnutt, 159 Ga. App. 624, 284 S.E.2d 641 (1981).

Modification of visitation rights by court. — Court in which petition to change custody is brought may also modify visitation rights. Tirado v. Shelnutt, 159 Ga. App. 624, 284 S.E.2d 641 (1981).

Submission to parenting plan in custody and modification actions. — Provisions of O.C.G.A. § 19-9-1(a), which require the parties to submit parenting plans in custody and modification actions, and contemplate the inclusion of a parenting plan in legal actions involving custody, apply to petitions to modify visitation. Moore v. Moore-McKinney, 297 Ga. App. 703, 678 S.E.2d 152 (2009).

Divorced parent has natural right of access to the child awarded to other parent, and only under exceptional circumstances should right or privilege be denied. Shook v. Shook, 242 Ga. 55, 247 S.E.2d 855 (1978).

When court should specify times, places, and circumstances of visitation. — When parent was not shown to be unfit, trial judge abused discretion in refusing to amend divorce decree to specify times, places, and circumstances for visitation since parties had been unable to agree between themselves. Shook v. Shook, 242 Ga. 55, 247 S.E.2d 855 (1978).

Counterclaim for increased support in visitation rights modification proceeding. — When divorced nonresident had voluntarily submitted himself to jurisdiction of the court in order to assert his claims to modify visitation rights, mother is not required to state her claim requesting increase in child support in an independent and separate action. Houck v. Houck, 248 Ga. 419, 284 S.E.2d 12 (1981).

Visitation rights do not constitute custody. — Party awarded permanent custody of minor children is only party with "custody" of children until changed by court order; visitation rights, even extensive visitation rights, do not constitute custody. Atkins v. Zachary, 243 Ga. 453, 254 S.E.2d 837 (1979).

Parent not deprived of visitation rights despite children's unwillingness to visit. — Desires of children under 14 years of age in not wanting to visit their father is not sufficient to deny him his right of visitation. They may, however, be taken into consideration by trial judge in deciding appropriate circumstances under which father may visit children. Shook v. Shook, 242 Ga. 55, 247 S.E.2d 855 (1978).

Effect of nonpayment of child support or alimony upon visitation. — Visitation rights should not be dependent upon whether child support or alimony has been paid. Price v. Dawkins, 242 Ga. 41, 247 S.E.2d 844 (1978).

Noncustodial parent's past delinquency not ground for denying visitation rights. — When custody is awarded to one parent, it is usual and proper to permit other parent to have reasonable access to child. But court may in proper case forbid access by one spouse to child whose custody is awarded to other, or limit right to visit child to particular time and place; but mere past delinquency of parent is not ground for withholding enjoyment of right. Scott v. Scott, 154 Ga. 659, 115 S.E. 2 (1922), overruled on other grounds, Price v. Dawkins, 242 Ga. 41, 247 S.E.2d 844 (1978).

“Specific” visitation privileges following award of “reasonable” visitation. — Statute allowed trial judge who had made award of permanent custody with “reasonable” visitation privileges to provide specific visitation privileges once in two-year period following date of entry of such judgment. Edwards v. Edwards, 237 Ga. 779, 229 S.E.2d 632 (1976).

Filing of petition under subsection (b) does not affect ability to file petition under § 19-6-18. — Ga. L. 1964, p. 713, § 1 (see now O.C.G.A. § 19-6-18) related strictly to petitions for modification of alimony or child support, and should not be read so as to prohibit filing of such petition within two years of filing of petition for change of custody by same party under former Code 1933, § 30-127 (see now O.C.G.A. § 19-9-1). Wilde v. Wilde, 239 Ga. 750, 239 S.E.2d 3 (1977).

Enforcement of visitation rights incorporated into final decree of divorce. — See Shook v. Shook, 242 Ga. 55, 247 S.E.2d 855 (1978).

Modification of visitation rights in contempt proceeding is permissible. — Statute allowed modification of visitation rights on motion of either party or on motion of trial judge in contempt proceeding. Sampson v. Sampson, 240 Ga. 118, 239 S.E.2d 519 (1977); Parker v. Parker, 242 Ga. 64, 247 S.E.2d 862 (1978); Kent v. Tankersley, 243 Ga. 471, 254 S.E.2d 851 (1979); Munday v. Munday, 152 Ga. App. 232, 262 S.E.2d 543 (1979).

Court in which contempt action is brought has authority to modify visitation rights. Tirado v. Shelnett, 159 Ga. App. 624, 284 S.E.2d 641 (1981).

Visitation rights may be modified on motion of trial judge in contempt action, and such a motion is not a new action, but is simply a motion in the original case. Blalock v. Blalock, 247 Ga. 548, 277 S.E.2d 655 (1981); Stewart v. Stewart, 245 Ga. App. 20, 537 S.E.2d 157 (2000).

Section authorizes modification of visitation rights on motion of any party to the former case (including grandparents), without necessity of showing a change of conditions. George v. Sizemore, 238 Ga. 525, 233 S.E.2d 779 (1977).

Visitation rights may be modified on motion of either party, and such a motion is not a new action, but is simply a motion in the original case. Blalock v. Blalock, 247 Ga. 548, 277 S.E.2d 655 (1981).

Modification by motion. — Any conflict between the provisions of O.C.G.A. §§ 19-9-1(b) and 19-9-3(b) with those of O.C.G.A. § 19-9-23, insofar as seeking modification of visitation rights by motion is concerned, is harmonized by holding that the former come into play only when jurisdiction and venue are also proper. Bennett v. Wood, 188 Ga. App. 630, 373 S.E.2d 645 (1988).

Modification of child visitation rights is a matter of discretion with trial court. Parker v. Parker, 242 Ga. 781, 251 S.E.2d 523 (1979).

Modification of child visitation rights is a matter of discretion with trial court and may be based upon existing circumstances even if the circumstances have not changed since prior award. Tirado v. Shelnett, 159 Ga. App. 624, 284 S.E.2d 641 (1981).

Showing of changed circumstances is unnecessary for modifying visitation rights. — Statute provided means of changing custody without necessity of evidence of change in conditions and circumstances. Froug v. Harper, 220 Ga. 582, 140 S.E.2d 844 (1965).

New proceeding based upon evidence showing change in circumstances affecting interest and welfare of minor children is not only way visitation rights may be modified, but such a new proceeding based upon evidence showing change in circumstances is required as regards a modification of custody. Parker v. Parker, 242 Ga. 64, 247 S.E.2d 862 (1978).

When third party has been awarded permanent custody of child, parent may obtain custody by showing change of conditions affecting welfare of child, but such parent may obtain increased visitation without necessity of showing such change of conditions. Gazaway v. Brackett, 241 Ga. 127, 244 S.E.2d 238 (1978).

Increase or decrease in visitation will be affirmed unless trial court abused

the court's discretion. Gazaway v. Brackett, 241 Ga. 127, 244 S.E.2d 238 (1978).

Trial judge is fully authorized to modify visitation rights without necessity of any showing of change in conditions. Tirado v. Shelnutt, 159 Ga. App. 624, 284 S.E.2d 641 (1981).

Father's sexual impropriety towards daughter rendered increased visitation rights error. — When evidence showed sexual impropriety of father towards daughter under 14 and daughter's dislike of father, it was error for the trial judge to increase the father's visitation rights. Ledford v. Bowers, 248 Ga. 804, 286 S.E.2d 293 (1982).

Visitation with homosexual parent. — Primary consideration in determining custody and visitation issues is not the sexual mores or behavior of the parent, but whether the child will somehow be harmed by the conduct of the parent. In re R.E.W., 220 Ga. App. 861, 471 S.E.2d 6 (1996).

Father's deployment. — Upon father's deployment, the trial court did not abuse the court's discretion in prohibiting the child from leaving the U.S. as the order did not purport to place exclusive jurisdiction in the trial court and attempted to continue the child's relationship with the mother; furthermore, even if the father was assigned to duty overseas, he retained primary physical custody of the child and maintained the right to move for modification if his circumstances changed. Curtis v. Klimowicz, 279 Ga. App. 425, 631 S.E.2d 464 (2006).

Fourteen year olds' election rights limited by 1986 amendment. — Visitation is part of custody. Having made the wishes of a 14-year-old as to custody binding upon the court unless the parent chosen is unfit, the 1986 legislation could not have intended to preclude consideration of the child's wishes as to visitation. O.C.G.A. §§ 19-9-1(a) and 19-9-3(a) preserve the authority of the trial court to set visitation rights based upon the best interests of the child, but do not prohibit the court from using the wishes of a child over 14 years of age together with other factors as the basis for the court's decision. Worley v. Whiddon, 261 Ga. 218, 403 S.E.2d 799 (1991).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Permanent custody determination upon divorce being entered. — When a superior court transfers the question of custody determination to a juvenile court pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 15-11-6(b), the juvenile court may make only a temporary custody determination pending the outcome of the divorce action; but if the divorce is entered it can then make a permanent custody determination. 1994 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U94-1.

19-9-1.1. Parental agreement to binding arbitration on issue of child custody and related matters.

In all proceedings under this article, it shall be expressly permissible for the parents of a child to agree to binding arbitration on the issue of child custody and matters relative to visitation, parenting time, and a parenting plan. The parents may select their arbiter and decide which issues will be resolved in binding arbitration. The arbiter's decisions shall be incorporated into a final decree awarding child custody unless the judge makes specific written factual findings that under the circumstances of the parents and the child the arbiter's award would not be in the best interests of the child. In its judgment, the judge may supplement the arbiter's decision on issues not covered by the binding arbitration. (Code 1981, § 19-9-1.1, enacted by Ga. L. 2007, p. 554, § 5/HB 369.)

Editor's notes. — Ga. L. 2007, p. 554, § 1/HB 369, not codified by the General Assembly, provides: "The General Assembly of Georgia declares that it is the policy of this state to assure that minor children have frequent and continuing contact with parents who have shown the ability to act in the best interests of their children and to encourage parents to share in the rights and responsibilities of rearing their children after the parents have separated or dissolved their marriage or relationship."

Ga. L. 2007, p. 554, § 8/HB 369, not codified by the General Assembly, provides that this Code section shall apply to all child custody proceedings and modifications of child custody filed on or after January 1, 2008.

19-9-1.2. Required domestic relations case filing information form.

Pursuant to Code Section 9-11-3, and in addition to the filing requirements contained in Code Section 19-6-15, in all proceedings under this article the plaintiff shall file a domestic relations case filing information form as set forth in Code Section 9-11-133. Editor's notes. — Ga. L. 2007, p. 554, § 1/HB 369, not codified by the General Assembly, provides: "The General Assembly of Georgia declares that it is the policy of this state to assure that minor children have frequent and continuing contact with parents who have shown the ability to act in the best interests of their children and to encourage parents to share in the rights and responsibilities of rearing their children after the parents have separated or dissolved their marriage or relationship."

Ga. L. 2007, p. 554, § 8/HB 369, not codified by the General Assembly, provides that this Code section shall apply to all child custody proceedings and modifications of child custody filed on or after January 1, 2008.

19-9-2. Right of surviving parent to custody of child; discretion of judge.

Upon the death of either parent, the survivor is entitled to custody of the child; provided, however, that the judge, upon petition, may exercise discretion as to the custody of the child, looking solely to the child's best interest and welfare. JUDICIAL DECISIONS

On death of custodial parent under divorce decree, right to custody automatically inures to surviving parent. Girtman v. Girtman, 191 Ga. 173, 11 S.E.2d 782 (1940); Raily v. Smith, 202 Ga. 185, 42 S.E.2d 491 (1947); Land v. Wrobel, 220 Ga. 260, 138 S.E.2d 315 (1964); Porter v. Johnson, 242 Ga. 188, 249 S.E.2d 608 (1978).

Scope of court's discretion under section. — Notwithstanding anything implied in O.C.G.A. § 19-9-2, concerning interests and welfare of the child, the court has no authority in the court's discretion to deprive surviving parent of custody after death of spouse, absent showing of abandonment, cruel treatment, termination of parental rights, unfitness, or other grounds authorized by law. Brant v. Bazemore, 159 Ga. App. 659, 284 S.E.2d 674 (1981).

Surviving parent entitled to custody unless rights have been terminated. — When mother of child is dead, father has prima facie right of custody, and in order to sustain contention that he has lost his parental power by reason of failure to provide necessities for his child or by abandonment of his family, a clear and strong case must be made. Chambers v. Lee, 215 Ga. 629, 112 S.E.2d 614 (1960).

In determining whether parent or third parties should have custody of child, trial court was required by law to recognize that upon death of one parent, legal right to child automatically inures to surviving parent, and that parent was entitled to the child's custody absent showing that the surviving parent had lost parental rights in any one of the ways provided in O.C.G.A. § 19-7-1 or was an unfit person to have custody, which unfitness must be shown by strong and satisfactory proof. Peck v. Shierling, 222 Ga. 60, 148 S.E.2d 491 (1966), later appeal, 223 Ga. 1, 152 S.E.2d 868 (1967).

It is clear that when parent having custody dies, legal custody reverts to other parent unless the other parent has lost parental rights as provided under O.C.G.A. § 19-7-1, or was shown to be presently unfit. Porter v. Johnson, 242 Ga. 188, 249 S.E.2d 608 (1978).

Absent showing of abandonment, cruel treatment, termination of parental rights, unfitness, or other grounds authorized by law, trial court lacks discretion to deprive surviving parent of his or her child. Bryant v. Wigley, 246 Ga. 155, 269 S.E.2d 418 (1980).

Surviving parent becomes the legal custodian of the child at the moment of the custodial parent's death, unless there has been a prior termination of the survivor's parental rights. Spires v. Lance, 167 Ga. App. 331, 306 S.E.2d 317 (1983).

Court must exercise discretion in awarding custody. — Discretion of judge must be exercised in favor of surviving parent who has legal right to custody of child, unless evidence shows that welfare and interest of child justify the judge in awarding custody to someone else. Hill v. Rivers, 200 Ga. 354, 37 S.E.2d 386 (1946); Sherrill v. Sherrill, 202 Ga. 288, 42 S.E.2d 921 (1947).

In every case where custody of minor children is involved, the law requires that court having jurisdiction shall exercise discretion in awarding custody. Waller v. Waller, 202 Ga. 535, 43 S.E.2d 535 (1947).

While judge is vested with discretion in determining to whom custody shall be given, such discretion should be governed by rules of law, and be exercised in favor of party having legal right, unless evidence shows that interest and welfare of child justify judge in awarding custody to another. Perkins v. Courson, 219 Ga. 611, 135 S.E.2d 388 (1964).

Legitimation of child following mother's death. — Former husband, a resident of Mississippi who had disclaimed paternity in a divorce decree, did not become entitled to custody upon the mother's death in Georgia; nor could the mother unilaterally substitute her former husband as the child's legal custodian without the consent of the father. Thus, the child was a Georgia resident for purposes of a legitimation proceeding by the biological father. Hardy v. Arcemont, 213 Ga. App. 243, 444 S.E.2d 327 (1994).

Court's limited discretion. — Statute gave court only limited discretion in custody dispute between parent and third party. Spitz v. Holland, 243 Ga. 9, 252 S.E.2d 406 (1979) (see O.C.G.A. § 19-9-2).

Nature of discretion vested in trial judge. — Statute permitted trial court discretion to consider whether child had been abandoned or subjected to cruel treatment by surviving parent, or to suspend proceeding to enable juvenile court to consider termination of parental rights of survivor, or to consider whether surviving parent was shown by clear and satisfactory proof to be unfit to have custody of child, or to consider such other matters as may be authorized by statute, and discretion to suspend proceeding to enable another court to consider such matters as the court had jurisdiction to consider. Bryant v. Wigley, 246 Ga. 155, 269 S.E.2d 418 (1980).

Judicial discretion must respect parties' established rights. — In exercising discretion, judge cannot disregard or impair acknowledged or established rights of any party; to do so, constitutes an abuse of discretion. Hill v. Rivers, 200 Ga. 354, 37 S.E.2d 386 (1946).

If either parent is a proper and suitable person and has not surrendered his or her parental right of custody, it is an abuse of discretion to award minor child to third parties over claim of such parent. Camp v. Bookman, 204 Ga. 670, 51 S.E.2d 391 (1949).

In all cases, welfare of child is controlling. — In all cases when custody of minor child is involved, paramount consideration is welfare and best interests of child. The court has broad discretion in this respect. Hodges v. Hodges, 77 Ga. App. 86, 47 S.E.2d 823 (1948).

In contest between parents over custody of minor children, paramount issue is welfare and best interest of children, and award based upon evidence and in exercise of sound discretion will not be controlled by Supreme Court. Jordan v. Jordan, 195 Ga. 771, 25 S.E.2d 500 (1943); Handley v. Handley, 204 Ga. 57, 48 S.E.2d 827 (1948).

In contest between two fit parties, the one having legal right should prevail. If both are proper parties, but neither has a legal right, the one having strongest moral claims should prevail. But in every case, regardless of parties, welfare of child is controlling and important fact. Camp v. Bookman, 204 Ga. 670, 51 S.E.2d 391 (1949).

Surviving parent may give custody to a third party. — Surviving parent had right to give temporary custody of child of tender years to her brother, that he might care for the child. When brother accepted request and offer of sister, and complied faithfully with his obligation, it would be a clear miscarriage of justice for court to have awarded custody to grandparents. Brant v. Bazemore, 159 Ga. App. 659, 284 S.E.2d 674 (1981).

Act, before death, of giving child to another. — Court errs in granting custody to third parties on ground that father, who was first awarded custody but is deceased at time of mother's action for custody of child, had given child to third parties, that they had had child since, and were fit and proper parties to have custody, as custody could only be taken from parent having legal right thereto by showing that parent had lost her parental rights to child under former Code 1933, § 74-108 (see now O.C.G.A. § 19-7-1), or by clear and satisfactory proof, that she was an unfit person to have custody. Peck v. Shierling, 222 Ga. 60, 148 S.E.2d 491 (1966), later appeal, 223 Ga. 1, 152 S.E.2d 868 (1967).

Custodial parent's contract cannot deprive noncustodial parent of rights. Landrum v. Landrum, 159 Ga. 324, 125 S.E. 832, 38 A.L.R. 217 (1924), overruled on other grounds, Camp v. Camp, 213 Ga. 65, 97 S.E.2d 125 (1957).

When surviving parent may lose right. — Surviving parent's right may be lost by a clear, definite, and certain voluntary contractual release of such right to child to a third person. Such an agreement is not subject to revocation without good cause shown. Durden v. Johnson, 194 Ga. 689, 22 S.E.2d 514 (1942).

Grandparents seeking custody after surviving parent allegedly murdered the other. — Trial court erroneously concluded that the grandparents' petition seeking custody of a mother's children failed to state a claim because the custody petition gave fair notice that the grandparents sought custody of the child under O.C.G.A. §§ 19-7-1(b.1) and 19-9-2 based upon the mother's alleged murder of the father; those allegations were sufficient to survive a motion to dismiss. Scott v. Scott, 311 Ga. App. 726, 716 S.E.2d 809 (2011).

Challenge to legal and parental right to custody. — Legal and parental right to custody is subject to challenge on ground of unfitness for trust. Peck v. Shierling, 222 Ga. 60, 148 S.E.2d 491 (1966), later appeal, 223 Ga. 1, 152 S.E.2d 868 (1968).

Proof required to establish unfitness. — Unfitness must be established by clear and satisfactory proof, and for grave and substantial cause, not merely that child might have better financial, educational, or even moral advantages. Peck v. Shierling, 222 Ga. 60, 148 S.E.2d 491 (1966), later appeal, 223 Ga. 1, 152 S.E. 868 (1967).

Parental unfitness must be shown by clear and convincing evidence. Wigley v. Bryant, 247 Ga. 508, 277 S.E.2d 246 (1981).

Court errs in awarding custody to grandparent when parent fit. — When father of child is man of good character, has regular job, is well able financially to support child, maintains home of good environment, and there is no evidence showing his abuse or ill treatment of child, trial judge abused discretion in awarding custody of child to maternal grandmother. Hill v. Rivers, 200 Ga. 354, 37 S.E.2d 386 (1946).

Grandparents seeking custody. — Trial court properly determined that collateral estoppel did not bar the grandparents' petition for custody of a mother's children because different issues were actually and necessarily decided in the grandparents' visitation action; in the visitation action, the issues were harm to the child if visitation was not granted and whether visitation would be in the best interest of the children, and in the custody action, the issues were whether the children would suffer physical or emotional harm if custody remained with the mother. Scott v. Scott, 311 Ga. App. 726, 716 S.E.2d 809 (2011).

Surviving parent who failed to provide necessities. — When the father had both negligently and willfully failed to fulfill his statutory duty to provide "the necessities" for his minor children but no proceeding to establish abandonment, unfitness, or forfeiture of rights was instituted prior to the mother's death, O.C.G.A. § 19-9-2, which gives custody to the surviving parent absent a contrary judicial holding based on strong, clear, and convincing evidence, was probably operative at the time of the mother's death, and appellee at that time became, and continued to be, the children's legal custodian. Harper v. Landers, 180 Ga. App. 154, 348 S.E.2d 698 (1986).

Court's exclusive right to award custody. — Generally, court where custodial parent resides has exclusive right to award change of custody; this is true whether legal custodian lives in another state or in another county, and irrespective of physical presence of child. Matthews v. Matthews, 238 Ga. 201, 232 S.E.2d 76 (1977).

Proceeding to change decree of custody may not be brought against custodial parent by noncustodial parent in county in which noncustodial parent resides. Matthews v. Matthews, 238 Ga. 201, 232 S.E.2d 76 (1977).

Third party who illegally withholds custody from surviving parent in another jurisdiction cannot counterclaim and contest custody when parent is forced to file a habeas petition in the foreign jurisdiction. Canning v. Evans, 250 Ga. 85, 295 S.E.2d 741 (1982).

Habeas corpus proceeding. — Person claiming no legal right of custody cannot institute habeas corpus proceeding. Spitz v. Holland, 243 Ga. 9, 252 S.E.2d 406 (1979).

19-9-3. Discretion of judge in custody disputes; right of child 14 years old or older to select custodial parent; consideration of child's educational needs; review of visitation rights; grandparent visitation; policy; retention of jurisdiction; attorney's fees; filing of domestic relations final disposition form; application to military parents.

(a)(1) In all cases in which the custody of any child is at issue between the parents, there shall be no prima-facie right to the custody of the child in the father or mother. There shall be no presumption in favor of any particular form of custody, legal or physical, nor in favor of either parent. Joint custody may be considered as an alternative form of custody by the judge and the judge at any temporary or permanent hearing may grant sole custody, joint custody, joint legal custody, or joint physical custody as appropriate.

(2) The judge hearing the issue of custody shall make a determination of custody of a child and such matter shall not be decided by a jury. The judge may take into consideration all the circumstances of the case, including the improvement of the health of the party seeking a change in custody provisions, in determining to whom custody of the child should be awarded. The duty of the judge in all such cases shall be to exercise discretion to look to and determine solely what is for the best interest of the child and what will best promote the child's welfare and happiness and to make his or her award accordingly.

(3) In determining the best interests of the child, the judge may consider any relevant factor including, but not limited to:

(A) The love, affection, bonding, and emotional ties existing between each parent and the child;

(B) The love, affection, bonding, and emotional ties existing between the child and his or her siblings, half siblings, and stepsiblings and the residence of such other children;

(C) The capacity and disposition of each parent to give the child love, affection, and guidance and to continue the education and rearing of the child;

(D) Each parent's knowledge and familiarity of the child and the child's needs;

(E) The capacity and disposition of each parent to provide the child with food, clothing, medical care, day-to-day needs, and other necessary basic care, with consideration made for the potential payment of child support by the other parent;

(F) The home environment of each parent considering the promotion of nurturance and safety of the child rather than superficial or material factors;

(G) The importance of continuity in the child's life and the length of time the child has lived in a stable, satisfactory environment and the desirability of maintaining continuity;

(H) The stability of the family unit of each of the parents and the presence or absence of each parent's support systems within the community to benefit the child;

(I) The mental and physical health of each parent;

(J) Each parent's involvement, or lack thereof, in the child's educational, social, and extracurricular activities;

(K) Each parent's employment schedule and the related flexibility or limitations, if any, of a parent to care for the child;

(L) The home, school, and community record and history of the child, as well as any health or educational special needs of the child;

(M) Each parent's past performance and relative abilities for future performance of parenting responsibilities;

(N) The willingness and ability of each of the parents to facilitate and encourage a close and continuing parent-child relationship between the child and the other parent, consistent with the best interest of the child;

(O) Any recommendation by a court appointed custody evaluator or guardian ad litem;

(P) Any evidence of family violence or sexual, mental, or physical child abuse or criminal history of either parent; and

(Q) Any evidence of substance abuse by either parent.

(4) In addition to other factors that a judge may consider in a proceeding in which the custody of a child or visitation or parenting time by a parent is at issue and in which the judge has made a finding of family violence:

(A) The judge shall consider as primary the safety and well-being of the child and of the parent who is the victim of family violence;

(B) The judge shall consider the perpetrator's history of causing physical harm, bodily injury, assault, or causing reasonable fear of physical harm, bodily injury, or assault to another person;

(C) If a parent is absent or relocates because of an act of domestic violence by the other parent, such absence or relocation for a reasonable period of time in the circumstances shall not be deemed an abandonment of the child for the purposes of custody determination; and

(D) The judge shall not refuse to consider relevant or otherwise admissible evidence of acts of family violence merely because there has been no previous finding of family violence. The judge may, in addition to other appropriate actions, order supervised visitation or parenting time pursuant to Code Section 19-9-7.

(5) In all custody cases in which the child has reached the age of 14 years, the child shall have the right to select the parent with whom he or she desires to live. The child's selection for purposes of custody shall be presumptive unless the parent so selected is determined not to be in the best interests of the child. The parental selection by a child who has reached the age of 14 may, in and of itself, constitute a material change of condition or circumstance in any action seeking a modification or change in the custody of that child; provided, however, that such selection may only be made once within a period of two years from the date of the previous selection and the best interests of the child standard shall apply.

(6) In all custody cases in which the child has reached the age of 11 but not 14 years, the judge shall consider the desires and educational needs of the child in determining which parent shall have custody. The judge shall have complete discretion in making this determination, and the child's desires shall not be controlling. The judge shall further have broad discretion as to how the child's desires are to be considered, including through the report of a guardian ad litem. The best interests of the child standard shall be controlling. The parental selection of a child who has reached the age of 11 but not 14 years shall not, in and of itself, constitute a material change of condition or circumstance in any action seeking a modification or change in the custody of that child. The judge may issue an order granting temporary custody to the selected parent for a trial period not to exceed six months regarding the custody of a child who has reached the age of 11 but not 14 years where the judge hearing the case determines such a temporary order is appropriate.

(7) The judge is authorized to order a psychological custody evaluation of the family or an independent medical evaluation. In addition to the privilege afforded a witness, neither a court appointed custody evaluator nor a court appointed guardian ad litem shall be subject to civil liability resulting from any act or failure to act in the performance of his or her duties unless such act or failure to act was in bad faith.

(8) If requested by any party on or before the close of evidence in a contested hearing, the permanent court order awarding child custody shall set forth specific findings of fact as to the basis for the judge's decision in making an award of custody including any relevant factor relied upon by the judge as set forth in paragraph (3) of this subsection. Such order shall set forth in detail why the court awarded custody in the manner set forth in the order and, if joint legal custody is awarded, a manner in which final decision making on matters affecting the child's education, health, extracurricular activities, religion, and any other important matter shall be decided. Such order shall be filed within 30 days of the final hearing in the custody case, unless extended by order of the judge with the agreement of the parties.

(b) In any case in which a judgment awarding the custody of a child has been entered, on the motion of any party or on the motion of the judge, that portion of the judgment effecting visitation rights between the parties and their child or parenting time may be subject to review and modification or alteration without the necessity of any showing of a change in any material conditions and circumstances of either party or the child, provided that the review and modification or alteration shall not be had more often than once in each two-year period following the date of entry of the judgment. However, this subsection shall not limit or restrict the power of the judge to enter a judgment relating to the custody of a child in any new proceeding based upon a showing of a change in any material conditions or circumstances of a party or the child. A military parent's absences caused by the performance of his or her deployments, or the potential for future deployments, shall not be the sole factor considered in supporting a claim of any change in material conditions or circumstances of either party or the child; provided, however, that the court may consider evidence of the effect of a deployment in assessing a claim of any change in material conditions or circumstances of either party or the child.

(c) In the event of any conflict between this Code section and any provision of Article 3 of this chapter, Article 3 shall apply.

(d) It is the express policy of this state to encourage that a child has continuing contact with parents and grandparents who have shown the ability to act in the best interest of the child and to encourage parents to share in the rights and responsibilities of raising their child after such parents have separated or dissolved their marriage or relationship.

(e) Upon the filing of an action for a change of child custody, the judge may in his or her discretion change the terms of custody on a temporary basis pending final judgment on such issue. Any such award of temporary custody shall not constitute an adjudication of the rights of the parties.

(f)(1) In any case in which a judgment awarding the custody of a child has been entered, the court entering such judgment shall retain jurisdiction of the case for the purpose of ordering the custodial parent to notify the court of any changes in the residence of the child.

(2) In any case in which visitation rights or parenting time has been provided to the noncustodial parent and the court orders that the custodial parent provide notice of a change in address of the place for pickup and delivery of the child for visitation or parenting time, the custodial parent shall notify the noncustodial parent, in writing, of any change in such address. Such written notification shall provide a street address or other description of the new location for pickup and delivery so that the noncustodial parent may exercise such parent's visitation rights or parenting time.

(3) Except where otherwise provided by court order, in any case under this subsection in which a parent changes his or her residence, he or she must give notification of such change to the other parent and, if the parent changing residence is the custodial parent, to any other person granted visitation rights or parenting time under this title or a court order. Such notification shall be given at least 30 days prior to the anticipated change of residence and shall include the full address of the new residence.

(g) Except as provided in Code Section 19-6-2, and in addition to the attorney's fee provisions contained in Code Section 19-6-15, the judge may order reasonable attorney's fees and expenses of litigation, experts, and the child's guardian ad litem and other costs of the child custody action and pretrial proceedings to be paid by the parties in proportions and at times determined by the judge. Attorney's fees may be awarded at both the temporary hearing and the final hearing. A final judgment shall include the amount granted, whether the grant is in full or on account, which may be enforced by attachment for contempt of court or by writ of fieri facias, whether the parties subsequently reconcile or not. An attorney may bring an action in his or her own name to enforce a grant of attorney's fees made pursuant to this subsection.

(h) In addition to filing requirements contained in Code Section 19-6-15, upon the conclusion of any proceeding under this article, the domestic relations final disposition form as set forth in Code Section 9-11-133 shall be filed.

(i) Notwithstanding other provisions of this article, whenever a military parent is deployed, the following shall apply:

(1) A court shall not enter a final order modifying parental rights and responsibilities under an existing parenting plan earlier than 90 days after the deployment ends, unless such modification is agreed to by the deployed parent;

(2) Upon a petition to establish or modify an existing parenting plan being filed by a deploying parent or nondeploying parent, the court shall enter a temporary modification order for the parenting plan to ensure contact with the child during the period of deployment when:

(A) A military parent receives formal notice from military leadership that he or she will deploy in the near future, and such parent has primary physical custody, joint physical custody, or sole physical custody of a child, or otherwise has parenting time with a child under an existing parenting plan; and

(B) The deployment will have a material effect upon a deploying parent's ability to exercise parental rights and responsibilities toward his or her child either in the existing relationship with the other parent or under an existing parenting plan;

(3) Petitions for temporary modification of an existing parenting plan because of a deployment shall be heard by the court as expeditiously as possible and shall be a priority on the court's calendar;

(4)(A) All temporary modification orders for parenting plans shall include a reasonable and specific transition schedule to facilitate a return to the predeployment parenting plan over the shortest reasonable time period after the deployment ends, based upon the child's best interest.

(B) Unless the court determines that it would not be in the child's best interest, a temporary modification order for a parenting plan shall set a date certain for the anticipated end of the deployment and the start of the transition period back to the predeployment parenting plan. If a deployment is extended, the temporary modification order for a parenting plan shall remain in effect, and the transition schedule shall take effect at the end of the extension of the deployment. Failure of the nondeploying parent to notify the court in accordance with this paragraph shall not prejudice the deploying parent's right to return to the predeployment parenting plan once the temporary modification order for a parenting plan expires as provided in subparagraph (C) of this paragraph.

(C) A temporary modification order for a parenting plan shall expire upon the completion of the transition period and the predeployment parenting plan shall establish the rights and responsibilities between parents for the child;

(5) Upon a petition to modify an existing parenting plan being filed by a deploying parent and upon a finding that it serves the best interest of the child, the court may delegate for the duration of the deployment any portion of such deploying parent's parenting time with the child to anyone in his or her extended family, including but not limited to an immediate family member, a person with whom the deploying parent cohabits, or another person having a close and substantial relationship to the child. Such delegated parenting time shall not create any separate rights to such person once the period of deployment has ended;

(6) If the court finds it to be in the child's best interest, a temporary modification order for a parenting plan issued under this subsection may require any of the following:

(A) The nondeploying parent make the child reasonably available to the deploying parent to exercise his or her parenting time immediately before and after the deploying parent departs for deployment and whenever the deploying parent returns to or from leave or furlough from his or her deployment;

(B) The nondeploying parent facilitate opportunities for the deployed parent to have regular and continuing contact with his or her child by telephone, e-mail exchanges, virtual video parenting time through the Internet, or any other similar means;

(C) The nondeploying parent not interfere with the delivery of correspondence or packages between the deployed parent and child of such parent; and

(D) The deploying parent provide timely information regarding his or her leave and departure schedule to the nondeploying parent;

(7) Because actual leave from a deployment and departure dates for a deployment are subject to change with little notice due to military necessity, such changes shall not be used by the nondeploying parent to prevent contact between the deployed parent and his or her child;

(8) A court order temporarily modifying an existing parenting plan or other order governing parent-child rights and responsibilities shall specify when a deployment is the basis for such order and it shall be entered by the court only as a temporary modification order or interlocutory order;

(9) A relocation by a nondeploying parent during a period of a deployed parent's absence and occurring during the period of a temporary modification order for a parenting plan shall not act to terminate the exclusive and continuing jurisdiction of the court for purposes of later determining custody or parenting time under this chapter;

(10) A court order temporarily modifying an existing parenting plan or other order shall require the nondeploying parent to provide the court and the deploying parent with not less than 30 days' advance written notice of any intended change of residence address, telephone numbers, or e-mail address;

(11) Upon a deployed parent's final return from deployment, either parent may file a petition to modify the temporary modification order for a parenting plan on the grounds that compliance with such order will result in immediate danger or substantial harm to the child, and may further request that the court issue an ex parte order. The deployed parent may file such a petition prior to his or her return. Such petition shall be accompanied by an affidavit in support of the requested order. Upon a finding of immediate danger or substantial harm to the child based on the facts set forth in the affidavit, the court may issue an ex parte order modifying the temporary parenting plan or other parent-child contact in order to prevent immediate danger or substantial harm to the child. If the court issues an ex parte order, the court shall set the matter for hearing within ten days from the issuance of the ex parte order;

(12) Nothing in this subsection shall preclude either party from filing a petition for permanent modification of an existing parenting plan under subsection (b) of this Code section; provided, however, that the court shall not conduct a final hearing on such petition until at least 90 days after the final return of the deploying parent. There shall exist a presumption favoring the predeployment parenting plan or custody order as one that still serves the best interest of the child, and the party seeking to permanently modify such plan or order shall have the burden to prove that it no longer serves the best interest of the child;

(13) When the deployment of a military parent has a material effect upon his or her ability to appear in person at a scheduled hearing, then upon request by the deploying parent and provided reasonable advance notice is given to other interested parties, the court may allow a deployed parent to present testimony and other evidence by electronic means for any matter considered by the court under this subsection. For purposes of this paragraph, the term “electronic means” shall include, but not be limited to, communications by telephone, video teleconference, Internet connection, or electronically stored affidavits or documents sent from the deployment location or elsewhere;

(14)(A) When deployment of a military parent appears imminent and there is no existing parenting plan or other order setting forth the parent’s rights and responsibilities, then upon a petition filed by either parent the court shall:

(i) Expedite a hearing to establish a temporary parenting plan;

(ii) Require that the deploying parent shall have continued access to the child, provided that such contact is in the child’s best interest;

(iii) Ensure the disclosure of financial information pertaining to both parties;

(iv) Determine the child support responsibilities under Code Section 19-6-15 of both parents during the deployment; and

(v) Determine the child’s best interest and consider delegating to any third parties with close contacts to the child any reasonable parenting time during the deployment. In deciding such request the court shall consider the reasonable requests of the deployed parent.

(B) Any pleading filed to establish a parenting plan or child support order under this paragraph shall be identified at the time of filing by stating in the text of the pleading the specific facts related to the deployment and by referencing this paragraph and subsection of this Code section;

(15) When an impending deployment precludes court expedited adjudication before deployment, the court may agree to allow the parties to arbitrate any issues as allowed under Code Section 19-9-1.1, or order the parties to mediation under any court established alternative dispute resolution program. For purposes of arbitration or mediation, each party shall be under a duty to provide to the other party information relevant to any parenting plan or support issues pertaining to the children or the parties;

(16) Each military parent shall be under a continuing duty to provide written notice to the nondeploying parent within 14 days of the military parent's receipt of oral or written orders requiring deployment or any other absences due to military service that will impact the military parent's ability to exercise his or her parenting time with a child. If deployment orders do not allow for 14 days' advance notice, then the military parent shall provide written notice to the other parent immediately upon receiving such notice; and

(17) A military parent shall ensure that any military family care plan that he or she has filed with his or her commander is consistent with any existing court orders for his or her child. In all instances any court order will be the first course of action for the care of a child during the absence of a military parent, and the military family care plan will be the alternative plan if the nondeploying parent either refuses to provide care for the child or acknowledges an inability to provide reasonable care for the child. A military parent shall not be considered in contempt of any court order or parenting plan when he or she in good faith implements his or her military family care plan based upon the refusal or claimed inability of a nondeploying parent to provide reasonable care for a child during a deployment. Code Commission notes. — Pursuant to Code Section 28-9-5, in 1991, subsection (c), which was added by Ga. L. 1991, p. 1389, was redesignated as subsection (d).

Pursuant to Code Section 28-9-5, in 2007, "its" was deleted preceding "discretion" in the last sentence of paragraph (a)(2), and "educational" was substituted for "education" in subparagraph (a)(3)(J).

Editor's notes. — Ga. L. 2007, p. 554, § 1/HB 369, not codified by the General Assembly, provides: "The General Assembly of Georgia declares that it is the policy of this state to assure that minor children have frequent and continuing contact with parents who have shown the ability to act in the best interests of their children and to encourage parents to share in the rights and responsibilities of rearing their children after the parents have separated or dissolved their marriage or relationship."

Ga. L. 2007, p. 554, § 8/HB 369, not codified by the General Assembly, provides that the 2007 amendment shall apply to all child custody proceedings and modifications of child custody filed on or after January 1, 2008.

Ga. L. 2011, p. 274, § 1/SB 112, not codified by the General Assembly, provides that: "This Act shall be known and may be cited as the 'Military Parents Rights Act.'"

General Consideration

Contact provisions cannot be based upon racial considerations. — Although a court may validly provide, under appropriate circumstances, that a child is to have no contact with particular individuals who are deemed harmful to the child, such provision cannot be based solely upon racial considerations as such ruling would violate the public policy of the state. Turman v. Boleman, 235 Ga. App. 243, 510 S.E.2d 532 (1998).

Award of joint legal custody within the court's authority. — When the court awarded physical custody to the father in the court's modification order and the father did not contest the award of joint legal custody, the trial court properly exercised the court's authority in consideration of the best interests of the children to award joint legal custody to both parents. Walker v. Walker, 248 Ga. App. 177, 546 S.E.2d 315 (2001).

Statute dealt with custody of minor children as between parents. Chapin v. Cummings, 191 Ga. 408, 12 S.E.2d 312 (1940); Rogers v. Smith, 222 Ga. 841, 152 S.E.2d 859 (1967).

Statute was applicable only when contest was between child's parents, in which case father had no prima facie right to the child's custody; it had no application to disputes between father and third person. Waldrup v. Crane, 203 Ga. 388, 46 S.E.2d 919 (1948).

In custody case, state as parens patriae is materially concerned, and through agency of court is virtually a party to judgment, although action proceeds nominally as one between parents only. Fortson v. Fortson, 195 Ga. 750, 25 S.E.2d 518 (1943), later appeal, 197 Ga. 699, 30 S.E.2d 165 (1944).

Custody is issue for court, not jury, determination. — When divorce is sought by either party, court, not jury, has duty of disposing of custody of parties' minor children in their best interests. Weaver v. Weaver, 238 Ga. 101, 230 S.E.2d 886 (1976).

Statute conferred no jurisdiction on court. Painter v. Painter, 231 Ga. 184, 200 S.E.2d 888 (1973).

Jurisdiction and venue. — Although a trial court may modify, sua sponte, visitation under certain circumstances pursuant to O.C.G.A. §§ 19-9-1(b) and 19-9-3(b), those provisions apply only when jurisdiction and venue are proper. Rogers v. Baudet, 215 Ga. App. 214, 449 S.E.2d 900 (1994).

Court must first have jurisdiction to hear custody issue before discretion authorized can be exercised. Painter v. Painter, 231 Ga. 184, 200 S.E.2d 888 (1973).

Court cannot determine custody on complaint for support against non-resident father. — Trial court does not have jurisdiction to determine custody of minor child on complaint for child support and custody unaccompanied by divorce suit brought by newly resident mother against nonresident father. Painter v. Painter, 231 Ga. 184, 200 S.E.2d 888 (1973).

Superior court judge lacks jurisdiction to terminate parental rights. — Superior court judge, upon hearing divorce and child custody case, lacks jurisdiction to terminate parental rights, although the judge can exercise judicial discretion as to best interests of the child to award custody to party other than parents. Cothran v. Cothran, 237 Ga. 487, 228 S.E.2d 872 (1976).

Court has construed former Code 1933, §§ 30-127 and 74-107 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 19-9-1 and 19-9-3) together in decisions involving custody in divorce actions, and has recognized the right of the trial judge to exercise sound legal discretion, looking to the best interest of the child or children, in awarding custody of children. Brown v. Brown, 222 Ga. 446, 150 S.E.2d 615 (1966).

Determination of custody issues by juvenile court. — Generally, the purpose of the Juvenile Court Code of Georgia, (O.C.G.A. Ch. 11, T. 15) is not to settle questions of custody by and between parents of a minor child or children; however, it is proper for the juvenile court to decide custody issues when properly transferred to it by the superior court. Neal v. Washington, 158 Ga. App. 39, 279 S.E.2d 294 (1981).

Consideration of factors in adoption proceeding. — Trial court did not abuse the court's discretion by considering the factors listed in O.C.G.A. § 19-9-3 in a petition for adoption filed by a child's paternal grandmother and paternal step-grandfather, although the court recognized that the factors were listed in the statute governing custody between parents because the child's maternal grandmother posed no objection when the trial court announced the court's decision in open court and noted specifically that the court utilized O.C.G.A. § 19-9-3 in the court's analysis. Barr v. Gregor, 316 Ga. App. 269, 728 S.E.2d 868 (2012).

Prohibition against exposure of children to members of gay and lesbian community prohibited. — Blanket prohibition pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 19-9-3(d) in a divorce against exposure of the parties' children to members of the gay and lesbian community who were acquainted with the husband was improper because there was no evidence that any member of the excluded community had engaged in inappropriate conduct in the presence of the children. Mongerson v. Mongerson, 285 Ga. 554, 678 S.E.2d 891 (2009), overruled on other grounds, 288 Ga. 670, 706 S.E.2d 456 (2011).

Evidence of parent's alleged suicide attempt held irrelevant. — In ruling on a parent's petition to modify custody, as the trial court made no finding of the existence of family violence under O.C.G.A. § 19-9-3(a)(4), whether the other parent had sought the help of a mental health professional or had attempted to commit suicide many years earlier was not probative of any material issue in the case. Therefore, such evidence was properly excluded. Moore v. Moore-McKinney, 297 Ga. App. 703, 678 S.E.2d 152 (2009).

Custody evaluation properly ordered in visitation dispute. — It was not error for a trial court to order a custody evaluation in a visitation dispute because: (1) O.C.G.A. § 19-9-22(1) included visitation in the definition of “custody”; and (2) O.C.G.A. § 19-9-3(a)(7) authorized the court to order an evaluation. Gottschalk v. Gottschalk, 311 Ga. App. 304, 715 S.E.2d 715 (2011).

Parties financial condition not relevant to award of attorney’s fees. — Trial court did not err in awarding a mother attorney’s fees after granting the mother’s petition to modify custody because the mother submitted a letter brief expressly seeking an award of attorney’s fees pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 19-9-3(g); subsection (g) of § 19-9-3 does not require a trial court to consider the parties’ financial circumstances in making the grant of attorney’s fees. Therefore, to the extent Harris v. Williams, 304 Ga. App. 390 (2010) holds that O.C.G.A. § 19-9-3(g) does not authorize an award of attorney’s fees in an action seeking modification of child custody, the case is overruled. Viskup v. Visкуп, 291 Ga. 103, 727 S.E.2d 97 (2012).

Allocation of attorney fee award not required. — Full amount of attorney’s fees award of $35,000 to a father in a child custody dispute was justified by the trial court’s findings under either O.C.G.A. § 9-15-14 or O.C.G.A. § 19-9-3(g); therefore, the trial court was not required to allocate the amount the court was awarding under each statute. Taylor v. Taylor, 293 Ga. 615, 748 S.E.2d 873 (2013).

Attorney fees award not supported by statutory basis or factual findings. — Because there was no statutory basis given, no statutory language used, and no findings of fact presented regarding the award of attorney fees to the wife, there was no way to be certain whether the trial court awarded fees based on O.C.G.A. § 19-9-3 or some other statute. Williams v. Williams, 295 Ga. 113, 757 S.E.2d 859 (2014).

Failure to address motion for fees and costs. — In a post-divorce matter, the trial court erred by failing to address a father’s motion for attorney fees and costs because the trial court held that a number of the mother’s post-trial motions were frivolous and vexatious, but did not mention or rule on the father’s long-standing request for fees and costs incurred up to and including trial. Bankston v. Warbington, No. A14A1515, 2015 Ga. App. LEXIS 185 (Mar. 24, 2015).

Attorney fee award upheld. — Trial court properly awarded the mother attorney fees for first counsel that had withdrawn because the father failed to cite any authority for the proposition that attorney fees cannot be awarded under O.C.G.A. § 19-9-3 for one who has withdrawn from representation as the statutory language provides that fees may be ordered to be paid by the parties in proportions and at times determined by the judge and as the interests of justice may require. Neal v. Hibbard, 770 S.E.2d 600, No. S14A1673, 2015 Ga. LEXIS 183 (2015).

Failure to indicate statutory basis for attorney fee award. — In a child support and custody proceeding, the order awarding the mother attorney fees was vacated and the case was remanded for the trial court to reconsider the issue because the court failed to state the statutory basis for any award and any necessary findings to support the award. Blumenshine v. Hall, 329 Ga. App. 449, 765 S.E.2d 647 (2014).

Award of Custody

1. In General

No prima facie right of custody. — As between parents ordinarily no prima facie right of custody exists. Hill v. Rivers, 200 Ga. 354, 37 S.E.2d 386 (1946); Benefield v. Benefield, 216 Ga. 593, 118 S.E.2d 464 (1961).

When contest is between parents, there is no prima facie right of custody; but the court, in the exercise of the court's sound discretion, shall place children where in the court's judgment their best interest will be best served. Folsom v. Folsom, 228 Ga. 536, 186 S.E.2d 752 (1972).

Although the parties had difficulty communicating with each other, both parents were fit and proper parents and each had a loving relationship with the child, to the extent that a joint custody award, with the husband having primary physical custody, was supported by the evidence; thus, the appeals court refused to hold that the trial court abused the court's discretion in awarding primary physical custody of the child to the husband. Powell v. Powell, 277 Ga. 878, 596 S.E.2d 616 (2004).

Mother and father have equal status. Gambrell v. Gambrell, 244 Ga. 178, 259 S.E.2d 439 (1979).

Court must exercise discretion in awarding custody. — In every case when custody of minor children is in-involved, law requires that court having jurisdiction shall exercise discretion in awarding custody. Waller v. Waller, 202 Ga. 535, 43 S.E.2d 535 (1947).

Broad judicial discretion over custody in divorce case. — Judge in divorce case has broad discretion in determining which parent is entitled to custody of minor child or children. Newman v. Newman, 223 Ga. 278, 154 S.E.2d 581 (1967).

Exercise of sound legal discretion in awarding custody shall not be controlled. Willingham v. Willingham, 192 Ga. 405, 15 S.E.2d 514 (1941); Jordan v. Jordan, 195 Ga. 771, 25 S.E.2d 500 (1943); Bignon v. Bignon, 202 Ga. 141, 42 S.E.2d 426 (1947); Handley v. Handley, 204 Ga. 57, 48 S.E.2d 87 (1948); Benefield v. Benefield, 216 Ga. 593, 118 S.E.2d 464 (1961).

When trial judge has exercised discretion in making award of minor children as between divorced parents, the supreme court will not interfere unless evidence clearly shows abuse of the discretion vested in the judge. Adams v. Adams, 206 Ga. 881, 59 S.E.2d 366 (1950).

Law vests broad discretion in trial court judge regarding custody awards, and unless it appears that such discretion has been manifestly abused, action in awarding custody of minor child will not be disturbed by the appellate court. Lynn v. Lynn, 202 Ga. 776, 44 S.E.2d 769 (1947); Hodges v. Hodges, 77 Ga. App. 86, 47 S.E.2d 823 (1948); Adams v. Heffernan, 217 Ga. 404, 122 S.E.2d 735 (1961).

In questions of custody, judge has wide latitude and discretion in determining what is in children's best interest, welfare, and happiness. This discretion will be interfered with only in those cases when abuse is shown. Barnes v. Tant, 217 Ga. 67, 121 S.E.2d 125 (1961).

When no abuse of judicial discretion appears from the record, the appellate court will not interfere to control trial court judgment. Murphy v. Dixon, 218 Ga. 111, 126 S.E.2d 616 (1962).

Trial court did not abuse the court's discretion in awarding primary physical custody of the parties' older son, who had been adopted by the husband, to the wife and primary physical custody of the younger daughter to the husband because the court's factual findings were supported by evidence that the husband had cared for the children by feeding, clothing, and bathing the children, taking the children to medical appointments, caring for the children while the wife was out of town, and helping the son with schoolwork, whereas the wife had deliberately misrepresented matters to the court, was not a credible witness, had put her own desires and perceived needs ahead of and to the detriment of her children, and lacked the moral fiber to be a role model for her children. Anderson v. Anderson, 278 Ga. 713, 606 S.E.2d 251 (2004).

As a trial court did not base the court's custody decision in the parties' divorce action solely on their postnuptial reconciliation agreement pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 19-9-5(b), but instead, the court found that the custody arrangement encompassed within the agreement was in the children's best interests pursuant to the factors under O.C.G.A. § 19-9-3(a)(3)(A-Q), there was no abuse of discretion in the custody award. Spurlin v. Spurlin, 289 Ga. 818, 716 S.E.2d 209 (2011).

Evidence supported award of custody to father. — Father was properly awarded primary physical custody of the parties' minor child utilizing a best interests of the child standard under O.C.G.A. § 19-9-3(a)(2) because allegations of sexual abuse by the father were inconclusive and the mother's handling of the allegations had a negative effect on the relationship between the child and the father; the trial court also properly relied on testimony from, inter alia, the guardian ad litem, the child's therapist, and a psychologist who had evaluated the mother. King v. King, 284 Ga. 364, 667 S.E.2d 30 (2008).

Award of custody based upon conflicting evidence does not of itself show abuse of discretion. Adams v. Adams, 206 Ga. 881, 59 S.E.2d 366 (1950).

Custody not determined in legitimation action. — In a proceeding on a father's petition for custody, when the issue of custody had not been determined in a prior legitimation action, the court erred in requiring the father to show a material change of condition affecting the well being of the child; rather, the dispute must be resolved under the best interest of the child test. Kennedy v. Adams, 218 Ga. App. 120, 460 S.E.2d 540 (1995).

2. Child's Best Interests and Welfare

Between parents, child's best interests control. — Statute imposed upon court duty of making the court's award of custody in accordance with best interests of child; and this consideration alone must control judgment of court. Any rule of law that would defeat this single purpose is contrary to that section and should not be sustained. Pruitt v. Butterfield, 189 Ga. 593, 6 S.E.2d 786 (1940).

In all cases between parents for custody of minor child, law imposes upon trial judge duty to exercise sound discretion and let welfare of child control the judge's award. Pruitt v. Butterfield, 189 Ga. 593, 6 S.E.2d 786 (1940); Dyche v. Dyche, 218 Ga. 833, 131 S.E.2d 104 (1963).

In contest between parents over custody of minor children, paramount issue is welfare and best interest of children. Jordan v. Jordan, 195 Ga. 771, 25 S.E.2d 500 (1943); Handley v. Handley, 204 Ga. 57, 48 S.E.2d 827 (1948); Durden v. Durden, 224 Ga. 417, 162 S.E.2d 385 (1968).

In cases between parties involving custody of their minor children, rule is established that judge exercises sound legal discretion, looking to best interests of child or children. Parr v. Parr, 196 Ga. 805, 27 S.E.2d 687 (1943); Lynn v. Lynn, 202 Ga. 776, 44 S.E.2d 769 (1947); Adams v. Heffernan, 217 Ga. 404, 122 S.E.2d 735 (1961).

In all cases where custody of minor child is involved, paramount consideration is welfare and best interest of child. Hodges v. Hodges, 77 Ga. App. 86, 47 S.E.2d 823 (1948).

Fundamental basis for fixing custody as between parents is welfare of children. Bettes v. Bettes, 223 Ga. 732, 157 S.E.2d 742 (1967).

In all custody cases with respect to child or children under 14 years of age, trial court has wide discretion in awarding custody and in exercising such discretion;

it is the trial court's duty to look to and determine solely what is in best interests of child or children. Whaley v. Disbrow, 225 Ga. 145, 166 S.E.2d 343 (1969).

In divorce action in which child custody is an issue, test for use by trial court in determining which parent shall have child custody is "best interests of child." Higbee v. Tuck, 242 Ga. 376, 249 S.E.2d 62 (1978).

When trial court states that both parties are fit and proper persons to have custody of minor child and that interests of child will be best served by awarding permanent custody of child to mother, it is utilizing appropriate test, and does not abuse the court's discretion. Dorminy v. Dorminy, 242 Ga. 326, 249 S.E.2d 49 (1978).

Upon a review of the trial court's final custody order, despite the wife's contrary claims, nothing in the custody order or the record showed that the court's custody ruling was based on any standard other than what was in the best interests of the children, and nothing showed that the court required the wife to disprove any allegations asserted by the husband. Moreover, the final custody determination need not be the same as that of any temporary order. Hadden v. Hadden, 283 Ga. 424, 659 S.E.2d 353 (2008).

Award of primary physical custody of a minor child to the father served the child's best interests because of the child's close relationship with his father, the continued use of the same speech therapist, and other evidence relating to stability, continuity, and the child's adjustment to relocation. Haskell v. Haskell, 286 Ga. 112, 686 S.E.2d 102 (2009).

Court must further children's best interests, regardless of one parent's willingness to give custody to other. Weaver v. Weaver, 238 Ga. 101, 230 S.E.2d 886 (1976).

Child's welfare is controlling factor regardless of parties involved. — In contest for custody between two parties, both of whom are fit and proper persons, one having legal right should prevail. If both are proper parties, but neither has a legal right, one having stronger moral claim should prevail. But in every case, regardless of parties, welfare of child is the controlling and important fact. Hill v.

Award of Custody (Cont'd)
2. Child's Best Interests and Welfare (Cont'd)

Rivers, 200 Ga. 354, 37 S.E.2d 386 (1946).

No biological parent preference over adoptive parent. — In a custody dispute between a biological parent and an adoptive parent, preference cannot be given to the biological parent. The test is the best interest of the child. Ivey v. Ivey, 264 Ga. 435, 445 S.E.2d 258 (1994).

Custody dispute involving orphaned children. — In a custody dispute involving children orphaned by the murder-suicide of their parents, a trial court did not err by awarding custody of the children to the paternal grandmother over the petition of an aunt because the aunt was involved in a divorce proceeding, had a precarious financial situation, and otherwise was unable to show that she could support her own child let alone that of her niece and nephew; plus, the aunt made representations to the niece and nephew that they would be living with her permanently, knowing that the custody matter had not yet been decided. Stone-Crosby v. Mickens-Cook, 318 Ga. App. 313, 733 S.E.2d 842 (2012).

Court is not to merely ratify parties' agreement. — Trial court has an independent duty in cases of joint custody to make an award of custody that is in the best interest of the children and is not authorized to merely ratify the practices of the parties. Templeman v. Earnest, 209 Ga. App. 557, 434 S.E.2d 106 (1993).

Judge must hear evidence from both parties regarding disposition which would be in child's best interest. Mitchell v. Ward, 231 Ga. 671, 203 S.E.2d 484 (1974).

Considerations relevant in determining best interests of child. — As to conditions occurring after custody award, court has full discretion in awarding custody of child, and in exercise of such discretion the court may look to circumstances relating to child's ordinary comfort and contentment, its intellectual and moral development, and award custody to either parents according as it may be to best interests of child. Milner v. Gatlin, 143 Ga. 816, 85 S.E. 1045, 1916B L.R.A.

977 (1915); Gillens v. Gillens, 148 Ga. 631, 97 S.E. 669 (1918).

Moving as factor for consideration — There was evidence to support the trial court's determination that a move to Utah would be disruptive to the child, including evidence that the child had lived in Georgia most of the child's life, had relatives in Georgia, and had been unhappy on trips to Utah; such disruption was a permitted factor in considering the child's best interests as required by O.C.G.A. § 19-9-3. Curtice v. Harwell, 313 Ga. App. 263, 721 S.E.2d 200 (2011).

Trial court did not err by modifying a father's custody of a son because the father had been involved in a criminal rape trial involving a former babysitter, which caused the father to move to a different city due to the notoriety, and it was proper for the trial court to consider the logistics of visitation and a relocation of a parent in determining the best interests of the child. Neal v. Hibbard, 770 S.E.2d 600, No. S14A1673, 2015 Ga. LEXIS 183 (2015).

Award of sole custody to one parent proper. — Trial court did not abuse the court's discretion in awarding sole physical custody of two minor children to one parent where the grant was in the children's best interests and the other parent had an extramarital affair, but was granted liberal visitation with no restriction on the presence of the person with whom the affair had been conducted. Patel v. Patel, 276 Ga. 266, 577 S.E.2d 587 (2003).

Custody award to husband justified. — Trial court did not err in awarding primary physical custody of the child to the husband based on best interest of the child because the husband's employment schedule enabled the husband to devote more time to the child, the child was better behaved when the child was reared by the husband, and the husband provided more nutritious meals for the child. Rose v. Rose, 294 Ga. 719, 755 S.E.2d 737 (2014).

Best interest standard applied after child legitimized. — Trial court erred in applying the change in circumstances standard to a father's custody petition as the father had legitimized the child, but no previous custody determination had been made; the best interest of the child standard set forth in O.C.G.A. § 19-9-3(a) should have been used. Braynon v. Hilbert, 275 Ga. App. 511, 621 S.E.2d 529 (2005).

Best interest of the child standard set forth in O.C.G.A. § 19-9-3(a) should be used after a child is legitimized if no previous adjudication of custody has been made. Braynon v. Hilbert, 275 Ga. App. 511, 621 S.E.2d 529 (2005).

3. Application

Parents cannot by contract control discretion and duty of court in determining question of custody, and court may disregard contract and award children to either parent or to third party if best interests of children require it. Stanton v. Stanton, 213 Ga. 545, 100 S.E.2d 289 (1957); Crisp v. McGill, 229 Ga. 389, 191 S.E.2d 836 (1972).

Any agreement or consent to custody between husband and wife is not controlling on court. Weaver v. Weaver, 238 Ga. 101, 230 S.E.2d 886 (1976).

Father of child rendered legitimate by court order has claim to parental and custodial rights with respect to his child. Mitchell v. Ward, 231 Ga. 671, 203 S.E.2d 484 (1974).

Juvenile court judge cannot disregard parental right to custody. — When question of custody has been transferred to juvenile court by superior court in divorce action, the general law pertaining to right of parents to have custody of their children (unless they have forfeited their right in manner provided by law) cannot be disregarded by judge of juvenile court. Matthews v. Matthews, 213 Ga. 87, 97 S.E.2d 158 (1957).

Adopting parent on equal footing as biological. — Trial court did not err in awarding primary physical custody of the couple's biological child to the wife as the court's determination that splitting the siblings would cause emotional harm to both children was sufficient to overcome the statutory presumption in favor of the husband with respect to custody of the older child, who was the biological child of the husband and adopted by the wife. Hastings v. Hastings, 291 Ga. 782, 732 S.E.2d 272 (2012).

That father has no prima facie right to custody does not enlarge third parties' rights. Knox v. Knox, 226 Ga. 619, 176 S.E.2d 712 (1970).

Depriving father of all visitation rights was error in the absence of any probative evidence that he was morally unfit to exercise his right of access to his children. Woodruff v. Woodruff, 272 Ga. 485, 531 S.E.2d 714 (2000).

Father has prima facie right to custody as against stepfather. — In suit by father for custody of his child against child's stepfather, the mother having died, prima facie right to custody is in father, and will not be overturned absent strong case as to welfare of child so as to authorize award of child to stepfather. Chapin v. Cummings, 191 Ga. 408, 12 S.E.2d 312 (1940).

Judicial discretion to award custody to third person. — Trial judge in custody proceeding is vested with discretion to award custody to third person, provided it appears that such disposition is in best interests of children. Shipp v. Shipp, 186 Ga. 494, 198 S.E. 230 (1938).

When custody should not ordinarily be awarded to third party. — While, as between parents, court has very broad discretion — looking always to best interest of child — and may award child to one, to exclusion of other, though latter may not be an unfit person to exercise custody, or has not otherwise lost right of custody, still the court, in controversy between parents, should not, ordinarily, award child to third party, if one or both parents are morally fit and custody has not otherwise been lost in one of the modes provided by law. Hill v. Rivers, 200 Ga. 354, 37 S.E.2d 386 (1946); Knox v. Knox, 226 Ga. 619, 176 S.E.2d 712 (1970).

Custody award to third person, based on parental unfitness, not reversed if supported by reasonable evidence. Gazaway v. Brackett, 241 Ga. 127, 244 S.E.2d 238 (1978).

Factors to be considered by court. — In making award, court may consider fitness for custody, character, personality, and general health. Weaver v. Weaver, 238 Ga. 101, 230 S.E.2d 886 (1976).

Witness testimony in contest between parents. — In contest between parents over possession of child, witnesses should not be permitted to give their opinion that one or the other of the parents is unfit and improper, or that interest of child will be best subserved by awarding custody to one of the contesting parties. Milner v. Gatlin, 143 Ga. 816, 85 S.E. 1045, 16 L.R.A. 977 (1915).

Judge may exclude parties from courtroom while child involved in custody dispute is testifying, but judge is not required to do so, as a matter of law. Brooks v. Thomas, 193 Ga. 696, 19 S.E.2d 497 (1942).

If evidence of each parent's fitness conflicts, award not disturbed. — When evidence is in conflict regarding fitness of each of the divorced parents of minor child to have the child's custody, discretion of trial judge in awarding child to the mother will not be controlled. Speer v. Speer, 217 Ga. 341, 122 S.E.2d 84 (1961); Brown v. Brown, 222 Ga. 446, 150 S.E.2d 615 (1966).

When evidence heard by trial judge is conflicting on issue of relative fitness, appellate court cannot hold that judge abused judicial discretion in an award of custody made by the judge. Hobson v. Hobson, 222 Ga. 530, 150 S.E.2d 655 (1966).

In a divorce, a trial court's award of primary physical custody of the parties' children to the husband was not disturbed because there was evidence that both parties were fit and proper parents, and, although the husband admitted hitting the wife and crashing into the wife's car after learning of the wife's extramarital affair, the trial court properly considered this evidence under O.C.G.A. § 19-9-3(a)(3), and the award was not an abuse of discretion. Brock v. Brock, 279 Ga. 119, 610 S.E.2d 29 (2005).

Effect of custody decree upon rights of noncustodial parent. — Natural rights of father are not annulled by provision in divorce decree awarding custody of child to mother; they are only suspended for time being, and are revived in full force upon mother's death, or upon her forfeiture of her right of custody. Hill

v. Rivers, 200 Ga. 354, 37 S.E.2d 386 (1946).

Court deciding custody cannot retain exclusive jurisdiction over future custody. — Final decree in divorce case awarding custody of minor children to one or the other of the parties thereto is conclusive as between parties as to right of such custody, unless change of circumstances affecting interest and welfare of such children is shown and this is true even when decree, after specifically awarding such custody, is immediately followed by sentence, "subject to the further order of this court." Fuller v. Fuller, 197 Ga. 719, 30 S.E.2d 600 (1944).

When child is involved in granting of divorce decree, it is duty of trial judge to award custody; and while superior court in which divorce decree was rendered may have sought to retain exclusive jurisdiction over custody of child involved by subjecting judgment to such further order as court might pass, such judgment will not divest award of award's finality, nor retain exclusive jurisdiction over custody of child when change of condition affecting child's welfare occurs. Hanson v. Stegall, 208 Ga. 403, 67 S.E.2d 109 (1951).

Order of court in divorce decree, to effect that child of parties should remain within jurisdiction of court and that court retained jurisdiction of cause and parties thereto, constituted an attempt on part of the trial court to retain exclusive jurisdiction of case, which may not be done. Gibbs v. North, 211 Ga. 231, 84 S.E.2d 833 (1954).

Custody decrees of other states are generally given full effect. — General rule is that decree of divorce awarding custody of children of parties, rendered by court of another state having jurisdiction of subject matter and of parties, will be given full effect in another state. Brandon v. Brandon, 154 Ga. 661, 115 S.E. 115 (1922).

Out-of-state custody decree given full effect in Georgia. — Decree of divorce awarding custody of children of parties, rendered by court of another state having jurisdiction of subject matter and of parties, shall be given full effect in this state. Kniepkamp v. Richards, 192 Ga. 509, 16 S.E.2d 24 (1941).

Out-of-state custody award not subject to change absent changed circumstances. — If there is no apparent change in status of parties before institution of proceeding in this state, decree of foreign state awarding custody will not be changed if court had jurisdiction of subject matter and of parties. Hammond v. Hammond, 90 Ga. 527, 16 S.E. 265 (1892); Brandon v. Brandon, 154 Ga. 661, 115 S.E. 115 (1922).

Decisions as to religious training of children. — Absent contrary agreement, custodial parent may determine religious training children are to receive. Appelbaum v. Hames, 159 Ga. App. 552, 284 S.E.2d 58 (1981).

Courts should be loath to interfere with religious training sanctioned by custodian, since no end of difficulties would arise if judges sought to prescribe or proscribe selection of a religious faith made by a custodial parent. Appelbaum v. Hames, 159 Ga. App. 552, 284 S.E.2d 58 (1981).

Custody award to husband justified. — In a divorce action, a trial court did not abuse the court's discretion in making a husband the primary physical custodian under O.C.G.A. § 19-9-3(a)(3) because the wife had been romantically involved with a married man prior to the divorce, the wife intended to go back to school full-time to attain a bachelor's degree and a law degree, and the wife had threatened the life of a neighbor; the husband intended to remain in the marital home and was seeking to transfer from his position as a commercial airline pilot to a position in the flight training department. Rembert v. Rembert, 285 Ga. 260, 674 S.E.2d 892 (2009).

Father's abandonment of children to start a new life. — Evidence that a father had left his wife and four young children with their relatives in Texas with no job, money, or home, and then returned to Georgia where he obtained a unilateral divorce, along with evidence that he did not support the children and seldom visited the children, supported a trial court's finding that a change in custody to the mother was in the children's best interests under O.C.G.A. § 19-9-3(a)(3). Saravia v. Mendoza, 303 Ga. App. 758, 695 S.E.2d 47 (2010).

4. Finality of Award

Custody decree is conclusive absent change of circumstances. — Judgment in proceeding between parents to secure custody of minor children is conclusive upon the parents unless a material change of circumstances affecting the welfare of the children is made to appear. Kniepkamp v. Richards, 192 Ga. 509, 16 S.E.2d 24 (1941); Brooks v. Thomas, 193 Ga. 696, 19 S.E. 497 (1942); Jordan v. Jordan, 195 Ga. 771, 25 S.E.2d 500 (1943); Fortson v. Fortson, 197 Ga. 699, 30 S.E.2d 165 (1944); Handley v. Handley, 204 Ga. 57, 48 S.E.2d 827 (1948).

Doctrine of res judicata applies in custody case when award of custody has been made; and judge may thereafter exercise discretion as to custody of children only so far as there may be new and material conditions and circumstances substantially affecting interest and welfare of children. Benefield v. Benefield, 216 Ga. 593, 118 S.E.2d 464 (1961); Adams v. Heffernan, 217 Ga. 404, 122 S.E.2d 735 (1961).

Conclusiveness of custody decree relates to status existing at time of rendition of such judgment. Handley v. Handley, 204 Ga. 57, 48 S.E.2d 827 (1948).

Award of custody of children in divorce decree is binding upon parties thereto upon principles of res judicata under facts then existing. Durden v. Durden, 224 Ga. 417, 162 S.E.2d 385 (1968).

Agreement does not affect award's conclusiveness on existing facts. — When on grant of divorce between parents, custody of minor children was awarded to mother, the fact that decree as to custody was based upon agreement did not deprive decree of usual attribute of conclusiveness. While in all such cases paramount issue is welfare of children, doctrine of res adjudicata is nevertheless applicable; and when award has been made, the judge may thereafter exercise discretion as to custody of children only so far as there may be new and material conditions and circumstances substantially affecting their interest and welfare. Fortson v. Fortson, 195 Ga. 750, 25 S.E.2d 518 (1943), later appeal, 197 Ga. 699, 30 S.E.2d 165 (1944).

Award of Custody (Cont'd)4. Finality of Award (Cont'd)

Permanent award not timely. — Court can make a final disposition of minor children of the parties only when a divorce is granted. Thus, the trial court erred in entering a "Permanent Order of Custody" before a divorce was granted. Rowe v. Rowe, 195 Ga. App. 493, 393 S.E.2d 750 (1990).

Finality of order modifying custody. — An order modifying custody, issued following a "temporary" hearing under USCR 24.5, was final. In a post-decree custody modification action authorized by a prior version of O.C.G.A. § 19-9-1(b), the trial court was without authority to enter a "temporary" custody award. Hightower v. Martin, 198 Ga. App. 855, 403 S.E.2d 862 (1991), but see Massey v. Massey, 227 Ga. App. 906, 490 S.E.2d 205 (1997).

Parental Fitness

Fitness of parties seeking custody of minor children is always a proper subject of inquiry. Adams v. Heffernan, 217 Ga. 404, 122 S.E.2d 735 (1961).

Joint custody. — When the trial court determines that both parents are fit and equally capable of caring for the child, the court must consider joint custody but is not required to enter such an order unless the court specifically finds that to do so would be in the best interest of the child. Baldwin v. Baldwin, 265 Ga. 465, 458 S.E.2d 126 (1995).

Parent not unfit for failure to maintain close relationship with child. — Father cannot be considered unfit merely because he has not maintained a close relationship with his daughter during former wife's custody of child since it appears that such relationship was made difficult, if not impossible, by the attitude and behavior of the mother. Knox v. Knox, 226 Ga. 619, 176 S.E.2d 712 (1970).

Husband's alcoholism and resulting cruel treatment of wife and children are relevant to custodial fitness. Weaver v. Weaver, 238 Ga. 101, 230 S.E.2d 886 (1976).

Sexual relationship not dispositive. — Mother's dating man with whom she had a sexual relationship did not render her unfit in the absence of any evidence of cohabitation or of open sexual activity, rendering the trial court's finding of meretricious relationship erroneous and the child's independent selection of the mother as her guardian controlling. Saxon v. Saxon, 207 Ga. App. 471, 428 S.E.2d 376 (1993).

Being a prisoner on parole renders parent unfit for custody. — While commission of crime might not absolutely forfeit father's right to custody for all time, being a prisoner on parole makes him a person unfit to care for his child. Yancey v. Watson, 217 Ga. 215, 121 S.E.2d 772 (1961).

Effect of finding that mother may have partial custody. — Judgment that there has been an improvement in health of mother and that such improvement has progressed to extent that she should have partial custody of children on stated occasions consistent with their best interests and welfare is necessarily a holding that she was not a fit and proper person to have complete custody of children. Northcutt v. Northcutt, 220 Ga. 245, 138 S.E.2d 377 (1964).

Court's judgment regarding fitness is conclusive unless evidence demands otherwise. — Unless evidence demands finding contrary to trial court's judgment that parent is fit or unfit, judgment of trial court on such issue is conclusive and will not be disturbed on appeal. Hardy v. Hardee, 225 Ga. 585, 170 S.E.2d 417 (1969); Weaver v. Weaver, 238 Ga. 101, 230 S.E.2d 886 (1976).

Award when both parents found fit was not abuse of discretion. — Trial court, which had found that the husband was a suitable primary physical custodian, did not err in awarding primary physical custody to the wife; when a trial court found both parents to be fit custodians, the court's decision assigning primary physical custody to one would not be disturbed absent an abuse of discretion, which had not been shown here. Alejandro v. Alejandro, 282 Ga. 453, 651 S.E.2d 62 (2007).

Restrictions on overnight guests. — Provision in a divorce agreement prohibiting either party from having unrelated overnight guests of the opposite gender while the parties' children were present was not overly broad or unduly burdensome, nor did the provision violate public policy, and a trial court did not err in enforcing the provision and finding the mother in contempt for the provision's violation. Norman v. Norman, 329 Ga. App. 502, 765 S.E.2d 677 (2014).

Selection by Child

Child selection provision constitutional. — Child selection provision of former Code 1933, § 74-107 (see now O.C.G.A. § 19-9-3) did not violate Ga. Const. 1976, Art. I, Sec. II, Para. IV (see now Ga. Const. 1983, Art. I, Sec. II, Para. III). Froug v. Harper, 220 Ga. 582, 140 S.E.2d 844 (1965).

Step-father is not parent within the meaning of O.C.G.A. § 19-9-3. In re A.P.H., 236 Ga. App. 762, 514 S.E.2d 46 (1999).

Giving child choice provides means of changing custody without showing changed conditions and circumstances. Froug v. Harper, 220 Ga. 582, 140 S.E.2d 844 (1965).

Child's election invalid. — In reading O.C.G.A. § 19-9-3(a)(4) and (5) so as to give these two sections sensible and intelligent effect, the court of appeals held that a trial court retains exclusive authority to grant joint physical custody; thus, when the parties' 14-year-old child specifically requested that the parties be awarded joint legal and physical custody, the trial court properly held that the election was invalid because the election interfered with the court's authority. Sharpe v. Perkins, 284 Ga. App. 376, 644 S.E.2d 178 (2007), cert. denied, 2007 Ga. LEXIS 509 (Ga. 2007).

When choice given to children over 14 applies. — Provision which gives child who has reached age of 14 years the right to select parent with whom the child desires to live, unless such parent is not a fit and proper person to have custody of the child, applies only when custody of minor child is in controversy between parents. Fort v. Alewine, 223 Ga. 359, 155 S.E.2d 12 (1967).

Parental right of custody cannot defeat choice of child over 14. — No parental right of custody by judgment or decree can defeat right of child reaching 14 years of age to select parent with whom that child desires to live. Adams v. Adams, 219 Ga. 633, 135 S.E.2d 428 (1964); Harbin v. Harbin, 238 Ga. 109, 230 S.E.2d 889 (1976).

Choice of child over 14 does not preclude judicial discretion. — Though child 15 years of age has right to select which parent the child desires to live with, the trial judge must determine what is in the best interest, welfare, and happiness of the child; and in making this determination the judge has wide latitude and discretion. Pritchett v. Pritchett, 219 Ga. 635, 135 S.E.2d 417 (1964).

Choice of child over 14 is generally controlling. — Language of former Code 1933, § 74-107 (see now O.C.G.A. § 19-9-3) allowing selection, by child who has reached age of 14 years, of parent with whom he or she desires to live is controlling save and except in one situation, which is when parent so selected is determined by the trial court not to be a fit and proper custodian. Froug v. Harper, 220 Ga. 582, 140 S.E.2d 844 (1965).

Right of selection of child who has reached 14 years of age can only be defeated by showing of present unfitness. Harbin v. Harbin, 238 Ga. 109, 230 S.E.2d 889 (1976).

Since there were no allegations of parental unfitness, a 14-year-old child was entitled to select which parent to live with; therefore, the trial court properly approved the parents' settlement agreement that reflected the child's desire to change residential custodians. Ford v. Hanna, 293 Ga. App. 863, 668 S.E.2d 271 (2008).

Choice did not mandate modification if election was not sincere. — Trial court did not err in denying the father's request to modify custody as to the 15-year-old child as, despite the fact that the child expressed an interest in remaining with the father, there was some evidence that the child's election was not sincere, including the guardian ad litem's testimony that the guardian thought the children's letters to the guardian were written with assistance of the father and the father's family. Driver v. Sene, 327 Ga.

App. 275, 758 S.E.2d 613 (2014).

When court lacks discretion to override child's choice. — Child's selection of parent with whom child desires to live, when child has reached 14 years of age, is controlling absent finding that such parent is unfit. Without finding of unfitness, child's selection must be recognized and court has no discretion to act otherwise. Harbin v. Harbin, 238 Ga. 109, 230 S.E.2d 889 (1976).

Statutory adjudication of unfitness not res judicata. — To hold that prior adjudication of unfitness is res judicata or evidence of present unfitness would overly restrict statutory right of child who has reached 14 years of age to select parent with whom the child wishes to live. Harbin v. Harbin, 238 Ga. 109, 230 S.E.2d 889 (1976).

Effect of custody award based upon child's choice. — When trial court awards 14-year-old child to parent selected by such child as parent with whom the child desires to live, it is tantamount to finding that such parent is fit, just as denial of such child's request must be construed as finding that such parent is unfit. Hardy v. Hardee, 225 Ga. 585, 170 S.E.2d 417 (1969).

Parent resisting child's selection bears burden of proving that parent selected is unfit. Harbin v. Harbin, 238 Ga. 109, 230 S.E.2d 889 (1976).

Change of Custody1. In General

Award of custody does not give custodial parent vested right. — When award of custody is made to parent in divorce action and subsequently there is a change of circumstances and conditions substantially affecting welfare of child, parent to whom custody was awarded does not have vested right of custody that will defeat further action by courts. Adams v. Adams, 219 Ga. 633, 135 S.E.2d 428 (1964).

Prima facie right to custody conferred by decree may be forfeited. — When divorce decree, awarding custody to father, vests prima facie right of custody in father, that prima facie right of custody may be forfeited by actions of father subsequent to rendition of decree. Sessions v. Oliver, 204 Ga. 425, 50 S.E.2d 54 (1948).

Custody award is not conclusive in proceeding involving subsequent neglect. — Decree awarding custody cannot anticipate changes which may occur in condition of parents, or in their character and fitness for care of their children. For this reason such decree is at best but prima facie evidence of legal right to the child's custody; and is not conclusive in subsequent proceedings when neglect or mistreatment of child, or unfitness of parent since date of decree, is involved. Williams v. Crosby, 118 Ga. 296, 45 S.E. 282 (1903); Barlow v. Barlow, 141 Ga. 535, 81 S.E. 433, 52 L.R.A. (n.s.) 683 (1914); Milner v. Gatlin, 143 Ga. 816, 85 S.E. 1045, 1916B L.R.A. 977 (1915); Gillens v. Gillens, 148 Ga. 631, 97 S.E. 669 (1918); Brandon v. Brandon, 154 Ga. 661, 115 S.E. 115 (1922).

Changed circumstances may render change of custody necessary. — Change of status may authorize a different judgment in subsequent proceeding. Capacity, ability, or fitness of party to whom child was awarded in previous proceeding may thereafter become entirely different. The status of both such parties and the child may have changed. Change of circumstances may render change necessary in order to promote health, happiness, or welfare of child. Handley v. Handley, 204 Ga. 57, 48 S.E.2d 827 (1948).

Prerequisite to changing custody. — Once permanent child custody award has been entered, test for use by trial court in change of child custody suits is whether there has been a change of conditions affecting welfare of child. Gazaway v. Brackett, 241 Ga. 127, 244 S.E.2d 238 (1978).

Prerequisite to modification of out-of-state custody award. — Judgment of court of competent jurisdiction of sister state may be modified only when it appears that there has been such change in conditions since original decree as would authorize modification of similar judgment rendered by courts of this state. Kniepkamp v. Richards, 192 Ga. 509, 16 S.E.2d 24 (1941); Bowen v. Bowen, 223 Ga.

800, 158 S.E.2d 233 (1967), overruled on other grounds, Crumbley v. Stewart, 238 Ga. 169, 231 S.E.2d 772 (1977).

Power of court to amend award of custody. — See Banister v. Banister, 240 Ga. 513, 241 S.E.2d 247 (1978).

Court having exclusive right to award change of custody. — Generally, court where legal custodian resides has exclusive right to award change of custody; this is true whether legal custodian lives in another state or in another county, and irrespective of physical presence of child. Matthews v. Matthews, 238 Ga. 201, 232 S.E.2d 76 (1977).

Proceeding to change custody may not be brought in county in which noncustodial parent resides. Matthews v. Matthews, 238 Ga. 201, 232 S.E.2d 76 (1977).

Only court where custodial parent resides can change custody. — Despite child's attaining age of 14 and residing in Georgia with noncustodial parent, Georgia court is not authorized to relitigate issue of legal custody. Only court where custodial parent resides has right to award change in custody. Bayard v. Willis, 241 Ga. 459, 246 S.E.2d 315 (1978).

Petition seeking custody change without alleging changed circumstances is subject to dismissal on oral motion. Fuller v. Fuller, 197 Ga. 719, 30 S.E.2d 600 (1944).

Self executing provision for change of custody. — Self-executing change in custody failed to provide for a determination whether the custody change was in the best interest of the child at the time the change would automatically occur; thus, the change violated Georgia's public policy as expressed in O.C.G.A. § 19-9-3 that a trial court take into account the factual situation at the time the custody modification is sought, with the court's paramount concern always remaining the best interests and welfare of the minor child. Bankston v. Warbington, No. A14A1515, 2015 Ga. App. LEXIS 185 (Mar. 24, 2015).

In Scott v. Scott, 276 Ga. 372 (2003), the Supreme Court of Georgia has held that a self-executing change of custody designed to take effect on a triggering event such as remarriage or relocation violates O.C.G.A.

§ 19-9-3(a)(2), which requires that a trial court exercise the court's discretion concerning a change in custody in light of the child's best interests as evaluated at the time of the proposed change. Bankston v. Warbington, No. A14A1515, 2015 Ga. App. LEXIS 185 (Mar. 24, 2015).

Evidence of unfitness confined to matters transpiring subsequent to decree. — In action to change custody, evidence of unfitness must be confined to matters transpiring subsequent to decree. Mallette v. Mallette, 220 Ga. 401, 139 S.E.2d 322 (1964).

Unless evidence demands change of custody, judge may exercise discretion. — While proof of changed conditions and that child's welfare will be protected by changing custody will authorize judgment to that effect, since evidence does not demand finding to that effect, matter is left to discretion of the trial judge. Floyd v. Floyd, 218 Ga. 606, 129 S.E.2d 786 (1963).

Change of custody supported by reasonable evidence will not be reversed. — On appeal, when permanent child custody award has been made, appellate court will not reverse if there is any reasonable evidence to support change in custody. Dearman v. Rhoden, 235 Ga. 457, 219 S.E.2d 704 (1975); Gazaway v. Brackett, 241 Ga. 127, 244 S.E.2d 238 (1978).

In habeas proceeding to recover child from noncustodial, resident parent. — When nonresident parent who has been awarded custody of child by court order enters this state to regain that child from noncustodial parent and files habeas corpus petition, trial court may not reconsider question of legal custody. Bayard v. Willis, 241 Ga. 459, 246 S.E.2d 315 (1978).

Remand of attorney fee award required. — In a child custody modification proceeding, the trial court erred by awarding attorney fees to the father in the amount of $4,000 under O.C.G.A. § 19-9-3 as the award was not supported by the record since the trial court did not explain the statutory basis for the award and did not enter any findings necessary to support the award as required by O.C.G.A. § 19-6-15(k)(5). Kuehn v. Key, 325 Ga. App. 512, 754 S.E.2d 103 (2014).

Award of attorney's and guardian ad litem fees proper. — In a father's petition for a change of custody, in which he requested the appointment of a guardian ad litem and did not prevail, the trial court did not err in determining that the father should pay two-thirds of the guardian ad litem's fees of $6,200 and the mother should pay one-third, pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 19-9-3(g) and Ga. Unif. Sup. Ct. R. 24.9(8)(g); the father was also ordered to pay a portion of the mother's attorney's fees. Gordon v. Abrahams, 330 Ga. App. 795, 769 S.E.2d 544 (2015).

Nondischargeability of fee awards in bankruptcy. — Awards in the amount of $2,474 and $11,865 which a Georgia court made under O.C.G.A. § 19-9-3 to a Chapter 7 debtor's ex-husband and a guardian ad litem, respectively, in a change of custody proceeding the ex-husband filed against the debtor, were nondischargeable under 11 U.S.C. § 523 because they were "in the nature of support" for the child. Rackley v. Rackley (In re Rackley), 502 B.R. 615 (Bankr. N.D. Ga. 2013).

2. Application

Best interests of child are controlling as to custody changes. — On petition of divorced parent to change custody of child based on new conditions, main question to consider is interests and welfare of children. Elders v. Elders, 206 Ga. 297, 57 S.E.2d 83 (1950).

While self-executing change of custody provisions are not expressly prohibited by statutory law, any such provision that fails to give paramount import to the child's best interests in a change of custody as between parents violates Georgia's public policy as expressed in the statute; therefore, such a provision that provided for an automatic change of custody upon a custodial parent's move from a particular county could not stand. Scott v. Scott, 276 Ga. 372, 578 S.E.2d 876 (2003).

Transfer of case to juvenile court for investigation. — When change of circumstances is alleged, trial judge may transfer case to juvenile court for investigation. Slate v. Coggins, 181 Ga. 17, 181 S.E. 145 (1935); Fortson v. Fortson, 197 Ga. 699, 30 S.E.2d 165 (1944).

When evidence of changed circumstances conflicts, disposition by trial court will not be disturbed. Bosson v. Bosson, 223 Ga. 793, 158 S.E.2d 231 (1967).

Decree is prima facie evidence in mother's favor. — Decree in divorce suit awarding custody to mother is prima facie evidence in her favor and father cannot regain custody without showing affirmatively that a material change in circumstances affecting welfare of children occurred since original decree. Fortson v. Fortson, 195 Ga. 750, 25 S.E.2d 518 (1943), later appeal, 197 Ga. 699, 30 S.E.2d 165 (1944).

Decree in divorce suit, granted by court having jurisdiction of subject matter and of parties, and awarding custody of child to one parent, is at best but prima facie evidence of legal right to child's custody, but is not conclusive when neglect or mistreatment of child, or unfitness of parent since date of decree, is involved. Fortson v. Fortson, 200 Ga. 116, 35 S.E.2d 896 (1945).

Parents cannot transfer custody by agreement without court consent. — After custody decree, parents themselves cannot by new agreement transfer custody without consent of court as representative of state and children. Nor would their private recitals in an attempted agreement be binding upon court as evidence of change in condition. Fortson v. Fortson, 195 Ga. 750, 25 S.E.2d 518 (1943), later appeal, 197 Ga. 699, 30 S.E.2d 165 (1944).

Whether particular circumstances warrant custody change is question of fact. — Whether there are changed conditions affecting welfare of child occurring after rendition of former final custody judgment which will warrant changing custody is essentially a fact question in each individual case. Dearman v. Rhoden, 235 Ga. 457, 219 S.E.2d 704 (1975).

Relevant changes are not confined to those of custodial parent. — Change of circumstances that would render prior judgment inconclusive is not necessarily limited to change in moral or financial condition of parent to whom initial award was made. Handley v. Handley, 204 Ga. 57, 48 S.E.2d 827 (1948); Adams v. Heffernan, 217 Ga. 404, 122 S.E.2d 735 (1961).

Relevant changes include those of circumstances of either parent or child. — Change of circumstances that would render prior judgment inconclusive includes any new and material change in circumstances of either parent or of children which might substantially affect health, happiness, or welfare of children. Handley v. Handley, 204 Ga. 57, 48 S.E.2d 827 (1948).

Forfeiture of parental rights not prerequisite to custody change. — In order to change award of custody, trial court does not necessarily have to find that legal custodian has forfeited parental rights under former Code 1933, § 74-108 or §§ 74-109 and 74-110 (see now O.C.G.A. § 19-7-1 or O.C.G.A. § 19-7-4). Adams v. Heffernan, 217 Ga. 404, 122 S.E.2d 735 (1961); Dearman v. Rhoden, 235 Ga. 457, 219 S.E.2d 704 (1975).

Effect of custodial parent's forfeiture of custodial rights. — When custody of minor child awarded by divorce decree is forfeited in mother by reason of her unfitness, custody automatically inures to father, unless it is lost in one of the modes provided by law, or unless he is "unfit" to have custody. Hill v. Rivers, 200 Ga. 354, 37 S.E.2d 386 (1946); Knox v. Knox, 226 Ga. 619, 176 S.E.2d 712 (1970).

Parent's surrender of custody is change in condition authorizing court to reconsider question of custody. Askew v. Askew, 212 Ga. 46, 90 S.E.2d 409 (1955); Wilt v. Wilt, 229 Ga. 658, 193 S.E.2d 833 (1972).

Trial court did not err in granting a father's petition for a change of custody and awarding the father primary physical custody of his child because the mother voluntarily surrendered physical custody and control over the child to the maternal grandmother, resulting in a material change in condition; after the entry of a consent order modifying the father's visitation rights, the grandmother limited some of the father's visitation with the child, the mother and grandmother exhibited an ongoing pattern of excluding the father from important medical decisions affecting the child, and the mother and grandmother failed to notify the father whenever the mother executed a power of attorney in loco parentis in favor of the grandmother. Shotwell v. Filip, 314 Ga. App. 93, 722 S.E.2d 906 (2012).

Trial court did not abuse the court's discretion by denying a mother's motion for a new trial with regard to a custody modification based on the mother voluntarily giving up custody because there was no affidavit as to the mother's mental condition attached to the motion and the fact that the father could be deployed for an extensive period was clearly contemplated in the court's final order and incorporated parenting plan. Carr-MacArthur v. Carr, 296 Ga. 30, 764 S.E.2d 840 (2014).

When custodial parent dies, prima facie right of custody automatically enures to surviving parent. Hill v. Rivers, 200 Ga. 354, 37 S.E.2d 386 (1946).

Denial of visitation rights and turning children against noncustodial parent. — Allegations that father had moved children over 1000 miles away from mother's residence, that when she travels that distance to see children, he refuses to let her visit them or lets her see them only when it pleases him, that he has insulted her and intimidated her, has prejudiced children against her, instructed them not to call her "mother" and told them that she was not their mother, were such allegations of fact as would support conclusion that he was an unfit person to have their custody and, if proven to be true, to authorize a change in custody. Jones v. White, 209 Ga. 412, 73 S.E.2d 187 (1952).

In an action for change of custody, the judge could conclude from the evidence that the father's behavior toward the mother, in large part contemptuous of the court's authority, and his negative attitude and overt antipathy toward her relationship with the children, warranted modification of custody. Arp v. Hammonds, 200 Ga. App. 715, 409 S.E.2d 275, cert. denied, 200 Ga. App. 895, 409 S.E.2d 275 (1991).

Denial of visitation supported by evidence. — Father was properly denied visitation when there was evidence that the father had not seen the child in 18 months, the father had been arrested twice for operating a vehicle while under the influence of alcohol or drugs, and had been cited for failure to maintain a lane while driving, and the father failed to demonstrate that the child was a priority in the father's life. Bishop v. Baumgartner, 292 Ga. 460, 738 S.E.2d 604 (2013).

Refusal to return children after visitation. — Trial court properly held a parent in contempt in a post-divorce matter as the parent acknowledged that the parent refused to return the parties' children to the custodial parent after summer visitation and helped the children obtain legal counsel to file a modification of custody proceeding, which was prohibited by prior trial court orders. Further, the custodial parent properly filed the contempt petition in the county wherein that parent resided. Because the custodial parent was successful in having the other parent found in contempt, the custodial parent was properly awarded attorney fees. Brochin v. Brochin, 294 Ga. App. 406, 669 S.E.2d 203 (2008).

Religious differences between parents not basis for denying custody change. — It is not ground upon which to deny custody to father, who has not lost such right in any of the modes provided by law, that he may feel it his duty to bring his child up in his own faith, even though child has been taught a different faith heretofore under mother's custody. Knox v. Knox, 226 Ga. 619, 176 S.E.2d 712 (1970).

Remarriage of parent, alone, is insufficient to authorize modification of award of custody; an engagement to marry would likewise be insufficient. North v. North, 209 Ga. 883, 76 S.E.2d 617 (1953).

Remarriage, alone, of one of parties is not such change of circumstances affecting welfare of child as will justify change in custody. Fennell v. Fennell, 209 Ga. 815, 76 S.E.2d 387 (1953).

Remarriage and removal of child to another state not basis for modification of custody decree. Mercer v. Foster, 210 Ga. 546, 81 S.E.2d 458 (1954).

Mother's lesbian relationship. — Trial court's order modifying custody of the parties' daughter was reversed as: (1) the father was married when the mother was granted primary physical custody, the mother's lesbian relationships were the primary focus of the original custody hearing, and the mother was in a more stable relationship than when she was awarded primary physical custody; (2) in granting the modification petition, the mother was originally given only visitation rights, but later the daughter's wish to spend equal time with each parent was granted; and (3) still later, the mother was not ordered to change her lifestyle; the trial court implicitly reversed itself on the finding that the court had held justified a custody change and merely reduced the child's time with the mother and her partner. Moses v. King, 281 Ga. App. 687, 637 S.E.2d 97 (2006), cert. dismissed, 2007 Ga. LEXIS 84 (Ga. 2007).

Improvement in parent's health, conduct, and moral perspective. — Even if there has been marked improvement in health, conduct, and moral perspective of parent, this alone does not as a matter of law require that minor children of parties be awarded to that parent's custody. Floyd v. Floyd, 218 Ga. 606, 129 S.E.2d 786 (1963).

Effect of temporary, voluntary relinquishment of custody upon permanent custody. — Temporary, voluntary relinquishment of actual custody to legitimate child's father for period of time necessary for mother's recuperation from back injuries and sickness does not constitute acquiescence to permanent custody in father so as to amount to abandonment as a matter of law. Porter v. Johnson, 242 Ga. 188, 249 S.E.2d 608 (1978).

General talk in community about mother's immorality. — When, on hearing of wife's petition seeking custody of her two minor children, upon alleged change in conditions since judgment awarding custody to husband, only evidence of change was husband's admission that there was general talk in the community about the mother and, knowing that others would tell the children, he told them that she was immoral and did not love them, it was an abuse of discretion to award custody to wife upon this ground alone. Elders v. Elders, 206 Ga. 297, 57 S.E.2d 83 (1950).

Children's preference. — Evidence that children preferred to live with their father rather than move to another state with their mother supported a change in custody of the children from their mother to their father. Elder v. Elder, 184 Ga. App. 167, 361 S.E.2d 46 (1987).

Change of older child's custody warranted change of younger child's custody. — Award of custody of the 14-year-old child to father was a sufficient change in condition to warrant change of custody of a younger child to the father as well where the trial court found that the younger child had become dependent upon the 14-year-old and that it was in the younger child's best interest that the child not be separated from the older child after an election to live with her father. Parkerson v. Parkerson, 167 Ga. App. 265, 306 S.E.2d 97 (1983).

Effect of older child's selection on younger child. — When a 15-year-old daughter indicated that she wanted to change her custody arrangement and live with her mother, and the mother was found to be a fit and proper custodial parent, such change was ordered pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 19-9-1; upon such custody change of the older daughter, a material change in circumstances occurred such that the trial court should have made a determination whether it was in the younger daughter's best interests to also change custody to the mother as she wished and pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 19-9-3(a)(2). Durham v. Gipson, 261 Ga. App. 602, 583 S.E.2d 254 (2003).

Fact that a parent was in arrears on child support payments, while a factor the trial court could consider in determining what was in the best interest of the children and what would best promote their welfare and happiness, did not mandate that the other parent retain custody of the children. Green v. Krebs, 245 Ga. App. 756, 538 S.E.2d 832 (2000).

Change of custody held in child's best interest. — Trial court committed no error in finding that it would be in the child's best interest to live with the father rather than the maternal grandmother because the father presented evidence from a licensed psychologist who opined that the father was a fit and qualified parent to have primary physical custody of the child and would be able to meet the needs of the child in adjusting to a new home; the father had been gainfully employed without a lapse of employment until April 2010 and had been applying for jobs with potential employers, and there was some evidence that the father's wife maintained suitable employment and made adequate income for the family to provide for the child's necessary basic care. Shotwell v. Filip, 314 Ga. App. 93, 722 S.E.2d 906 (2012).

Trial court did not err in granting the father's request to modify custody as to the two children the father had with different mothers because the change was in the children's best interest, based on the father's ability to engage in hands-on parenting and synchronize the two boys' school, sports, and church activities. New v. Goss, 327 Ga. App. 413, 759 S.E.2d 266 (2014).

Trial court did not abuse the court's discretion by modifying child custody in favor of the father because the record before the trial court included evidence and findings that although both parties were capable of providing for the child, the mother had sufficiently undermined the child's relationship with the father to justify a modification of primary physical custody in favor of the father for at least 18 months as in the best interest of the child. Bankston v. Warbington, No. A14A1515, 2015 Ga. App. LEXIS 185 (Mar. 24, 2015).

Evidence held ample to justify change. — See Milner v. Milner, 181 Ga. App. 760, 353 S.E.2d 628 (1987).

Joint custody award was properly modified to give a father physical custody because the child was of school age and could no longer rotate between the parents every six months, and the father had a strong support system in Missouri, where the child had spent considerable time and developed a strong bond with the grandparents. Mitcham v. Spry, 300 Ga. App. 386, 685 S.E.2d 374 (2009).

Change of Custody (Cont'd)2. Application (Cont'd)

Change of custody was warranted due to a material change in circumstances affecting the child's welfare under O.C.G.A. § 19-9-3(a) because: (1) the mother had abandoned the child; (2) the mother had forged a court order, in an attempt to regain physical custody of the child; and (3) the child had excelled in school while residing with the father. Lynch v. Horton, 302 Ga. App. 597, 692 S.E.2d 34 (2010), cert. denied, U.S. , 131 S. Ct. 2447, 179 L. Ed. 2d 1210 (2011).

Trial court did not err in granting a mother's petition for modification of custody and awarding the mother permanent primary physical custody of the parties' child because the trial court's findings that the mother's circumstances had improved dramatically since the divorce and that the father had been held in contempt of court for violation of the visitation order and had taken steps to undermine the mother were supported by the evidence. Viskup v. Visкуп, 291 Ga. 103, 727 S.E.2d 97 (2012).

Trial court did not abuse the court's discretion by denying a mother's motion for a new trial with regard to an order changing custody of the parties' one minor child to the father because the mother failed to produce newly discovered evidence, repeatedly interfered with the father's visitation, and the record established that the mother obtained a modification in another county under false pretenses; thus, the mother's credibility had been completely impeached. Fifadara v. Goyal, 318 Ga. App. 196, 733 S.E.2d 478 (2012).

Sole legal custody was properly awarded to the father of two young children, given that the mother shared her home with her boyfriend, encouraged her child to lie about vacationing with the boyfriend, made derogatory remarks about the father in the children's presence, and drank alcohol in the children's presence in violation of her probation. Taylor v. Taylor, 293 Ga. 615, 748 S.E.2d 873 (2013).

Trial court did not abuse the court's discretion by modifying child custody by awarding the father primary custody under O.C.G.A. § 19-9-3(a)(3)(F), (O), (P) and (a)(4)(A) and (B) because the change of custody ruling was supported under the any evidence standard based on testimony from the father, paternal grandmother, and the guardian ad litem's recommendation, who recommended the change in custody to the father as well. Kuehn v. Key, 325 Ga. App. 512, 754 S.E.2d 103 (2014).

Evidence held insufficient to justify change. — Change in custody was not in the child's best interests or warranted by a change in circumstances under O.C.G.A. § 19-9-3(a) because even though the parent frequently left the child with a sitter until 10 p.m., this was due to the parent's job and classes to obtain a college degree; the sitter and teachers asserted that the child and parent got along well and that the child was thriving at school and in the child's extracurricular activities; and an investigation revealed that a mark on the child's back occurred while the child was playing with another child at the sitter's and that it was not caused by the parent or the sitter. Lurry v. McCants, 302 Ga. App. 184, 690 S.E.2d 496 (2010).

Trial court did not err in denying a mother's petition for modification of custody because the court applied the correct legal standard when the court concluded that it was not in the children's best interest to modify custody absent a material change in circumstance affecting their well-being; the mother failed to demonstrate that the house where the children lived was inadequate for their needs, that the children's welfare was materially affected by the living arrangements, or that the father's late shifts at work materially affected the children's welfare, and the father had an extensive family network available to the father. Harris v. Williams, 304 Ga. App. 390, 696 S.E.2d 131 (2010), overruled on other grounds, Viskup v. Visкуп, 291 Ga. 103, 727 S.E.2d 97 (2012).

Trial court abused the court's discretion by granting a mother's petition to change child custody because the court's findings that the mother had been denied visitation by the father on several occasions was unsupported by the evidence since the mother only testified to one instance when visitation rights were thwarted by the father. Blue v. Hemmans, 327 Ga. App. 353, 759 S.E.2d 72 (2014).

Trial court did not err in finding that there was no change of circumstance justifying modification of child custody based on the mother's involvement with a boyfriend who had a conviction for sexual intercourse with a minor because the father knew of the relationship in March 2011, well before the parties entered into a settlement in June 2011; although the father's home was more pleasant and he was more financially stable, this did not warrant a change of custody. Gordon v. Abrahams, 330 Ga. App. 795, 769 S.E.2d 544 (2015).

Visitation Rights

Portion of custody award concerning visitation may be modified. — In any case in which judgment has been entered awarding custody of minor, on motion of any party or on motion of court, that portion of judgment concerning visitation rights between parties and their minor children may be subject to review and modification or alteration. Tirado v. Shelnutt, 159 Ga. App. 624, 284 S.E.2d 641 (1981).

Plaintiff ex-husband was correct that the due process clause of the Fourteenth Amendment protected a parent's fundamental right to participate in the care, custody, and management of their children, but he failed to show that O.C.G.A. § 19-9-3 violated his substantive due process rights because neither the U.S. Supreme Court nor the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Eleventh Circuit had held that a state had to impose a specific standard of proof for modification of visitation rights. Gottschalk v. Gottschalk, No. 10-11979, 2011 U.S. App. LEXIS 12222 (11th Cir. June 16, 2011) (Unpublished).

Elimination of right of first refusal. — Trial court was authorized to eliminate the right of first refusal based on the court's express findings that the provision was not in the child's best interest. Horn v. Shepherd, 292 Ga. 14, 732 S.E.2d 427 (2012).

Jurisdiction over custody issues includes visitation rights. — Court whose jurisdiction over issues involving custody was first invoked had full authority to determine all such issues, including visitation rights. Tirado v. Shelnutt, 159 Ga. App. 624, 284 S.E.2d 641 (1981).

Court modification of visitation rights. — Court in which petition to change custody is brought may also modify visitation rights. Tirado v. Shelnutt, 159 Ga. App. 624, 284 S.E.2d 641 (1981).

Trial court erred in dismissing a father's contempt petition filed over a year after an earlier petition remained pending; under O.C.G.A. § 19-9-3(b), the trial court had the authority to modify visitation in the contempt proceeding, and relevant information concerning a child custody matter must be received up until the very time that the court rules. Dennis v. Dennis, 302 Ga. App. 791, 692 S.E.2d 47 (2010).

In a custody dispute, a trial court did not abuse the court's discretion in modifying a father's visitation rights, O.C.G.A. § 19-9-3(b), by eliminating custody and parenting time because the father's attempted voluntary relinquishment of visitation and other parental rights constituted a material change in condition. Smith v. Curtis, 316 Ga. App. 890, 730 S.E.2d 604 (2012).

Trial court did not abuse the court's discretion in denying the father's motion to modify visitation because there was substantial evidence of the father and the father's wife's continued failure to comply with the court's orders pertaining to their harassment and degradation of the mother despite the harm and detriment the degradation caused the child and the father refused to work with the child's psychologist or pay for another qualified psychologist in order to obtain additional or unsupervised visitation. Vines v. Vines, 292 Ga. 550, 739 S.E.2d 374 (2013).

Court in which contempt action is brought has authority to modify visitation rights. Tirado v. Shelnutt, 159 Ga. App. 624, 284 S.E.2d 641 (1981).

When judge may award specific visitation privileges. — Statute allowed trial judge, who had made award of permanent custody with reasonable visitation privileges, to provide specific visitation privileges once in a two-year period following the date of entry of such judgment. Edwards v. Edwards, 237 Ga. 779, 229 S.E.2d 632 (1976).

Modification by motion. — Any conflict between the provisions of O.C.G.A. §§ 19-9-3(b) and 19-19-1(b) with those of O.C.G.A. § 19-9-23, insofar as seeking modification of visitation rights by motion is concerned, is harmonized by holding that the former come into play only when jurisdiction and venue are also proper. Bennett v. Wood, 188 Ga. App. 630, 373 S.E.2d 645 (1988).

Inasmuch as the record shows that this divorce action terminated with the entry of a final judgment and decree; that the wife subsequently changed her residence to another county; and that the husband filed his motion to modify outside the term of court, the trial court erred in ruling on the husband's motion to modify visitation. Ward v. Ward, 194 Ga. App. 669, 391 S.E.2d 480 (1990).

Trial court did not err in modifying a visitation schedule because the father was afforded more than one opportunity to respond to the mother's motion for modification; the father waived any challenge to venue by failing to ever object to venue, or otherwise raise the issue, in the trial court. Cross v. Ivester, 315 Ga. App. 760, 728 S.E.2d 299 (2012).

Modification of visitation rights permissible in contempt proceeding without advance notice. — Modification to visitation could be made in a contempt proceeding as provided in O.C.G.A. § 19-9-3(b), and the wife was not required to be given notice and time to prepare an adequate response to a motion to modify child visitation because such notice was not required by § 19-9-3(b). Weeks v. Weeks, 324 Ga. App. 785, 751 S.E.2d 575 (2013).

Self-executing change in visitation improper. — Trial court's self-executing change in visitation provision in parties' divorce decree could not stand since it did not provide for a determination as to whether the visitation change was in the best interests of the parties' child and since it did not connect the triggering event to those best interests; the provision simply provided for a change in the wife's visitation if she ever moved out of Georgia, without any further limitations as to time or other considerations. Rumley-Miawama v. Miawama, 284 Ga. 811, 671 S.E.2d 827 (2009).

Requiring bond for return of child is discretionary. — Trial judge is empowered to award custody to nonresident for one month each year, and to resident parent for other 11 months; and whether judge requires bond of nonresident for return of child is a matter solely in the judge's discretion. Pruitt v. Butterfield, 189 Ga. 593, 6 S.E.2d 786 (1940).

Visitation rights should not be made to depend upon payment of child support or alimony. Price v. Dawkins, 242 Ga. 41, 247 S.E.2d 844 (1978).

Payment of travel costs. — Requiring the father to pay some travel costs incurred by his child's out-of-state visits to the mother does not amount to the imposition of child support. Stewart v. Stewart, 245 Ga. App. 20, 537 S.E.2d 157 (2000).

Modification of child visitation costs permissible in contempt proceeding. — As the costs of exercising supervised visitation were directly associated with a former spouse's visitation privileges, under O.C.G.A. § 19-9-3(b), the trial court was empowered to increase the amount of visitation costs to be paid by the former spouse in a contempt proceeding brought by the other spouse. Carlson v. Carlson, 284 Ga. 143, 663 S.E.2d 673 (2008).

Modification of child visitation rights is matter of discretion with trial court and may be based upon existing circumstances even if they have not changed since prior award. Tirado v. Shelnutt, 159 Ga. App. 624, 284 S.E.2d 641 (1981).

Change in visitation rights is not dependent upon changed conditions. — When third party has been awarded permanent custody of child, a parent may obtain custody by showing change of conditions affecting welfare of child, but such parent may obtain increased visitation without necessity of showing such change of conditions. Gazaway v. Brackett, 241 Ga. 127, 244 S.E.2d 238 (1978); Moore v. Moore, 217 Ga. App. 148, 456 S.E.2d 742 (1995).

Trial judge is fully authorized to modify visitation rights without necessity of any showing of change in conditions. Tirado v. Shelnutt, 159 Ga. App. 624, 284 S.E.2d 641 (1981).

It was not error for a trial court to modify a father's visitation without finding a material change in circumstances because O.C.G.A. § 19-9-3(b) specifically allowed a modification in visitation without such a finding. Gottschalk v. Gottschalk, 311 Ga. App. 304, 715 S.E.2d 715 (2011).

Increased visitation did not amount to de facto change of custody.

— Increased visitation to a former wife did not amount to a de facto change of custody because the increased visitation did not exceed the time of custody allowed to the former husband; also, the provision allowing the wife to make decisions regarding the children's day-to-day care when the children were in the mother's custody did not amount to a de facto change in custody. Blackmore v. Blackmore, 311 Ga. App. 885, 717 S.E.2d 504 (2011).

Father's sexual impropriety towards daughter rendered increase in visitation rights error. — When evidence showed sexual impropriety of father towards daughter under 14 years old and daughter's dislike of father, it was error for trial judge to increase father's visitation rights. Ledford v. Bowers, 248 Ga. 804, 286 S.E.2d 293 (1982).

Visitation with homosexual parent.

— Primary consideration in determining custody and visitation issues is not the sexual mores or behavior of the parent, but whether the child will somehow be harmed by the conduct of the parent. In re R.E.W., 220 Ga. App. 861, 471 S.E.2d 6 (1996).

Fourteen year olds' election rights limited by 1986 amendment.

— Visitation is part of custody. Having made the wishes of a 14-year-old as to custody binding upon the court unless the parent chosen is unfit, the 1986 legislation could not have intended to preclude consideration of the child's wishes as to visitation. O.C.G.A. §§ 19-9-1(a) and 19-9-3(a) preserve the authority of the trial court to set visitation rights based upon the best interests of the child, but do not prohibit the court from using the wishes of a child over 14 years of age together with other factors as the basis for the court's decision. Worley v. Whiddon, 261 Ga. 218, 403 S.E.2d 799 (1991).

Judge's decision to increase visitation rights will not be reversed absent an abuse of discretion. Gazaway v. Brackett, 241 Ga. 127, 244 S.E.2d 238 (1978).

19-9-4. Investigation of abuse, neglect, or other acts which adversely affect health of child in custody disputes; cost.

(a) On motion of either party in any action or proceeding involving determination of the award of child custody between parents of the child, when such motion contains a specific recitation of actual abuse, neglect, or other overt acts which have adversely affected the health and welfare of the child, the judge may direct the appropriate family and children services agency or any other appropriate entity to investigate the home life and home environment of each of the parents. In any action or proceeding involving determination of the award of child custody between parents of the child when during such proceedings a specific recitation of actual abuse, neglect, or other overt acts which have adversely affected the health and welfare of the child has been made the judge shall also have authority on his or her own motion to order such an investigation if in the judge's opinion the investigation would be useful in determining placement or custody of the child. The judge may also direct either party to pay to the agency the reasonable cost, or any portion thereof, of the investigation. The report of the investigation will be made to the judge directing the investigation. Any report made at the direction of the judge shall be made available to either or both parties for a reasonable period of time prior to the proceedings at which any temporary or permanent custody is to be determined. Both parties shall have the right to confront and cross-examine the person or persons who conducted the investigation or compiled the report if adequate and legal notice is given.

(b) This Code section shall apply only with respect to actions or proceedings in which the issue of child custody is contested; and this Code section is not intended to alter or repeal Code Sections 49-5-40 through 49-5-44. Editor's notes. — Ga. L. 2007, p. 554, § 1/HB 369, not codified by the General Assembly, provides that: "The General Assembly of Georgia declares that it is the policy of this state to assure that minor children have frequent and continuing contact with parents who have shown the ability to act in the best interests of their children and to encourage parents to share in the rights and responsibilities of rearing their children after the parents have separated or dissolved their marriage or relationship."

Ga. L. 2007, p. 554, § 8/HB 369, not codified by the General Assembly, provides that the 2007 amendment shall apply to all child custody proceedings and modifications of child custody filed on or after January 1, 2008.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Report from county department of family and children services. — It is error for trial court to consider report from county Department of Family and Children Services to decide child custody, in absence of stipulation by both parties that court may do so, unless provisions of O.C.G.A. § 19-9-4 apply. Miele v. Gregory, 248 Ga. 93, 281 S.E.2d 565 (1981).

Making report available to parties is mandatory. — Provision in subsection (a) of O.C.G.A. § 19-9-4 for making report available to parties is mandatory. Davis v. Davis, 253 Ga. 73, 316 S.E.2d 455 (1984).

Failure to make report available requires reversal. — Trial court's failure to comply with mother's request to examine Department of Family and Children Services' report, prepared at the court's direction pursuant to subsection (a) of O.C.G.A. § 19-9-4, required reversal of the court's custody decree. Davis v. Davis, 253 Ga. 73, 316 S.E.2d 455 (1984).

Court's refusal to order a second investigation of allegations of child abuse on the part of the father was not an abuse of discretion, after a prior investigation, which had been conducted at the request of the father, had failed to uncover evidence of any sexual misconduct toward the child and the mother made no effort to obtain a second investigation after the father had agreed to share the costs of the investigation. Evans v. Stowe, 181 Ga. App. 489, 352 S.E.2d 811 (1987).

Psychiatric examination. — In attempting to reach a determination regarding the best interest of the child, the superior court has the power, when the issue of child custody is contested, to compel either or both parents to submit to examination and evaluation by a court-appointed clinical psychologist or psychiatrist. The mental health of the parents is an inherent and vital part of their overall "state of health," within the meaning of O.C.G.A. § 19-9-4(a), and can be a critical factor in determining the best interest of the child. Rowe v. Rowe, 195 Ga. App. 493, 393 S.E.2d 750 (1990).

19-9-5. Custody agreements; ratification; supplementation.

(a) In all proceedings under this article between parents, it shall be expressly permissible for the parents of a child to present to the judge an agreement respecting any and all issues concerning custody of the child. As used in this Code section, the term "custody" shall include, without limitation, joint custody as such term is defined in Code Section

19-9-6. As used in this Code section, the term “custody” shall not include payment of child support.

(b) The judge shall ratify the agreement and make such agreement a part of the judge’s final judgment in the proceedings unless the judge makes specific written factual findings as a part of the final judgment that under the circumstances of the parents and the child in such agreement that the agreement would not be in the best interests of the child. The judge shall not refuse to ratify such agreement and to make such agreement a part of the final judgment based solely upon the parents’ choice to use joint custody as a part of such agreement.

(c) In his or her judgment, the judge may supplement the agreement on issues not covered by such agreement. (Code 1981, § 19-9-5, enacted by Ga. L. 1986, p. 1585, § 1; Ga. L. 1992, p. 2135, § 1; Ga. L. 2007, p. 554, § 5/HB 369; Ga. L. 2008, p. 324, § 19/SB 455.)

Support award not precluded by joint custody award. — Judgment awarding joint legal custody of a child does not preclude a monetary award of child support. Hunt v. Carter, 261 Ga. 259, 404 S.E.2d 121 (1991).

Consideration of postnuptial reconciliation agreement. — As a trial court did not base the court’s custody decision in the parties’ divorce action solely on their postnuptial reconciliation agreement pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 19-9-5(b), but instead the court found that the custody arrangement encompassed within the agreement was in the children’s best interests pursuant to the factors under O.C.G.A. § 19-9-3(a)(3)(A)-(Q), there was no abuse of discretion in the custody award. Spurlin v. Spurlin, 289 Ga. 818, 716 S.E.2d 209 (2011).

Authority to conduct best interests analysis. — Trial court erroneously found that the court had no discretion to consider whether the parties’ agreement, voluntarily terminating the father’s parental rights under O.C.G.A. § 19-7-1 as part of the divorce settlement, was in the best interests of the child; the trial court, which had authority under O.C.G.A. § 19-9-5(b) to reject a custody agreement as being against the child’s best interests and which had authority under O.C.G.A. § 15-11-94(a) to ascertain whether a voluntary termination was in the child’s best interests, was to reject the agreement if it was not in the child's best interests. Taylor v. Taylor, 280 Ga. 88, 623 S.E.2d 477 (2005).

Agreed upon modification to custody and visitation erroneously omitted. — Trial court erred in omitting the agreed upon modification to weekend custody and visitation in the court's final order. Williams v. Williams, 295 Ga. 113, 757 S.E.2d 859 (2014).

19-9-6. Definitions.

As used in this article, the term:

(1) "Armed forces" means the national guard and the reserve components of the armed forces, the United States army, navy, marine corps, coast guard, and air force.

(2) "Deploy" or "deployment" means military service in compliance with the military orders received by a member of the armed forces to report for combat operations, contingency operations, peacekeeping operations, a remote tour of duty, temporary duty, or other such military service for which a parent is required to report unaccompanied by family members. Deployment shall include the period during which a military parent remains subject to deployment orders and remains deployed on account of sickness, wounds, leave, or other lawful cause. Such term shall include mobilization.

(3) "Deploying parent" or "deployed parent" means a military parent who has been formally notified by military leadership that he or she will deploy or mobilize or who is currently deployed or mobilized.

(4) "Joint custody" means joint legal custody, joint physical custody, or both joint legal custody and joint physical custody. In making an order for joint custody, the judge may order joint legal custody without ordering joint physical custody.

(5) "Joint legal custody" means both parents have equal rights and responsibilities for major decisions concerning the child, including the child's education, health care, extracurricular activities, and religious training; provided, however, that the judge may designate one parent to have sole power to make certain decisions while both parents retain equal rights and responsibilities for other decisions.

(6) "Joint physical custody" means that physical custody is shared by the parents in such a way as to assure the child of substantially equal time and contact with both parents.

(7) "Military family care plan" means a plan that is periodically reviewed by a military parent's commander that provides for care of a military parent's child whenever his or her military duties prevent such parent from providing care to his or her child and ensures that a military parent has made adequate and reasonable arrangements to provide for the needs and supervision of his or her child whenever a nondeploying parent is unable or unavailable to provide care in the military parent's absence.

(8) "Military parent" means a member of the armed forces who is a legal parent, adoptive parent, or guardian of a child under the age of 18, whose parental rights are established either by operation of law or the process of legitimation, and who has not had his or her parental rights terminated by a court of competent jurisdiction.

(9) "Mobilization" or "mobilize" means the call-up of the national guard and the reserve components of the armed forces to extended active duty service. Such term shall not include National Guard or Reserves component annual training, inactive duty days, drill weekends, or state active duty performed within the boundaries this state.

(10) "Nondeploying parent" means:

(A) A parent who is not a member of the armed forces; or

(B) A military parent who is currently not also a deploying parent.

(11) "Sole custody" means a person, including, but not limited to, a parent, has been awarded permanent custody of a child by a court order. Unless otherwise provided by court order, the person awarded sole custody of a child shall have the rights and responsibilities for major decisions concerning the child, including the child's education, health care, extracurricular activities, and religious training, and the noncustodial parent shall have the right to visitation or parenting time. A person who has not been awarded custody of a child by court order shall not be considered as the sole legal custodian while exercising visitation rights or parenting time.

(12) "State active duty" means the call-up by a governor for the performance of any military duty while serving within the boundaries of that state.

(13) "Temporary duty" means the assignment of a military parent to a geographic location outside of this state for a limited period of time to accomplish training or to assist in the performance of a military mission. (Code 1981, § 19-9-6, enacted by Ga. L. 1990, p. 1423, § 2; Ga. L. 2007, p. 554, § 5/HB 369; Ga. L. 2011, p. 274, § 4/SB 112.)

Editor's notes. — Ga. L. 2007, p. 554, § 1/HB 369, not codified by the General Assembly, provides: "The General Assembly of Georgia declares that it is the policy of this state to assure that minor children have frequent and continuing contact with parents who have shown the ability to act in the best interests of their children and to encourage parents to share in the rights and responsibilities of rearing their children after the parents have separated or dissolved their marriage or relationship.”

Ga. L. 2007, p. 554, § 8/HB 369, not codified by the General Assembly, provides that the 2007 amendment shall apply to all child custody proceedings and modifications of child custody filed on or after January 1, 2008.

Ga. L. 2011, p. 274, § 1/SB 112, not codified by the General Assembly, provides that: “This Act shall be known and may be cited as the ‘Military Parents Rights Act.’”

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Authority to modify custody not given. — O.C.G.A. § 19-9-6(2) does not grant a trial court the authority to modify child custody. Daniel v. Daniel, 250 Ga. App. 482, 552 S.E.2d 479 (2001).

Joint legal custody. — When the court awarded physical custody to the father in the court’s modification order and the father did not contest the award of joint legal custody, the trial court properly exercised the court’s authority in consideration of the best interests of the children to award joint legal custody to both parents. Walker v. Walker, 248 Ga. App. 177, 546 S.E.2d 315 (2001).

Joint custody must be considered if both parents are fit. — If the trial court determines that both parents are fit and equally capable of caring for the child, the court must consider joint custody but is not required to enter such an order unless the court specifically finds that to do so would be in the best interest of the child. Baldwin v. Baldwin, 265 Ga. 465, 458 S.E.2d 126 (1995).

Joint custody options not properly considered. — Trial court failed to give proper consideration to the joint custody options available under O.C.G.A. § 19-9-6 after both parents demonstrated equal ability to effectively care for and nurture the child. In re A.R.B., 209 Ga. App. 324, 433 S.E.2d 411 (1993).

Support award not precluded by joint custody award. — Judgment awarding joint legal custody of a child does not preclude a monetary award of child support. Hunt v. Carter, 261 Ga. 259, 404 S.E.2d 121 (1991).

Joint custody with decision-making authority split. — Award of joint legal custody designating the mother as the primary physical custodian with the sole power to make decisions concerning the children’s education, health, and religious training, and giving the father equal decision-making responsibility in other areas did not contravene O.C.G.A. § 19-9-6 or public policy. Scott v. Scott, 227 Ga. App. 346, 489 S.E.2d 117 (1997).

Because the language of the statute clearly vested in the trial court the discretion to decide which parent should be empowered to make final decisions when the parents were unable to agree, and the evidence showed on-going disagreements between the parents on the issues of education and extra-curricular activities, making it unlikely for the parties to come to agreement on those issues, and also showed that the husband played a greater role than the wife in decision-making regarding the children’s education and extra-curricular activities prior to the parties’ separation, the trial court’s designation of decision-making authority to the wife with regards to religion and health and to the husband with regard to education and extra-curricular activities was not an abuse of that discretion. Frazier v. Frazier, 280 Ga. 687, 631 S.E.2d 666 (2006).

Joint physical custody proper. — Trial court did not abuse the court’s discretion in awarding joint physical custody of a child because the trial court’s order found both the husband and the wife to be fit and proper, acknowledging that each parent had strengths and weaknesses; the trial court heard testimony concerning the husband’s relationship with his child, the financial payments he made while the child and the wife were living with the wife's parents in another state, and the difficulty of visiting the infant when the child and the wife were living with the wife's parents. Furthermore, the order was made with the best interests of the child in mind because there was evidence that the child had a good relationship with each parent and that each parent had adequate housing for the child and could provide what the child needed; the trial court expressly found it was in the child's best interests that the husband and wife share joint physical custody on alternating weeks, and the Social Service Coordinator assigned to the case recommended to the trial court that the husband and wife share evenly-divided joint physical custody of the child. Willis v. Willis, 288 Ga. 577, 707 S.E.2d 344 (2010).

Modification of joint custody agreement. — In granting the mother's petition to change custody, the record contained ample evidence from which the trial court could determine that the father could not provide a stable home because he took the child from Georgia to Maryland in violation of the joint custody agreement without telling the mother, he suffered from bipolar personality disorder, and was hospitalized for suicidal ideation. The trial court made the court's custody determination based upon the best interest of the child. Roberts v. Kinsey, 308 Ga. App. 675, 708 S.E.2d 600 (2011).

Final decision making authority to one parent. — In a divorce action in which joint legal custody of the parties' two children was awarded, it was appropriate to grant final decision making authority to a former husband under O.C.G.A. § 19-9-6(2) as the primary physical custodian as there were issues on which both parents did not agree, such as where the children would attend school; however, the husband was required to take the former wife's views into consideration. Rembert v. Rembert, 285 Ga. 260, 674 S.E.2d 892 (2009).

19-9-7. Visitation by parent who has committed acts of family violence; conditional orders; confidentiality; joint counseling; conditions for supervised visitation.

(a) A judge may award visitation or parenting time to a parent who committed one or more acts involving family violence only if the judge finds that adequate provision for the safety of the child and the parent who is a victim of family violence can be made. In a visitation or parenting time order, a judge may:

- (1) Order an exchange of a child to occur in a protected setting;
- (2) Order visitation or parenting time supervised by another person or agency;
- (3) Order the perpetrator of family violence to attend and complete, to the satisfaction of the judge, a certified family violence intervention program for perpetrators as defined in Article 1A of Chapter 13 of this title as a condition of the visitation or parenting time;
- (4) Order the perpetrator of family violence to abstain from possession or consumption of alcohol, marijuana, or any Schedule I controlled substance listed in Code Section 16-13-25 during the visitation or parenting time and for 24 hours preceding the visitation or parenting time;

(5) Order the perpetrator of family violence to pay a fee to defray the costs of supervised visitation or parenting time;

(6) Prohibit overnight visitation or parenting time;

(7) Require a bond from the perpetrator of family violence for the return and safety of the child; and

(8) Impose any other condition that is deemed necessary to provide for the safety of the child, the victim of family violence, or another family or household member.

(b) Whether or not visitation or parenting time is allowed, the judge may order the address of the child and the victim of family violence to be kept confidential.

(c) The judge shall not order an adult who is a victim of family violence to attend joint counseling with the perpetrator of family violence as a condition of receiving custody of a child or as a condition of visitation or parenting time.

(d) If a judge allows a family or household member to supervise visitation or parenting time, the judge shall establish conditions to be followed during visitation or parenting time. (Code 1981, § 19-9-7, enacted by Ga. L. 1995, p. 863, § 7; Ga. L. 2002, p. 1435, § 2; Ga. L. 2007, p. 554, § 5/HB 369.)

Ga. L. 2007, p. 554, § 1/HB 369, not codified by the General Assembly, provides: "The General Assembly of Georgia declares that it is the policy of this state to assure that minor children have frequent and continuing contact with parents who have shown the ability to act in the best interests of their children and to encourage parents to share in the rights and responsibilities of rearing their children after the parents have separated or dissolved their marriage or relationship."

Ga. L. 2007, p. 554, § 8/HB 369, not codified by the General Assembly, provides that the 2007 amendment shall apply to all child custody proceedings and modifications of child custody filed on or after January 1, 2008.

O.C.G.A. Art. 2, Ch. 9, T. 19 has as its general purpose the promotion of stability in the home environment and secure family relationships for the child of divorced parents, deterrence of abductions and other unilateral removals of children, and facilitation of the enforcement of custody decrees. O.C.G.A. § 19-9-24 employs a “clean hands” doctrine to ensure these ends. Stewart v. Stewart, 160 Ga. App. 463, 287 S.E.2d 378 (1981).

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Custody act not applicable. — Boyfriend, who had been appointed temporary guardian of child, was not the child’s “legal custodian” as that term was used in the Georgia Child Custody Intrastate Jurisdiction Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-9-20 et seq., and, thus, the provisions of the Act, including the Act’s venue provisions, did not apply; accordingly, the trial court erred in dismissing the grandmother’s petition for custody of the child on the ground that venue was not proper in the county where the mother was incarcerated but would have been proper where the temporary guardian, the boyfriend, resided, as application of the general venue rules governing venue in civil cases, contained in the Georgia Constitution, showed that since the mother was a necessary party to the grandmother’s custody action, filing the action in the county where the mother was incarcerated was proper. *Gordon v. 19-9-21. Purpose; construction.

(a) The general purposes of this article are to:

(1) Avoid jurisdictional competition and conflict by courts within this state in matters of child custody, which have in the past resulted in the shifting of children from county to county with harmful effects on their well-being;

(2) Promote cooperation by the courts of this state, to the end that a custody decree is rendered by the court which can best decide the case in the interest of the child;

(3) Assure that litigation concerning the custody of a child ordinarily takes place in the court with which the child and his family have the closest connection and where significant evidence concerning the care, protection, training, and personal relationships of the child is most readily available and that courts of this state decline the exercise of jurisdiction when the child and his family have a closer connection with another court of this state;

(4) Discourage continuing controversies over child custody, in the interest of greatest stability of home environment and of secure family relationships for the child;

(5) Deter abductions and other unilateral removals of children undertaken to obtain custody awards;

(6) Avoid relitigation of custody decisions of other courts in this state insofar as is feasible;

(7) Facilitate the enforcement of custody decrees;

(8) Make uniform the practice and procedure of the courts of this state in child custody matters.

(b) This article shall be construed to promote the general purposes stated in subsection (a) of this Code section. (Ga. L. 1978, p. 1957, § 2.)

19-9-22. Definitions.

As used in this article, the term:

(1) “Custody” includes visitation rights.

(2) “Legal custodian” means a person, including, but not limited to, a parent, who has been awarded permanent custody of a child by a court order. A person who has not been awarded custody of a child by court order shall not be considered as the legal custodian while exercising visitation rights. Where custody of a child is shared by two or more persons or where the time of visitation exceeds the time of custody, that person who has the majority of time of custody or visitation shall be the legal custodian.

(3) “Physical custodian” means a person, including, but not limited to, a parent, who is not the “legal custodian” of a child but who has physical custody of the child. (Ga. L. 1978, p. 1957, § 3.)

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

“Legal guardian.” — Grandmother was not a “legal guardian” of a child within the meaning of O.C.G.A. § 19-9-22 or O.C.G.A. § 15-11-13. Stills v. Johnson, 272 Ga. 645, 533 S.E.2d 695 (2000).

Change in visitation is form of change in child custody. Tirado v. Shelnutt, 159 Ga. App. 624, 284 S.E.2d 641 (1981).

When the mother had legal custody, it was error for the trial court to indirectly effect a change in custody by modifying a visitation schedule so that the father was given more custody time than the mother. Kennedy v. Adams, 218 Ga. App. 120, 460 S.E.2d 540 (1995).

It was not error for a trial court to order a custody evaluation in a visitation dispute because: (1) O.C.G.A. § 19-9-22(1) included visitation in the definition of “custody”; and (2) O.C.G.A. § 19-9-3(a)(7) authorized the court to order an evaluation. Gottschalk v. Gottschalk, 311 Ga. App. 304, 715 S.E.2d 715 (2011).

19-9-23. Actions to obtain change of legal custody; how and where brought; use of certain complaints prohibited.

(a) Except as otherwise provided in this Code section, after a court has determined who is to be the legal custodian of a child, any complaint seeking to obtain a change of legal custody of the child shall be brought as a separate action in the county of residence of the legal custodian of the child.

(b) A complaint by the legal custodian seeking a change of legal custody or visitation rights shall be brought as a separate action in compliance with Article VI, Section II, Paragraph VI of the Constitution of this state.

(c) No complaint specified in subsection (a) or (b) of this Code section shall be made:

(1) As a counterclaim or in any other manner in response to a petition for a writ of habeas corpus seeking to enforce a child custody order; or

(2) In response to any other action or motion seeking to enforce a child custody order.

(d) The use of a complaint in the nature of habeas corpus seeking a change of child custody is prohibited. (Ga. L. 1978, p. 1957, § 4; Ga. L. 1983, p. 3, § 52.)

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Plain meaning of O.C.G.A. § 19-9-23(a) is that an action by the noncustodial parent to modify visitation with a minor child must be brought in the county of residence of the custodial parent. Bennett v. Wood, 188 Ga. App. 630, 373 S.E.2d 645 (1988); Rogers v. Baudet, 215 Ga. App. 214, 449 S.E.2d 900 (1994).

Custody can only be relitigated where legal custodian resides. — Georgia courts will refuse to provide forum for relitigating custody except where legal custodian resides. Yearta v. Scroggins, 245 Ga. 831, 268 S.E.2d 151 (1980).

As a matter of public policy, Georgia courts refuse to provide forum in Georgia for relitigating custody when noncustodial parent resident in Georgia has improperly removed child from physical custody of custodial parent who resides in another state. Etzion v. Evans, 247 Ga. 390, 276 S.E.2d 577 (1981).

Trial court erred by granting a parent's complaint for modification of child custody and support and changing custody, which was filed in that parent's county of residence, as that county was not the jurisdiction wherein the issue of custody and support was originally litigated and the opposing parent never waived the challenge to the jurisdiction of the trial court via a pro se letter, which merely acknowledged receipt of the complaint; as a result, the judgment granting the change of custody was reversed and the case was remanded to the trial court with directions for the trial court to transfer the case to the trial court of the proper county. Hatch v. Hatch, 287 Ga. App. 832, 652 S.E.2d 874 (2007).

Jurisdiction where county services department is legal custodian. — When the legal custodian of a child is a county Department of Family and Children Services, any action seeking a change in custody is to be brought in that county. Any other county, including the county of residence of the child, is without jurisdiction to grant any relief involving custody including a writ of habeas corpus. DeKalb County Dep't of Family & Children Servs. v. Queen, 252 Ga. 274, 312 S.E.2d 800 (1984).

Juvenile court did not retain jurisdiction. — Although a great aunt and great step-uncle argued that the trial court erred in exercising subject matter jurisdiction in a custody matter at a time when the juvenile court had exclusive original jurisdiction, there was no order of the superior court transferring the petition to the juvenile court, and the jurisdiction obtained during an original deprivation proceeding did not serve to retain such jurisdiction; therefore, the juvenile court did not retain jurisdiction. The complaint for permanent custody filed by the grandmother and the step-grandfather was not in the nature of a deprivation petition. Wiepert v. Stover, 298 Ga. App. 683, 680 S.E.2d 707 (2009), overruled on other grounds, Artson, LLC v. Hudson, 322 Ga. App. 859, 747 S.E.2d 68 (2013) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28).

Jurisdiction to consider custody modification petition and contempt motion together. — In the absence of evidence that the husband objected to the trial court's decision to consider the contempt motion together with the custody petition, his consent was inferred. Further, because the custody petition was filed as a separate action in the husband's county, the requirements and purpose of O.C.G.A. § 19-9-23 were satisfied. Saravia v. Mendoza, 303 Ga. App. 758, 695 S.E.2d 47 (2010).

Jurisdiction for modification of divorce decree. — Georgia Court of Appeals finds it necessary in the context of divorce and alimony cases to depart from the general rule that a contempt action must be brought in the offended court, thus, it now holds that when a superior court other than the superior court rendering the original divorce decree acquires jurisdiction and venue to modify that decree, it likewise possesses the jurisdiction and venue to entertain a counterclaim alleging the plaintiff is in contempt of the original decree. Colbert v. Colbert, 321 Ga. App. 841, 743 S.E.2d 505 (2013).

Trial court properly acquired jurisdiction to modify a divorce decree, independent of the contemporaneous motion for contempt, because the mother, a nonresident, voluntarily instituted the suit in the jurisdiction of the trial court; therefore, the mother submitted to the court's jurisdiction for all purposes. Colbert v. Colbert, 321 Ga. App. 841, 743 S.E.2d 505 (2013).

Litigation of custody when temporary guardian appointed. — Boyfriend, who had been appointed temporary guardian of the child, was not the child's "legal custodian" as that term was used in the Georgia Child Custody Intrastate Jurisdiction Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-9-20 et seq., and, thus, the provisions of the Act, including the Act's venue provisions, did not apply; accordingly, the trial court erred in dismissing the grandmother's petition for custody of the child on the ground that venue was not proper in the county where the mother was incarcerated but would have been proper where the temporary guardian, the boyfriend, resided, as application of the general venue rules governing venue in civil cases, contained in the Georgia Constitution, showed that since the mother was a necessary party to the grandmother's custody action, filing the action in the county where the mother was incarcerated was proper. Gordon v. Gordon, 269 Ga. App. 224, 603 S.E.2d 732 (2004).

Waiver of challenge to venue. — In an action to establish paternity, the mother waived any challenge to venue when she consented to an adjudication of custody in her complaint and made no objection to venue in the trial court until she apparently raised it during closing argument. Ganny v. Ganny, 238 Ga. App. 123, 518 S.E.2d 148 (1999).

Father waived defense to lack of venue in mother's counterclaim for modification of child support by failing to file a motion to dismiss in a timely and expeditious manner. Houston v. Brown, 212 Ga. App. 834, 443 S.E.2d 3 (1994).

Venue shown. — Mother's petition for modification of custody was properly filed in and decided by the Superior Court of Cherokee County because there was evidence that supported the superior court's determination that the father was a resident of Cherokee County when the mother filed her modification petition; the father was served at his Cherokee County apartment, and the superior court orally ruled that while the father had the intent to return to another county, the father was a resident of Cherokee County until the father's physical presence changed. Viskup v. Viskup, 291 Ga. 103, 727 S.E.2d 97 (2012).

Motion filed in proper county. — Motion for a change in custody was not filed in the wrong county as the wife originally lived in the county in which the action was initiated, the wife moved to another county while the case was pending, and the wife waived any personal jurisdiction and venue defenses by entering into a consent order regarding custody and waiting many months before asserting the defense. Andersen v. Farrington, 291 Ga. 775, 731 S.E.2d 351 (2012).

Habeas corpus. — O.C.G.A. § 19-9-23(d) governs the situation where a party is seeking to change legal custody from someone who has permanent custody by court order and is not applicable when the mother who has permanent custody seeks the return of her children from a person to whom she has given temporary custody. Alvarez v. Sills, 258 Ga. 18, 365 S.E.2d 107 (1988).

"Action or motion seeking to enforce child custody order." — Complaint for modification of support is not an "action or motion seeking to enforce a child custody order" under O.C.G.A. § 19-9-23(c)(2). Dixon v. Dixon, 183 Ga. App. 756, 360 S.E.2d 8, cert. denied, 183 Ga. App. 905, 360 S.E.2d 8 (1987).

Counterclaim for change of custody. — Trial court erred in entertaining a counterclaim for a change of custody in the county of legal residence of the noncustodial parent even though the custodial parent had brought her action for a change of visitation rights in the county of residence of the noncustodial parent. Jones v. Jones, 178 Ga. App. 794, 344 S.E.2d 677 (1986), aff'd, 256 Ga. 742, 352 S.E.2d 754 (1987).

When the custodial mother sued the father in his county of residence for modification of child support, the father, in filing a counterclaim seeking to change custody, violated two provisions of O.C.G.A. § 19-9-23(a): (1) by failing to bring a separate action to have custody changed; and (2) by failing to bring such an action in the county of residence of the legal custodian of the child. Wilson v. Baldwin, 239 Ga. App. 327, 519 S.E.2d 251 (1999); Roach v. Kapur, 240 Ga. App. 558, 524 S.E.2d 246 (1999), aff'd, 272 Ga. 767, 534 S.E.2d 420 (2000).

Custodial mother did not waive the mandatory provisions of subsections (a) and (c) of O.C.G.A. § 19-9-23 by the consent transfer of her suit for contempt, including her claim for a change in custody to the father's county of residence. Kapur v. Roach, 272 Ga. 767, 534 S.E.2d 420 (2000).

Trial court erred in granting a change of primary physical custody to a mother, based on the mother's modification of custody counterclaim, as the father's petition sought only a clarification as to the days that the father was to have custody under the parties' joint custody arrangement, as well as an order awarding the father child support, and accordingly, the mother could only obtain such relief by way of a separate action pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 19-9-23; the fact that the parties disagreed over whether the child should be educated at a public school or at a private school did not constitute a material change of circumstances that affected the child's welfare, and accordingly, there was no justification for a change of custody. Terry v. Garibaldi, 274 Ga. App. 405, 618 S.E.2d 6 (2005).

Under the plain language of O.C.G.A. § 19-9-23, the trial court erred in denying a motion to dismiss a parent's counterclaim seeking a change in physical custody and in finding that the evidence was sufficient to support the custody determination. Seeley v. Seeley, 282 Ga. App. 394, 638 S.E.2d 837 (2006).

Because a change of custody could not be asserted as a counterclaim, pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 19-9-23, the trial court erred in denying a father's motion to dismiss the same asserted by a mother, and the father's failure to raise the matter as a defense did not act as a waiver as he filed no response to the counterclaim; moreover, the fact that the court was mistaken in dismissing the mother's original Fulton County action did not excuse the mother from appealing that ruling nor did it authorize the mother to pursue the claim as a counterclaim, especially when the statute and case law were so definitive that such a counterclaim was simply not permitted. Bailey v. Bailey, 283 Ga. App. 361, 641 S.E.2d 580 (2007).

Custody award was affirmed because even if the father's decision to file a petition for change of custody was predicated on the mother's successful petition for habeas corpus, the father's petition was not a forbidden "response" to the mother's petition for purposes of O.C.G.A. § 19-9-23(c)(1). Alberti v. Alberti, 320 Ga. App. 724, 741 S.E.2d 179 (2013).

Counterclaim seeking a change of custody in an action brought by the custodial parent in the county of the noncustodial parent's residence is improper because it is not a separate action and it is not brought in the county of the custodial parent's residence. The Supreme Court of Georgia has explained that O.C.G.A. § 19-9-23 has been enacted by the Georgia legislature to curtail the practice of allowing the noncustodial parent to relitigate custody in the noncustodial parent's own jurisdiction. Colbert v. Colbert, 321 Ga. App. 841, 743 S.E.2d 505 (2013).

Seeking change of custody in counterclaim. — Father's petition for change of custody in counterclaim to mother's petition to enforce custody was not proper. Pruitt v. Hooks, 163 Ga. App. 892, 296 S.E.2d 193 (1982).

Any action for a change of legal custody shall be brought as a separate action in the county of residence of the legal custodian of the child, and the trial court cannot entertain a counterclaim for a change of custody in the county of legal residence of the non-custodial parent. Bullington v. Bullington, 181 Ga. App. 256, 351 S.E.2d 700 (1986).

Complaint seeking a change of legal custody of a child may not be brought in response to any action or motion to enforce a child custody order so when a wife has filed a motion for contempt against her divorced husband for nonpayment of child support, that portion of the order granting the husband's counterclaim for a change in custody was reversed. Hammontree v. Hammontree, 186 Ga. App. 819, 368 S.E.2d 576 (1988).

Father did not seek to change custody by means of a counterclaim, contrary to the provisions of O.C.G.A. § 19-9-23(a) and (c), because the record showed that he filed a separate petition seeking modification of custody, which was not responsive to the mother's action to domesticate a foreign judgment, particularly as the actions, which were filed almost simultane-

Modification of custody rights in contempt proceeding not authorized.

— Trial court exceeded the court's authority by entering an order within the context of a contempt proceeding which had the effect of modifying custody. McCall v. McCall, 246 Ga. App. 770, 542 S.E.2d 168 (2000).

Trial court properly held a parent in contempt in a post-divorce matter as the parent acknowledged that the parent refused to return the parties' children to the custodial parent after summer visitation and helped the children obtain legal counsel to file a modification of custody proceeding which was prohibited by prior trial court orders. Further, the custodial parent properly filed the contempt petition in the county wherein that parent resided. Because the custodial parent was successful in having the other parent found in contempt, the custodial parent was properly awarded attorney fees. Brochin v. Brochin, 294 Ga. App. 406, 669 S.E.2d 203 (2008).

When the father violated the joint custody agreement incorporated in the divorce decree by taking the child to Maryland and refusing to return the child to Georgia, the trial court entered an ex parte emergency order in the contempt action. Because the trial court issued a final order modifying custody in a separate action as required by O.C.G.A. § 19-9-23, the final order rendered any issues regarding the validity of the temporary order moot. Roberts v. Kinsey, 308 Ga. App. 675, 708 S.E.2d 600 (2011).

There was valid waiver of jurisdiction when the legal custodian of the minor children moved from one county to another before the court entered the court's first order regarding custody, although the noncustodial parent, who was the subject of the custodian's contempt proceeding, petitioned in the custodian's case to modify custody; the matters which could have properly been considered by the trial court were not even raised by the custodial parent until more than six months after she had consented in two orders modifying custody and after the trial court had found that emergency action was required in order to protect the best interests of the minor children of the parties. Daust v. Daust, 204 Ga. App. 29, 418 S.E.2d 409 (1992).

Deprivation petition. — Juvenile court did not retain jurisdiction to hear grandparents' petition for permanent custody after determining that the mother's four children were deprived since the grandparents' complaint for permanent custody was not in the nature of a deprivation petition and did not allege that they should be granted permanent custody of the children on the basis that the children were deprived. In re C.C., 193 Ga. App. 120, 387 S.E.2d 46 (1989).

Modification of visitation rights. — Any conflict between the provisions of O.C.G.A. §§ 19-9-1(b) and 19-9-3(b) with those of O.C.G.A. § 19-9-23, insofar as seeking modification of visitation rights by motion is concerned, is harmonized by holding that the former come into play only when jurisdiction and venue are also proper. Bennett v. Wood, 188 Ga. App. 630, 373 S.E.2d 645 (1988).

Inasmuch as the record shows that this divorce action terminated with the entry of a final judgment and decree; that the wife subsequently changed her residence to another county; and that the husband filed his motion to modify outside the term of court, the trial court erred in ruling on the husband's motion to modify visitation. Ward v. Ward, 194 Ga. App. 669, 391 S.E.2d 480 (1990).

Although a trial court may modify, sua sponte, visitation under certain circumstances pursuant to O.C.G.A. §§ 19-9-1(b) and 19-9-3(b), those provisions "come into play only when jurisdiction and venue are also proper." Rogers v. Baudet, 215 Ga. App. 214, 449 S.E.2d 900 (1994).

Action not separate or in proper county. — Mother's oral motion for change in custody failed to meet the requirements of O.C.G.A. § 19-9-23 in two respects; the mother did not seek a change in custody in a separate action, but rather in response to the father's petition for contempt against the mother, and the mother did not seek a change in custody in the county in which the father lived as required by § 19-9-23(a) and (b). Hammonds v. Parks, 319 Ga. App. 792, 735 S.E.2d 801 (2012).

Appeal moot when visitation restored. — In a post-divorce proceeding, the appellate court dismissed a father's appeal of the trial court's rulings with regard to the writ for habeas corpus filed seeking to enforce visitation rights because the appeal was moot since the father's visitation was restored. Higdon v. Higdon, 321 Ga. App. 260, 739 S.E.2d 498 (2013).

(a) A physical custodian shall not be allowed to maintain against the legal custodian any action for divorce, alimony, child custody, change of alimony, change of child custody, or change of visitation rights or any application for contempt of court so long as custody of the child is withheld from the legal custodian in violation of the custody order.

(b) A legal custodian shall not be allowed to maintain any action for divorce, alimony, child custody, change of alimony, change of child custody, or change of visitation rights or any application for contempt of court so long as visitation rights are withheld in violation of the custody order. (Ga. L. 1978, p. 1957, § 5.)

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

O.C.G.A. § 19-9-24 employs "clean hands" doctrine to ensure that ends of that section are met. Stewart v. Stewart, 160 Ga. App. 463, 287 S.E.2d 378 (1981).

Conduct of custodian cannot deprive child of right to support any more than custodian can waive support for child or contract support away. Stewart v. Stewart, 160 Ga. App. 463, 287 S.E.2d 378 (1981).

If O.C.G.A. § 19-9-24 had been intended to permit parents by their own action to forfeit the child's right to support rather than merely their own, and had been intended to mean that actions of third party will dissolve the parent's duty to support the child, the legislature would have been very careful to say so. Stewart v. Stewart, 160 Ga. App. 463, 287 S.E.2d 378 (1981).

Clear object in prohibition against maintenance of "unclean" contempt actions is to prevent any action for enforcement of such orders as are mentioned in O.C.G.A. § 19-9-24, as otherwise this section would be virtually and ultimately useless in promoting the statute's purpose. Stewart v. Stewart, 160 Ga. App. 463, 287 S.E.2d 378 (1981).

Garnishment proceeding may fall within proscription of section. — When used to collect alimony, or other awards which constitute alimony, a garnishment proceeding is no more than an action for enforcement of such awards and thus is within proscription of "any action for alimony, etc." provided in O.C.G.A. § 19-9-24. Stewart v. Stewart, 160 Ga. App. 463, 287 S.E.2d 378 (1981).

Garnishment as means of enforcing domestic monetary award. — As means of enforcing domestic monetary award, a garnishment action is as appropriate as a contempt action. Stewart v. Stewart, 160 Ga. App. 463, 287 S.E.2d 378 (1981).

Garnishment proceeding not within section's proscription. — Garnishment proceeding for enforcement of child support award is not included among actions listed by O.C.G.A. § 19-9-24 which may not be maintained by a legal custodian who is withholding visitation rights in violation of a court order. Child support is the right of the child and not of the child's custodian; neither wife nor civil courts can take away this right that inheres expressly in the children. Stewart v. Stewart, 160 Ga. App. 463, 287 S.E.2d 378 (1981).

Dismissal of claims following withholding of visitation. — Having found at a hearing that a custodial parent had withheld visitation, a trial court did not err when, pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 19-9-24(b), the court dismissed the contempt, visitation, and custody portions of the custodial parent's petition and, consequently, did not permit the custodial parent to present evidence on the merits of the custodial parent's dismissed claims. Avren v. Garten, 289 Ga. 186, 710 S.E.2d 130 (2011).

Court justified in changing custody only upon extreme emergency. — To authorize the trial court to exercise the court's authority in a case where the court's authority is restricted by O.C.G.A. Art. 2, Ch. 9, T. 19, there must be an extreme emergency justifying retrieval of the child by the noncustodial party. Hutto v. Hutto, 250 Ga. 116, 296 S.E.2d 549 (1982).

No jurisdiction over custody action. — Trial court violated the law and public policy of this state by assuming jurisdiction of an action for modification of custody brought by father who was not the legal custodian and had no right to retain physical custody once the mother as legal custodian demanded return of the child. Lightfoot v. Lightfoot, 210 Ga. App. 400, 436 S.E.2d 700 (1993).

Court lacked authority to change custody in habeas corpus proceeding. — In habeas corpus proceeding by legal custodian seeking return of child to her custody, the trial court was without authority to allow evidence to be presented by physical custodian as to the legal custodian's fitness and in ordering a change of custody. Hutto v. Hutto, 250 Ga. 116, 296 S.E.2d 549 (1982).

No application of statute when no change in custody requested. — O.C.G.A. § 19-9-24, precluding a change of custody if custody was being withheld from the legal custodian, did not apply because there was no evidence that the husband had asked for the children, and the wife had offered to let them go for visitation at Thanksgiving if the children did not ride with the husband's brother, who had hit one of the children. Saravia v. Mendoza, 303 Ga. App. 758, 695 S.E.2d 47 (2010).

Editor's notes. — Some of the decisions cited below were decided under the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act, former Code 1933, §§ 74-501 through 74-525, subsequently codified as §§ 19-9-40 through 19-9-64.

Applicability of article. — Former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act was applicable only to states, territories, or possessions of the United States, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, and the District of Columbia. Richardson v. Richardson, 257 Ga. 101, 355 S.E.2d 664 (1987) (decided under former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act).

Among the primary purposes of the former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act was to avoid overlapping adjudication and to prevent judgment races. Webb v. Webb, 245 Ga. 650, 266 S.E.2d 463 (1980), cert. dismissed, 451 U.S. 493, 101 S. Ct. 1889, 68 L. Ed. 2d 392 (1981) (decided under former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act).

Georgia will recognize and enforce custody modifications of other states if proceedings were in accordance with the provisions of the former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act. Brenner v. Cavin, 163 Ga. App. 694, 295 S.E.2d 135 (1982) (decided under former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act).

Out of state judgment did not have to be followed as to tax exemption after custody award changed. — Because there was reasonable evidence of changed circumstances which supported the trial court's award of physical custody of the children to the mother, the court was not bound by the prior ruling of a

Wyoming court with respect to the dependency exemption; thus, the court did not err in finding that the parent who was awarded physical custody of the children, the mother, was entitled to claim the dependency exemptions for the three children. Blumenshine v. Hall, 329 Ga. App. 449, 765 S.E.2d 647 (2014).

PART 1

GENERAL PROVISIONS

19-9-40. Short title.

This article may be cited as the “Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction and Enforcement Act.” (Code 1981, § 19-9-40, enacted by Ga. L. 2001, p. 129, § 1.)

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Editor’s notes. — In light of the similarity of the statutory provisions, annotations decided under the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act, former Code 1933, §§ 74-501 through 74-525, subsequently codified as §§ 19-9-40 through 19-9-64, are included in the annotations for this Code section.

Article to be considered in pari materia with applicable legislation. — Former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act does not expressly repeal any particular provisions of the Civil Practice Act, nor existing statutory provisions covering divorce, custody, alimony, and child support procedures, and must be considered in pari materia with other applicable provisions of law. Gambrell v. Gambrell, 246 Ga. 516, 272 S.E.2d 70 (1980) (decided under former Code 1933, § 74-510).

Effective date. — Effective July 1, 2001, the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act was replaced by the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction and Enforcement Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-9-40 et seq. Edwards v. Edwards, 254 Ga. App. 849, 563 S.E.2d 888 (2002).

Parental Kidnapping Prevention Act, 28 U.S.C. § 1738 et seq., applies in all interstate child custody disputes, not only when a child was abducted by a parent and removed to another state. Wilson v. Gouse, 263 Ga. 887, 441 S.E.2d 57 (1994) (decided under former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act).

Modification of out-of-state decree. — Ohio court which entered the initial custody decree no longer had jurisdiction over the subject matter of the modification action; thus, Georgia was free under § 1738A(f) of the Parental Kidnapping Prevention Act (28 U.S.C. § 1738A(f)) to modify the Ohio custody order and was correct when it initially assumed jurisdiction to do so. Wilson v. Gouse, 263 Ga. 887, 441 S.E.2d 57 (1994) (decided under former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act).

No abuse of discretion in declining jurisdiction. — Trial court did not abuse the court's discretion by declining to exercise jurisdiction in a child custody case under O.C.G.A. § 19-9-67(b) because the children lived in Texas, the witnesses, such as the children's teachers and health care providers were in Texas, and the trial court determined that the case could be more expeditiously resolved there. Odion v. Odion, 325 Ga. App. 733, 754 S.E.2d 778 (2014).

19-9-41. Definitions.

In this article:

(1) "Abandoned" means left without provision for reasonable and necessary care or supervision.

(2) "Child" means an individual who has not attained 18 years of age.

(3) "Child custody determination" means a judgment, decree, or other order of a court providing for the legal custody, physical custody, or visitation with respect to a child. The term includes a permanent, temporary, initial, and modification order. The term does not include an order relating to child support or other monetary obligations of an individual.

(4) "Child custody proceeding" means a proceeding in which legal custody, physical custody, or visitation with respect to a child is an issue. The term includes a proceeding for divorce, separation, neglect, abuse, dependency, guardianship, paternity, termination of parental rights, and protection from family violence, in which the issue may appear. The term does not include a proceeding involving juvenile delinquency, contractual emancipation, or enforcement under Part 3 of this article.

(5) "Commencement" means the filing of the first pleading in a proceeding.

(6) "Court" means an entity authorized under the law of a state to establish, enforce, or modify a child custody determination.

(7) "Home state" means the state in which a child lived with a parent or a person acting as a parent for at least six consecutive months immediately before the commencement of a child custody proceeding. In the case of a child less than six months of age, the term means the state in which the child lived from birth with any of the persons mentioned. A period of temporary absence of any of the mentioned persons is part of the period.

(8) "Initial determination" means the first child custody determination concerning a particular child.

(9) "Issuing court" means the court that makes a child custody determination for which enforcement is sought under this article.

(10) "Issuing state" means the state in which a child custody determination is made.

(11) "Modification" means a child custody determination that changes, replaces, supersedes, or is otherwise made after a previous determination concerning the same child, whether or not it is made by the court that made the previous determination.

(12) "Person" means an individual, corporation, business trust, estate, trust, partnership, limited liability company, association, joint venture, government; governmental subdivision, agency, or instrumentality; public corporation; or any other legal or commercial entity.

(13) "Person acting as a parent" means a person, other than a parent, who:

(A) Has physical custody of the child or has had physical custody for a period of six consecutive months, including any temporary absence, within one year immediately before the commencement of a child custody proceeding; and

(B) Has been awarded legal custody by a court or claims a right to legal custody under the law of this state.

(14) "Physical custody" means the physical care and supervision of a child.

(15) "State" means a state of the United States, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, the United States Virgin Islands, or any territory or insular possession subject to the jurisdiction of the United States.

(16) "Tribe" means an Indian tribe or band or Alaskan Native village which is recognized by federal law or formally acknowledged by a state.

(17) "Warrant" means an order issued by a court authorizing law enforcement officers to take physical custody of a child. (Code 1981, § 19-9-41, enacted by Ga. L. 2001, p. 129, § 1.)

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the statutory provisions, annotations decided under the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act, former Code 1933, §§ 74-501 through 74-525, subsequently codified as §§ 19-9-40 through 19-9-64, are included in the annotations for this Code section.

"Home state," for all purposes which former Chapter 9 was designed to govern, did not mean the residence or domicile of the parent having legal custody. Rather, "home state", for purposes of former § 19-9-43, meant the place where the child lived or had recently lived and where the child would presumably still be living had the child not been surreptitiously removed therefrom. Harper v. Landers, 180 Ga. App. 154, 348 S.E.2d 698 (1986) (decided under former §§ 19-9-42 and 19-9-43).

The facts of the instant case fit squarely within former § 19-9-43(a)(1) and (2), since it was undisputed that the children lived in Paulding County, Georgia, with their mother and their grandmother who, both during her daughter's times of disability and after her death, "acted as a parent" to the minor children, giving them emotional and financial support and it is also undisputed that the grandmother's petition was filed July 30, 1985, and that the father was personally served in Melbourne, Florida, on September 21, 1985, both dates being less than six months after May 24, 1985, when the children were removed from Georgia. Thus, at the initiation of the action, Georgia was the children's "home state," as defined in former paragraph (5) of § 19-9-42. Harper v. Landers, 180 Ga. App. 154, 348 S.E.2d 698 (1986) (decided under former §§ 19-9-42 and 19-9-43).

First parent took the parties' child from Georgia to South Carolina and filed a custody action there. As the child had lived with the second parent in Georgia for at least six consecutive months immediately before the second parent commenced a child custody proceeding there, pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 19-9-41, Georgia was the child's "home state" and the Georgia trial court thus had jurisdiction under O.C.G.A. § 19-9-61(a)(1) to grant the second parent temporary custody. Croft v. Croft, 298 Ga. App. 303, 680 S.E.2d 150 (2009).

Trial court erred in dismissing a husband's divorce complaint on the ground that jurisdiction was properly with the Italian court because the trial court had jurisdiction to make the initial custody determination under the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction and Enforcement Act (UCCJEA), O.C.G.A. § 19-9-61(a) and (b), and no other court did since Georgia was the only state, including Italy, that could qualify as the “home state” of the parties’ child pursuant to the UCCJEA, O.C.G.A. § 19-9-41(7), at the time either the Italian custody proceeding or the Georgia proceeding was commenced and at the time the trial court entered the court’s initial child custody order; under the UCCJEA, the jurisdictional inquiry entered into by the Italian court was insufficient because the Italian court undertook no analysis of the home state of the child or of any other factors that could be considered a substitute for such but simply found that the prerequisites for jurisdiction over a divorce action were met. Bellew v. Larese, 288 Ga. 495, 706 S.E.2d 78 (2011).

Trial court did not abuse the court’s discretion by denying a wife’s motion to stay the Georgia divorce proceeding commenced by the husband in lieu of the State of New York proceeding the wife filed because the record showed that the wife and children had lived in Georgia with the husband since 2000 and continued to live in Georgia until sometime after the couple filed their respective petitions for divorce; thus, Georgia was the home state of the children for the purposes of the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction and Enforcement Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-9-40 et seq., and New York was not. Black v. Black, 292 Ga. 691, 740 S.E.2d 613 (2013).

“Home state” means physical presence without regard to legal residence; thus, when the mother lived in Illinois and the child lived with her there continuously from at least May 1979, until December 1980, except for a two-week absence to go to Georgia in July 1980, where she married her present husband, Illinois was the child’s “home state,” and since the father commenced custody proceeding in May 1981, less than six months after the mother removed the child to Georgia in December 1980, Illinois trial court had jurisdiction to determine the custody of the child. Brenner v. Cavin, 163

Ga. App. 694, 295 S.E.2d 135 (1982) (decided under former Code 1933, §§ 74-503 and 74-504).

“Home state” not a bar to finding personal jurisdiction. — Father petitioning for modification of custody and visitation rights cannot contest personal jurisdiction in a counterclaim by mother to modify child support despite “home state” requirement. Yount v. Mulle, 266 Ga. 729, 470 S.E.2d 647 (1996) (decided under former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act).

“State” defined. — For purposes of the former Georgia Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act, specifically former O.C.G.A. § 19-9-42(10), the Commonwealth of the Bahamas constitutes a state. Edwards v. Edwards, 254 Ga. App. 849, 563 S.E.2d 888 (2002).

“Custody proceeding.” — Former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act applied to adoption proceedings even before the 1988 amendment of former paragraph (3) of § 19-9-42 which added such proceedings to the list of matters included within the term “custody proceeding.” Gainey v. Olivo, 258 Ga. 640, 373 S.E.2d 4 (1988) (decided under former § 19-9-42).

Because the Georgia superior court had exclusive and continuing subject matter jurisdiction over the grandparents’ modification of custody action, as there was no evidence to suggest that the initial 2001 custody determination was not made consistent with O.C.G.A. § 19-9-61, even without personal jurisdiction over the child’s parent, the custody determination entered by the superior court was upheld on appeal; moreover, visitation was considered a custody issue under the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Enforcement Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-9-41(3). Daniels v. Barnes, 289 Ga. App. 897, 658 S.E.2d 472 (2008).

Res judicata did not bar custody petition. — Since a previous visitation order related to the grandparent’s right to visitation, not custody, and the legal issues to be decided varied, the trial court properly determined that res judicata did not bar the grandparents’ petition for custody under the Uniform Child Jurisdiction and Custody Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-9-40 et seq.; the Act does not provide that the judgment is conclusive as to all issues which could have been put in issue. Scott v. Scott, 311 Ga. App. 726, 716 S.E.2d 809 (2011).

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

UCCJEA does not govern adoption proceedings. — Trial court did not err in exercising jurisdiction in a petition for adoption because the Georgia Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Enforcement Act (UCCJEA), O.C.G.A. § 19-9-40 et seq., did not govern adoption proceedings. Barr v. Gregor, 316 Ga. App. 269, 728 S.E.2d 868 (2012).

19-9-43. Proceeding pertaining to Indian child exempted from article.

(a) A child custody proceeding that pertains to an Indian child as defined in the Indian Child Welfare Act, 25 U.S.C. Section 1901 et seq., is not subject to this article to the extent that it is governed by the Indian Child Welfare Act.

(b) A court of this state shall treat a tribe as if it were a state of the United States for the purpose of applying this part and Part 2 of this article.

(c) A child custody determination made by a tribe under factual circumstances in substantial conformity with the jurisdictional standards of this article must be recognized and enforced under Part 3 of this article. (Code 1981, § 19-9-43, enacted by Ga. L. 2001, p. 129, § 1.)

(a) A court of this state shall treat a foreign country as if it were a state of the United States for the purpose of applying this part and Part 2 of this article.

No jurisdiction over person residing in foreign country. — Former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act cannot be the basis for jurisdiction over person residing in foreign country. Binns v. Smith, 251 Ga. 861, 310 S.E.2d 225 (1984) (decided under former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act).

Georgia trial court had jurisdiction. — Trial court erred in dismissing a husband's divorce complaint on the ground that jurisdiction was properly with the Italian court because the trial court had jurisdiction to make the initial custody determination under the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction and Enforcement Act (UCCJEA), O.C.G.A. § 19-9-61(a) and (b), and no other court did since Georgia was the only state, including Italy, that could qualify as the "home state" of the parties' child pursuant to the UCCJEA, O.C.G.A. § 19-9-41(7), at the time either the Italian custody proceeding or the Georgia proceeding was commenced and at the time the trial court entered the court's initial child custody order; under the UCCJEA, the jurisdictional inquiry entered into by the Italian court was insufficient because the Italian court undertook no analysis of the home state of the child or of any other factors that could be considered a substitute for such but simply found that the prerequisites for jurisdiction over a divorce action were met. Bellew v. Larese, 288 Ga. 495, 706 S.E.2d 78 (2011).

ALR. — Applicability and application of Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction and Enforcement Act (UCCJEA) to international child custody and support actions, 66 ALR6th 269.

19-9-45. Binding authority of child custody determination.

A child custody determination made by a court of this state that had jurisdiction under this article binds all persons who have been served in accordance with the laws of this state or notified in accordance with Code Section 19-9-47 or who have submitted to the jurisdiction of the court, and who have been given an opportunity to be heard. As to those persons, the determination is conclusive as to all decided issues of law and fact except to the extent the determination is modified. (Code 1981, § 19-9-45, enacted by Ga. L. 2001, p. 129, § 1.)

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Res judicata did not bar custody petition. — Since a previous visitation order related to the grandparent's right to visitation, not custody, and the legal issues to be decided varied, the trial court properly determined that res judicata did not bar the grandparents' petition for custody under the Uniform Child Jurisdiction and Custody Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-9-40 et seq.; the Act does not provide that the judgment is conclusive as to all issues which could have been put in issue. Scott v. Scott, 311 Ga. App. 726, 716 S.E.2d 809 (2011).

19-9-46. Priority given question of existence or exercise of jurisdiction.

If a question of existence or exercise of jurisdiction under this article is raised in a child custody proceeding, the question, upon request of a party, must be given priority on the calendar and handled expeditiously. (Code 1981, § 19-9-46, enacted by Ga. L. 2001, p. 129, § 1.)

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the statutory provisions, annotations decided under the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act, former Code 1933, §§ 74-501 through 74-525, subsequently codified as §§ 19-9-40 through 19-9-64, are included in the annotations for this Code section.

Inquiry into jurisdiction. — Because the parties' Texas divorce action had been abated due to an earlier Mexican divorce, there was no action pending in Texas; therefore, the trial court did not have to inquire into the court's jurisdiction under the former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-9-40 et seq. Baca v. Baca, 256 Ga. App. 514, 568 S.E.2d 746 (2002) (decided under former Code Section 19-9-40 et seq.).

19-9-47. Notice and proof of service on persons outside the state.

(a) Notice required for the exercise of jurisdiction when a person is outside this state may be given in a manner prescribed by the law of this state for service of process or by the law of the state in which the service is made. Notice must be given in a manner reasonably calculated to give actual notice but may be by publication if other means are not effective.

(b) Proof of service may be made in the manner prescribed by the law of this state or by the law of the state in which the service is made.

(c) Notice is not required for the exercise of jurisdiction with respect to a person who submits to the jurisdiction of the court. (Code 1981, § 19-9-47, enacted by Ga. L. 2001, p. 129, § 1.)

Personal service on parent in foreign state. — After the first parent took the parties' child from Georgia to South Carolina, the second parent filed a custody action in Georgia. Personal service of the complaint on the first parent in South Carolina was sufficient to confer jurisdiction under South Carolina R. Civ. P. 4(d)(1), and hence, was sufficient under O.C.G.A. § 19-9-47 as well. Croft v. Croft, 298 Ga. App. 303, 680 S.E.2d 150 (2009).

19-9-48. Personal jurisdiction not obtained in other matters; service of process.

(a) A party to a child custody proceeding, including a modification proceeding, or a petitioner or respondent in a proceeding to enforce or register a child custody determination is not subject to personal jurisdiction in this state for another proceeding or purpose solely by reason of having participated, or of having been physically present for the purpose of participating, in the proceeding.

(b) A person who is subject to personal jurisdiction in this state on a basis other than physical presence is not immune from service of process in this state. A party present in this state who is subject to the jurisdiction of another state is not immune from service of process allowable under the laws of that state.

(c) The immunity granted by subsection (a) of this Code section does not extend to civil litigation based on acts unrelated to the participation in a proceeding under this article committed by an individual while present in this state. (Code 1981, § 19-9-48, enacted by Ga. L. 2001, p. 129, § 1.)

19-9-49. Communication between court of this state and other states; “record” defined.

(a) A court of this state may communicate with a court in another state concerning a proceeding arising under this article and concerning any proceeding or court order in another state relating to family violence. A court of this state may consult any state or national registry of court orders relating to family violence with regard to any party.

(b) The court may allow the parties to participate in the communication. If the parties are not able to participate in the communication, they must be given the opportunity to present facts and legal arguments before a decision on jurisdiction is made.

(c) Communication between courts on schedules, calendars, court records, and similar matters may occur without informing the parties. A record need not be made of the communication.

(d) Except as otherwise provided in subsection (c) of this Code section, a record must be made of any communication under this Code section. The parties must be informed promptly of the communication and granted access to the record.

(e) For the purposes of this Code section, “record” means information that is inscribed on a tangible medium or that is stored in an electronic or other medium and is retrievable in perceivable form. (Code 1981, § 19-9-49, enacted by Ga. L. 2001, p. 129, § 1.)

19-9-50. Testimony by deposition; electronic deposition; evidence transmitted by technological means not to be excluded.

(a) In addition to other procedures available to a party, a party to a child custody proceeding may offer testimony of witnesses who are located in another state, including testimony of the parties and the child, by deposition or other means allowable in this state for testimony taken in another state. The court on its own motion may order that the testimony of a person be taken in another state and may prescribe the manner in which and the terms upon which the testimony is taken.

(b) A court of this state may permit an individual residing in another state to be deposed or to testify by telephone, audiovisual means, or other electronic means before a designated court or at another location in that state. A court of this state shall cooperate with courts of other states in designating an appropriate location for the deposition or testimony.

(c) Documentary evidence transmitted from another state to a court of this state by technological means that do not produce an original writing may not be excluded from evidence on an objection based on the means of transmission. (Code 1981, § 19-9-50, enacted by Ga. L. 2001, p. 129, § 1.)

19-9-51. Hearings and studies in another state; costs.

(a) A court of this state may request the appropriate court of another state to:

- (1) Hold an evidentiary hearing;
- (2) Order a person to produce or give evidence pursuant to procedures of that state;
- (3) Order that an evaluation be made with respect to the custody of a child involved in a pending proceeding;
- (4) Forward to the court of this state a certified copy of the transcript of the record of the hearing, the evidence otherwise presented, and any evaluation prepared in compliance with the request; and
- (5) Order a party to a child custody proceeding or any person having physical custody of the child to appear in the proceeding with or without the child.

(b) Upon request of a court of another state, a court of this state may hold a hearing or enter an order described in subsection (a) of this Code section.

(c) Travel and other necessary and reasonable expenses incurred under subsections (a) and (b) of this Code section may be assessed against the parties according to the law of this state.

(d) A court of this state shall preserve the pleadings, orders, decrees, records of hearings, evaluations, and other pertinent records with respect to a child custody proceeding until the child attains 18 years of age. Upon appropriate request by a court or law enforcement official of another state, the court shall forward a certified copy of those records. (Code 1981, § 19-9-51, enacted by Ga. PART 2

JURISDICTION

Law reviews. — For article, "Domestic Relations Law," see 53 Mercer L. Rev. 265 (2001).

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the statutory provisions, annotations decided under the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act, former Code 1933, §§ 74-501 through 74-525, subsequently codified as §§ 19-9-40 through 19-9-64, are included in the annotations for this Code section.

Where custody proceedings should take place. — Custody proceedings should take place in state with which child and family have closest connections. Graham v. Hajosy, 159 Ga. App. 466, 283 S.E.2d 683 (1981) (decided under former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act).

Jurisdiction under Parental Kidnapping Prevention Act (28 U.S.C. § 1738A). — In a proceeding to modify child custody provisions of a foreign divorce decree, even though Georgia was the home state of the minor children, the trial court erred in modifying the decree when, pursuant to the Parental Kidnapping Prevention Act (28 U.S.C. § 1738A), the court failed to address whether the court that originally entered the decree had lost or declined to exercise jurisdiction. Henderson v. Justice, 223 Ga. App. 591, 478 S.E.2d 434 (1996) (decided under former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act).

In a proceeding to modify visitation rights of the father, a Louisiana resident, even though the trial court clearly had jurisdiction to modify the Louisiana judgment because Georgia was the children's home state at the time the modification petition was filed, the court erred in issuing a modification order because Louisiana retained continuing jurisdiction over the case. Bonar v. Bonar, 246 Ga. App. 11, 539 S.E.2d 521 (2000) (decided under former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act).

Jurisdiction under Full Faith and Credit for Child Support Order Act.

— Because a court of this state has continuing, exclusive jurisdiction over the last child support order entered consistent with the Full Faith and Credit for Child Support Order Act, 28 U.S.C. § 1738B, the trial court erred by declining to exercise jurisdiction over the appellee's petition to modify child support. Early v. Early, 269 Ga. 415, 499 S.E.2d 329 (1998) (decided under former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act).

Jurisdictional standards of this article. — Jurisdictional provisions of the former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act do not apply in the international arena so as to confer jurisdiction upon an international tribunal or limit the exercise of otherwise proper jurisdiction in the state because of pending international proceedings. Goldstein v. Goldstein, 229 Ga. App. 862, 494 S.E.2d 745 (1997) (decided under former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act).

Construed with § 9-10-91(5). — Jurisdiction for modification of child custody matters, which include visitation, is in the home state of the child. Former § 9-10-91(5), the "domestic-relations long arm statute", applies by its own terms only to actions involving alimony, child support, and division of property. Kemp v. Sharp, 261 Ga. 600, 409 S.E.2d 204 (1991) (decided under former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act).

Minimum nexus between court and child that must exist before court's award of child's custody should carry any authority is that court should be in position to adequately inform itself regarding the needs and desires of the child, and of what is in the child's best interest. Goldfarb v. Goldfarb, 246 Ga. 24, 268 S.E.2d 648 (1980) (decided under former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act).

Interested state with requisite nexus may determine custody. — Former § 19-9-43 allowed interested state with requisite nexus with subject of child custody suit to hear action and make determination. Goldfarb v. Goldfarb, 246 Ga. 24, 268 S.E.2d 648 (1980) (decided under former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act).

Georgia courts will recognize and enforce other state's modifications in accordance with former Uniform Child Custody and Jurisdiction Act. Yearta v. Scroggins, 245 Ga. 831, 268 S.E.2d 151 (1980) (decided under former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act).

Enforcement of custody provisions of Georgia divorce judgment. — Georgia court which issued a divorce judgment that has not been modified by a court of another state with jurisdiction to do so may hear a Georgia-resident, non-custodial parent's allegations of contumacious conduct leveled against the nonresident custodial parent; a Georgia court has the statutory power to compel obedience to its judgments, as well as the inherent power to enforce its orders through contempt proceedings, and the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act does not provide the exclusive means by which a party may seek enforcement of the custody provisions of a Georgia judgment. Dyer v. Surratt, 266 Ga. 220, 466 S.E.2d 584 (1996) (decided under former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act).

Parent wishing to change custody must proceed in proper jurisdiction. — If it is in child's best interest that child custody be changed, noncustodial parent must, instead of snatching child, seek change of custody where jurisdiction lies. Etzion v. Evans, 247 Ga. 390, 276 S.E.2d 577 (1981) (decided under former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act).

Florida court's award of custody to the father was not entitled to recognition in Georgia since the Florida court assumed jurisdiction over issues of child custody in disregard of the requirement imposed by former § 19-9-46(c) and since Georgia was the home state of the children at the time of the Florida court's action. Thompson v. Thompson, 241 Ga. App. 616, 526 S.E.2d 576 (1999) (decided under former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act).

When Georgia courts will relitigate custody. — Courts of Georgia will refuse to relitigate custody except where legal custodian resides. Yearta v. Scroggins, 245 Ga. 831, 268 S.E.2d 151 (1980) (decided under former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act).

When Georgia courts will not relitigate custody. — As a matter of public policy, Georgia courts refuse to provide forum in Georgia for relitigating custody when noncustodial parent resident in Georgia has improperly removed child from physical custody of custodial parent who resides in another state. Bishop v. Bishop, 247 Ga. 56, 273 S.E.2d 394 (1981); Etzion v. Evans, 247 Ga. 390, 276 S.E.2d 577 (1981) (decided under former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act).

Effect of modification proceeding in another state upon Georgia jurisdiction. — Former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act did not destroy the jurisdiction of a Georgia court to hear contempt proceedings filed by a Georgia-resident, noncustodial mother against an Ohio-resident, custodial father for his breach of the visitation provisions of Georgia court's child custody decree solely because an Ohio court previously had accepted jurisdiction of visitation modification proceedings filed by father where the Ohio court had not entered an order modifying the visitation provisions of the Georgia court's decree. Daily v. Dombroski, 250 Ga. 236, 297 S.E.2d 246 (1982) (decided under former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act).

Petition for contempt for denial of visitation rights clearly came within the purview of former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act. Paul v. Paul, 184 Ga. App. 217, 361 S.E.2d 221 (1987) (decided under former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act).

Resident parent illegally retaining custody. — When the mother, a Florida resident, was the custodial parent, and the father, a Georgia resident, illegally retained custody of the minor child after a visitation period granted by the custodial parent, the trial court should have refused jurisdiction pursuant to the provisions providing that a court of this state, competent to decide child custody, has jurisdiction to make such determination only if Georgia is the home state of the child at the time of commencement of the proceeding, or has been the child's home state within six months before commencement of the proceeding. Craighead v. Davis, 162 Ga. App. 145, 290 S.E.2d 358 (1982) (decided under former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act).

"Home state," for all purposes which the former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act was designed to govern, did not mean the residence or domicile of the parent having legal custody. Rather, "home state," for purposes of former § 19-9-43, means the place where the child lived or had recently lived and where the child would presumably still be living had the child not been surreptitiously removed therefrom. Harper v. Landers, 180 Ga. App. 154, 348 S.E.2d 698 (1986) (decided under former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act).

Facts of the instant case fit squarely within paragraphs (a)(1) and (2) of former § 19-9-43, since it was undisputed that the children lived in Paulding County, Georgia, with their mother and their grandmother, who both during her daughter's times of disability and after her death "acted as a parent" to the minor children, giving them emotional and financial support and it was also undisputed that the grandmother's petition was filed July 30, 1985, and that the father was personally served in Melbourne, Florida, on September 21, 1985, both dates being less than six months after May 24, 1985, when the children were removed from Georgia. Thus, at the initiation of the action, Georgia was the children's "home state," as defined in the controlling statute, former § 19-9-42(5). Harper v. Landers, 180 Ga. App. 154, 348 S.E.2d 698 (1986) (decided under former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act).

Assertion that Georgia did not have jurisdiction because Ohio was the home state of all the parties' children at the time of the divorce, and continued to be the home state of the two older children of the parties, was not pertinent to the question since the term "home state" refers to the home of the child for at least six months prior to the action. Gouse v. Wilson, 207 Ga. App. 574, 428 S.E.2d 571 (1993), aff'd, 263 Ga. 887, 441 S.E.2d 57 (1994) (decided under former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act).

Since a child had resided in Georgia with the custodial parent for a number of years giving the Georgia court authority to exercise home state jurisdiction, the "appropriate forum" jurisdiction was not conferred upon the Tennessee court such as would preclude the Georgia court from exercising jurisdiction to modify the custody decree ordered under the Tennessee divorce decree. Mulle v. Yount, 211 Ga. App. 584, 440 S.E.2d 210 (1993) (decided under former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act).

“Home state” means physical presence without regard to legal residence; thus, when the mother lived in Illinois and the child lived with her there continuously from at least May 1979, until December 1980, except for a two-week absence to go to Georgia in July 1980, where she married her present husband, Illinois was the child’s “home state,” and since the father commenced custody proceeding in May 1981, less than six months after the mother removed the child to Georgia in December 1980, the Illinois trial court had jurisdiction to determine the custody of the child. Brenner v. Cavin, 163 Ga. App. 694, 295 S.E.2d 135 (1982) (decided under former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act).

Attempt to predetermine “home state.” — Jurisdiction of interstate custody disputes is controlled in this state by the former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act (UCCJA). An attempt to predetermine the “home state” is a circumvention of the UCCJA, and is an attempt to deprive this state of the state’s lawful jurisdiction of the citizens according to the Act. Gouse v. Wilson, 207 Ga. App. 574, 428 S.E.2d 571 (1993) (decided under former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act).

Jurisdiction where another state has jurisdiction. — When it appears that another state has jurisdiction of case under paragraph (a)(1) or (a)(2) of former § 19-9-43, Georgia courts do not have such jurisdiction unless the children are abandoned or an emergency exists which would justify assumption of jurisdiction by this state. Douse v. Douse, 157 Ga. App. 524, 277 S.E.2d 807 (1981) (decided under former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act).

Attempt to retain jurisdiction by stipulation in decree. — Ohio court’s attempt to retain jurisdiction of the matter of child custody by so stipulating in its divorce decree was a nullity, even though it is based on the agreement of the parties. Gouse v. Wilson, 207 Ga. App. 574, 428 S.E.2d 571 (1993) (decided under former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act).

Determining jurisdiction when emergency is claimed. — When a petitioner seeking modification of an out-of-state custody decree alleges that the child is in need of emergency protection, the trial court was authorized under subparagraph (a)(3)(B) of former § 19-9-43 to take temporary jurisdiction and even to make an award of temporary custody. Under the relevant statutory provisions, however, the court is under a duty before proceeding to modify an out-of-state decree to ascertain whether the allegations contained in the petition are valid, and whether the petitioner has complied with the statutory requirements and is entitled to bring further proceedings in the Georgia courts. Osgood v. Dent, 167 Ga. App. 406, 306 S.E.2d 698 (1983); Galvez v. Galvez, 221 Ga. App. 644, 472 S.E.2d 492 (1996) (decided under former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act).

Trial court lacked jurisdiction to hear an action for modification brought by the father, where the mother had legal custody and lived with the child in a different state, and the child was temporarily visiting the father in Georgia; findings of the court that abuse of the child may have occurred and that the mother’s nonmarital cohabitation may have been detrimental to the child were not sufficient to support the exercise of emergency jurisdiction. In re M.M., 222 Ga. App. 313, 474 S.E.2d 53 (1996) (decided under former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act).

Purpose of the emergency exception to home state jurisdiction is to allow an appropriate non-home state court to exercise jurisdiction where the circumstances and well-being of the child demand immediate action; thus, because no true emergency existed, the Georgia court properly refused to take jurisdiction in a child custody case involving a child who resided in Virginia. Rozier v. Berto, 230 Ga. App. 427, 496 S.E.2d 544 (1998) (decided under former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act).

Specific objection to jurisdiction. — When the home state of the child was not Georgia and the mother as custodial parent specifically objected to jurisdiction over her person and the subject matter without making an appearance in court, the state superior court had no jurisdiction over this custody determination. Baker v. Ashburn, 179 Ga. App. 757, 347 S.E.2d 660, aff'd, 256 Ga. 507, 350 S.E.2d 437 (1986) (decided under former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act).

Court had jurisdiction of the child and the issue of the child's custody since the child had continually lived in Georgia and this was the child's home state. Gregg v. Barnes, 203 Ga. App. 549, 417 S.E.2d 206, cert. denied, 203 Ga. App. 906, 417 S.E.2d 206 (1992) (decided under former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act).

Because the only reason the child had a growing connection with another state was that the father moved the child there without notice, jurisdiction in Georgia was properly based on findings that it was in the best interest of the child, the mother had a significant connection with the state, and substantial evidence concerning the child's present and future needs was available in Georgia. Holt v. Leiter, 232 Ga. App. 376, 501 S.E.2d 879 (1998) (decided under former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act).

Georgia court had jurisdiction of noncustodial father's action for modification of custody since no other state had jurisdiction as the "home state" of the children. Mock v. Smith, 233 Ga. App. 36, 503 S.E.2d 319 (1998) (decided under former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act).

Georgia court could assume jurisdiction pursuant to paragraph (a)(2) of former § 19-9-43 because substantial evidence was available in Georgia bearing on the children's past and future activities, relationships, and care; in addition, jurisdiction could be assumed pursuant to paragraph (a)(4) of that section as no other state had jurisdiction. Wylie v. Blatchley, 237 Ga. App. 563, 515 S.E.2d 855 (1999) (decided under former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act).

Trial court lacked jurisdiction over a resident noncustodial father's action against a nonresident custodial mother seeking to modify visitation rights and to hold the mother in contempt of the visitation provisions of a Georgia decree since personal service had not been made on the mother in Georgia. Ashburn v. Baker, 256 Ga. 507, 350 S.E.2d 437 (1986); Ruckstuhl v. Corley, 218 Ga. App. 660, 462 S.E.2d 795 (1995) (decided under former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act).

When the mother removed the minor child of the parties from Georgia to the Federal Republic of Germany when there was in effect no court order providing for custody of the child and she subsequently obtained from a German court a decree awarding custody to her, and the father later filed a complaint in a Georgia superior court and attempted to serve the mother in Germany by publication, the Georgia court was without jurisdiction to award custody of the child to the father. Richardson v. Richardson, 257 Ga. 101, 355 S.E.2d 664 (1987) (decided under former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act).

In an action by a noncustodial parent, filed in Georgia, for modification of the visitation provisions of the divorce decree, the assertion by the nonresident custodial parent of a counterclaim for modification of support did not constitute a waiver of the custodial parent's right to insist on litigating custody matters in Texas, the home state of the parties' child. Kemp v. Sharp, 261 Ga. 600, 409 S.E.2d 204 (1991) (decided under former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act).

Trial court lacked jurisdiction to hear an action for modification of custody brought by father, since the mother had legal custody and lived with the child in a different state, the child was temporarily visiting the father in Georgia, there was no extreme emergency authorizing the conduct of the father in denying custody to the mother, and there was not substantial evidence otherwise sufficient to vest jurisdiction in the Georgia court. Lightfoot v. Lightfoot, 210 Ga. App. 400, 436 S.E.2d 700 (1993) (decided under former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act).

Even though the Tennessee court had declined to exercise the court's jurisdiction over a custody matter, the Georgia court did not gain jurisdiction because, under the former Uniform Child Custody and Jurisdiction Act, jurisdiction could not be conferred by stipulation, agreement, or consent of the parties or another court. Williams v. Goss, 211 Ga. App. 195, 438 S.E.2d 670 (1993) (decided under former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act).

When Tennessee was the house state of a minor child, the fact that the child indicated a preference to reside with his father who lived in Georgia did not create a significant connection between the child and the state where the parent resided so as to confer jurisdiction of custody proceedings in the Georgia courts. Williams v. Goss, 211 Ga. App. 195, 438 S.E.2d 670 (1993) (decided under former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act).

Trial court lacked jurisdiction to hear an action for modification of custody brought by the father because the father did not have standing until more than six months after the date of the filing and Florida was the state with the closest connections to the child and family. Mezquita v. Campbell, 238 Ga. App. 396, 519 S.E.2d 27 (1999) (decided under former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act).

Purpose. — Former § 19-9-47 was not a separate grant of jurisdiction over interstate child custody proceedings, but established a discretionary abstention doctrine. Mulle v. Yount, 211 Ga. App. 584, 440 S.E.2d 210 (1993) (decided under former § 19-9-47).

Limited jurisdiction. — When the trial court held that the court did not have jurisdiction over child custody because of the pendency of an appeal in another state, custody ceased to be a contestable issue, and the court was not precluded from addressing issues over which the court had jurisdiction including divorce. Norowski v. Norowski, 267 Ga. 841, 483 S.E.2d 577 (1997) (decided under former § 19-9-47).

While a trial court had a limited grant of authority under subsection (f) of former § 19-9-47 to dismiss a custody proceeding on the ground of forum non conveniens, it could not dismiss the divorce proceeding as well. Holtsclaw v. Holtsclaw, 269 Ga. 163, 496 S.E.2d 262 (1998); Patterson v. Patterson, 271 Ga. 306, 519 S.E.2d 438 (1999) (decided under former § 19-9-47).

Inquiry required. — Trial court erred in dismissing a child custody proceeding without an inquiry into whether the law of the other state involved in the case would allow a court of that state to exercise jurisdiction. Patterson v. Patterson, 271 Ga. 306, 519 S.E.2d 438 (1999) (decided under former § 19-9-47).

In father's action seeking modification of a child custody order, the trial court properly applied the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act (UCCJA) to resolve the parties' dispute because the UCCJA was the law in effect when the father filed his petition seeking modification of a child custody order, and the trial court did not err by concluding that the father's petition under former O.C.G.A. § 19-9-43(a)(1)(B) was timely because O.C.G.A. § 1-3-1(d)(3) extended the six-month period the father had to file the petition from a Saturday to the following Monday. Parke v. Fant, 260 Ga. App. 84, 578 S.E.2d 896 (2003).

19-9-61. Jurisdiction requirements for initial child custody determinations; physical presence alone insufficient.

(a) Except as otherwise provided in Code Section 19-9-64, a court of this state has jurisdiction to make an initial child custody determination only if:

(1) This state is the home state of the child on the date of the commencement of the proceeding, or was the home state of the child within six months before the commencement of the proceeding and the child is absent from this state but a parent or person acting as a parent continues to live in this state;

(2) A court of another state does not have jurisdiction under paragraph (1) of this subsection, or a court of the home state of the child has declined to exercise jurisdiction on the ground that this state is the more appropriate forum under Code Section 19-9-67 or 19-9-68 and:

(A) The child and the child's parents, or the child and at least one parent or a person acting as a parent, have a significant connection with this state other than mere physical presence; and

(B) Substantial evidence is available in this state concerning the child's care, protection, training, and personal relationships;

(3) All courts having jurisdiction under paragraph (1) or (2) of this subsection have declined to exercise jurisdiction on the ground that a court of this state is the more appropriate forum to determine the custody of the child under Code Section 19-9-67 or 19-9-68; or

(4) No court of any other state would have jurisdiction under the criteria specified in paragraph (1), (2), or (3) of this subsection.

(b) Subsection (a) of this Code section is the exclusive jurisdictional basis for making a child custody determination by a court of this state.

(c) Physical presence of, or personal jurisdiction over, a party or a child is not necessary or sufficient to make a child custody determination. (Code 1981, § 19-9-61, enacted by Ga. L. 2001, p. 129, § 1.)

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the statutory provisions, annotations decided under former Code Sections 19-9-43 and 19-9-53 are included in the annotations for this Code section.

International jurisdiction. — Jurisdictional standards of the former Georgia Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act (UCCJA) were set out in former O.C.G.A. § 19-9-53, which in essence established home state jurisdiction, significant connection jurisdiction, emergency jurisdiction, and appropriate forum jurisdiction; when the Supreme Court of the Commonwealth of the Bahamas assumed jurisdiction over a child-custody dispute, it did so in conformance with the jurisdictional standards of the UCCJA. Edwards v. Edwards, 254 Ga. App. 849, 563 S.E.2d 888 (2002) (decided under former Code Section 19-9-53).

Georgia was child's "home state." — First parent took the parties' child from Georgia to South Carolina and filed a custody action there. As the child had lived with the second parent in Georgia for at least six consecutive months immediately before the second parent commenced a child custody proceeding there, pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 19-9-41, Georgia was the child's "home state" and the Georgia trial court thus had jurisdiction under O.C.G.A. § 19-9-61(a)(1) to grant the second parent temporary custody. Croft v. Croft, 298 Ga. App. 303, 680 S.E.2d 150 (2009).

Trial court erred in dismissing a husband's divorce complaint on the ground that jurisdiction was properly with the Italian court because the trial court had jurisdiction to make the initial custody determination under the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction and Enforcement Act (UCCJEA), O.C.G.A. § 19-9-61(a) and (b), and no other court did since Georgia was the only state, including Italy, that could qualify as the "home state" of the parties' child pursuant to the UCCJEA, O.C.G.A. § 19-9-41(7), at the time either the Italian custody proceeding or the Georgia proceeding was commenced and at the time the trial court entered the court's initial child custody order; under the UCCJEA, the jurisdictional inquiry entered into by the Italian court was insufficient because the Italian court undertook no analysis of the home state of the child or of any other factors that could be considered a substitute for such but simply found that the prerequisites for jurisdiction over a divorce action were met. Bellew v. Larese, 288 Ga. 495, 706 S.E.2d 78 (2011).

Trial court did not abuse the court's discretion by denying a wife's motion to stay the Georgia divorce proceeding commenced by the husband in lieu of the State of New York proceeding the wife filed because the record showed that the wife and children lived in Georgia with the husband since 2000 and continued to live in Georgia until sometime after the couple filed their respective petitions for divorce; thus, Georgia was the home state of the children for the purposes of the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction and Enforcement Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-9-40 et seq., and New York was not. Black v. Black, 292 Ga. 691, 740 S.E.2d 613 (2013).

Venue for motion to modify custody. — Fulton County court did not err in transferring a father's custody modification petition to the Cobb County court under both O.C.G.A. §§ 19-9-61 and 19-9-62(a) as Cobb County was the proper forum to hear the modification petition, despite the fact that the divorce and original custody order was heard in Fulton County, given that: (1) the mother and the children later moved to Cobb County; (2) the Cobb County Court entered a custody order; and (3) the Cobb County court thereafter maintained exclusive and continuing jurisdiction over its own child custody determination. Upchurch v. Smith, 281 Ga. 28, 635 S.E.2d 710 (2006).

Jurisdiction to modify custody order entered before UCCJEA. — There was no merit to a mother's argument that the trial court lacked jurisdiction under the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction and Enforcement Act (UCCJEA), O.C.G.A. § 19-9-40 et seq., to modify the court's child custody determination because the determination was made before the UCCJEA was enacted; the UCCJEA in Georgia required only that the initial child custody determination be entered "consistent with" O.C.G.A. § 19-9-61 or O.C.G.A. § 19-9-63. Devito v. Devito, 280 Ga. 367, 628 S.E.2d 108 (2006).

Custody can only be relitigated where legal custodian resides. — Trial court erred by granting a parent's complaint for modification of child custody and support and changing custody, which was filed in that parent's county of residence, as that county was not the jurisdiction wherein the issue of custody and support was originally litigated and the opposing parent never waived the challenge to the jurisdiction of the trial court via a pro se letter, which merely acknowledged receipt of the complaint; as a result, the judgment granting the change of custody was reversed and the case was remanded to the trial court with directions for the trial court to transfer the case to the trial court of the proper county. Hatch v. Hatch, 287 Ga. App. 832, 652 S.E.2d 874 (2007).

Full faith and credit required. — Georgia trial court was required to give full faith and credit to decision of the Supreme Court of the Commonwealth of the Bahamas awarding child's custody to the mother, even though it conflicted with the trial court's previous order awarding child's custody to the father. Edwards v. Edwards, 254 Ga. App. 849, 563 S.E.2d 888 (2002) (decided under former Code Section 19-9-53).

Extension of period to file petition. — In father's action seeking modification of a child custody order, the trial court did not err by concluding that the father's petition under former O.C.G.A. § 19-9-43(a)(1)(B) was timely because O.C.G.A. § 1-3-1(d)(3) extended the six-month period the father had to file the petition from a Saturday to the following Monday. Parke v. Fant, 260 Ga. App. 84, 578 S.E.2d 896 (2003).

Jurisdiction proper. — When a wife filed a divorce action in West Virginia before the husband filed an action in Georgia, the West Virginia court's unappealed ruling that a wife was still a resident of Georgia and that court's refusal to exercise jurisdiction over the wife's complaint there were of sufficient effect to authorize the Georgia court to make an initial child custody determination under O.C.G.A. § 19-9-61(a)(3). Implicit in the West Virginia court's finding of lack of jurisdiction was a ruling that Georgia was a more appropriate forum for the action; as West Virginia was the only other court that could have had jurisdiction under § 19-9-61(a)(1) or (2), the Georgia court properly exercised jurisdiction in this case. Cohen v. Cohen, 300 Ga. App. 7, 684 S.E.2d 94 (2009).

Jurisdiction over grandparents' modification action. — Because the Georgia superior court had exclusive and continuing subject matter jurisdiction over the grandparents' modification of custody action, as there was no evidence to suggest that the initial 2001 custody determination was not made consistent with O.C.G.A. § 19-9-61, even without personal jurisdiction over the child's parent, the custody determination entered by the superior court was upheld on appeal; but, absent personal jurisdiction over the mother to enter a contempt order, such was reversed. Daniels v. Barnes, 289 Ga. App. 897, 658 S.E.2d 472 (2008).

Lack of subject matter jurisdiction. — Superior court erred in granting an aunt and uncle custody of minor children because the court lacked subject matter jurisdiction to consider the petition for custody since a probate court had exclusive jurisdiction to issue and revoke letters of testamentary guardianship, and O.C.G.A. § 29-2-4(b) mandated the issuance of letters of testamentary guardianship to the brother of the children's father without notice and a hearing and without consideration of the children's best interests; the children's physical presence in the state was insufficient to confer subject matter jurisdiction over the petition for custody as the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction and Enforcement Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-9-40 et seq., presumed that a "court" acting under its auspices already had jurisdiction to act as authorized by law. Zinkhan v. Bruce, 305 Ga. App. 510, 699 S.E.2d 833 (2010).

Georgia trial court did not have subject matter jurisdiction to modify a Kansas custody determination under the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction and Enforcement Act (UCCJEA), O.C.G.A. § 19-9-40 et seq., because, while Georgia was the child's home state under O.C.G.A. § 19-9-61, Georgia failed to satisfy the remaining requirements of O.C.G.A. § 19-9-63 since the Kansas court never made a determination that it no longer had continuing, exclusive jurisdiction over the custody issue or that Georgia provided a more convenient forum than Kansas. Delgado v. Combs, 314 Ga. App. 419, 724 S.E.2d 436 (2012), cert. denied, No. S12C1106, 2012 Ga. LEXIS 602 (Ga. 2012).

19-9-62. Prerequisites for termination of exclusive, continuing jurisdiction.

(a) Except as otherwise provided in Code Section 19-9-64, a court of this state which has made a child custody determination consistent with Code Section 19-9-61 or 19-9-63 has exclusive, continuing jurisdiction over the determination until:

(1) A court of this state determines that neither the child nor the child's parents or any person acting as a parent has a significant connection with this state and that substantial evidence is no longer available in this state concerning the child's care, protection, training, and personal relationships; or

(2) A court of this state or a court of another state determines that neither the child nor the child's parents or any person acting as a parent presently resides in this state.

(b) A court of this state which has made a child custody determination and does not have exclusive, continuing jurisdiction under this Code section may modify that determination only if it has jurisdiction to make an initial determination under Code Section 19-9-61. JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Constitutionality. — O.C.G.A. § 19-9-62(a) did not violate Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VI; a trial court correctly ruled that the court had subject matter jurisdiction over a father's post-decree child custody modification action pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 19-9-62 and that personal jurisdiction over the mother was unnecessary in order for the court to address the requested modification. Devito v. Devito, 280 Ga. 367, 628 S.E.2d 108 (2006).

Court had subject matter jurisdiction. — Under O.C.G.A. § 19-9-62, the juvenile court properly exercised subject matter jurisdiction to terminate the parental rights of the adoptive parents to the child, born in and a citizen of Zambia, but who, at the time of the termination proceedings, had lived in Fulton County for at least six consecutive months with persons acting as her parents. In the Interest of E. E. B. W., 318 Ga. App. 65, 733 S.E.2d 369 (2012).

Jurisdiction to modify custody determination entered before UCCJEA. — There was no merit to a mother's argument that the trial court lacked jurisdiction under the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction and Enforcement Act (UCCJEA), O.C.G.A. § 19-9-40 et seq., to modify its child custody determination because it was made before the UCCJEA was enacted; the UCCJEA in Georgia required only that the initial child custody determination be entered "consistent with" O.C.G.A. § 19-9-61 or O.C.G.A. § 19-9-63. Devito v. Devito, 280 Ga. 367, 628 S.E.2d 108 (2006).

Venue for motion to modify custody. — Fulton County court did not err in transferring a father's custody modification petition to the Cobb County court under both O.C.G.A. §§ 19-9-61 and 19-9-62(a) as Cobb County was the proper forum to hear the modification petition, despite the fact that the divorce and original custody order was heard in Fulton County, given that: (1) the mother and the children later moved to Cobb County; (2) the Cobb County Court entered a custody order; and (3) the Cobb County court thereafter maintained exclusive and continuing jurisdiction over its own child custody determination. Upchurch v. Hatch, 287 Ga. App. 832, 652 S.E.2d 874 (2007).

Exclusive, continuing jurisdiction lost. — While a mother claimed that a Bibb County, Georgia court had exclusive, continuing jurisdiction under the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction and Enforcement Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-9-40 et seq., since the court made an initial custody ruling, that jurisdiction was lost under O.C.G.A. § 19-9-62(a) when a Florida court determined in a paternity proceeding that both parents and the child resided in Florida. Hall v. Wellborn, 295 Ga. App. 884, 673 S.E.2d 341 (2009).

Jurisdiction over grandparents' modification action. — Because the Georgia superior court had exclusive and continuing subject matter jurisdiction over the grandparents' modification of custody action, as there was no evidence to suggest that the initial 2001 custody determination was not made consistent with O.C.G.A. § 19-9-61, even without personal jurisdiction over the child's parent, the custody determination entered by the superior court was upheld on appeal; but, absent personal jurisdiction over the mother to enter a contempt order, such was reversed. *Daniels v. 19-9-63. Prerequisites for modifying custody determination from foreign court.

Except as otherwise provided in Code Section 19-9-64, a court of this state may not modify a child custody determination made by a court of another state unless a court of this state has jurisdiction to make an initial determination under paragraph (1) or (2) of subsection (a) of Code Section 19-9-61 and:

(1) The court of the other state determines it no longer has exclusive, continuing jurisdiction under Code Section 19-9-62 or that a court of this state would be a more convenient forum under Code Section 19-9-67; or

(2) A court of this state or a court of the other state determines that neither the child nor the child's parents or any person acting as a parent presently resides in the other state. (Code 1981, § 19-9-63, enacted by Ga. L. 2001, p. 129, § 1.)

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Custody can only be relitigated where legal custodian resides. — Trial court erred by granting a parent's complaint for modification of child custody and support and changing custody, which was filed in that parent's county of residence, as that county was not the jurisdiction wherein the issue of custody and support was originally litigated and the opposing parent never waived the challenge to the jurisdiction of the trial court via a pro se letter, which merely acknowledged receipt of the complaint; as a result, the judgment granting the change of custody was reversed and the case was remanded to the trial court with directions for the trial court to transfer the case to the trial court of the proper county. Hatch v. Hatch, 287 Ga. App. 832, 652 S.E.2d 874 (2007).

Other state no longer has exclusive, continuing jurisdiction. — In a Georgia action to modify an Alaska child custody determination, the Georgia trial court properly assumed jurisdiction pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 19-9-63 because during a telephone conversation between the Georgia and the Alaska courts, the Alaska court determined that it no longer had exclusive continuing jurisdiction under the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction and Enforcement Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-9-40 et seq., that Georgia was the home state of the children, and that the Georgia court was the more appropriate forum. Lopez v. Olson, 314 Ga. App. 533, 724 S.E.2d 837 (2012).

Lack of subject matter jurisdiction. — Georgia trial court did not have subject matter jurisdiction to modify a Kansas custody determination under the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction and Enforcement Act (UCCJEA), O.C.G.A. § 19-9-40 et seq., because, while Georgia was the child's home state under O.C.G.A. § 19-9-61, Georgia failed to satisfy the remaining requirements of O.C.G.A. § 19-9-63 since the Kansas court never made a determination that it no longer had continuing, exclusive jurisdiction over the custody issue or that Georgia provided a more convenient forum than Kansas. Furthermore, although the Georgia court determined that neither the child nor the parents were presently residing in Kansas, the court erred in doing so. Delgado v. Combs, 314 Ga. App. 419, 724 S.E.2d 436 (2012), cert. denied, No. S12C1106, 2012 Ga. LEXIS 602 (Ga. 2012).

19-9-64. Temporary emergency jurisdiction; continuing effect; communicating with other courts.

(a) A court of this state has temporary emergency jurisdiction if the child is present in this state and the child has been abandoned or it is necessary in an emergency to protect the child because the child or a sibling or parent of the child is subjected to or threatened with mistreatment or abuse.

(b) If there is no previous child custody determination that is entitled to be enforced under this article and a child custody proceeding has not been commenced in a court of a state having jurisdiction under Code Sections 19-9-61 through 19-9-63, a child custody determination made under this Code section remains in effect until an order is obtained from a court of a state having jurisdiction under Code Sections 19-9-61 through 19-9-63. If a child custody proceeding has not been or is not commenced in a court of a state having jurisdiction under Code Sections 19-9-61 through 19-9-63, a child custody determination made under this Code section becomes a final determination, if it so provides and this state becomes the home state of the child.

(c) If there is a previous child custody determination that is entitled to be enforced under this article, or a child custody proceeding has been commenced in a court of a state having jurisdiction under Code Sections 19-9-61 and 19-9-63, any order issued by a court of this state under this Code section must specify in the order a period that the court considers adequate to allow the person seeking an order to obtain an order from the state having jurisdiction under Code Sections 19-9-61 through 19-9-63. The order issued in this state remains in effect until an order is obtained from the other state within the period specified or the period expires.

(d) A court of this state which has been asked to make a child custody determination under this Code section, upon being informed that a child custody proceeding has been commenced in, or a child custody determination has been made by, a court of a state having jurisdiction under Code Sections 19-9-61 through 19-9-63, shall immediately communicate with the other court. A court of this state which is exercising jurisdiction pursuant to Code Sections 19-9-61 through 19-9-63, upon being informed that a child custody proceeding has been commenced in, or a child custody determination has been made by, a court of another state under a statute similar to this Code section, shall immediately communicate with the court of that state to resolve the emergency, protect the safety of the parties and the child, and determine a period for the duration of the temporary order. (Code 1981, § 19-9-64, enacted by Ga. L. 2001, p. 129, § 1.)

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Custody can only be relitigated where legal custodian resides. — Trial court erred by granting a parent's complaint for modification of child custody and support and changing custody, which was filed in that parent's county of residence, as that county was not the jurisdiction wherein the issue of custody and support was originally litigated and the opposing parent never waived the challenge to the jurisdiction of the trial court via a pro se letter, which merely acknowledged receipt of the complaint; as a result, the judgment granting the change of custody was reversed and the case was remanded to the trial court with directions for the trial court to transfer the case to the trial court of the proper county. Hatch v. Hatch, 287 Ga. App. 832, 652 S.E.2d 874 (2007).

Temporary emergency jurisdiction properly asserted. — Trial court had temporary emergency jurisdiction in a child custody case because the children were visiting the father in Walker County, which was the location of the trial court, when the order was issued, and the trial court found that the children had been subjected to or threatened with mistreatment or abuse; these were the only two requirements for temporary emergency jurisdiction under O.C.G.A. § 19-9-64. Taylor v. Curl, 298 Ga. App. 45, 679 S.E.2d 80 (2009).

Jurisdiction declined. — When a father made threatening telephone calls from another state to a mother and to their child, a trial court could properly decline to exercise jurisdiction under O.C.G.A. § 19-9-64(a) of the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction and Enforcement Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-9-40 et seq., and under the similar jurisdictional provisions of the Parental Kidnapping and Prevention Act, 28 U.S.C. § 1738A, because the child was in no immediate danger as the child continued to be in the mother's custody so there was no true emergency requiring a Georgia court to exercise jurisdiction for the child's protection. Anderson

19-9-65. Notice required; intervention.

(a) Before a child custody determination is made under this article, notice and an opportunity to be heard in accordance with the standards of Code Section 19-9-47 must be given to all persons entitled to notice under the law of this state as in a child custody proceeding between residents of this state, any parent whose parental rights have not been previously terminated, and any person having physical custody of the child.

(b) This article does not govern the enforceability of a child custody determination made without notice or an opportunity to be heard.

(c) The obligation to join a party and the right to intervene as a party in a child custody proceeding under this article are governed by the law of this state as in child custody proceedings between residents of this state. (Code 1981, § 19-9-65, enacted by Ga. L. 2001, p. 129, § 1.)

19-9-66. Procedure where proceedings pending in another state.

(a) Except as otherwise provided in Code Section 19-9-64, a court of this state may not exercise its jurisdiction under this part if, at the time of the commencement of the proceeding, a proceeding concerning the custody of the child has been commenced in a court of another state having jurisdiction substantially in conformity with this article; unless the proceeding has been terminated or is stayed by the court of the other state because a court of this state is a more convenient forum under Code Section 19-9-67.

(b) Except as otherwise provided in Code Section 19-9-64, a court of this state, before hearing a child custody proceeding, shall examine the court documents and other information supplied by the parties pursuant to Code Section 19-9-69. If the court determines that a child custody proceeding has been commenced in a court in another state having jurisdiction substantially in accordance with this article, the court of this state shall stay its proceeding and communicate with the court of the other state. If the court of the state having jurisdiction substantially in accordance with this article does not determine that the court of this state is a more appropriate forum, the court of this state shall dismiss the proceeding.

(c) In a proceeding to modify a child custody determination, a court of this state shall determine whether a proceeding to enforce the determination has been commenced in another state. If a proceeding to enforce a child custody determination has been commenced in another state, the court may:

(1) Stay the proceeding for modification pending the entry of an order of a court of the other state enforcing, staying, denying, or dismissing the proceeding for enforcement;

(2) Enjoin the parties from continuing with the proceeding for enforcement; or

(3) Proceed with the modification under conditions it considers appropriate. (Code 1981, § 19-9-66, enacted by Ga. L. 2001, p. 129, § 1.)

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the statutory provisions, annotations decided under the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act, former Code 1933, §§ 74-501 through 74-525, subsequently codified as §§ 19-9-40 through 19-9-64, are included in the annotations for this Code section.

Purpose of former § 19-9-46 was prevention of jurisdictional conflicts between states. Webb v. Webb, 245 Ga. 650, 266 S.E.2d 463 (1980), cert. dismissed, 451 U.S. 493, 101 S. Ct. 1889, 68 L. Ed. 2d 392 (1981) (decided under former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act).

Informational requirements of former § 19-9-49 were necessary to effective functioning of former § 19-9-46. Youmans v. Youmans, 247 Ga. 529, 276 S.E.2d 837 (1981) (decided under former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act).

Jurisdiction in Georgia disallowed when proceeding pending in another state. — Wisconsin court was exercising jurisdiction in child custody proceeding substantially in conformity with the former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act when Wisconsin had significant connections with both parents and child, was marital home of parties, and was state where child in question was born and in which parties' divorce was obtained and all earlier child custody determinations were made. Consequently, it was improper for the Georgia court to exercise the Georgia court's jurisdiction in a proceeding brought by child's mother, who had removed the child from Wisconsin and was residing in Georgia. Steele v. Steele, 250 Ga. 101, 296 S.E.2d 570 (1982) (decided under former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act).

Florida court's award of custody to the father was not entitled to recognition in Georgia since the Florida court assumed jurisdiction over issues of child custody in disregard of the requirement imposed by subsection (c) of former § 19-9-46 and since Georgia was the home state of the children at the time of the Florida court's action. Thompson v. Thompson, 241 Ga. App. 616, 526 S.E.2d 576 (1999) (decided under former Code Section 19-9-46).

No requirement to confer with foreign court that lacked jurisdiction. — As Georgia was a child's home state and South Carolina did not have jurisdiction over child custody under the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction and Enforcement Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-9-40 et seq., the Georgia trial court was not required by O.C.G.A. § 19-9-66(b) to confer with a South Carolina trial court where a parent had filed a custody action. Croft v. Croft, 298 Ga. App. 303, 680 S.E.2d 150 (2009).

Jurisdiction properly exercised by Georgia court. — Record demonstrated that the North Carolina court was not exercising jurisdiction under the former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act because at the time of the former husband's motion for change of custody, North Carolina had not been the child's home state within six months before commencement of the custody proceedings; thus, the Georgia court did not err in assuming jurisdiction in these proceedings brought by the natural mother's new husband for permanent adoption. Kelly v. Silverstein, 207 Ga. App. 381, 427 S.E.2d 851 (1993) (decided under former Code Section 19-9-46).

Trial court erred in dismissing a husband's divorce complaint on the ground that jurisdiction was properly with the Italian court because the trial court had jurisdiction to make the initial custody determination under the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction and Enforcement Act (UCCJEA), O.C.G.A. § 19-9-61(a) and (b), and no other court did since Georgia was the only state, including Italy, that could qualify as the "home state" of the parties' child pursuant to the UCCJEA, O.C.G.A. § 19-9-41(7), at the time either the Italian custody proceeding or the Georgia proceeding was commenced and at the time the trial court entered the court's initial child custody order; under the UCCJEA, the jurisdictional inquiry entered into by the Italian court was insufficient because the Italian court undertook no analysis of the home state of the child or of any other factors that could be considered a substitute for such but simply found that the prerequisites for jurisdiction over a divorce action were met. Bellew v. Larese, 288 Ga. 495, 706 S.E.2d 78 (2011).

Trial court did not abuse the court's discretion by denying a wife's motion to stay the Georgia divorce proceeding commenced by the husband in lieu of the State of New York proceeding the wife filed because the record showed that the wife and children had lived in Georgia with the husband since 2000 and continued to live in Georgia until sometime after the couple filed their respective petitions for divorce; thus, Georgia was the home state of the children for the purposes of the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction and Enforcement Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-9-40 et seq., and New York was not. Black v. Black, 292 Ga. 691, 740 S.E.2d 613 (2013).

Attempt to retain perpetual jurisdiction unconstitutional. — Ohio court's attempt to retain perpetual jurisdiction of children by an initial decree allowing the mother to move to Georgia only on condition that she submit eternally to the jurisdiction of Ohio was essentially unconstitutional for preventing the mother and her children from living wherever the mother who had legal custody chose. Gouse v. Wilson, 207 Ga. App. 574, 428 S.E.2d 571 (1993) (decided under former Code Section 19-9-54).

19-9-67. Finding of inconvenient forum; conditions.

(a) A court of this state which has jurisdiction under this article to make a child custody determination may decline to exercise its jurisdiction at any time if it determines that it is an inconvenient forum under the circumstances and that a court of another state is a more appropriate forum. The issue of inconvenient forum may be raised upon motion of a party, the court's own motion, or request of another court.

(b) Before determining whether it is an inconvenient forum, a court of this state shall consider whether it is appropriate for a court of another state to exercise jurisdiction. For this purpose, the court shall allow the parties to submit information and shall consider all relevant factors, including:

(1) Whether family violence has occurred and is likely to continue in the future and which state could best protect the parties and the child;

(2) The length of time the child has resided outside this state;

(3) The distance between the court in this state and the court in the state that would assume jurisdiction;

(4) The relative financial circumstances of the parties;

(5) Any agreement of the parties as to which state should assume jurisdiction;

(6) The nature and location of the evidence required to resolve the pending litigation, including testimony of the child;

(7) The ability of the court of each state to decide the issue expeditiously and the procedures necessary to present the evidence; and

(8) The familiarity of the court of each state with the facts and issues in the pending litigation.

(c) If a court of this state determines that it is an inconvenient forum and that a court of another state is a more appropriate forum, it shall stay the proceedings upon condition that a child custody proceeding be promptly commenced in another designated state and may impose any other condition the court considers just and proper.

(d) A court of this state may decline to exercise its jurisdiction under this article if a child custody determination is incidental to an action for divorce or another proceeding while still retaining jurisdiction over the divorce or other proceeding. (Code 1981, § 19-9-67, enacted by Ga. L. 2001, p. 129, § 1.)

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the statutory provisions, annotations decided under the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act, former Code 1933, §§ 74-501 through 74-525, subsequently codified as §§ 19-9-40 through 19-9-64, are included in the annotations for this Code section.

Purpose. — Former § 19-9-47 was not a separate grant of jurisdiction over interstate child custody proceedings, but established a discretionary abstention doctrine. Mulle v. Yount, 211 Ga. App. 584, 440 S.E.2d 210 (1993) (decided under former Code Section § 19-9-47).

Limited jurisdiction. — When the trial court held that the court did not have jurisdiction over child custody because of the pendency of an appeal in another state, custody ceased to be a contestable issue, and the court was not precluded from addressing issues over which the court had jurisdiction, including divorce. Norowski v. Norowski, 267 Ga. 841, 483 S.E.2d 577 (1997) (decided under former Code Section § 19-9-47).

While a trial court had a limited grant of authority under subsection (f) of former § 19-9-47 to dismiss a custody proceeding on the ground of forum non conveniens, it could not dismiss the divorce proceeding as well. Holtsclaw v. Holtsclaw, 269 Ga. 163, 496 S.E.2d 262 (1998); Patterson v. Patterson, 271 Ga. 306, 519 S.E.2d 438 (1999) (decided under former Code Section § 19-9-47).

Although a trial court was authorized to dismiss the child custody portion of a husband's case on the basis of forum non conveniens under O.C.G.A. § 19-9-67(a), the trial court erred in dismissing the husband's divorce case as well because he had a right to litigate his divorce in his county of residence. Although the trial court could arguably decline to exercise jurisdiction over the divorce case under O.C.G.A. § 9-10-31.1, the trial court did not invoke § 9-10-31.1 or consider the factors that statute enumerated. Spies v. Carpenter, 296 Ga. 131, 765 S.E.2d 340 (2014).

Georgia trial court had jurisdiction. — Trial court erred in dismissing a husband's divorce complaint on the ground that jurisdiction was properly with the Italian court because the trial court had jurisdiction to make the initial custody determination under the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction and Enforcement Act (UCCJEA), O.C.G.A. § 19-9-61(a) and (b), and no other court did since Georgia was the only state, including Italy, that could qualify as the "home state" of the parties' child pursuant to the UCCJEA, O.C.G.A. § 19-9-41(7), at the time either the Italian custody proceeding or the Georgia proceeding was commenced and at the time the trial court entered its initial child custody order; under the UCCJEA, the jurisdictional inquiry entered into by the Italian court was insufficient because the Italian court undertook no analysis of the home state of the child or of any other factors that could be considered a substitute for such but simply found that the prerequisites for jurisdiction over a divorce action were met. Bellew v. Larese, 288 Ga. 495, 706 S.E.2d 78 (2011).

Inquiry required. — Trial court erred in dismissing a child custody proceeding without an inquiry into whether the law of the other state involved in the case would allow a court of that state to exercise jurisdiction. Patterson v. Patterson, 271 Ga. 306, 519 S.E.2d 438 (1999) (decided under former Code Section § 19-9-47).

Findings on all statutory factors required. — It is an abuse of discretion for a trial court not to address each of the seven factors listed in O.C.G.A. § 9-10-31.1(a), and in order to ensure that the trial court’s decision-making process was guided by the statutory requirements, the trial court must make specific findings either in writing or orally on the record demonstrating that the court has considered all seven of the factors. The same rules apply to a court considering whether the court should decline jurisdiction under the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction and Enforcement Act, O.C.G.A. Art. 3, Ch. 9, T. 19, as an inconvenient forum in accordance with O.C.G.A. § 19-9-67. Murillo v. Murillo, 300 Ga. App. 61, 684 S.E.2d 126 (2009).

Nature and location of evidence. — It was not improper for the trial court to consider that because a father’s fitness as a parent was no longer the controlling custody issue under the revised provisions of O.C.G.A. § 19-9-3(a)(5), this affected the nature and location of the relevant evidence under O.C.G.A. § 19-9-67(b)(6). Murillo v. Murillo, 300 Ga. App. 61, 684 S.E.2d 126 (2009).

No abuse of discretion in declining jurisdiction. — Trial court did not abuse the court’s discretion by declining to exercise jurisdiction in a child custody case under O.C.G.A. § 19-9-67(b) because the children lived in Texas, the witnesses, such as the children’s teachers and health care providers were in Texas, and the trial court determined that the case could be more expeditiously resolved there. Odion v. Odion, 325 Ga. App. 733, 754 S.E.2d 778 (2014).

Trial court properly examined the factors set forth in O.C.G.A. § 19-9-67(b) and declined to exercise jurisdiction over the child custody portion of a divorce case because, in part, the children had been living with their mother in California for more than six months and attended school there, and a California court had already conducted two hearings and issued a child custody order, whereas the Georgia court was just beginning to become familiar with the case. Spies v. Carpenter, 296 Ga. 131, 765 S.E.2d 340 (2014).

19-9-68. Wrongfully obtained jurisdiction; actions to prevent repetition of unjustifiable conduct; expenses.

(a) Except as otherwise provided in Code Section 19-9-64 or by any other law of this state, if a court of this state has jurisdiction under this article because a person seeking to invoke its jurisdiction has engaged in unjustifiable conduct, the court shall decline to exercise its jurisdiction unless:

- (1) The parents and all persons acting as parents have acquiesced in the exercise of jurisdiction;
- (2) A court of the state otherwise having jurisdiction under Code Sections 19-9-61 through 19-9-63 determines that this state is a more appropriate forum under Code Section 19-9-67; or
- (3) No court of any other state would have jurisdiction under the criteria specified in Code Sections 19-9-61 through 19-9-63.

(b) If a court of this state declines to exercise its jurisdiction pursuant to subsection (a) of this Code section, it may fashion an appropriate remedy to ensure the safety of the child and prevent a repetition of the unjustifiable conduct, including staying the proceeding until a child custody proceeding is commenced in a court having jurisdiction under Code Sections 19-9-61 through 19-9-63.

(c) If a court dismisses a petition or stays a proceeding because it declines to exercise its jurisdiction pursuant to subsection (a) of this Code section, it shall assess against the party seeking to invoke its jurisdiction necessary and reasonable expenses including costs, communication expenses, attorney's fees, investigative fees, expenses for witnesses, travel expenses, and child care during the course of the proceedings, unless the party from whom fees are sought establishes that the assessment would be clearly inappropriate. The court may not assess fees, costs, or expenses against this state unless authorized by law other than this article. (Code 1981, § 19-9-68, enacted by Ga. L. 2001, p. 129, § 1.)

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the statutory provisions, annotations decided under the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act, former Code 1933, §§ 74-501 through 74-525, subsequently codified as §§ 19-9-40 through 19-9-64, are included in the annotations for this Code section.

Intent to discourage defiance of custody orders. — It is in public interest to discourage conduct such as noncustodial parent seeking custody in this state while withholding children in defiance of another state's order, without any prejudice whatsoever to the noncustodial parent's right to bring such a petition where the legal custodian and children reside. Reid v. Adams, 241 Ga. 521, 246 S.E.2d 655 (1978) (decided under former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act).

Decree obtained in Georgia not controlling. — That petition represents complaint for modification rather than for initial decree, and that divorce was originally obtained in Georgia rather than in another state, are not facts of such material import as to control decision. Graham v. Hajosy, 159 Ga. App. 466, 283 S.E.2d 683 (1981) (decided under former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act).

Residence of legal custody. — Georgia courts will not relitigate custody except where legal custodian resides. Yearta v. Scroggins, 245 Ga. 831, 268 S.E.2d 151 (1980) (decided under former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act).

Noncustodial parent may not change custody by snatching child. — If it is in the child's best interest that child custody be changed, noncustodial parent must, instead of snatching child, seek change of custody where jurisdiction lies. Etzion v. Evans, 247 Ga. 390, 276 S.E.2d 577 (1981) (decided under former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act).

When noncustodial resident parent improperly brings child into Georgia. — As a matter of public policy, Georgia courts refuse to provide forum in Georgia for relitigating custody when noncustodial parent resident in Georgia improperly has removed child from physical custody of custodial parent who resides in another state. Etzion v. Evans, 247 Ga. 390, 276 S.E.2d 577 (1981) (decided under former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act).

Trial court lacked jurisdiction to hear an action for modification of custody brought by father, when the mother had legal custody and lived with the child in a different state, the child was temporarily visiting the father in Georgia, there was no extreme emergency authorizing the conduct of the father in denying custody to the mother, and there was no substantial evidence otherwise sufficient to vest jurisdiction in the Georgia court. Lightfoot v. Lightfoot, 210 Ga. App. 400, 436 S.E.2d 700 (1993) (decided under former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act).

No unjustifiable conduct. — Mother was not entitled to attorney fees pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 19-9-68 since the father never alleged or presented evidence that the mother no longer resided in Kansas, but the Georgia trial court's holding to that effect was due to the court's own error, and was not based on any alleged unjustifiable conduct by the father. Delgado v. Combs, 314 Ga. App. 419, 724 S.E.2d 436 (2012), cert. denied, No. S12C1106, 2012 Ga. LEXIS 602 (Ga. 2012).

C.J.S. — 21 C.J.S., Courts, § 118.

U.L.A. — Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act (U.L.A.) § 8.

ALR. — Child custody: when does state that issued previous custody determination have continuing jurisdiction under Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act (UCCJA) or Parental Kidnapping Prevention Act (PKPA), 28 USCS § 1738A, 83 ALR4th 742.

Parties' misconduct as ground for declining jurisdiction under § 8 of the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act (UCCJA), 16 ALR5th 650.

19-9-69. Information required as part of pleading or affidavit; continuing duty; sealing of information; children residing in family violence shelters.

(a) In a child custody proceeding, each party, in its first pleading or in an attached affidavit, shall give information, if reasonably ascertainable, under oath as to the child's present address or whereabouts, the places where the child has lived during the last five years, and the names and present addresses of the persons with whom the child has lived during that period. The pleading or affidavit must state whether the party:

(1) Has participated, as a party or witness or in any other capacity, in any other proceeding concerning the custody of or visitation with the child and, if so, identify the court, the case number, and the date of the child custody determination, if any;

(2) Knows of any proceeding that could affect the current proceeding, including proceedings for enforcement and proceedings relating to family violence, protective orders, termination of parental rights, and adoptions and, if so, identify the court, the case number, and the nature of the proceeding; and

(3) Knows the names and addresses of any person not a party to the proceeding who has physical custody of the child or claims rights of legal custody or physical custody of, or visitation with, the child and, if so, the names and addresses of those persons.

(b) If the information required by subsection (a) of this Code section is not furnished, the court, upon motion of a party or its own motion, may stay the proceeding until the information is furnished.

(c) If the declaration as to any of the items described in paragraphs (1) through (3) of subsection (a) of this Code section is in the affirmative, the declarant shall give additional information under oath as required by the court. The court may examine the parties under oath as to details of the information furnished and other matters pertinent to the court's jurisdiction and the disposition of the case.

(d) Each party has a continuing duty to inform the court of any proceeding in this or any other state that could affect the current proceeding.

(e) If a party alleges in an affidavit or a pleading under oath that the health, safety, or liberty of a party or child would be jeopardized by disclosure of identifying information, the information must be sealed and may not be disclosed to the other party or the public unless the court orders the disclosure to be made after a hearing in which the court takes into consideration the health, safety, or liberty of the party or child and determines that the disclosure is in the interest of justice.

(f) In providing the information required by subsection (a) of this Code section, a party who is disclosing that the child is or has been a resident of a family violence shelter shall provide only the name of the shelter and the state in which the shelter is located to avoid a violation of Code Section 19-13-23. A disclosure of the name of the shelter and the state in which the shelter is located shall be sufficient for the purposes of subsection (a) of this Code section. (Code 1981, § 19-9-69, enacted by Ga. L. 2001, p. 129, § 1.)

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Claims of error made under O.C.G.A. § 19-9-69 unsupported absent a transcript. — In a change of custody proceeding, because: (1) a parent failed to allege that information was withheld which would have provided cause for a continuance; (2) nothing in the record showed that the parent moved for a continuance because the petition did not contain all the information required by

O.C.G.A. § 19-9-69(a); and (3) there was no evidence in the record that the trial court abused the court's discretion under O.C.G.A. § 19-9-69(b) by not staying the proceedings on the court's own motion until more information was furnished, no error resulted from the trial court's denial of a stay of the proceedings. Jones v. Van Horn, 283 Ga. App. 144, 640 S.E.2d 712 (2006).

19-9-70. Requiring appearance for in state and out of state residents; other court orders.

(a) In a child custody proceeding in this state, the court may order a party to the proceeding who is in this state to appear before the court in person with or without the child. The court may order any person who is in this state and who has physical custody or control of the child to appear in person with the child.

(b) If a party to a child custody proceeding whose presence is desired by the court is outside this state, the court may order that a notice given pursuant to Code Section 19-9-47 include a statement directing the party to appear in person with or without the child and informing the party that failure to appear may result in a decision adverse to the party.

(c) The court may enter any orders necessary to ensure the safety of the child and of any person ordered to appear under this Code section.

(d) If a party to a child custody proceeding who is outside this state is directed to appear under subsection (b) of this Code section or desires to appear personally before the court with or without the child, the court may require another party to pay reasonable and necessary travel and other expenses of the party so appearing and of the child. (Code 1981, § 19-9-70, enacted by Ga. L. 2001, p. 129, § 1.)

PART 3

JURISDICTION AND ENFORCEMENT OF FOREIGN DECREES

Law reviews. — For article, “Domestic Relations Law,” see 53 Mercer L. Rev. 265 (2001).

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Editor’s notes. — In light of the similarity of the statutory provisions, annotations decided under the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act, former Code 1933, §§ 74-501 through 74-525, subsequently codified as §§ 19-9-40 through 19-9-64, are included in the annotations for this Code section.

Enforcement of foreign custody decrees. — Foreign custody decrees are enforceable merely by filing a certified copy with the clerk of superior court. Roehl v. O’Keefe, 243 Ga. 696, 256 S.E.2d 375 (1979) (decided under former Code Section 19-9-55).

Failure to domesticate foreign decree. — Trial court lacked subject matter jurisdiction of a Florida decree that had not been domesticated. Kempton v. Richards, 233 Ga. App. 238, 503 S.E.2d 876 (1998) (decided under former Code Section 19-9-55).

Without an original signature or court seal, a foreign divorce decree did not meet the statutory requirements for proper domestication. Henderson v. Justice, 223 Ga. App. 591, 478 S.E.2d 434 (1996) (decided under former Code Section 19-9-55).

Domestication of foreign decree. — Trial court did not domesticate Texas divorce decree and was therefore not authorized to modify child support and visitation provisions of that decree. McGowan v. McGowan, 231 Ga. App. 362, 498 S.E.2d 574 (1998) (decided under former Code Section 19-9-55).

Act of simply appending a divorce and custody decree as an exhibit to a petition for modification of custody did not constitute a proper filing of the decree for purposes of the decree’s domestication. Wylie v. Blatchley, 237 Ga. App. 563, 515 S.E.2d 855 (1999) (decided under former Code Section 19-9-55).

19-9-81. Definitions.

As used in this part, the term:

(1) “Petitioner” means a person who seeks enforcement of an order for return of a child under the Hague Convention on the Civil Aspects of International Child Abduction or enforcement of a child custody determination.

(2) “Respondent” means a person against whom a proceeding has been commenced for enforcement of an order for return of a child under the Hague Convention on the Civil Aspects of International Child Abduction or enforcement of a child custody determination. (Code 1981, § 19-9-81, enacted by Ga. L. 2001, p. 129, § 1.)

Law reviews. — For note on the 2001 enactments of O.C.G.A. §§ 19-9-81 to 19-9-97, see 18 Ga. St. U.L. Rev. 58 (2001).

19-9-82. Orders made under the Hague Convention.

Under this part a court of this state may enforce an order for the return of the child made under the Hague Convention on the Civil Aspects of International Child Abduction as if it were a child custody determination. (Code 1981, § 19-9-82, enacted by Ga. L. 2001, p. 129, § 1.)

19-9-83. Recognition of foreign custody decrees; remedies.

(a) A court of this state shall recognize and enforce a child custody determination of a court of another state if the latter court exercised jurisdiction in substantial conformity with this article or the determination was made under factual circumstances meeting the jurisdictional standards of this article and the determination has not been modified in accordance with this article.

(b) A court of this state may utilize any remedy available under other laws of this state to enforce a child custody determination made by a court of another state. The remedies provided in this part are cumulative and do not affect the availability of other remedies to enforce a child custody determination. (Code 1981, § 19-9-83, enacted by Ga. L. 2001, p. 129, § 1.)

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

19-9-84. Authority to enter temporary orders if lacking jurisdiction; remedy from court with jurisdiction; victims of family violence.

(a) A court of this state which does not have jurisdiction to modify a child custody determination may issue a temporary order enforcing:

(1) A visitation schedule made by a court of another state; or

(2) The visitation provisions of a child custody determination of another state that does not provide for a specific visitation schedule.

(b) If a court of this state makes an order under paragraph (2) of subsection (a) of this Code section, it shall specify in the order a period that it considers adequate to allow the petitioner to obtain an order from a court having jurisdiction under the criteria specified in Part 2 of this article. The order remains in effect until an order is obtained from the other court or the period expires.

(c) If a court of another state or a court of this state has made a finding of family violence on the part of either parent of the child, in issuing a temporary order enforcing a visitation schedule or the visitation provisions of a child custody determination of another state in accordance with subsection (a) of this Code section, a court of this state may enter any orders necessary to ensure the safety of the child and of any person who has been the victim of family violence, including but not limited to an order for supervised visitation pursuant to Code Section 19-9-7. (Code 1981, § 19-9-84, enacted by Ga. L. 2001, p. 129, § 1.)

19-9-85. Registering foreign custody determinations; requirements of registering court; contesting registration; confirmation of registered order.

(a) A child custody determination issued by a court of another state may be registered in this state, with or without a simultaneous request for enforcement, by sending to the superior court in the appropriate venue in this state:

(1) A letter or other document requesting registration;

(2) Two copies, including one certified copy, of the determination sought to be registered, and a statement under penalty of perjury that to the best of the knowledge and belief of the person seeking registration the order has not been modified; and

(3) Except as otherwise provided in Code Section 19-9-69, the name and address of the person seeking registration and any parent or person acting as a parent who has been awarded custody or visitation in the child custody determination sought to be registered.

(b) On receipt of the documents required by subsection (a) of this Code section, the registering court shall:

(1) Cause the determination to be filed as a foreign judgment, together with one copy of any accompanying documents and information, regardless of their form; and

(2) Serve notice upon the persons named pursuant to paragraph (3) of subsection (a) of this Code section and provide them with an opportunity to contest the registration in accordance with this Code section.

(c) The notice required by paragraph (2) of subsection (b) of this Code section must state that:

(1) A registered determination is enforceable as of the date of the registration in the same manner as a determination issued by a court of this state;

(2) A hearing to contest the validity of the registered determination must be requested within 20 days after service of notice; and

(3) Failure to contest the registration will result in confirmation of the child custody determination and preclude further contest of that determination with respect to any matter that could have been asserted.

(d) A person seeking to contest the validity of a registered order must request a hearing within 20 days after service of the notice. At that hearing, the court shall confirm the registered order unless the person contesting registration establishes that:

(1) The issuing court did not have jurisdiction under Part 2 of this article;

(2) The child custody determination sought to be registered has been vacated, stayed, or modified by a court having jurisdiction to do so under Part 2 of this article; or

(3) The person contesting registration was entitled to notice, but notice was not given in accordance with the standards of Code Section 19-9-47 in the proceedings before the court that issued the order for which registration is sought.

(e) If a timely request for a hearing to contest the validity of the registration is not made, the registration is confirmed as a matter of law, and the person requesting registration and all persons served must be notified of the confirmation.

(f) Confirmation of a registered order, whether by operation of law or after notice and hearing, precludes further contest of the order with respect to any matter that could have been asserted at the time of registration. (Code 1981, § 19-9-85, enacted by Ga. L. 2001, p. 129, § 1.)

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Registration not a prerequisite to modification. — In a Georgia action to modify an Alaska child custody determination, although the Alaska judgment was not registered, the plain language of O.C.G.A. §§ 19-9-85 and 19-9-86 did not require that the Alaska custody determination be registered before it was modifiable. Lopez v. Olson, 314 Ga. App. 533, 724 S.E.2d 837 (2012).

19-9-86. Granting relief and enforcing registered custody determinations.

(a) A court of this state may grant any relief normally available under the laws of this state to enforce a registered child custody determination made by a court of another state.

(b) A court of this state shall recognize and enforce, but may not modify, except in accordance with Part 2 of this article, a registered child custody determination of a court of another state. (Code 1981, § 19-9-86, enacted by Ga. L. 2001, p. 129, § 1.)

19-9-87. Communication between enforcing court and modifying court.

If a proceeding for enforcement under this part is commenced in a court of this state and the court determines that a proceeding to modify the determination is pending in a court of another state having jurisdiction to modify the determination under Part 2 of this article, the enforcing court shall immediately communicate with the modifying court. The proceeding for enforcement continues unless the enforcing court, after consultation with the modifying court, stays or dismisses the proceeding. (Code 1981, § 19-9-87, enacted by Ga. L. 2001, p. 129, § 1.)

19-9-88. Verification and petition for enforcement requirements; sealing; appearance; expenses.

(a) A petition under this part must be verified. Certified copies of all orders sought to be enforced and of any order confirming registration must be attached to the petition. A copy of a certified copy of an order may be attached instead of the original.

(b) A petition for enforcement of a child custody determination must state:

(1) Whether the court that issued the determination identified the jurisdictional basis it relied upon in exercising jurisdiction and, if so, what the basis was;

(2) Whether the determination for which enforcement is sought has been vacated, stayed, or modified by a court whose decision must be enforced under this article and, if so, identify the court, the case number, and the nature of the proceeding;

(3) Whether any proceeding has been commenced that could affect the current proceeding, including proceedings relating to family violence, protective orders, termination of parental rights, and adoptions and, if so, identify the court, the case number, and the nature of the proceeding;

(4) The present physical address of the child and the respondent, if known, except in cases involving a parent who has been the subject of a finding of family violence by a court of this state or another state;

(5) Whether relief in addition to the immediate physical custody of the child and attorney's fees is sought, including a request for assistance from law enforcement officials and, if so, the relief sought; and

(6) If the child custody determination has been registered and confirmed under Code Section 19-9-85, the date and place of registration.

(c) If a party alleges in an affidavit or pleading under oath that the health, safety, or liberty of a party or child would be jeopardized by disclosure of information required by this Code section, the information must be sealed and may not be disclosed to the other party or the public unless the court orders the disclosure to be made after a hearing in which the court takes into consideration the health, safety, or liberty of the party or child and determines that the disclosure is in the interest of justice.

(d) Upon the filing of a petition, the court shall issue an order directing the respondent to appear in person with or without the child at a hearing and may enter any order necessary to ensure the safety of the parties and the child. The hearing must be held on the next judicial day after service of the order unless that date is impossible. In that event, the court shall hold the hearing on the first judicial day possible. The court may extend the date of hearing at the request of the petitioner.

(e) An order issued under subsection (d) of this Code section must state the time and place of the hearing and advise the respondent that at the hearing the court will order that the petitioner may take immediate physical custody of the child and the payment of fees, costs, and expenses under Code Section 19-9-92, and may schedule a hearing to determine whether further relief is appropriate, unless the respondent appears and establishes that:

(1) The child custody determination has not been registered and confirmed under Code Section 19-9-85 and that:

(A) The issuing court did not have jurisdiction under Part 2 of this article;

(B) The child custody determination for which enforcement is sought has been vacated, stayed, or modified by a court having jurisdiction to do so under Part 2 of this article;

(C) The respondent was entitled to notice, but notice was not given in accordance with the standards of Code Section 19-9-47, in the proceedings before the court that issued the order for which enforcement is sought; or

(2) The child custody determination for which enforcement is sought was registered and confirmed under Code Section 19-9-85, but has been vacated, stayed, or modified by a court of a state having jurisdiction to do so under Part 2 of this article. (Code 1981, § 19-9-88, enacted by Ga. L. 2001, p. 129, § 1.)

19-9-89. Service of petitions and orders.

Except as otherwise provided in Code Section 19-9-91, the petition and order must be served, by any method authorized by the laws of this state, upon respondent and any person who has physical custody of the child. (Code 1981, § 19-9-89, enacted by Ga. L. 2001, p. 129, § 1.)

19-9-90. Finding of immediate physical custody; awarding of fees, costs, and expenses; drawing adverse inference from refusal to testify; spousal relationship irrelevant.

(a) Unless the court issues a temporary emergency order pursuant to Code Section 19-9-64, upon a finding that a petitioner is entitled to immediate physical custody of the child, the court shall order that the petitioner may take immediate physical custody of the child unless the respondent establishes that:

(1) The child custody determination has not been registered and confirmed under Code Section 19-9-85 and that:

(A) The issuing court did not have jurisdiction under Part 2 of this article;

(B) The child custody determination for which enforcement is sought has been vacated, stayed, or modified by a court of a state having jurisdiction to do so under Part 2 of this article; or

(C) The respondent was entitled to notice, but notice was not given in accordance with the standards of Code Section 19-9-47, in the proceedings before the court that issued the order for which enforcement is sought; or

(2) The child custody determination for which enforcement is sought was registered and confirmed under Code Section 19-9-85 but has been vacated, stayed, or modified by a court of a state having jurisdiction to do so under Part 2 of this article.

(b) The court shall award the fees, costs, and expenses authorized under Code Section 19-9-92 and may grant additional relief, including a request for the assistance of law enforcement officials, and set a further hearing to determine whether additional relief is appropriate.

(c) If a party called to testify refuses to answer on the ground that the testimony may be self-incriminating, the court may draw an adverse inference from the refusal.

(d) A privilege against disclosure of communications between spouses and a defense of immunity based on the relationship of husband and wife or parent and child may not be invoked in a proceeding under this part. (Code 1981, § 19-9-90, enacted by Ga. L. 2001, p. 129, § 1.)

19-9-91. Verified application for warrant seeking physical custody; requirement for serious physical harm; warrant requirements; enforceability; conditions.

(a) Upon the filing of a petition seeking enforcement of a child custody determination, the petitioner may file a verified application for the issuance of a warrant to take physical custody of the child if the child is immediately likely to suffer serious physical harm or be removed from this state.

(b) If the court, upon the testimony of the petitioner or other witness, finds that the child is imminently likely to suffer serious physical harm or be removed from this state, it may issue a warrant to take physical custody of the child. The petition must be heard on the next judicial day after the warrant is executed unless that date is impossible. In that event, the court shall hold the hearing on the first judicial day possible. The application for the warrant must include the statements required by subsection (b) of Code Section 19-9-88.

(c) A warrant to take physical custody of a child must:

(1) Recite the facts upon which a conclusion of imminent serious physical harm or removal from the jurisdiction is based;

(2) Direct law enforcement officers to take physical custody of the child immediately; and

(3) Provide for the placement of the child pending final relief.

(d) The respondent must be served with the petition, warrant, and order immediately after the child is taken into physical custody.

(e) A warrant to take physical custody of a child is enforceable throughout this state. If the court finds on the basis of the testimony of the petitioner or other witness that a less intrusive remedy is not effective, it may authorize law enforcement officers to enter private property to take physical custody of the child. If required by exigent circumstances of the case, the court may authorize law enforcement officers to make a forcible entry at any hour.

(f) The court may impose conditions upon placement of a child to ensure the appearance of the child and the child's custodian. (Code 1981, § 19-9-91, enacted by Ga. L. 2001, p. 129, § 1.)

19-9-92. Awarding of necessary and reasonable expenses.

(a) The court shall award the prevailing party, including a state, necessary and reasonable expenses incurred by or on behalf of the party, including costs, communication expenses, attorney's fees, investigative fees, expenses for witnesses, travel expenses, and child care during the course of the proceedings, unless the party from whom fees or expenses are sought establishes that the award would be clearly inappropriate.

(b) The court may not assess fees, costs, or expenses against a state unless authorized by law other than this article. (Code 1981, § 19-9-92, enacted by Ga. L. 2001, p. 129, § 1.)

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Only applicable to prevailing party in enforcement proceeding. — Costs and attorney fees are allowable under O.C.G.A. § 19-9-92 only to the prevailing party in an enforcement proceeding, not to a party prevailing on the issue of jurisdiction. Delgado v. Combs, 314 Ga. App. 419, 724 S.E.2d 436 (2012), cert. denied, No. S12C1106, 2012 Ga. LEXIS 602 (Ga. 2012).

19-9-93. Full faith and credit to orders of other states.

A court of this state shall accord full faith and credit to an order issued by another state and consistent with this article which enforces a child custody determination by a court of another state unless the order has been vacated, stayed, or modified by a court having jurisdiction to do so under Part 2 of this article. (Code 1981, § 19-9-93, enacted by Ga. L. 2001, p. 129, § 1.)

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Out of state judgment did not have to be followed as to tax exemption after custody award changed. — Because there was reasonable evidence of changed circumstances which supported the trial court's award of physical custody of the children to the mother, the court was not bound by the prior ruling of a Wyoming court with respect to the dependency exemption; thus, the court did not err in finding that the parent who was awarded physical custody of the children, the mother, was entitled to claim the dependency exemptions for the three children. Blumenshine v. Hall, 329 Ga. App. 449, 765 S.E.2d 647 (2014).

19-9-94. Appeals.

An appeal may be taken from a final order in a proceeding under this article in accordance with expedited appellate procedures in other civil cases. Unless the court enters a temporary emergency order under Code Section 19-9-64, the enforcing court may not stay an order enforcing a child custody determination pending appeal. (Code 1981, § 19-9-94, enacted by Ga. L. 2001, p. 129, § 1.)

19-9-95. Actions by district attorney.

(a) In a case arising under this article or involving the Hague Convention on the Civil Aspects of International Child Abduction, the district attorney may take any lawful action, including resort to a proceeding under this part or any other available civil proceeding to locate a child, obtain the return of a child, or enforce a child custody determination if there is:

- (1) An existing child custody determination;
- (2) A request to do so from a court in a pending child custody proceeding;
- (3) A reasonable belief that a criminal statute has been violated; or
- (4) A reasonable belief that the child has been wrongfully removed or retained in violation of the Hague Convention on the Civil Aspects of International Child Abduction.

(b) A district attorney acting under this Code section acts on behalf of the court and may not represent any party. (Code 1981, § 19-9-95, enacted by Ga. L. 2001, p. 129, § 1.)

19-9-96. Assistance by law enforcement.

At the request of a district attorney acting under Code Section 19-9-95, a law enforcement officer may take any lawful action reasonably necessary to locate a child or a party and assist a district attorney with responsibilities under Code Section 19-9-95. (Code 1981, § 19-9-96, enacted by Ga. L. 2001, p. 129, § 1.)

19-9-97. Recovering expenses of district attorney and law enforcement.

If the respondent is not the prevailing party, the court may assess against the respondent all direct expenses and costs incurred by the district attorney and law enforcement officers under Code Section 19-9-95 or 19-9-96. (Code 1981, § 19-9-97, enacted by Ga. L. 2001, p. 129, § 1.)

19-9-103. Construction.

This article shall not be construed to repeal, amend, or impair the provisions of Code Section 19-13-23. (Code 1981, § 19-9-103, enacted by Ga. L. 2001, p. 129, § 1.)

19-9-104. “Conflicts with Child Custody Intrastate Jurisdiction Act.”

In the event of any conflict between this article and Article 2 of this chapter, the “Georgia Child Custody Intrastate Jurisdiction Act of 1978,” this article shall apply. (Code 1981, § 19-9-104, enacted by Ga. L. 2001, p. 129, § 1.)

ARTICLE 4

POWER OF ATTORNEY FOR THE CARE OF A MINOR CHILD

Editor's notes. — Ga. L. 2008, p. 667, § 1/SB 88, not codified by the General Assembly, provides: "This Act shall be known and may be cited as the 'Care of a Grandchild Act.'"

Ga. L. 2008, p. 667, § 2/SB 88, not codified by the General Assembly, provides: "The General Assembly finds that:

"(1) An increasing number of relatives in Georgia, including grandparents and great-grandparents, are providing care to children who cannot reside with their parents due to the parent's incapacity or inability to perform the regular and expected functions to provide such care and support;

"(2) Parents need a means to confer to grandparents or great-grandparents the authority to act on behalf of grandchildren without the time and expense of a court proceeding; and

"(3) Providing a statutory mechanism for granting such authority enhances family preservation and stability."

19-9-120. Short title.

This article shall be known and may be cited as the "Power of Attorney for the Care of a Minor Child Act." (Code 1981, § 19-9-120, enacted by Ga. L. 2008, p. 667, § 3/SB 88.)

19-9-121. Definitions.

As used in this article, the term:

(1) "Grandchild" means the minor child of a grandparent.

(2) "Grandparent" shall have the same meaning as provided in subsection (a) of Code Section 19-7-3 and shall include the biological great-grandparent or stepgreat-grandparent who is the parent or stepparent of a grandparent of a minor child.

(3) "Parent" shall have the same meaning as provided in Code Section 19-3-37. Such term used in the singular shall mean both parents if both parents share joint legal custody of the child, unless otherwise clearly indicated.

(4) "Reasonable evidence" means evidence that a reasonable person would find sufficient to determine whether one conclusion is more likely than another.

(5) "School" means:

(A) Any county or independent school system as defined in Code Section 20-1-9;

(B) Any private school as such term is defined in Code Section 20-2-690;

(C) A home study program meeting the requirements set forth in subsection (c) of Code Section 20-2-690;

(D) Pre-kindergarten programs; or

(E) Early care and education programs as such term is defined in paragraph (6) of Code Section 20-1A-2.

(6) "School term" means the part of the year in which school is in session.

(7) "Serious illness" means a physical or mental illness as determined by a licensed health care professional, including a psychiatrist or psychologist, that causes the parent to be unable to care for the minor child due to the physical or mental condition or health of the parent, including a condition created by medical treatment.

(8) "Terminal illness" has the same meaning as the term "terminal condition" as provided in paragraph (14) of Code Section 31-32-2. (Code 1981, § 19-9-121, enacted by Ga. L. 2008, p. 667, § 3/SB 88.)

19-9-122. Delegation of authority; hardships; exception.

(a) A parent of a minor child may delegate to any grandparent residing in this state caregiving authority regarding the minor child when hardship prevents the parent from caring for the child. This authority may be delegated without the approval of a court by executing in writing a power of attorney for the care of a minor child in a form substantially complying with the provisions of this article.

(b) Hardships may include, but are not limited to:

(1) A parent being unable to provide care due to the death of the other parent;

(2) A serious illness or terminal illness of a parent;

(3) The physical or mental condition of the parent or the child such that proper care and supervision of the child cannot be provided by the parent;

(4) The incarceration of a parent;

(5) The loss or uninhabitability of the child's home as the result of a natural disaster; or

(6) A period of active military duty of a parent exceeding 24 months.

(c) Hardship shall not include the granting of a power of attorney for the care of a minor child for the purpose of subverting an investigation of the child's welfare initiated by the Department of Human Services or other agency responsible for such investigations. (Code 1981, § 19-9-122, enacted by Ga. L. 2008, p. 667, § 3/SB 88; Ga. L. 2009, p. 453, § 2-2/HB 228.)

19-9-123. Powers granted by power of attorney.

Through the power of attorney for the care of a minor child, the parent may authorize the agent grandparent to perform the following functions:

- (1) Enroll the child in school and in extracurricular activities;
- (2) Enroll the child in any health insurance program offered to the grandparent;
- (3) Provide access to school records and may disclose the contents to others;
- (4) Arrange for and consent to medical, dental, and mental health treatment for the child;
- (5) Provide access to medical, dental, and mental health records and may disclose the contents thereof to others;
- (6) Provide for the child's food, lodging, housing, recreation, and travel; and
- (7) Any additional powers as specified by the parent. (Code 1981, § 19-9-123, enacted by Ga. L. 2008, p. 667, § 3/SB 88.)

19-9-124. Liability; education; compliance with court orders.

(a) An agent grandparent under a power of attorney for the care of a minor child shall act in the best interests of the minor child. Such agent grandparent shall not be liable for consenting or refusing to consent to medical, dental, or mental health care for a minor child when such decision is made in good faith and is exercised in the best interests of the minor child.

(b)(1) The agent grandparent shall have the right to enroll the minor child in a public school serving the area where the agent grandparent resides and may enroll the minor child in a private school, pre-kindergarten program, or home study program.

(2) The public school shall allow such agent grandparent with a properly executed power of attorney for the care of a minor child to enroll the minor child.

(3) At the time of enrollment the grandparent shall provide to the school such residency documentation as is customary in that school district.

(4) The school may request reasonable evidence of the stated hardship.

(5) If a public school denies enrollment of a minor child under this Code section, such denial may be appealed and shall be treated as any other denial of enrollment of a child in that school district, including all of the remedies otherwise available when enrollment is denied to a child.

(6) Except where limited by federal law, the agent grandparent shall have the same rights, duties, and responsibilities that would otherwise be exercised by the parent pursuant to the laws of this state.

(7) An agent grandparent shall be obligated to comply with any existing court order relative to the child, including, but not limited to, any visitation order. (Code 1981, § 19-9-124, enacted by Ga. L. 2008, p. 667, § 3/SB 88.)

19-9-125. Protection from criminal or civil liability.

No person, school official, or health care provider who acts in good faith reliance on a power of attorney for the care of a minor child shall be subject to criminal or civil liability or professional disciplinary action for such reliance. (Code 1981, § 19-9-125, enacted by Ga. L. 2008, p. 667, § 3/SB 88.)

19-9-126. Grant of temporary written permission for emergency services.

Nothing in this article shall preclude a parent or agent grandparent from granting temporary written permission to seek emergency medical treatment or other services for a minor child while in the custody of an adult who is not the parent or agent grandparent and who is temporarily supervising the child at the parent's or agent grandparent's request. (Code 1981, § 19-9-126, enacted by Ga. L. 2008, p. 667, § 3/SB 88.)

19-9-127. Violations; execution of power of attorney; power of attorney to be signed and acknowledged.

(a) Except as may be permitted by the federal No Child Left Behind Act, 20 U.S.C.A. Section 6301, et seq., and Section 7801, et seq., a parent executing the power of attorney for the care of a minor child shall certify that such action is not for the primary purpose of enrolling the child in a school for the sole purpose of participating in the academic or interscholastic athletic programs provided by that school or for any other unlawful purpose. Violation of this subsection shall be punishable in accordance with Georgia law and may require, in addition to any other remedies, repayment by such parent or grandparent of all costs incurred by the school as a result of the violation.

(b)(1) The instrument providing for the power of attorney for the care of a minor child shall be executed by both parents, if both parents are living and have joint legal custody of the minor child, and shall specify which hardship prevents the parent or parents from caring for the child. If the parents do not have joint legal custody, the parent having sole permanent legal custody shall have authority to grant the power of attorney.

(2) The power of attorney for the care of a minor child shall be signed and acknowledged before a notary public by the parent executing the power of attorney. Any noncustodial parent shall be notified in writing of the name and address of the grandparent who has been appointed the agent grandparent under the power of attorney. The executing parent shall send the notification by certified mail or statutory overnight delivery, return receipt requested, to the noncustodial parent at the noncustodial parent's last known address within five days of the execution of the power of attorney. A noncustodial parent who has joint legal custody shall have the same authority to execute a revocation of the power of attorney as granted to the custodial parent.

(c) If only one parent has sole permanent legal custody of the minor child, then that parent shall have authority to execute the power of attorney for the care of a minor child and to revoke the power of attorney. (Code 1981, § 19-9-127, enacted by Ga. L. 2008, p. 667, § 3/SB 88; Ga. L. 2010, p. 878, § 19/HB 1387.)

19-9-128. Revocation of power of attorney; termination of power of attorney; resignation of agent grandparent.

(a)(1) The agent grandparent shall have the authority to act on behalf of the minor child until each parent who executed the power of attorney for the care of a minor child revokes the power of attorney in writing and provides notice of the revocation to the agent grandparent as provided in this Code section.

(2) The agent grandparent shall have the authority to act on behalf of the child until a copy of the revocation of the power of attorney is received by certified mail or statutory overnight delivery, return receipt requested, and upon receipt of the revocation the agent grandparent shall cease to act as agent.

(3) The parent shall send a copy of the revocation of the power of attorney to the agent grandparent within five days of the execution of the revocation by certified mail or statutory overnight delivery, return receipt requested.

(4) The revoking parent shall notify the school, health care providers, and others known to the parent to have relied upon such power of attorney.

(b) The power of attorney for the care of a minor child may also be terminated by any order of a court of competent jurisdiction.

(c)(1) The agent grandparent shall notify the school in which the agent grandparent had enrolled the child whenever a change in circumstances results in a change in residence for such child that is expected to last more than six weeks during a school term and such change in residence is not due to hospitalization, vacation, study abroad, or some reason otherwise acceptable to the school.

(2) The agent grandparent may resign by notifying the parent in writing by certified mail or statutory overnight delivery, return receipt requested, and, if the agent grandparent is aware that the parent's hardship still exists, such agent grandparent shall also notify child protective services or such government authority that is charged with assuring proper care of such minor child.

(3) Upon the death of the authorizing parent, the agent grandparent shall notify the surviving parent as soon as practicable. With consent of the surviving parent or if the whereabouts of the surviving parent are unknown, the power of attorney for the care of a minor child may continue for up to six months so that the child may receive consistent care until more permanent custody arrangements are made.

(d) The authority to designate an agent to act on behalf of a minor child is in addition to any other lawful action a parent may take for the benefit of such minor child, and the parent shall continue to have the right to medical, dental, mental health, and school records pertaining to the minor child. (Code 1981, § 19-9-128, enacted by Ga. L. 2008, p. 667, § 3/SB 88.)

19-9-129. Power of attorney form.

(a) The statutory power of attorney for the care of a minor child form contained in this Code section may be used to grant an agent grandparent powers over the minor child's enrollment in school, medical, dental, and mental health care, food, lodging, recreation, travel, and any additional powers as specified by the parent. This power of attorney is not intended to be exclusive. No provision of this article shall be construed to bar use by the parent of any other or different form of power of attorney for the care of a minor child which complies with this article. A power of attorney for the care of a minor child in substantially the form set forth in this Code section shall have the same meaning and effect as prescribed in this article. Substantially similar forms may include forms from other states.

(b) The power of attorney for the care of a minor child shall be in substantially the following form:

“GEORGIA POWER OF ATTORNEY FOR THE CARE OF A MINOR CHILD

NOTICE:

(1) THE PURPOSE OF THIS POWER OF ATTORNEY IS TO GIVE THE GRANDPARENT THAT YOU DESIGNATE (THE AGENT GRANDPARENT) POWERS TO CARE FOR YOUR MINOR CHILD, INCLUDING THE POWER TO: ENROLL THE CHILD IN SCHOOL AND IN EXTRACURRICULAR SCHOOL ACTIVITIES; HAVE ACCESS TO SCHOOL RECORDS AND DISCLOSE THE CONTENTS TO OTHERS; ARRANGE FOR AND CONSENT TO MEDICAL, DENTAL, AND MENTAL HEALTH TREATMENT FOR THE CHILD; HAVE ACCESS TO SUCH RECORDS RELATED TO TREATMENT OF THE CHILD AND DISCLOSE THE CONTENTS OF THOSE RECORDS TO OTHERS; PROVIDE FOR THE CHILD'S FOOD, LODGING, RECREATION, AND TRAVEL; AND HAVE ANY ADDITIONAL POWERS AS SPECIFIED BY THE PARENT.

(2) THE AGENT GRANDPARENT IS REQUIRED TO EXERCISE DUE CARE TO ACT IN THE CHILD'S BEST INTEREST AND IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE GRANT OF AUTHORITY SPECIFIED IN THIS FORM.

(3) A COURT OF COMPETENT JURISDICTION MAY REVOKE THE POWERS OF THE AGENT GRANDPARENT IF IT FINDS THAT THE AGENT GRANDPARENT IS NOT ACTING PROPERLY.

(4) THE AGENT GRANDPARENT MAY EXERCISE THE POWERS GIVEN IN THIS POWER OF ATTORNEY FOR THE CARE OF A MINOR CHILD THROUGHOUT THE CHILD'S MINORITY UNLESS THE PARENT REVOKES THIS POWER OF ATTORNEY AND PROVIDES NOTICE OF THE REVOCATION TO THE AGENT GRANDPARENT OR UNTIL A COURT OF COMPETENT JURISDICTION TERMINATES THIS POWER.

(5) THE AGENT GRANDPARENT MAY RESIGN AS AGENT AND MUST IMMEDIATELY COMMUNICATE SUCH RESIGNATION TO THE PARENT, AND IF COMMUNICATION WITH SUCH PARENT IS NOT POSSIBLE, THE AGENT GRANDPARENT SHALL NOTIFY CHILD PROTECTIVE SERVICES OR SUCH GOVERNMENT AUTHORITY THAT IS CHARGED WITH ASSURING PROPER CARE OF SUCH MINOR CHILD.

(6) THIS POWER OF ATTORNEY MAY BE REVOKED IN WRITING BY ANY AUTHORIZING PARENT. IF THE POWER OF ATTORNEY IS REVOKED, THE REVOKING PARENT SHALL NOTIFY THE AGENT GRANDPARENT, SCHOOL, HEALTH CARE PROVIDERS, AND OTHERS KNOWN TO THE PARENT TO HAVE RELIED UPON SUCH POWER OF ATTORNEY.

(7) IF THERE IS ANYTHING ABOUT THIS FORM THAT YOU DO NOT UNDERSTAND, YOU SHOULD ASK A LAWYER TO EXPLAIN IT TO YOU.

“ADDITIONAL INFORMATION:

To the grandparent designated as attorney in fact:

(1) If a change in circumstances results in the child not living with you for more than six weeks during a school term and such change is not due to hospitalization, vacation, study abroad, or some reason otherwise acceptable to the school, you should notify in writing the school in which you have enrolled the child and to which you have given this power of attorney form.

(2) You have the authority to act on behalf of the minor child until each parent who executed the power of attorney for the care of the minor child revokes the power of attorney in writing and provides notice of revocation to you as provided in O.C.G.A. Section 19-9-128.

(3) If you are made aware of the death of the parent who executed the power of attorney, you must notify the surviving parent as soon as practicable. With the consent of the surviving parent, or if the whereabouts of the surviving parent are unknown, the power of attorney may continue for up to six months so that the child may receive consistent care until more permanent custody arrangements are made.

(4) You may resign as agent by notifying each parent in writing by certified mail or statutory overnight delivery, return receipt requested, and if you become unable to care for the child, you shall cause such resignation to be communicated to the parent. If communication with such parent is not possible, you must notify child protective services or such government authority that is charged with assuring proper care of such minor child.

To school officials:

(1) Except as provided in the policies and regulations of the county school board and the federal No Child Left Behind Act, 20 U.S.C.A. Section 6301, et seq., and Section 7801, et seq., this power of attorney, properly completed and notarized, authorizes the agent grandparent named herein to enroll the child named herein in school in the district in which the agent grandparent resides. That agent grandparent is authorized to provide consent in all school related matters and to obtain from the school district educational and behavioral information about the child. Furthermore, this power of attorney shall not prohibit the parent of the child from having access to all school records pertinent to the child.

(2) The school district may require such residency documentation as is customary in that school district.

(3) No school official who acts in good faith reliance on a power of attorney for the care of a minor child shall be subject to criminal or civil liability or professional disciplinary action for such reliance.

To health care providers:

(1) No health care provider who acts in good faith reliance on a power of attorney for the care of a minor child shall be subject to criminal or civil liability or professional disciplinary action for such reliance.

(2) The parent continues to have the right to all medical, dental, and mental health records pertaining to the minor child.” (Code 1981, § 19-9-129, enacted by Ga. L. 2008, p. 667, § 3/SB 88; Ga. L. 2009, p. 453, § 2-2/HB 228; Ga. L. 2010, p. 878, § 19/HB 1387.)

Code Commission notes. — Pursuant to Code Section 28-9-5, in 2010, a comma was inserted following “20 U.S.C.A. Section 6301, et seq.” under “To school officials” in paragraph (c)(1).

CHAPTER 10

ABANDONMENT OF SPOUSE OR CHILD

Sec.		Sec.
19-10-1.	Abandonment of dependent child; criminal penalties; continuing offense; venue; blood tests or other comparisons as evidence; payment of expenses of birth of child born out of		wedlock; agreement for support of child born out of wedlock.
		19-10-2.	Abandonment of dependent pregnant wife; criminal penalties; continuing offense.

Law reviews. — For article, “Gender and Justice in the Courts: A Report to the Supreme Court of Georgia by the Commission on Gender Bias in the Judicial System,” see 8 Ga. St. U.L. Rev. 539 (1992).

19-10-1. Abandonment of dependent child; criminal penalties; continuing offense; venue; blood tests or other comparisons as evidence; payment of expenses of birth of child born out of wedlock; agreement for support of child born out of wedlock.

(a) A child abandoned by its father or mother shall be considered to be in a dependent condition when the father or mother does not furnish sufficient food, clothing, or shelter for the needs of the child.

(b) If any father or mother willfully and voluntarily abandons his or her child, either legitimate or born out of wedlock, leaving it in a dependent condition, he or she shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. Moreover, if any father or mother willfully and voluntarily abandons his or her child, either legitimate or born out of wedlock, leaving it in a dependent condition, and leaves this state or if any father or mother willfully and voluntarily abandons his or her child, either legitimate or born out of wedlock, leaving it in a dependent condition, after leaving this state, he or she shall be guilty of a felony punishable by imprisonment for not less than one nor more than three years. The felony shall be reducible to a misdemeanor. Any person, upon conviction of the third offense for violating this Code section, shall be guilty of a felony and shall be imprisoned for not less than one nor more than three years, which felony shall not be reducible to a misdemeanor. The husband and wife shall be competent witnesses in such cases to testify for or against the other.

(c) The offense of abandonment is a continuing offense. Except as provided in subsection (i) of this Code section, former acquittal or conviction of the offense shall not be a bar to further prosecution therefor under this Code section, if it is made to appear that the child in question was in a dependent condition, as defined in this Code section, for a period of 30 days prior to the commencement of prosecution.

(d) In prosecutions under this Code section when the child is born out of wedlock, the venue of the offense shall be in the county in which the child and the mother are domiciled at the time of the swearing out of the arrest warrant; but, if the child and the mother are domiciled in different counties, venue shall be in the county in which the child is domiciled.

(e) Upon the trial of an accused father or mother under this Code section, it shall be no defense that the accused father or mother has never supported the child.

(f) In the trial of any abandonment proceeding in which the question of parentage arises, regardless of any presumptions with respect to parentage, the accused father may request a paternity blood test and agree and arrange to pay for same; and in such cases the court before which the matter is brought, upon pretrial motion of the defendant, shall order that the alleged parent, the known natural parent, and the child submit to any blood tests and comparisons which have been developed and adapted for purposes of establishing or disproving parentage and which are reasonably accessible to the alleged parent, the known natural parent, and the child. The results of those blood tests and comparisons, including the statistical likelihood of the alleged parent's parentage, if available, shall be admitted in evidence when offered by a duly qualified, licensed practicing physician, duly qualified immunologist, duly qualified geneticist, or other duly qualified person. Upon receipt of a motion and the entry of an order under this subsection, the court shall proceed as follows:

(1) Where the issue of parentage is to be decided by a jury, where the results of those blood tests and comparisons are not shown to be inconsistent with the results of any other blood tests and comparisons, and where the results of those blood tests and comparisons indicate that the alleged parent cannot be the natural parent of the child, the jury shall be instructed that if they believe that the witness presenting the results testified truthfully as to those results and if they believe that the tests and comparisons were conducted properly, then it will be their duty to decide that the alleged parent is not the natural parent;

(2) The court shall require the defendant requesting the blood tests and comparisons pursuant to this subsection to be initially responsible for any of the expenses thereof. Upon the entry of a verdict incorporating a finding of parentage or nonparentage, the court shall tax the expenses for blood tests and comparisons, in addition to any fees for expert witnesses whose testimonies supported the admissibility thereof, as costs.

(g) In prosecutions under this Code section, when the child is born out of wedlock and the accused father is convicted, the father may be required by the court to pay the reasonable medical expenses paid by or incurred on behalf of the mother due to the birth of the child.

(h) The accused father and the mother of a child born out of wedlock may enter into a written agreement providing for future support of the child by regular periodic payments to the mother until the child reaches the age of 18 years, marries, or becomes self-supporting; provided, however, that the agreement shall not be binding on either party until it has been approved by the court having jurisdiction to try the pending case.

(i) If, during the trial of any person charged with the offense of abandonment as defined in this Code section, the person contends that he or she is not the father or mother of the child alleged to have been abandoned, in a jury trial the trial judge shall charge the jury that if its verdict is for the acquittal of the person and its reason for so finding is that the person is not the father or mother of the child alleged to have been abandoned, then its verdict shall so state. In a trial before the court without the intervention of the jury, if the court renders a verdict of acquittal based on the contention of the person that he or she is not the father or mother of the child alleged to have been abandoned, the trial judge shall so state this fact in his verdict of acquittal. Where the verdict of the jury or the court is for acquittal of a person on the grounds that the person is not the father or mother of the child alleged to have been abandoned, the person cannot thereafter again be tried for the offense of abandoning the child, and the verdict of acquittal shall be a bar to all civil and criminal proceedings attempting to compel the person to support the child.

(j)(1) In a prosecution for and conviction of the offense of abandonment, the trial court may suspend the service of the sentence imposed in the case, upon such terms and conditions as it may prescribe for the support, by the defendant, of the child or children abandoned during the minority of the child or children. Service of the sentence, when so suspended, shall not begin unless and until ordered by the court having jurisdiction thereof, after a hearing as in cases of revocation or probated sentences, because of the failure or refusal of the defendant to comply with the terms and conditions upon which service of a sentence was suspended.

(2) Service of any sentence suspended in abandonment cases may be ordered by the court having jurisdiction thereof at any time before the child or children reach the age of 18 or become emancipated, after a hearing as provided in paragraph (1) of this subsection and a finding by the court that the defendant has failed or refused to comply with the terms and conditions upon which service of the sentence was suspended by the court having jurisdiction thereof.

(3) Notwithstanding any other provisions of law, in abandonment cases where the suspension of sentence has been revoked and the defendant is serving the sentence, the court may thereafter again suspend the service of sentence under the same terms and conditions as the original suspension. The sentence shall not be considered probated and the defendant shall not be on probation, but the defendant shall again be under a suspended sentence. However, the combined time of incarceration of the defendant during the periods of revocation of suspended sentences shall not exceed the maximum period of punishment for the offense.

(4) Notwithstanding any other provision of law to the contrary, the terms and conditions prescribed by the court as to support by the defendant shall be subject to review and modification by the court, upon notice and hearing to the defendant, as to the ability of the defendant to furnish support and as to the adequacy of the present support payments to the child's or children's needs. The review provided for in this paragraph as to the ability of the defendant to furnish support and as to the adequacy of the present support payments to the child's or children's needs shall not be had in less than two-year intervals and shall authorize the court to increase as well as to decrease the amount of child support to be paid as a term and condition of the suspended sentence. The review as to ability to support and adequacy of support shall not be equivalent to a hearing held in cases of revocation of probated sentences for purposes of service of the suspended sentence; nor shall a modification, if any, be deemed a change in sentence; nor shall a modification, if any, be deemed to change the suspended sentence to a probated sentence. General Consideration

Statutes making abandonment a criminal offense are to be strictly construed because the statutes are in derogation of common law and also because the statutes are penal in nature. Logue v. State, 94 Ga. App. 777, 96 S.E.2d 209 (1956).

Abandonment of child, legitimate or otherwise, was not a criminal offense at common law. The proceeding is statutory and criminal in nature, and accordingly subject to strict construction. Mangum v. State, 91 Ga. App. 520, 86 S.E.2d 365 (1955).

Legislative intent. — Clear intent of the statutory scheme is to allow the court that heard the child abandonment case to retain jurisdiction over the issue of child support throughout the child's minority. The statute gives the trial court an important coercive tool — the suspended sentence — to ensure that the parent provides support. Pruitt v. Lindsey, 261 Ga. 540, 407 S.E.2d 750 (1991).

One purpose of abandonment laws is to provide that children be provided for by their natural parents. Perini v. State, 245 Ga. 160, 264 S.E.2d 172 (1980).

Former Penal Code 1895, § 114 was punitive, it is not a remedial remedy. Brown v. State, 122 Ga. 568, 50 S.E. 378 (1905).

Abandonment is not an offense malum in se. — Abandonment of one's parental duties by failure to provide financial support for one's minor child is not such an offense as may be categorized malum in se or the product of a depraved mind, either under common law or statutes adopted in this state. Seaboard Coast Line R.R. v. West, 155 Ga. App. 391, 271 S.E.2d 36 (1980).

There can be only one offense for same act of abandonment regardless of number of children in one's family. Balkcom v. Defore, 219 Ga. 641, 135 S.E.2d 425 (1964).

Offense of abandonment is a continuing offense, and it is therefore not required of state to show a return to children and a subsequent abandonment following an original abandonment for which the person was first tried. Hall v. State, 202 Ga. 42, 42 S.E.2d 130 (1947).

Offense of abandonment may be committed by noncustodial parent. — Fact that divorce decree has been entered, placing custody of minor children in mother will not bar prosecution for abandonment on the theory that the defendant cannot “abandon” children whose custody has been taken from the defendant by process of law. Dyer v. State, 87 Ga. App. 440, 74 S.E.2d 129 (1953).

Prohibition against one Act referring to more than one section. — Even though the crime of abandonment involves two distinct elements — bastardy and forsaking of parental duties, the statute creating the offense (O.C.G.A. § 19-10-1) deals with only one subject — the crime of abandonment — and therefore does not violate the constitutional prohibition (Ga. Const. 1976, Art. III, Sec. VII, Para. IV [see now Ga. Const. 1983, Art. III, Sec. V, Para. III]) against one act referring to more than one subject. Bembry v. State, 250 Ga. 237, 297 S.E.2d 36 (1982).

Construed with § 19-6-15. — It would not be improper to use the guidelines for computation of a child support award in civil proceedings as a condition in a criminal abandonment action since the child support award is neither a part of the sentence nor a punishment. Vogel v. State, 196 Ga. App. 514, 396 S.E.2d 262 (1990).

Guidelines for computing the amount of child support found in O.C.G.A. § 19-6-15(b) and (c), known as the “Child Support Guidelines,” are the expression of the legislative will regarding the calculation of child support and must be considered by any court setting the child support. Pruitt v. Lindsey, 261 Ga. 540, 407 S.E.2d 750 (1991).

Duty to support child is not dependent on right of custody. — Amendment to former Code 1933, § 74-9902 (see now O.C.G.A. § 19-10-1) which made it a crime for a father to fail to support his illegitimate child is not unreasonable, arbitrary, or discriminatory against him because he did not have the right to custody since the duty of the father to support a legitimate child was not dependent on the right of custody. Pasley v. State, 215 Ga. 768, 113 S.E.2d 454 (1960).

Duty of support is not dependent on the right to custody. Chapman v. State, 181 Ga. App. 320, 352 S.E.2d 216 (1986).

Parent must support child regardless of child’s residence. — Abandonment which is penalized by law is voluntary abandonment, and it must appear that parent willingly withholds support from child; but support and custody are not necessary concomitants. A parent must support a child, whether or not the child lives with the parent. Waters v. State, 99 Ga. App. 727, 109 S.E.2d 847 (1959).

Parents cannot bargain away child’s right to seek increases in child support payments without court approval. Padova v. State, 151 Ga. App. 167, 259 S.E.2d 169 (1979).

Word “child” denotes that class of children under age of majority. Rhodes v. State, 76 Ga. App. 667, 47 S.E.2d 293 (1948).

Motion for directed verdict of acquittal not authorized. — Mere fact that it was “impossible” for the crime to have been committed on the date alleged in the accusation did not authorize the grant of a motion for a directed verdict of acquittal. Minnix v. State, 162 Ga. App. 29, 290 S.E.2d 131 (1982).

Modification of terms of suspended sentence for bastardy. — Bastardy (under former Code 1933, § 74-9901) and abandonment were separate offenses, and O.C.G.A. § 42-8-34, relating to modification of terms and conditions upon which sentences are suspended in cases of abandonment, does not apply in bastardy cases; and, thus, when the defendant had pled guilty to the misdemeanor charge of bastardy in 1972, the trial court lacked authority to modify the terms of the defendant’s suspended sentence in 1981. Tillman v. State, 249 Ga. 792, 294 S.E.2d 516 (1982).

O.C.G.A. § 19-10-1(i) is an exception to the use of a general verdict form in criminal cases as provided by O.C.G.A. § 17-9-2; the statute authorizes but does not require the trier of fact to return a special verdict as to the issue of paternity.

Whitman v. State, 212 Ga. App. 523, 442 S.E.2d 313 (1994).

No tort remedy against father's parents for violation of abandonment statute. — Legislature allowed for contempt, garnishment, and income withholding to enforce child support obligations and did not intend to create additional implied remedies under O.C.G.A. § 51-1-6 for violation of O.C.G.A. § 19-10-1, the child abandonment statute. Therefore, a wife was not entitled to recover damages from her ex-husband's parents for her husband's violation of § 19-10-1. Bridges v. Wooten, 305 Ga. App. 682, 700 S.E.2d 678 (2010).

Constitutionality

O.C.G.A. § 19-10-1 does not violate constitutional requirement that state's administration of the state's laws be impartial and evenhanded. Jones v. Helms, 452 U.S. 412, 101 S. Ct. 2434, 69 L. Ed. 2d 118 (1981).

State may enhance misdemeanor of child abandonment to felony if resident offender leaves state after committing the offense. Jones v. Helms, 452 U.S. 412, 101 S. Ct. 2434, 69 L. Ed. 2d 118 (1981).

Limitation on right to free travel. — Persons, including indigents and other migrants, have a right to free travel. On the other hand, persons charged with commission of crimes shall be delivered up to state having jurisdiction of the crime. Jones v. Helms, 452 U.S. 412, 101 S. Ct. 2434, 69 L. Ed. 2d 118 (1981).

Right to travel cannot bar prosecution in Georgia. — Person charged in Georgia with commission of crime who has left Georgia and entered another state cannot be said to have a constitutionally protected right of free travel in interstate commerce that can be asserted to bar prosecution for Georgia offense. Jones v. Helms, 452 U.S. 412, 101 S. Ct. 2434, 69 L. Ed. 2d 118 (1981).

Attempt to discourage inward migration of “undesirables.” — There is an entirely obvious difference between an attempt by a “receiving state” to preclude or discourage inward migration from “sending states” of persons deemed by “receiving state” to be “undesirables,” “noncontributors” or “economically burdensome persons,” and efforts by “sending state” to bring persons accused of crimes back from “receiving states” to face criminal trial and punishment in “sending state.” Jones v. Helms, 452 U.S. 412, 101 S. Ct. 2434, 69 L. Ed. 2d 118 (1981).

Rational relationship between classification and offense. — Commission of misdemeanor of child abandonment would not justify permanent restriction on offender’s freedom to leave the jurisdiction. But a restriction that is rationally related to offense itself — either to procedure for ascertaining guilt or innocence, or to imposition of proper punishment or remedy — must be within state’s power. Thus, although a simple penalty for leaving a state is plainly impermissible, if departure aggravates the consequences of conduct that is otherwise punishable, the state may treat the entire sequence of events, from initial offense to departure from state, as more serious than its separate components. Jones v. Helms, 452 U.S. 412, 101 S. Ct. 2434, 69 L. Ed. 2d 118 (1981).

Criminal provisions of former Code 1933, § 74-902 did not deny due process or violate equal protection principles. Huskins v. State, 245 Ga. 541, 266 S.E.2d 163 (1980).

Basis for enhancing punishment for leaving state. — United States Const., amend. 14 does not preclude state from enhancing from misdemeanor to felony the punishment for a crime because the parent charged with child abandonment leaves the state because the General Assembly could have concluded that the parental support obligation is more difficult to enforce if the parent charged with child abandonment leaves the state. Garren v. State, 245 Ga. 323, 264 S.E.2d 876 (1980).

Gender-based classification concerning payment of medical expenses is reasonable and does not violate equal protection. Perini v. State, 245 Ga. 160, 264 S.E.2d 172 (1980).

Requiring putative father to pay blood test costs unconstitutional. — Requiring indigent putative father to bear initial burden of paying for paternity blood test is violative of the due process and equal protection clauses of the fourteenth amendment. Pierce v. State, 251 Ga. 590, 308 S.E.2d 367 (1983).

Requiring indigent to pay blood test costs unconstitutional. — O.C.G.A. § 19-10-1(f)(2) is violative of the equal protection and due process clauses of the fourteenth amendment to the Constitution of the United States to the extent that persons determined to be indigent are initially responsible for the expense of paternity blood tests they request pursuant to the statute. Therefore, in a prosecution for child abandonment, when the defendant is an indigent, it is error to deny the defendant’s motion for funds for a blood test. Burns v. State, 252 Ga. 140, 312 S.E.2d 317 (1984).

Indigent defendant entitled to blood test and new trial. — When the defendant pled guilty to an abandonment charge in 1978 in part because he could not afford the cost of a paternity blood testing, his subsequent efforts to raise money for a 1983 blood test which proved him not the father, considered along with a subsequent Supreme Court decision holding that an accused father could not be held responsible for costs of such a test, constituted due diligence and entitled him to a new trial based on newly discovered evidence. Britten v. State, 173 Ga. App. 840, 328 S.E.2d 556 (1985).

Elements of Abandonment

1. In General

There are two elements of offense of abandonment of a child: (a) desertion and (b) dependency. Both elements must be present to complete the offense. Blackwell v. State, 48 Ga. App. 221, 172 S.E. 670 (1934); Archer v. State, 48 Ga. App. 854, 173 S.E. 921 (1934); Brock v. State, 51 Ga. App. 414, 180 S.E. 644 (1935), later appeal, 54 Ga. App. 403, 187 S.E. 906 (1936); Cannon v. State, 53 Ga. App. 264, 185 S.E. 364 (1936); Nelson v. State, 77 Ga. App. 255, 48 S.E.2d 570 (1948); Cox v. State, 85 Ga. App. 702, 70 S.E.2d 100 (1952); Funderburk v. State, 91 Ga. App. 373, 85 S.E.2d 640 (1955); Fairbanks v. State, 105 Ga. App. 27, 123 S.E.2d 319 (1961); Waites v. State, 138 Ga. App. 513, 226 S.E.2d 621 (1976); Moody v. State, 145 Ga. App. 734, 245 S.E.2d 40 (1978).

Gist of action for abandonment includes both abandonment and condition of dependency as to child. Heard v. State, 79 Ga. App. 601, 54 S.E.2d 495 (1949).

To constitute abandonment two material facts must appear: (1) that parent willfully and voluntarily abandons or deserts child; and (2) that child was left by reason thereof in dependent condition. Glad v. State, 85 Ga. App. 312, 69 S.E.2d 699 (1952).

Offense of child abandonment has two essential elements: (1) willful and voluntary abandonment of child by father or mother; and (2) leaving of child in dependent condition. Moody v. State, 141 Ga. App. 294, 233 S.E.2d 264 (1977).

Test for child abandonment is two-fold: (1) alimony or child support was not paid; and (2) other elements of abandonment appear. Lewis v. State, 157 Ga. App. 567, 278 S.E.2d 149 (1981).

Separation and failure to supply are essential elements and there must be a conjunction thereof. Campbell v. State, 20 Ga. App. 190, 92 S.E. 951 (1917).

Intention is peculiarly part of offense of abandonment. Brock v. State, 51 Ga. App. 414, 180 S.E. 644 (1935), later appeal, 54 Ga. App. 403, 187 S.E. 906 (1936); Cox v. State, 85 Ga. App. 702, 70 S.E.2d 100 (1952).

Abandonment must be willful and voluntary. — There was no crime, under terms of statute, unless abandonment was willful and voluntary. Cox v. State, 85 Ga. App. 702, 70 S.E.2d 100 (1952).

Desertion contemplated by section must be willful and voluntary — that is, without coercive cause. Dyer v. State, 87 Ga. App. 440, 74 S.E.2d 129 (1953).

Actual desertion is necessary. Gay v. State, 105 Ga. 599, 31 S.E. 569, 70 Am. St. R. 68 (1898).

When parent deserts child, leaving the child in dependent condition, offense is complete. Blackwell v. State, 48 Ga. App. 221, 172 S.E. 670 (1934).

Continued refusal to provide support after actual desertion was necessary to complete offense, but it alone was not an offense. Brock v. State, 51 Ga. App. 414, 180 S.E. 644 (1935), later appeal, 54 Ga. App. 403, 187 S.E. 906 (1936).

Offense is complete upon willful and voluntary abandonment of child, leaving the child in dependent condition. Dailey v. State, 103 Ga. App. 117, 118 S.E.2d 379 (1961).

Offense is complete when parent willfully and voluntarily separates from child and fails to supply necessities. Smith v. State, 42 Ga. App. 419, 156 S.E. 308 (1930); Dailey v. State, 103 Ga. App. 117, 118 S.E.2d 379 (1961).

Failure to comply with duty under statute as intentional, willful, voluntary abandonment. Williamson v. State, 138 Ga. App. 306, 226 S.E.2d 102 (1976).

Dependency must be considered only in relation to actual physical needs of child. Logue v. State, 94 Ga. App. 777, 96 S.E.2d 209 (1956).

Abandonment is something more than leaving children in dependent condition. It means forsaking and desertion of children; the refusal of father to live where they are domiciled, and to perform duties of parent to his offspring. Blackwell v. State, 48 Ga. App. 221, 172 S.E. 670 (1934); Brock v. State, 51 Ga. App. 414, 180 S.E. 644 (1935), later appeal, 54 Ga. App. 403, 187 S.E. 906 (1936).

Abandonment requires desertion, accompanied by intention to sever parental relation. — To constitute abandonment of child there must be an actual desertion, accompanied by an intention to entirely sever, so far as it is possible to do so, the parental relation, and throw off all obligations growing out of the relationship; when the effect of this separation is to leave the child in a dependent condition. Brock v. State, 51 Ga. App. 414, 180 S.E. 644 (1935), later appeal, 54 Ga. App. 403, 187 S.E. 906 (1936).

Abandonment begins and continues as long as there is a failure to perform parental duty, and consequent dependence. Cannon v. State, 53 Ga. App. 264, 185 S.E. 364 (1936); Dailey v. State, 103 Ga. App. 117, 118 S.E.2d 379 (1961).

Distinction between new act of desertion and continuation of original act of desertion. See Weltzbarker v. State, 89 Ga. App. 765, 81 S.E.2d 301 (1954).

2. Application

There can be no abandonment of unborn child. — Under provisions of statute, father cannot abandon his child prior to child's birth, because there is nothing in language that refers to abandonment of unborn child. Waites v. State, 138 Ga. App. 513, 226 S.E.2d 621 (1976).

Effect of father's abandonment before child's birth. — That father begins to abandon child some months before the child is born will not excuse him for persisting in abandonment and failing to furnish the child with necessities of life after the child's birth. Fairbanks v. State, 105 Ga. App. 27, 123 S.E.2d 319 (1961).

Leaving immediately after child's conception, alone, does not constitute abandonment. — Father of illegitimate child who abandons mother and child immediately after child is conceived cannot be convicted of abandonment unless he shall fail to furnish sufficient food and clothing for needs of child after the child's birth. Bailey v. State, 214 Ga. 409, 105 S.E.2d 320 (1958).

Abandonment begun before birth of child is not complete unless continued after child is born. Waites v. State, 138 Ga. App. 513, 226 S.E.2d 621 (1976).

Leaving before child's birth and failing to provide for child. — Father who willfully and voluntarily abandons child before child is born, and persists in abandonment afterwards, leaving child in a dependent condition, is guilty of a misdemeanor. Smith v. State, 42 Ga. App.

419, 156 S.E. 308 (1930) (decided prior to enactment of § 19-10-2 regarding abandonment of dependent pregnant wife).

Inability to pay negates willful and voluntary elements. — Although a father's inability to pay due to his financial condition did not excuse his nonpayment of child support for ten months, it substantially negated the willful and voluntary elements necessary to prove the crime of abandonment. Ramos v. Ramos, 173 Ga. App. 30, 325 S.E.2d 415 (1984).

Mere failure to provide adequate shelter, food, and clothing does not constitute abandonment, it being required also that in addition such failure must be willful and voluntary and a failure to give parental care. Weltzbarker v. State, 89 Ga. App. 765, 81 S.E.2d 301 (1954).

Failure to pay child support demonstrated abandonment. — Sufficient evidence existed to support a defendant's conviction for abandonment as the evidence established that the defendant did not provide child support for 10 months which the defendant was required by a court order to pay, and the child's mother struggled to provide for the minor daughter shared with the defendant. Carter v. State, 287 Ga. App. 463, 651 S.E.2d 544 (2007).

Leaving children in economic condition to which children are accustomed. — When mother did leave children, but left the children in same economic condition in which the children had been all along, mere act of leaving does not constitute penal offense of abandonment. Logue v. State, 94 Ga. App. 777, 96 S.E.2d 209 (1956).

Voluntarily and willfully failing to support dependent children after lawfully leaving the children violated the law. Brown v. State, 122 Ga. 568, 50 S.E. 378 (1905); Hunt v. State, 93 Ga. App. 84, 91 S.E.2d 133 (1955).

When parent can be prosecuted for abandonment. — Even after divorce decree awarding child support, parent can be prosecuted for abandonment. Ozburn v. State, 79 Ga. App. 823, 54 S.E.2d 376 (1949).

Partial compliance or noncompliance with support judgment may subject parent to prosecution for abandonment. McCullough v. State, 141 Ga. App. 840, 234 S.E.2d 678 (1978).

Noncompliance with alimony decree, and showing of other elements of abandonment establishes offense. Dyer v. State, 87 Ga. App. 440, 74 S.E.2d 129 (1953).

When wife justifiably leaves and husband fails to support child. — When wife, because of failure of husband, father of her unborn child, to properly support her and on account of his misconduct, was justified in leaving him, and after birth of child, the father willfully failed to furnish the child with necessities of life, and child became dependent upon persons other than the father, the offense of abandonment became complete. Fairbanks v. State, 105 Ga. App. 27, 123 S.E.2d 319 (1961).

Driving spouse and children from home by abuse constitutes desertion. — When father drives mother and minor child or children away from home, or where the children are forced to leave to be safe from his anticipated assaults of which the children are justifiably apprehensive, under the law this constitutes desertion. Failure to furnish sufficient food and clothing for needs of children constitutes dependency or leaving children in dependent condition. Nelson v. State, 77 Ga. App. 255, 48 S.E.2d 570 (1948).

Abandonment and dependency proved. — When, after his divorce, defendant's parental duty consisted of child support, proof that he substantially and persistently failed to comply with that support obligation was sufficient to authorize a finding of willful abandonment. Additionally, proof that the mother was forced to rely on public assistance for housing, and family assistance plus public aid to families with dependent children to support their minor daughters was sufficient to authorize the conclusion that the children were dependent for necessities. Wilson v. State, 244 Ga. App. 224, 534 S.E.2d 910 (2000).

Illegitimacy and Paternity

Statutory scheme relating to illegitimate children and remedies available to state require support from both parents and both are subject to criminal prosecution. Hudgins v. State, 243 Ga. 798, 256 S.E.2d 899 (1979).

Both parents are responsible for support of illegitimate child. Thorpe v. Collins, 245 Ga. 77, 263 S.E.2d 115 (1980).

Parol agreement to support illegitimate child is valid. — Agreement to support illegitimate child is valid although parol, and although parentage is not acknowledged. Warner v. Burke, 137 Ga. App. 185, 223 S.E.2d 234 (1976), overruled on other grounds, Worthington v. Worthington, 250 Ga. 730, 301 S.E.2d 44 (1983).

Father's agreement to pay support in settlement of abandonment prosecution. — It does not in and of itself violate public policy for putative father of child to agree to make support payments in settlement of pending prosecution for abandonment. Burdeshaw v. McClain, 150 Ga. App. 108, 257 S.E.2d 24 (1979).

Illegitimate child's father need not have lived with child's mother. — Father of illegitimate child can be prosecuted and convicted for willful and voluntary abandonment of his child, leaving the child in a dependent condition; the law does not require that father of such illegitimate child shall have lived with mother in any relationship after birth of child. Bailey v. State, 214 Ga. 409, 105 S.E.2d 320 (1958).

Putative father must request blood test prior to conviction. — When the accused father does not mention a paternity blood test until after he has been convicted of abandonment, this comes too late. Crayton v. State, 166 Ga. App. 544, 305 S.E.2d 19 (1983).

Putative father must request blood test prior to close of evidence. — Trial court does not err in refusing the defendant's request for a paternity blood test following the close of the evidence in the case. Subsection (f) of O.C.G.A. § 19-10-1 requires that such request be made by pretrial motion. Tutt v. State, 168 Ga. App. 599, 310 S.E.2d 14 (1983).

Request for paternity blood test must be made by pretrial motion. A telephone call to the district attorney's office expressing a desire to have such a test is not the equivalent of a pretrial motion. Barnes v. State, 181 Ga. App. 581, 353 S.E.2d 76 (1987).

New trial not warranted by blood test results. — When the defendant was charged by accusation with misdemeanor abandonment of his illegitimate child and, after his conviction and prior to the hearing on his motion for new trial, he, the natural mother, and the child submitted to a blood test, the results of which test indicated a 99.53 percent probability that he had fathered the child, this "newly discovered evidence" did not warrant the grant of a new trial. Bray v. State, 181 Ga. App. 678, 353 S.E.2d 531 (1987).

Failure to prove paternity. — Failure to prove paternity beyond a reasonable doubt does not necessarily mean that the defendant is not the father of the abandoned child. Whitman v. State, 212 Ga. App. 523, 442 S.E.2d 313 (1994).

It is competent in paternity proceeding to exhibit child to jury. — In prosecution of one charged with abandonment of illegitimate child, one issue was paternity. It was competent as to this issue for mother to exhibit child to jury. Hunt v. State, 101 Ga. App. 126, 112 S.E.2d 817 (1960).

Mother's unrefuted testimony sufficient to establish paternity. — When the mother unequivocally states that the accused is the father of her child and that she and the accused have engaged in the requisite sexual intercourse, and there is no evidence that the accused denied such sexual activity or that he was not the father of the child, the trial court is warranted in finding paternal responsibility. Crayton v. State, 166 Ga. App. 544, 305 S.E.2d 19 (1983).

Adjudication of paternity by conviction of abandonment is conclusive in subsequent civil proceedings for child support. Cummings v. Carter, 155 Ga. App. 688, 272 S.E.2d 552 (1980).

Jurisdiction and Venue

Desertion and condition of dependency must occur in Georgia. — When father deserted children in a state other than Georgia and mother thereafter brought children into Georgia, where father also resided, and children while here were in a dependent condition, such father could not be properly charged with and convicted of abandonment, for reason that act of father's desertion, and dependency of his child must occur in this state. Glad v. State, 85 Ga. App. 312, 69 S.E.2d 699 (1952).

Acts of nonresident father constituting "recognition" of children in Georgia. — Trial court did not err in denying the defendant's plea in abatement challenging the jurisdiction of the court, where, although the defendant was divorced in North Carolina and continued to live there, his regular exercise of his visitation rights by driving to Georgia to pick up his children for weekend stays in North Carolina showed that he had received and recognized his minor children as his family after they had come into Georgia. Chapman v. State, 177 Ga. App. 580, 340 S.E.2d 237 (1986).

Jurisdiction over continuing abandonment remains in state where abandonment began. — When undisputed evidence in abandonment proceeding against father of minor children showed that parents separated in Florida and mother took children with her to Georgia to live, and that, since return of wife and children to Georgia, defendant's desertion remained continuous, that he never again resumed his parental duties and status in regard to the children, and that no divorce or alimony proceeding was ever maintained, jurisdiction of offense remains in Florida rather than in Georgia. Weltzbarker v. State, 89 Ga. App. 765, 81 S.E.2d 301 (1954).

Venue for prosecuting first offense is county where dependency began. — Venue of first prosecution for offense of abandonment of minor children is in county where state of dependency of children upon others began on account of parent's failure to support the children.

Jurisdiction and Venue (Cont'd)

Cannon v. State, 53 Ga. App. 264, 185 S.E. 364 (1936); Nelson v. State, 77 Ga. App. 255, 48 S.E.2d 570 (1948).

Venue of prosecution for offense of abandonment is county where minor child first becomes dependent upon persons other than parent for support. Fairbanks v. State, 105 Ga. App. 27, 123 S.E.2d 319 (1961); Waites v. State, 138 Ga. App. 513, 226 S.E.2d 621 (1976); Browning v. State, 139 Ga. App. 91, 228 S.E.2d 24 (1976).

In prosecution for abandonment, the offense of abandoning one's child and leaving the child in a dependent condition is consummated and, in a legal sense, committed in county where state of child's dependency upon others begins on account of withdrawal of parent's presence and aid in way of support. Cleveland v. State, 7 Ga. App. 622, 67 S.E. 696 (1910); Ware v. State, 7 Ga. App. 797, 68 S.E. 443 (1910); Boyd v. State, 18 Ga. App. 623, 89 S.E. 1091 (1916).

Regardless of where abandonment had its beginning, the offense of abandoning one's child and leaving the child in a dependent condition is consummated and, in a legal sense, committed in county where state of child's dependency upon others begins on account of withdrawal of parent's presence and aid in way of support. Waites v. State, 138 Ga. App. 513, 226 S.E.2d 621 (1976).

Prosecution of Offense

First instance of abandonment may be prosecuted immediately. Nelson v. State, 77 Ga. App. 255, 48 S.E.2d 570 (1948).

Applicability of thirty-day period referred to in subsection (c). — Dependent condition for a period of 30 days prior to commencement of prosecution is not required unless there has been former acquittal or conviction. Nelson v. State, 77 Ga. App. 255, 48 S.E.2d 570 (1948); Dorsey v. State, 145 Ga. App. 750, 245 S.E.2d 31 (1978).

Failure to allege abandonment in accusation. — Accusation for abandonment failing to allege abandonment of "minor" child suffices. Heard v. State, 79 Ga. App. 601, 54 S.E.2d 495 (1949).

Indictment must specify whether child is legitimate or illegitimate. — Indictment for abandonment of minor child which fails to allege whether child is legitimate or illegitimate is subject to special demurrer pointing out such defect. Nesbit v. State, 111 Ga. App. 274, 141 S.E.2d 603 (1965).

Indictment must state that parent willfully abandoned child. McDaniel v. Campbell, 78 Ga. 188 (1886).

Sex of child need not be alleged. Woodward v. State, 18 Ga. App. 59, 88 S.E. 825 (1916).

State need not prove illegitimacy referred to in indictment. — When indictment charges abandonment of "illegitimate" minor child, since crime of abandonment does not depend on whether child is legitimate or illegitimate, characterization of child as illegitimate is regarded as mere surplusage which state has no obligation to prove. Joseph v. State, 149 Ga. App. 296, 254 S.E.2d 383 (1979).

Allegation that the child was abandoned in destitute condition is surplusage, and no longer need be proved, it being sufficient to allege and prove that parent abandoned child and left the child dependent. McCullough v. State, 141 Ga. App. 840, 234 S.E.2d 678 (1977).

Wife is competent witness to prove marriage. Cunningham v. State, 13 Ga. App. 80, 78 S.E. 780 (1913).

Paternity blood test. — O.C.G.A. § 19-10-1 makes no specific provisions for the state's requesting or compelling the defendant to submit to a paternity blood test. However, under O.C.G.A. § 17-5-21(a)(5), a search warrant is an appropriate vehicle for obtaining a blood sample from a defendant. State v. Slavny, 195 Ga. App. 818, 395 S.E.2d 56 (1990).

Payment for blood test. — When the state requests pretrial paternity blood testing for a defendant charged with child abandonment, the state must initially pay the cost. A verdict incorporating a finding of parentage authorizes the court to tax the cost of the blood test against the defendant or, under certain circumstances, against the prosecutor/prosecutrix or complainant. State v. Slavny, 195 Ga. App. 818, 395 S.E.2d 56 (1990).

No demand for support is necessary. Floyd v. State, 17 Ga. App. 265, 86 S.E. 460 (1915).

Conviction may require child support in excess of award. — Criminal conviction requiring child support in higher amount than that awarded in prior divorce action was not a modification of that civil judgment. It was expressly authorized by former Code 1933, § 27-2702 (see now O.C.G.A. § 42-8-34). Dorsey v. State, 145 Ga. App. 750, 245 S.E.2d 31 (1978).

State proved the abandonment of a minor child when the testimony of the state's witness is that the defendant never provided support for the child and the defendant admits this. Crawford v. State, 166 Ga. App. 643, 305 S.E.2d 403 (1983).

Verdict finding paternity but not abandonment not inconsistent. — There is nothing inconsistent with a verdict finding that the defendant is the father of an illegitimate child, but has not willfully abandoned the child. Bray v. State, 166 Ga. App. 187, 303 S.E.2d 752 (1983).

Contract to make support payments did not abrogate state's right to bring charges against the father for failure to meet his statutory obligations to provide support, the child's right to that support, or the mother's right to seek the relief provided by law in the event the father failed in his agreement. Pooler v. Taylor, 173 Ga. App. 859, 328 S.E.2d 749 (1985).

Jury's findings regarding paternity and abandonment not interfered with. — Evidence for state authorized finding that the defendant was father of child, and that he had abandoned child several years before present trial, and the jury having resolved this issue against the defendant, the appellate court was powerless to interfere. O'Kelley v. State, 63 Ga. App. 609, 11 S.E.2d 718 (1940).

Defendant's suspended sentence barred when minor child reaches majority. — Trial court erred by requiring the defendant to serve a suspended sentence for abandonment of his minor child because the time during which the court could require the sentence to be served had expired when the defendant's child reached the age of majority. Moody v. State, 190 Ga. App. 91, 378 S.E.2d 375 (1989) (decided under former § 42-8-34(d)(2)).

Felony sentence unauthorized. — Trial court erred in sentencing the defendant as a felon since it was stipulated that the defendant was never physically in the State of Georgia. Wilson v. State, 244 Ga. App. 224, 534 S.E.2d 910 (2000).

Defenses

Because offense is continuing, defendant cannot plead statute of limitations. — Fact that dependency began more than two years prior to accusation is no ground for interposition of statute of limitations. Phelps v. State, 10 Ga. App. 41, 72 S.E. 524 (1911); Campbell v. State, 20 Ga. App. 190, 92 S.E. 951 (1917).

Abandonment is a continuing offense, at least until the defendant has once been convicted, and the statute of limitations will not relieve the father who abandoned the child and failed to supply the child's needs more than two years prior to the date of accusation, but who before that date temporarily returned to the child and for the time performed his parental duties, but who subsequently and before finding of accusation again left the child and thereafter failed to supply the child's necessities. Lomax v. State, 44 Ga. App. 500, 162 S.E. 395 (1931).

Provision declaring offense to be a continuing one carries with it the significance that it continues after a prior adjudication in accordance with provisions of former Code 1933, § 74-9902 (see now O.C.G.A. § 19-10-1) relating thereto, so that now when essential elements of crime are present, the defendant not only cannot plead the statute of limitations but when previously tried and thereafter essential elements of offense maintain for a period of more than 30 days, the defendant also cannot plead former jeopardy. Nelson v. State, 77 Ga. App. 255, 48 S.E.2d 570 (1948).

Res judicata. — Offense of abandonment which is predicated on a failure to sufficiently provide for the needs of the child is a continuing offense; consequently, the principle of res judicata cannot be used to prevent a court from implementing appropriate procedures to ensure that the child is sufficiently cared for. Vogel v. State, 196 Ga. App. 514, 396 S.E.2d 262 (1990).

Defenses (Cont'd)

Prosecution under § 19-10-2 does not preclude subsequent prosecution. — Prosecution for abandonment of wife while pregnant under former Code 1933, § 74-9903 (see now O.C.G.A. § 19-10-2) did not bar further prosecution for abandonment of the child under former Code 1933, § 74-9902 (see now O.C.G.A. § 19-10-1) after the child was born. Waites v. State, 138 Ga. App. 513, 226 S.E.2d 621 (1976).

Only legal defense to abandonment is to prove that separation from child never occurred, or that the parent did not fail in supplying the child with necessities of life, such as food, shelter, clothing, etc. Smith v. State, 42 Ga. App. 419, 156 S.E. 308 (1930); Dailey v. State, 103 Ga. App. 117, 118 S.E.2d 379 (1961).

Defense of financial difficulties. — Contention that personal financial difficulties prevented fulfillment of support duties is, at best, a partial defense. Jones v. State, 154 Ga. App. 581, 269 S.E.2d 77 (1980); Lewis v. State, 157 Ga. App. 567, 278 S.E.2d 149 (1981).

Willfulness and voluntariness negated by evidence of inability to pay. — Requirement that abandonment be willful and voluntary may be negated by introducing the defendant's evidence regarding the defendant's financial condition which demonstrates an inability to make child support payments. Elam v. State, 138 Ga. App. 432, 226 S.E.2d 290 (1976).

Conduct of other parent is no excuse for abandonment. Moore v. State, 1 Ga. App. 502, 57 S.E. 1016 (1907); Daniels v. State, 8 Ga. App. 469, 69 S.E. 588 (1910); Parrish v. State, 10 Ga. App. 836, 74 S.E. 445 (1912).

Conduct of child's mother, or her refusal to live with the child's father as her husband, is no defense to the father's prosecution for abandonment of the child. Cannon v. State, 53 Ga. App. 264, 185 S.E. 364 (1936); Hunt v. State, 93 Ga. App. 84, 91 S.E.2d 133 (1955).

It is no defense to prosecution for abandonment of child that mother has deserted father, or even if she is guilty of grossest immorality or unwifely conduct. The child is not responsible for, or to be abandoned because of, misconduct of wife and mother. Fairbanks v. State, 105 Ga. App. 27, 123 S.E.2d 319 (1961).

It is no defense that other parent meets defendant's duties. — Fact that mother supplied food, shelter, and clothing was no legal defense to accusation against father. Chandler v. State, 38 Ga. App. 362, 144 S.E. 51 (1928); Cannon v. State, 53 Ga. App. 264, 185 S.E. 364 (1936).

Statute referred to both parents, and made it obvious that it was no defense as to one of them that the other had met duties of support which he has failed to assume. Padova v. State, 151 Ga. App. 167, 259 S.E.2d 169 (1979); Carnegie v. State, 246 Ga. 187, 269 S.E.2d 457 (1980).

Fact that children were being cared for by someone. — Fact that children were being cared for by paternal grandparents, or other relatives, or the charity of strangers, does not prevent criminal prosecution of parent for willfully and voluntarily abandoning his minor children and leaving the children in dependent condition by failing to furnish such children with sufficient food and clothing for their needs. Rhodes v. State, 76 Ga. App. 667, 47 S.E.2d 293 (1948).

Act failing to alleviate dependent condition cannot be used as defense to charge of abandonment. Dailey v. State, 103 Ga. App. 117, 118 S.E.2d 379 (1961).

Judgment for support not complied with is no defense. — When accused does not comply with judgment for alimony, he cannot set up such judgment in defense to prosecution. King v. State, 12 Ga. App. 482, 77 S.E. 651 (1913).

After judgment for divorce and award of alimony for support of minor children, father can be prosecuted for abandonment when he does not comply with judgment and when the record reveals that he only partially complied with decree of court. Ozburn v. State, 79 Ga. App. 823, 54 S.E.2d 376 (1949).

Judgment for alimony against accused and in favor of his wife and children would constitute no defense when it appeared that after rendition of such judgment he abandoned his children, leaving the children in a dependent condition, and failed to comply with the judgment. Dorsey v. State, 145 Ga. App. 750, 245 S.E.2d 31 (1978).

Willingness to support child of former marriage in own home. — When father did not insist on legal right to custody, if he had such right, but allowed boy to live with mother and then, when action for abandonment of child was brought, attempted to defend on ground that he was willing and able to provide for minor in his own home, he having subsequently remarried, as well as on grounds that he was partially supporting the boy by providing him with a place to eat away from the mother's table (with a restaurant charge account) and on further ground that he was unable to contribute more, the first issue constituted no defense to the action, and the other two were questions solely addressed to discretion of the jury. Waters v. State, 99 Ga. App. 727, 109 S.E.2d 847 (1959).

Minority of defendant at time of marriage to child's mother is no defense. Smith v. State, 42 Ga. App. 419, 156 S.E. 308 (1930).

Threat of future prosecution does not invalidate promise of support. — Threat of future prosecution does not constitute such duress as will void promise to pay support for benefit of minor child. Burdeshaw v. McClain, 150 Ga. App. 108, 257 S.E.2d 24 (1979).

Conviction not barred by provision in separation agreement. — Separation agreement incorporated in a divorce decree providing that the father was relieved of any child support except for health insurance did not bar the father's conviction for abandonment for failure to provide sufficient food, clothing, or shelter to meet the needs of the children. Chapman v. State, 181 Ga. App. 320, 352 S.E.2d 216 (1986).

Provisions of foreign decree relevant but not a defense. — Child support and visitation provisions of a North Carolina divorce decree, while providing no defense to a charge of abandonment, were clearly relevant evidence on the issue of intent, and their exclusion was reversible error. Chapman v. State, 177 Ga. App. 580, 340 S.E.2d 237 (1986).

While a divorce decree specifically relieving defendant of his child support obligation due to his illness would not operate as a full defense, it was evidence that his failure to support was not done "willfully and voluntarily." Crews v. State, 178 Ga. App. 397, 343 S.E.2d 428 (1986).

Probation

Editor's notes. — Some of the annotations appearing below were decided under former § 42-8-34(d), which was identical to subsection (j) of this Code section.

Probation and/or confinement, ordinarily, and in abandonment cases. — In the ordinary case when probation and/or confinement are involved, they begin immediately and cannot continue beyond the maximum period of sentence. In abandonment and bastardy cases, on the other hand, the service of the sentence may be postponed (suspended), but remain viable in the first instance until the child is 18, and the second until he is 14 years of age. The suspension feature may be eliminated, after notice and hearing, for failure to abide by the terms relating to weekly support payments, etc. But once the suspension feature is eliminated, and sentence modified to embrace confinement and/or probation as the case may be, the defendant does in fact enter upon the service of the sentence, and its probated feature, if any, cannot exceed the length of time applicable if incarceration instead of probation had been mandated. Turnipseed v. State, 147 Ga. App. 735, 250 S.E.2d 186 (1978).

When, after the original suspended sentence in a bastardy proceeding was entered in 1968, the court held a hearing in 1974, and ordered child support payments to include medical bills, and certain arrearage caught up as conditions of probation, and a second post-sentence hearing was held in 1978, at a time when the defendant was not in arrears under either of the prior orders, the stated purpose of the hearing being for reconsideration of the terms of the defendant's suspended sentence, after which the defendant's weekly payments were increased from $12.50 to $25.00, the effect was to increase the terms of the sentence originally passed and as such it was illegal.

Turnipseed v. State, 147 Ga. App. 735, 250 S.E.2d 186 (1978).

In both bastardy and abandonment cases, the service of the suspended sentence does not commence until the suspension feature is revoked, whereas in all other cases where the defendant is placed on probation, the period of maximum sentence is to be counted from the date the sentence begins. Turnipseed v. State, 147 Ga. App. 735, 250 S.E.2d 186 (1978).

Court may, at the time of sentencing, specify the amount to be paid by the parent for the support of the minor child and may suspend the service of the sentence pending the minority of the child. When the child reaches majority, the sentence is at an end. However, service of any sentence so suspended in abandonment cases may be ordered at any time before the child reaches the age of 21. However, when a sentence is merely probated, the probationary feature of the sentence ends when the elapsed time equals the maximum sentence of confinement which could have been imposed. Entrekin v. State, 147 Ga. App. 724, 250 S.E.2d 177 (1978).

In abandonment cases, a suspended sentence does not begin (for purposes of exhaustion) until the suspension feature is revoked, whereas when the defendant is placed on probation, the period of the exhaustion of the sentence commences to run and is counted from the date the sentence is imposed. Jones v. State, 166 Ga. App. 277, 304 S.E.2d 451 (1983).

Effect of simultaneously probating and suspending sentence. — If a sentence could be simultaneously probated and suspended, an underlying purpose of the conditional suspension (i.e., assuring child support from appellant during the child's minority) would be defeated. Jones v. State, 154 Ga. App. 581, 269 S.E.2d 77 (1980).

Exhaustion of sentence by probation following suspension. — When the sentence was suspended but the court later ordered that the delinquent father would be continued on probation, revoked the earlier sentence, and required the father to serve confinement as well as increasing the support payments, and thereafter, in subsequent orders, the court spoke of and treated the revoked sentences as being of the nature of probation, the record clearly indicates that the trial court considered the father on probation; and his claimed position that his probated sentence had expired after the authorized length of sentence following the order of probation has merit under these facts. Jones v. State, 166 Ga. App. 277, 304 S.E.2d 451 (1983).

Increase in support not violation of ex post facto clause. — Increase in the amount of child support did not violate the ex post facto clause as applied to a defendant originally convicted of abandonment of his children and whose sentence was suspended upon condition that he pay a certain amount per month for child support, since the child support obligation was a pre-existing duty under state law and was neither a part of the sentence nor a punishment. Hudson v. Deyton, 770 F.2d 1558 (11th Cir. 1985), rehearing denied, 777 F.2d 704 (11th Cir. 1985).

Child support in lieu of imprisonment. — When the defendant was convicted of abandonment of his illegitimate child and his 12-month sentence was suspended on condition that he pay $240 monthly child support, it was held that such a suspended sentence was authorized pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 42-8-34(d)(1) [now (j)(1) of this section]. Bray v. State, 181 Ga. App. 678, 353 S.E.2d 531 (1987).

Payment of higher child support than awarded in divorce action. — Criminal conviction requiring child support in a higher amount than that awarded in a prior divorce action is not a modification of that civil judgment. It is expressly authorized by statute. Dorsey v. State, 145 Ga. App. 750, 245 S.E.2d 31 (1978).

Comparison of section with §§ 19-6-18 and 19-6-19. — O.C.G.A. § 42-8-34(d)(4) [now (j)(4) of this Code section] is analogous to the provisions on the civil side of the court, O.C.G.A. §§ 19-6-18 and 19-6-19, and is necessary and proper in order to enforce the statutory child-support obligation in a manner which would allow for upward as well as downward modifications when conditions warrant. Hudson v. State, 248 Ga. 397, 283 S.E.2d 271 (1981).

Section not authority for modifying terms of certain suspended sentences. — Bastardy (under former Code 1933, § 74-9901) and abandonment were separate offenses, and the provisions of O.C.G.A. § 19-10-1 which relate to modification of terms and conditions upon which sentences are suspended in cases of abandonment do not apply in bastardy cases; and, thus, when the defendant pled guilty to a misdemeanor charge of bastardy in 1972, the trial court lacked authority to modify the terms of his suspended sentence in 1981. Tillman v. State, 249 Ga. 792, 294 S.E.2d 516 (1982).

Judicial review at two-year intervals. — Judicial review and modification of a support order based on the defendant's ability to furnish support and the adequacy of the present support payment as it pertains to the child's need cannot be made at less than two-year intervals. Deberry v. State, 171 Ga. App. 484, 320 S.E.2d 264 (1984).

Evidence sufficient to support abandonment charge. — Evidence that the defendant did not provide support for the defendant's children, was $30,000 in arrears on court ordered child support, and that the mother was forced to rely on the family for assistance to support her sons, was sufficient to support the defendant's conviction of child abandonment. Greene v. State, 268 Ga. App. 125, 601 S.E.2d 490 (2004).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Legislature clearly intended that word "child," as used in statute, include illegitimate children. 1969 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 69-323.

Father is criminally liable, throughout minority of illegitimate child, for failure to support that child. 1969 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 69-323.

Bastardy prosecution is not bar to subsequent child abandonment prosecution. 1969 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 69-323.

Venue when mother delivers child in county other than residence. — When mother resides in one county, goes to another for purpose of delivering the child, and returns to the original county, thereafter not receiving any support from the father of the child for the child's necessities, the venue for criminal prosecution of abandonment would be in the county to which the mother returned after the birth of her child. 1962 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 138.

19-10-2. Abandonment of dependent pregnant wife; criminal penalties; continuing offense.

(a) A wife who is pregnant with her husband's child shall be deemed to be in a dependent condition when her husband does not furnish her sufficient food, clothing, or medical treatment to meet her needs, both before and immediately upon the birth of the child.

(b) Any husband who willfully and voluntarily abandons his wife, while she is pregnant with his child, leaving her in a dependent condition, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

(c) Any husband who willfully and voluntarily abandons his wife while she is pregnant with his child and leaves the jurisdiction of this state shall be guilty of a felony punishable by imprisonment for not less than one year nor more than three years. The felony shall be reducible to a misdemeanor.

(d) For purposes of this Code section, a husband shall not be deemed to have abandoned his wife willfully and voluntarily unless he has actual knowledge of her pregnant condition.

(e) The offense of abandonment as set forth in this Code section is a continuing offense.

(f) The wife shall be competent to be a witness against her husband in any proceedings or cases brought against the husband for abandonment as set forth in this Code section. (Code 1933, § 74-9903, enacted by Ga. L. 1964, p. 224, § 1.)

19-10A-1. Short title.

This chapter shall be known and may be cited as the “Safe Place for Newborns Act of 2002.” (Code 1981, § 19-10A-1, enacted by Ga. L. 2002, p. 1137, § 1.)

19-10A-2. Medical facility defined.

As used in this chapter, the term “medical facility” shall mean any licensed general or specialized hospital, institutional infirmary, health center operated by a county board of health, or facility where human births occur on a regular and ongoing basis which is classified by the Department of Community Health as a birthing center, but shall not mean physicians’ or dentists’ private offices. (Code 1981, § 19-10A-2, enacted by Ga. L. 2002, p. 1137, § 1; Ga. L. 2008, p. 12, § 2-1/SB 433.)

19-10A-3. Purpose.

It is the express purpose and intent of the General Assembly in enacting this chapter to prevent injuries to and deaths of newborn children that are caused by a mother who abandons the newborn. (Code 1981, § 19-10A-3, enacted by Ga. L. 2002, p. 1137, § 1.)

19-10A-4. No criminal prosecution for leaving child in custody of medical facility.

A mother shall not be prosecuted for violating Code Section 16-5-70, 16-12-1, or 19-10-1 because of the act of leaving her newborn child in the physical custody of an employee, agent, or member of the staff of a medical facility who is on duty, whether there in a paid or volunteer position, provided that the newborn child is no more than one week old and the mother shows proof of her identity, if available, to the person with whom the newborn is left and provides her name and address. (Code 1981, § 19-10A-4, enacted by Ga. L. 2002, p. 1137, § 1; Ga. L. 2003, p. 140, § 19; Ga. L. 2013, p. 294, § 4-28/HB 242.)

The 2013 amendment, effective January 1, 2014, substituted “violating Code Section 16-5-70, 16-12-1, or 19-10-1 because” for “the crimes of cruelty to a child, Code Section 16-5-70; contributing to the delinquency, unruliness, or deprivation of a child, Code Section 16-12-1; or abandonment of a dependent child, Code Section 19-10-1, because” near the beginning of this Code section. See editor’s note for applicability.

Editor’s notes. — Ga. L. 2013, p. 294, § 5-1/HB 242, not codified by the General Assembly, provides that: “This Act shall become effective on January 1, 2014, and shall apply to all offenses which occur and juvenile proceedings commenced on and after such date. Any offense occurring before January 1, 2014, shall be governed by the statute in effect at the time of such offense and shall be considered a prior adjudication for the purpose of imposing a disposition that provides for a different penalty for subsequent adjudications, of whatever class, pursuant to this Act. The enactment of this Act shall not affect any prosecutions for acts occurring before January 1, 2014, and shall not act as an abatement of any such prosecutions.”

19-10A-5. Investigating and reporting utilization of provisions.

The Department of Human Services shall investigate and report to the General Assembly as to children left with a medical facility pursuant to Code Section 19-10A-4, including in such report the desirability and cost effectiveness of a dedicated toll-free telephone line for providing information to and answering questions from the public and employees and staff members of medical facilities concerning the acts and consequences thereof contemplated in Code Section 19-10A-4. (Code 1981, § 19-10A-5, enacted by Ga. L. 2002, p. 1137, § 1; Ga. L. 2009, p. 453, § 2-2/HB 228.)

19-10A-6. Reimbursement of medical costs; placement with Department of Human Services.

A medical facility which accepts for inpatient admission a child left pursuant to Code Section 19-10A-4 shall be reimbursed by the Department of Human Services for all reasonable medical and other reasonable costs associated with the child prior to the child being placed in the care of the department. A medical facility shall notify the Department of Human Services at such time as the child is left and at the time the child is medically ready for discharge. Upon notification that the child is medically ready for discharge, the Department of Human Services shall take physical custody of the child within six hours. The Department of Human Services upon taking physical custody shall promptly bring the child before the juvenile court as required by Code Section 15-11-145. (Code 1981, § 19-10A-6, enacted by Ga. L. 2002, p. 1137, § 1; Ga. L. 2009, p. 453, § 2-2/HB 228; Ga. L. 2013, p. 294, § 4-29/HB 242.)

The 2013 amendment, effective January 1, 2014, substituted “Code Section 15-11-145” for “Code Section 15-11-47” at the end of the last sentence. See editor’s note for applicability.

Editor’s notes. — Ga. L. 2013, p. 294, § 5-1/HB 242, not codified by the General Assembly, provides that: “This Act shall become effective on January 1, 2014, and shall apply to all offenses which occur and juvenile proceedings commenced on and after such date. Any offense occurring before January 1, 2014, shall be governed by the statute in effect at the time of such offense and shall be considered a prior adjudication for the purpose of imposing a disposition that provides for a different penalty for subsequent adjudications, of whatever class, pursuant to this Act. The enactment of this Act shall not affect any prosecutions for acts occurring before January 1, 2014, and shall not act as an abatement of any such prosecutions.”

19-10A-7. Liability.

Medical facilities and their employees, agents, and staff members shall not be liable for civil damages or subject to criminal prosecution for failure to discharge the duties provided for in this chapter. The immunity provided in this chapter shall in no way be construed as providing immunity for any acts of negligent treatment of the child taken into custody. (Code 1981, § 19-10A-7, enacted by Ga. L. 2002, p. 1137, § 1.)

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

State courts have concurrent jurisdiction with superior courts over cases brought pursuant to the Child Support Recovery Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-11-1 et seq. 1983 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U83-33.

Transfer of proceedings. — O.C.G.A. § 15-11-6(b) authorizes the superior court to transfer to the juvenile court support cases not involving a question of paternity as well as those support proceedings originating from a court-established support unit in the judicial circuit. 1989 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U89-7.

Since no provision under O.C.G.A. § 15-11-6(b) would permit the transfer of paternity questions to a juvenile court, no case in which paternity is involved may be transferred under that statute by a superior court to a juvenile court. 1989 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U89-7.

Superior court may not transfer a Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act proceeding to juvenile court under O.C.G.A. § 15-11-6(b). 1989 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U89-7.

19-11-1. Short title.

This article shall be known and may be cited as the "Child Support Recovery Act." (Ga. L. 1973, p. 192, § 1.)

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Modification procedure not dependent upon public assistance. — When the Department of Human Resources (DHR) petitions the superior court to adopt its recommendation, the court is not required to find a need for additional support but, without regard to whether a child is receiving public assistance, may increase child support based solely on a significant inconsistency between an existing order and the amount which would result from application of the child support guidelines; the Child Support Recovery Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-11-1 et seq., does not contain any basis for continuing to distinguish between the procedure available when the child is receiving public assistance and that which is available in the absence of any such assistance. The trial court erred in concluding that evidence of the need for additional support was necessary and that DHR lacked standing, and in failing to apply child support guidelines and to justify any departure therefrom. Falkenberry v. Taylor, 278 Ga. 842, 607 S.E.2d 567 (2005).

Public assistance is nondistinguishing factor. — Child Support Recovery Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-11-1 et seq., does not contain any basis for continuing to distinguish between the procedure available when a child is receiving public assistance and that which is available in the absence of any such assistance. Falkenberry v. Taylor, 278 Ga. 842, 607 S.E.2d 567 (2005) (Unpublished).

Procedure available the same when child not receiving public assistance. — In a child support modification action, the trial court erred in concluding that evidence of the need for additional support was necessary and that the Department of Human Resources (DHR) lacked standing to file a modification action on behalf of a child not receiving public assistance unless it could show the child's need for additional support; by express statutory amendment, the General Assembly no longer reserved for the private bar those modification actions which involved children who did not receive public assistance and needed no additional support, but whose court-ordered provider enjoyed an enhanced financial status. Falkenberry v. Taylor, 278 Ga. 842, 607 S.E.2d 567 (2005) (Unpublished).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Applicability of alternative dispute resolution program fees to child support recovery actions. — Civil actions brought pursuant to the Child Support Recovery Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-11-1 et seq., are subject to the fee imposed under O.C.G.A. § 15-23-7 to support alternative dispute resolution programs, but the state, the state's agencies, and political subdivisions should not be compelled to make advance payment of the fee which should ordinarily be collected from the child support obligor upon the conclusion of the action. 1994 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U94-7.

(a) The underlying purposes of this article are:

(1) To provide that public assistance to needy children is a supplement to the contribution of the responsible parents;

(2) To provide for a determination that a responsible parent is able to support his children; and

(3) To provide for the enforcement of an able parent's obligation to furnish support.

(b) This article shall be liberally construed to promote its underlying purposes. (Ga. L. 1973, p. 192, § 2.)

19-11-3. Definitions.

As used in this article, the term:

(1) "Account" means a demand deposit account, checking or negotiable order of withdrawal account, savings account, time deposit account, or a money market mutual fund account.

(2) "Court order for child support" means any order for child support issued by a court or administrative or quasi-judicial entity of this state or another state, including an order in a criminal proceeding which results in the payment of child support as a condition of probation or otherwise. Such order shall be deemed to be a IV-D order for purposes of this article when either party to the order submits a copy of the order for support and a signed application to the department for IV-D services, when the right to child support has been assigned to the department pursuant to subsection (a) of Code Section 19-11-6, or upon registration of a foreign order pursuant to Article 3 of this chapter.

(3) "Department" means the Department of Human Services.

(4) "Dependent child" means any person under the age of 18 who is not otherwise emancipated, self-supporting, married, or a member of the armed forces of the United States.

(5) "Duty of support" means any duty of support imposed or imposable by law or by court order, decree, or judgment.

(6) “Financial institution” means every federal or state chartered commercial or savings bank, including savings and loan associations and cooperative banks, federal or state chartered credit unions, benefit associations, insurance companies, safe-deposit companies, trust companies, and any money market mutual fund.

(7) “IV-D” means Title IV-D of the federal Social Security Act.

(8) “IV-D agency” means the Child Support Enforcement Agency of the Department of Human Services and its contractors.

(9) “Medical insurance obligee” means any person to whom a duty of medical support is owed.

(10) “Medical insurance obligor” means any person owing a duty of medical support.

(11) “Money market mutual fund” means every regulated investment company within the meaning of Section 851(a) of the Internal Revenue Code which seeks to maintain a constant net asset value of $1.00 in accordance with 17 C.F.R. Section 270.2A-7.

(12) “Parent” means the natural or adoptive parents of a child and includes the father of a child born out of wedlock if his paternity has been established in a judicial proceeding or if he has acknowledged paternity under oath either in open court, in an administrative hearing, or by verified writing.

(13) “TANF” means temporary assistance for needy families. (Ga. L. 1973, p. 192, § 3; Ga. L. 1976, p. 1537, §§ 1, 2; Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 23; Ga. L. 2003, p. 415, § 1; Ga. L. 2009, p. 453, § 2-2/HB 228; Ga. L. 2010, p. 245, § 1/HB 1118; Ga. L. 2014, p. 457, § 10/SB 282.)

The 2014 amendment, effective July 1, 2014, added paragraph (1); redesignated former paragraphs (1) through (4) as present paragraphs (2) through (5), respectively; added paragraph (6); redesignated former paragraphs (5) through (8) as present paragraphs (7) through (10), respectively; added paragraph (11); redesignated former paragraph (9) as present paragraph (12); and added paragraph (13).

U.S. Code. — Section 851(a) of the Internal Revenue Code, referred to in paragraph (11), is codified as 26 U.S.C. § 851.

Law reviews. — For article commenting on the 1997 amendment of this Code section, see 14 Ga. St. U.L. Rev. 121 (1997).

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

“Parent.” — Divorce decree, and the decree’s finding that the parties had no children, a finding which was apparently incorporated into the decree simply because it was a provision of the parties’ agreement, was not a judicial proceeding establishing paternity within the meaning of “parent” in the Child Support Recovery Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-11-1 et seq. Department of Human Resources v. Fleeman, 263 Ga. 756, 439 S.E.2d 474 (1994).

Grandmother was not a “parent” of the child within the meaning of O.C.G.A. § 19-8-1(8) or O.C.G.A. § 19-11-3. Stills v. Johnson, 272 Ga. 645, 533 S.E.2d 695 (2000).

Adopting parent on equal footing as biological. — Georgia law specifically provides that a decree of adoption creates the relationship of parent and child between each petitioner and the adopted individual as if the adopted individual were a child of biological issue of that petitioner. Hastings v. Hastings, 291 Ga. 782, 732 S.E.2d 272 (2012).

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Department of Human Resources may bypass administrative proceedings in favor of judicial proceedings to enforce the provisions of the Child Support Recovery Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-11-1 et seq. Department of Human Resources v. Carlton, 174 Ga. App. 30, 329 S.E.2d 181 (1985).

ment of Human Resources may, in one judicial proceeding, seek to establish paternity and an obligation of support pursuant to the Child Support Recovery Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-11-1 et seq. Department of Human Resources v. Carlton, 174 Ga. App. 30, 329 S.E.2d 181 (1985).

19-11-5. Debt to state created by payment of public assistance; amount of debt; waiver, reduction, or negotiation of certain repayments.

(a) The payment of public assistance to or on behalf of a child creates a debt due and owing the state by the parent or parents responsible for the support of the child. The amount of the debt is the amount necessary to meet the total needs of the child or children and the person having custody, if included in the public assistance grant, as determined by the department in conformity with the federal Social Security Act; provided, however, that, where a court has ordered child support incident to a final divorce or in a criminal proceeding for nonsupport or where the responsible parent has entered into a legally enforceable and binding agreement, the debt created shall be equal to the amount set in such decree, order, hearing, or agreement.

(b) The department, in accordance with rules established by the Board of Human Services, shall be authorized to waive, reduce, or negotiate the payment of unreimbursed public assistance if it is determined that good cause for nonpayment exists or that enforcement of the claim would result in substantial and unreasonable hardship to the parent or parents responsible for the support of the child against whom the claim exists. The rules established by the Board of Human Services shall consider the ability of the responsible party to support the child or children during the period that public assistance was provided and the current history of regularity of payment by the responsible party. This subsection shall not apply to any court order or decree requiring the repayment of public assistance; however, the department is authorized to petition the court for consideration of a modification of an order or decree based on factors contained in this subsection and in the rules established by the Board of Human Services relating to such unreimbursed public assistance. (Ga. L. 1973, p. 192, § 4; Ga. L. 1976, p. 1537, § 4; Ga. L. 1977, p. 643, § 1; Ga. L. 2005, p. 1520, § 1/SB 52; Ga. L. 2009, p. 453, § 2-3/HB 228.)

U.S. Code. — The federal Social Security Act, referred to in this Code section, is codified at 42 U.S.C. § 601 et seq.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

If there is an absent parent who does not provide support, and the payment of public assistance is for the support of both the dependent child and the custodial parent who is not able, without the benefit of public assistance, to provide support and maintenance for the child, it is inconsistent with both the goals of the Public Assistance Act and the Child Support Recovery Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-11-1 et seq., to conclude that the payment of Aid to Families with Dependent Children imposes upon the custodial parent a debt due and owing the state under O.C.G.A. § 19-11-5. Cox v. Cox ex rel. State Dep't of Human Resources, 255 Ga. 6, 334 S.E.2d 683 (1985).

Repayment by custodial parent excuses non-custodial's non-payment. — When uncontradicted evidence demonstrated that the custodial parent, the mother of two children, was entitled to public assistance and was repaying the state for public assistance which she received, the defendant, the children's father, could not be held liable for those public assistance payments. Johnson v.

Department of Human Resources, 204 Ga. App. 23, 418 S.E.2d 401 (1992).

Parent whose rights have been terminated under O.C.G.A. § 15-11-80 is not subject to an action under O.C.G.A. § 19-11-5 to provide reimbursement payments of government dispensed child assistance benefits. Department of Human Resources v. Ammons, 206 Ga. App. 805, 426 S.E.2d 901 (1992).

Standing of department in claim against parent. — Even though a divorce decree between the mother and alleged father stated that the parties had no minor children, the department of human resources was not collaterally estopped from asserting a claim for child support benefits against the alleged father on behalf of the child. Department of Human Resources v. Fleeman, 263 Ga. 756, 439 S.E.2d 474 (1994).

DHR entitled to default judgment. — Trial court erred in failing to enter a default judgment when in the court's petition the Department of Human Resources alleged that it had provided support in the form of public assistance to the defendant's daughter and was entitled to reimbursement. Department of Human Resources v. Hedgepath, 204 Ga. App. 755, 420 S.E.2d 638 (1992).

Establishment of paternity. — Divorce decree, and the decree's finding that the parties had no children, a finding which was apparently incorporated into the decree simply because it was a provision of the parties' agreement, was not a judicial proceeding establishing paternity within the meaning of "parent" in the Child Support Recovery Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-11-1 et seq. Department of Human Resources v. Fleeman, 263 Ga. 756, 439 S.E.2d 474 (1994).

State was entitled to be reimbursed by the father for support payments made on the child's behalf even though the father had not legitimated the child and had not been ordered to pay child support since it was undisputed that he was the father of the child and therefore had an obligation to support the child. Department of Human Resources v. Woodruff, 234 Ga. App. 513, 507 S.E.2d 249 (1998).

"Value of caretaking services" not to reduce debt. — In the computation of the debt due under O.C.G.A. § 19-11-5 et seq., a recipient is not entitled to a reduction of the debt for the value of his or her services as "caretaker" of the minor child. Cox v. Department of Human Resources, 174 Ga. App. 377, 330 S.E.2d 120, rev'd on other grounds, 255 Ga. 6, 334 S.E.2d 683 (1985).

Application for appeal. — In an action for repayment of child support expended by the Department of Human Resources, the failure to file an application for appeal required under O.C.G.A. § 5-6-35(a)(2) did not result in dismissal of the appeal; an action for repayment under O.C.G.A. § 19-11-5 is one for collection of a debt and requiring discretionary appeal procedures only when the judgment is $2,500 or less, pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 5-6-35(a)(6). Department of Human Resources v. Johnson, 175 Ga. App. 610, 333 S.E.2d 845 (1985).

19-11-6. Enforcement of child support payments and alimony for public assistance recipients.

(a) By accepting public assistance for or on behalf of a child or children, including foster care maintenance payments made pursuant to Title IV-E of the federal Social Security Act, the recipient shall be deemed to have made an assignment to the department of the right to any child support owed for the child. The department shall be subrogated to the right of the child or children or the person having custody to initiate any support action existing under the laws of this state and to recover any payments ordered by the courts of this or any other state. Amounts collected by the department shall be distributed and deposited by the department in conformity with law.

(b) Whenever a family for whom child support services have been provided ceases to receive public assistance, including medical assistance, the department shall continue to provide services and collect such support payments from the absent parent in accordance with standards prescribed pursuant to the federal Social Security Act.

(c) The department shall accept applications for child support services from any proper party or person notwithstanding the fact that the child or children do not receive public assistance. When made, this application to the department shall constitute an assignment of the right to support to the department and the proceeds of any collections resulting from such application shall be distributed in accordance with the standards prescribed in the federal Social Security Act.

(d) The department shall accept applications for alimony enforcement services from any proper party or person if the right to alimony has been assigned to the department. The application for enforcement shall apply only to alimony while there is a court order for alimony, while the dependent child is living with the spouse or former spouse, and while a child support obligation is also being enforced by the department.

(e) The department shall accept applications for IV-D services from noncustodial parent obligors. The department, by virtue of the acceptance of such applications for IV-D services, is authorized to take any action allowed by this chapter including, but not limited to, the review and modification of support awards, whether such awards are modified upward or downward, pursuant to Code Section 19-11-12. The proceeds of any collections resulting from such applications shall be distributed in accordance with the standards prescribed in the federal Social Security Act.

(f) The department shall be authorized to charge the obligee a federal Deficit Reduction Act of 2005 fee of $12.00 to be paid at the rate of $1.00 per month after the IV-D agency has collected $500.00 of child support annually for each case. The department shall retain such fee and deduct such fee from child support collections before disbursement to the obligee. Such fee shall only apply to an obligee who has never received public assistance payments pursuant to Title IV-A or Title IV-E of the federal Social Security Act.

(g) The department shall be authorized to charge the obligor a federal Deficit Reduction Act of 2005 fee of $13.00 to be paid in 12 monthly installments after the IV-D agency has collected $500.00 of child support annually for each case. Such fee shall only apply to an obligor when the obligee has never received public assistance payments pursuant to Title IV-A or Title IV-E of the federal Social Security Act. The department shall retain such fee and collect such fee through income withholding, as well as by any other enforcement remedy available to the IV-D agency responsible for child support enforcement. Editor's notes. — As enacted, Ga. L. General Assembly, provided that the 1987, p. 186, § 5, not codified by the amendment of this Code section by that Act would apply with respect to divorce decrees entered on or after July 1, 1987. However, Section 2 of Ga. L. 1987, p. 1114, not codified by the General Assembly, rewrote Section 5 of Ga. L. 1987, p. 186, to provide that the amendment of this Code section by that latter Act would apply to process served on or after July 1, 1987 in both pending and new proceedings.

U.S. Code. — Title IV-A of the federal Social Security Act, referred to in this Code section, is codified at 42 U.S.C. § 601 et seq.

Title IV-E of the federal Social Security Act, referred to in this Code section, is codified at 42 U.S.C. § 670 et seq.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Applicability of subsection (a). — In an action by the Department of Human Resources for recovery of child support from the noncustodial parent, subsection (a) of O.C.G.A. § 19-11-6 would not be applicable if the plaintiff expressly waived any right to recover public assistance paid in the past and there was no evidence of any continuing payments to the custodial parent. Georgia Dep't of Human Resources v. Smith, 237 Ga. App. 883, 517 S.E.2d 111 (1999).

State has a real interest in recovering payments made by the state, which would not have been made had a responsible parent lived up to that party's duty; and the purpose of O.C.G.A. §§ 19-11-6 and 19-11-8 is to secure that reimbursement. Department of Human Resources v. Bagley, 240 Ga. 306, 240 S.E.2d 867 (1977).

Extent of reimbursement to which state is entitled. — To the extent that the state paid public assistance on behalf of a child which would not have been made had the responsible parent been current in paying the parent's support payments, the state is entitled under assignment provided for in Ga. L. 1966, p. 1537, § 5 (see now O.C.G.A. § 19-11-6) to be reimbursed for the state's excess payments out of support payments for that child recovered from the responsible parent, upon appropriate proof of the extent of the state's claim. This right continues even if state fails to perform the state's duty to initiate the action under Ga. L. 1966, p. 1537, § 6 (see now O.C.G.A. § 19-11-8). Department of Human Resources v. Bagley, 240 Ga. 306, 240 S.E.2d 867 (1977).

Action on behalf of child not receiving public assistance. — Department of Human Resources is authorized to file modification actions on behalf of children who do not receive public assistance only when the child's need for additional support can be shown; the department is not authorized to seek modification of support on behalf of a child not receiving public assistance solely on the basis of a change in either parent's financial circumstances. Allen v. Georgia Dep't of Human Resources, 262 Ga. 521, 423 S.E.2d 383 (1992).

Department of Human Resources was the proper party to appeal an order in a legitimation proceeding modifying a child support award since the Department's duty to enforce child support payments continues after public assistance ceases. Department of Human Resources v. Jones, 215 Ga. App. 322, 450 S.E.2d 339 (1994).

Loss of right to recovery by department for failure to participate in action. — Should Department of Human Resources fail to actively participate when joined by a custodial parent in an action to recover support payments, the Department may lose the Department's claim for reimbursement. Department of Human Resources v. Bagley, 240 Ga. 306, 240 S.E.2d 867 (1977).

Standing of department in claim against parent. — Even though a divorce decree between the mother and alleged father stated that the parties had no minor children, the Department of Human Resources was not collaterally estopped from asserting a claim for child support benefits against the alleged father on behalf of the child. Department of Human Resources v. Fleeman, 263 Ga. 756, 439 S.E.2d 474 (1994).

Divorce decree incorporating an agreement between husband and wife that the husband did not father a child did not bind the child and, thus, the Department of Human Resources, acting on the child's behalf, was not barred from pursuing a paternity and child support action against the husband. Department of Human Resources v. Money, 222 Ga. App. 149, 473 S.E.2d 200 (1996).

State was entitled to seek repayment from the father of public assistance made to the mother on behalf of her child when the father acknowledged paternity, and even though the mother opposed the state's collection efforts, as the recipient of public assistance she assigned her right to child support to the state. Department of Human Resources v. Woodruff, 234 Ga. App. 513, 507 S.E.2d 249 (1998).

Trial court erred in ruling that the Georgia Department of Human Services could not bring an action under O.C.G.A. § 19-11-6(a) on behalf of a child to secure a support award under the provisions of O.C.G.A. § 19-6-10 because there was no dispute that the mother and the father lived separately and that there was no pending divorce action, conditions required under § 19-6-10. Ga. Dep't of Human Servs. v. Wright, 293 Ga. 330, 745 S.E.2d 628 (2013).

Custodial parent joining department in action. — When a custodial parent is forced to bring an action to recover support payments by failure or refusal of the state to do so, the proper procedure is for custodian to join the Department of Human Resources as plaintiff to suit. Department of Human Resources v. Bagley, 240 Ga. 306, 240 S.E.2d 867 (1977).

Effect of custody agreement on obligation to department. — Custody agreement between a father and his children's maternal grandmother did not relieve the father of any obligation to reimburse the Department of Human Resources for public assistance benefits payments made on behalf of his children. Department of Human Resources v. Prince, 198 Ga. App. 329, 401 S.E.2d 342 (1991).

Department's claim for reimbursement of public assistance paid to child support obligee in bankruptcy case. — Under O.C.G.A. § 19-11-6(a), a parent who accepted public assistance on behalf of a child was deemed to have assigned to the Department of Human Resources the right to child support owed to the parent by a Chapter 13 debtor, and the assignment occurred by operation of law when the Department undertook to collect money from the debtor; therefore, pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 507(a)(7)(A), the Department's claim for reimbursement of the public assistance the Department paid was not entitled to priority status. Sys. & Servs. Techs. v. Jordan (In re Jordan), No. 99-11854, 2000 Bankr. LEXIS 2218 (Bankr. S.D. Ga. Sept. 27, 2000).

Department joined in action must pay costs and fees. — When custodial parent is forced to bring action to recover support payments by failure or refusal of the state to do so, the Department of Human Resources may recover its reimbursement on condition that the department agrees to reimburse the custodial parent for the costs of bringing the action, including reasonable attorney fees if approved by the court. Department of Human Resources v. Bagley, 240 Ga. 306, 240 S.E.2d 867 (1977).

Parent may cross-claim against Department of Human Resources for decision of what sums are due to Department for reimbursement, if there is a dispute. Department of Human Resources v. Bagley, 240 Ga. 306, 240 S.E.2d 867 (1977).

Income deduction order. — When the Department of Human Resources petitioned to modify a divorce decree so that the former husband's child support payments would be made directly to the child support receiver, the issuance of an income deduction order was required based on the former wife's receipt of public assistance. Department of Human Resources v. Brandenburg, 211 Ga. App. 715, 440 S.E.2d 498 (1994), overruled on other grounds, Department of Human Servs. v. Offutt, 217 Ga. App. 823, 459 S.E.2d 597 (1995).

Modification and domestication of foreign decree. — Department of Human Resources was entitled to seek domestication of a foreign divorce decree in the source action in which modification of the decree was sought. Allen v. Georgia

Dep't of Human Resources, 262 Ga. 521, 423 S.E.2d 383 (1992).

Support may not be modified in contempt proceedings. — In a contempt proceeding brought by the Georgia Department of Human Resources, the trial court erred in modifying a parent's child support obligation and in forgiving a portion of the arrearage because the court lacked authority to modify support orders in contempt proceedings, and O.C.G.A. § 19-6-17(e)(1)-(3) precluded retroactive modification of child support. Ga. Dep't of Human Res. v. Gamble, 297 Ga. App. 509, 677 S.E.2d 713 (2009).

Enforcement of motion to compel genetic testing. — Claims of the Department of Human Resources against a putative father for reimbursement of public assistance and future support and a contempt complaint for the father's failure to appear for a court-ordered paternity test were not barred by the equitable doctrine of laches. Department of Human Resources v. Mitchell, 232 Ga. App. 560, 501 S.E.2d 508 (1998).

Recovery from obligor who is in bankruptcy. — When the custodial parent accepted public assistance under O.C.G.A. § 19-11-6(a), and the debtor obligor failed to comply with a consent contempt order to make payments, the claim for reimbursement to the state was a non-contingent, unsecured nonpriority claim payable by the chapter 13 trustee under 11 U.S.C. § 1326(a)(2). Ga. Dep't of Human Res. of Child Support Res. v. Spears (In re Spears), No. 05-51039, 2008 Bankr. LEXIS 4374 (Bankr. S.D. Ga. Jan. 8, 2008).

Impact of 2003 amendment. — In the 2003 amendments to the Child Support Recovery Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-11-1 et seq., the General Assembly unambiguously broadened the legislature's intent, expressly permitting the Department of Human Resources to accept applications for child support services from non-custodial parents and to review, and even to seek downward modifications of, support awards under the provisions of the Act. Falkenberry v. Taylor, 278 Ga. 842, 607 S.E.2d 567 (2005).

19-11-7. Enforcement of support payments for dependent minor child public assistance recipients; attorney's fees; interest on judgment; limited scope of action.

(a) Whenever any dependent minor child is receiving public assistance, the department may recover any sum of money due the dependent child. The action shall be brought in the name of the child for the use of the department.

(b) Pursuant to the authority provided in subsection (a) of this Code section, the department may appear in any judicial proceeding on behalf of the spouse and the dependent child to enforce the parties' right to support, including alimony as long as the provisions of subsection (d) of Code Section 19-11-6 are met.

(c) Any action initiated by the department pursuant to subsections (a) and (b) of this Code section shall be limited solely to the issue of support and shall exclude issues of visitation, custody, property settlement, or other similar matters otherwise joinable by the parties.

(d) The court may award reasonable attorney's fees to the prevailing party.

(e) The department may collect the legal rate of interest on any judgment obtained in any support action initiated by the department.

(f) Any action initiated by the department pursuant to subsections (a) and (b) of this Code section or in any action in which the department appears pursuant to subsections (a) and (b) of this Code section shall be limited solely to the issue of support and shall exclude issues of visitation, custody, property settlement, or other similar matters otherwise joinable by the parties. JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Limited scope of action. — In a child support recovery action against the purported father under the Child Support Recovery Act (O.C.G.A. § 19-11-1 et seq.), the superior court could not rule on the father's request that the child be legitimated, or given his last name, or that he be given permanent and definite visitation rights. Department of Human Resources v. Brown, 213 Ga. App. 42, 443 S.E.2d 685 (1994).

Support may not be modified in contempt proceedings. — In a contempt proceeding brought by the Georgia Department of Human Resources, the 19-11-8. Department's duty to enforce support of abandoned minor public assistance recipient; scope of action.

(a) Whenever the department receives an application for public assistance on behalf of a child and it appears that the child has been abandoned by one or both parents or that the responsible parent has failed to provide support to the child, it is the department's responsibility to take appropriate action under this article, the child support statutes, or other appropriate state and federal statutes to assure that the responsible parent supports the child.

(b) The department shall accept applications for child support enforcement services from a custodian of a minor child who is not a recipient of public assistance and shall take appropriate action under this article, the child support statutes, or other state and federal statutes to assure that the responsible parent supports the child. The department shall provide that a reasonable application fee be charged each individual who applies for services under this subsection. The department shall enforce an order for alimony so long as child support is being collected along with alimony and all provisions of subsection (d) of Code Section 19-11-6 are met.

(c) The department shall accept applications from noncustodial parents for services as provided for in this article and federal law and regulations. The department shall provide for a reasonable application fee for a noncustodial parent who applies for services under this subsection.

(d) Any action initiated by the department pursuant to subsection (a), (b), or (c) of this Code section shall be limited solely to the issue of support and shall exclude issues of visitation, custody, property settlement, or other similar matters otherwise joinable by the parties.

(e) The department shall be authorized to charge the obligee a federal Deficit Reduction Act of 2005 fee of $12.00 to be paid at the rate of $1.00 per month after the IV-D agency has collected $500.00 of child support annually for each case. The department shall retain such fee and deduct such fee from child support collections before disbursement to the obligee. Such fee shall only apply to an obligee who has never received public assistance payments pursuant to Title IV-A or Title IV-E of the federal Social Security Act.

(f) The department shall be authorized to charge the obligor a federal Deficit Reduction Act of 2005 fee of $13.00 to be paid in 12 monthly installments after the IV-D agency has collected $500.00 of child support annually for each case. Such fee shall only apply to an obligor when the obligee has never received public assistance payments pursuant to Title IV-A or Title IV-E of the federal Social Security Act. JUDICIAL DECISIONS

State has a real interest in recovering payments by the state, which would not have been made had the responsible parent lived up to that parent's duty; and the purpose of Ga. L. 1976, p. 1537, §§ 5 and 6 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 19-11-6 and 19-11-8) is to secure that reimbursement. Department of Human Resources v. Bagley, 240 Ga. 306, 240 S.E.2d 867 (1977).

Action on behalf of child not receiving public assistance. — Department of Human Resources is authorized to file modification actions on behalf of children who do not receive public assistance only in cases where the child's need for additional support can be shown; the Department is not authorized to seek modification of support on behalf of a child not receiving public assistance solely on the basis of a change in either parent's financial circumstances. Allen v. Georgia Dep't of Human Resources, 262 Ga. 521, 423 S.E.2d 383 (1992).

State's right to reimbursement continues although state fails to initiate action. — To the extent that the state paid public assistance on behalf of the child which would not have been made had the responsible parent been current in paying that parent's support payments, the state is entitled under assignment provided for in Ga. L. 1976, p. 1537, § 5 (see now O.C.G.A. § 19-11-6) to be reimbursed for the state's excess payments out of support payments for that child recovered from the responsible parent, upon appropriate proof of the extent of the state's claim. This right continues even if the state fails to perform the state's duty to initiate the action under Ga. L. 1976, p. 1537, § 6 (see now O.C.G.A. § 19-11-8). Department of Human Resources v. Bagley, 240 Ga. 306, 240 S.E.2d 867 (1977).

Loss of right by department for failure to participate in action for recovery. — Should Department of Human Resources fail to actively participate when joined by the custodial parent in action to recover support payments, the Department may lose the Department's claim for reimbursement. Department of Human Resources v. Bagley, 240 Ga. 306, 240 S.E.2d 867 (1977).

Custodial parent joining department in action. — When custodial parent is forced to bring action to recover support payments by failure or refusal of state to do so, the proper procedure is for the custodian to join the Department of Human Resources as plaintiff to suit. Department of Human Resources v. Bagley, 240 Ga. 306, 240 S.E.2d 867 (1977).

Department joined in action must pay costs and fees. — When the custodial parent is forced to bring an action to recover support payments by failure or refusal of the state to do so, the Department of Human Resources may recover the Department's reimbursement on condition that the Department agrees to reimburse the custodial parent for the costs of bringing the action, including reasonable attorney fees if approved by the court. Department of Human Resources v. Bagley, 240 Ga. 306, 240 S.E.2d 867 (1977).

Parent may cross-claim against Department of Human Resources for decision of what sums are due Department for reimbursement, if there is a dispute. Department of Human Resources v. Bagley, 240 Ga. 306, 240 S.E.2d 867 (1977).

Department's failure to follow procedures. — The Department of Human Resources' filing of a petition to establish a child support obligation when one already existed under the divorce decree and the Department's failure to follow the specific procedures set forth in O.C.G.A. § 19-11-12 for modifying a child support obligation was not harmless error. Ward v. Department of Human Resources, 273 Ga. 52, 537 S.E.2d 70 (2000).

Order modified earlier support order in divorce case. — Child support order entered in a case brought against a father by the Georgia Department of Human Resources on behalf of the couple's child seeking a child support modification limited the father's support obligation despite an earlier child support order entered in the divorce case. Louradour v. Britt, 278 Ga. 168, 598 S.E.2d 464 (2004).

Modification and domestication of foreign decree. — Department of Human Resources was entitled to seek domestication of a foreign divorce decree in the source action in which modification of the decree was sought. Allen v. Georgia Dep't of Human Resources, 262 Ga. 521, 423 S.E.2d 383 (1992).

Impact of 2003 amendment. — In the 2003 amendments to the Child Support Recovery Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-11-1 et seq., the General Assembly unambiguously broadened the legislature's intent, expressly permitting the Department of Human Resources to accept applications for child support services from non-custodial parents and to review, and even to seek downward modifications of, support awards under the provisions of the Act. Falkenberry v. Taylor, 278 Ga. 842, 607 S.E.2d 567 (2005).

19-11-9. Location of absent parents by department; assistance of other governmental agencies; putative father registry; use of information obtained.

(a) The department shall attempt to locate absent parents.

(b) The department is to serve as a registry for the receipt of information which directly relates to the identity or location of absent parents, to assist any governmental agency or department in locating an absent parent, to answer interstate inquiries concerning deserting parents, to coordinate and supervise any activity on a state level in search for an absent parent, and to develop guidelines for coordinating activities of any governmental department, board, commission, bureau, or agency in providing information necessary for location of absent parents and is to process all requests received from an initiating county or an initiating state which has adopted the Uniform Interstate Family Support Act or a law substantially similar to the Uniform Interstate Family Support Act, the Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act, or the Revised Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act.

(c) In order to carry out the responsibilities imposed under this article, the department may request information and assistance from any governmental department, board, commission, bureau, or agency in locating the absent parents of children for whom the department has assignment of child support rights. The commissioner of human services or his duly authorized representative shall be entitled to have access to all pertinent information which is within the custody of any governmental department, board, commission, bureau, or agency, including, but not limited to, income tax information contained in any report or return required under Articles 1 through 6 of Chapter 7 of Title 48 by the Department of Revenue, including information from federal income tax returns required to be included as a part of any state report or return, which information but for this Code section would not be subject to disclosure pursuant to Code Section 48-7-60 and which is relative to such parents' location, income, or property, provided that any tax information secured from the federal government by the Department of Revenue, pursuant to the express provisions of Section 6103 of the Internal Revenue Code, may not be disclosed by that department pursuant to this subsection. Any person receiving any tax information or tax returns under the authority granted in this subsection shall be considered either an officer or employee as those terms are used in subsection (a) of Code Section 48-7-60; and, as such an officer or employee, any person receiving any tax information or returns under the authority of this Code section shall be subject to Code Section 48-7-61, relating to the sanctions to be imposed for the unauthorized disclosure of confidential material.

(d)(1) There is established within the department a putative father registry. For purposes of this subsection, "biological father" and "legal father" shall have the meanings set out in Code Section 19-8-1. The putative father registry shall record the name, address, and social security number of any person who claims to be the biological father but not the legal father of a child, and the date of entry of such information. Placement on the putative father registry shall not be used as an admission of guilt to any crime under Georgia law or used as evidence in any criminal prosecution under Georgia law.

(2) The putative father registry shall include two types of registrations:

(A) Persons who acknowledge paternity of a child or children before or after birth in a signed writing; and

(B) Persons who register to indicate the possibility of paternity without acknowledging paternity.

(3) Registrants shall be informed that this registration may be used to establish an obligation to support the child or children and that this registration shall be used to provide notice of adoption proceedings or proceedings to terminate the rights of a biological father who is not a legal father but that registration without further action does not enable the registrant to prevent an adoption or termination of his rights by objecting. All registrants shall be asked to provide information regarding changes in their addresses.

(4) A voluntary acknowledgment of paternity may be rescinded pursuant to the provisions of Code Section 19-7-46.1.

(5) The department shall publicize the existence and availability of the putative father registry to the public, including but not limited to providing information disseminated in connection with certificates of live birth and through county boards of health. The department is authorized to prescribe the notices, forms, and educational materials to be used for entities that may offer voluntary paternity establishment services.

(6) The department shall keep the putative father registry as current as feasible, adding entries or information to the registry often enough that new registrations or new information regarding registrants, mothers, or children shall be added to the registry no later than two business days following receipt of the information from the registrant.

(e) The information which is obtained by the department shall only be available to:

(1) A governmental department, board, commission, bureau, agency, or political subdivision of any state for purposes of locating an absent parent or putative father to establish or to enforce his obligation of support, of enforcing a child custody determination, or of enforcing any state or federal law with respect to the unlawful taking or restraint of a child; or

(2) The department, a licensed child-placing agency, or a member in good standing of the State Bar of Georgia in response to a request for information for purposes of locating a biological father who is not the legal father to provide notice of adoption proceedings or a proceeding to terminate the rights of a biological father who is not a legal father. The request for information shall include, to the extent the information is known to the department, agency, or attorney, the name, address, and social security number of the mother of the child and of the alleged biological father who is not the legal father of the child and the child's name, sex, and date of birth. The department shall within two business days of its receipt of such a request for information issue a written certificate documenting its response.

(f) The department shall charge a fee of $10.00 for each certification regarding entries on the putative father registry or other information provided pursuant to paragraph (2) of subsection (e) of this Code section. The department shall waive the fee provided for in this subsection upon presentation of an affidavit of the petitioner's indigency. The department shall transmit the fees received pursuant to this subsection to the Office of the State Treasurer for deposit in the treasury of the state and shall provide an annual accounting of such fees to the Governor and the General Assembly. Editor's notes. — Ga. L. 1987, p. 191, § 10, not codified by the General Assembly, provided that this Act is applicable to taxable years ending on or after March 11, 1987, and that a taxpayer with a taxable year ending on or after January 1, 1987, and before March 11, 1987, may elect to have the provisions of that Act apply.

Ga. L. 1987, p. 191, § 10, not codified by the General Assembly, also provided that tax, penalty, and interest liabilities and refund eligibility for prior taxable years shall not be affected by that Act.

Ga. L. 1987, p. 191, § 10, not codified by the General Assembly, also provided that provisions of the federal Tax Reform Act of 1986 and of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 which as of January 1, 1987, were not yet effective become effective for purposes of Georgia taxation on the same dates as they become effective for federal purposes.

19-11-9.1. Duty to furnish information about obligor to department; use of information obtained; penalty for non-compliance.

(a) Any entity in this state including for profit, nonprofit, and governmental employers, upon the request of the department and its authorized contractors, shall provide the department with information, including the name, address, social security number, employment, compensation, and benefits regarding a person owing or allegedly owing an obligation of support for a dependent child.

(a.1)(1) In accordance with the mandate contained in 42 U.S.C. Section 666(a)(13)(A) and notwithstanding any provision of Title 40 relating to motor vehicles as now existing or hereafter amended, the Department of Driver Services shall require an applicant for a driver's license, a commercial driver's license, a learner's permit, or an identification card to provide to the Department of Driver Services the applicant's social security number or certification from the Social Security Administration that the applicant is not eligible for issuance of a social security number because he or she is an alien not authorized to work in the United States as part of the application. Notwithstanding the foregoing, nothing in this Code section shall be construed so as to authorize the issuance of any driver's license, permit, or identification card to any person who is not a resident as defined in Code Section 40-5-1. If the legal authorization of such person is terminated or expired, any Georgia driver's license issued to such person shall be revoked. The Department of Driver Services shall provide to the Department of Human Services, in addition to other information required to be provided to the Department of Human Services, such social security numbers of individuals who have been issued a driver's license, a commercial driver's license, a learner's permit, or an identification card. The Department of Human Services shall use the information provided by the Department of Driver Services pursuant to this Code section for the purpose of complying with the requirements of law concerning the enforcement of child support.

(2) In accordance with the mandate contained in 42 U.S.C. Section 666(a)(13)(A) and notwithstanding any provision of Chapter 2 of Title 27 relating to licenses and permits as now existing or hereafter amended, the Department of Natural Resources shall require an applicant for a license or permit pursuant to Chapter 2 of Title 27 to provide to the Department of Natural Resources the applicant's social security number as a part of the license or permit application. The Department of Natural Resources shall provide to the Department of Human Services, along with other information required to be provided to the Department of Human Services, the social security numbers of individuals who have been issued a license or permit pursuant to Chapter 2 of Title 27. The Department of Human Services shall use the information provided by the Department of Natural Resources pursuant to this Code section for the purpose of complying with the requirements of law concerning the enforcement of child support.

(3) The information collected by the Department of Driver Services and the Department of Natural Resources and transmitted to the Department of Human Services pursuant to paragraphs (1) and (2) of this subsection shall be deemed confidential and not subject to public disclosure but may be shared with other state agencies as needed to comply with federal law.

(b) Except as may be prohibited under the federal Fair Credit Reporting Act, 15 U.S.C. Section 1681, et seq., the IV-D agency may require disclosure of information, including the location, employment, title to property, credit status, or professional affiliation to assist the IV-D agency in locating a custodial parent or noncustodial parent. The IV-D agency may require such disclosure from any state or local government agency; state, county, or municipal registry of deeds or titles; registry of vital records and statistics; utility company regulated by the Georgia Public Service Commission; tax assessor's office; housing authority; employer; professional or trade association; labor union; professional or trade licensing board; or credit bureau or agency. Information furnished by a telephone company, however, shall be limited to the address and telephone number of an obligor or obligee.

(c) The IV-D agency may request from any employer or other person or entity providing a source of income which the IV-D agency has reason to believe employs an obligor or obligee or otherwise provides the obligor or obligee with regular periodic income information concerning the dates and amounts of income paid, the last known address, social security number, and available health care benefits. The IV-D agency shall not inquire of an employer or other person or entity providing a source of income concerning the same obligor or obligee more than once every three months.

(d) The department upon receipt of information collected pursuant to this Code section may make such information available only to the appropriate officials or agency of this state or any other state operating a program pursuant to Title IV-D of the federal Social Security Act. Information collected by the department pursuant to this Code section shall not be subject to public inspection or disclosure under Article 4 of Chapter 18 of Title 50.

(e) No employer or other person or entity providing a source of income who complies with this Code section shall be liable in any civil action or proceeding brought by the obligor or obligee on account of such compliance.

(f) Responses pursuant to this Code section may be made by paper, facsimile, magnetic tape, or other electronic means.

(g) The failure of any individual or entity, without reasonable cause, to provide the IV-D agency with the information requested under this Code section within 14 days after such information is requested or a willful false response to a request pursuant to this Code section shall be punishable by a penalty to be assessed by the IV-D agency or by a court of competent jurisdiction in the amount of $100.00 for each such failure or false response. (Code 1981, § 19-11-9.1, enacted by Ga. L. 1987, p. 1114, § 1; Ga. L. 1988, p. 13, § 19; Ga. L. 1991, p. 950, § 5; Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 25; Ga. L. 2002, p. 1247, § 5; Ga. L. 2003, p. 415, § 5; Ga. 19-11-9.2. Duty of employers to report hiring or rehiring of persons.

(a) Employers doing business in the State of Georgia shall report to the Georgia state support registry managed by the Department of Human Services:

(1) The hiring of any person who resides or works in this state to whom the employer anticipates paying earnings; and

(2) The hiring or return to work of any employee who was laid off, furloughed, separated, granted leave without pay, or terminated from employment.

(b) Reserved.

(c) Employers may report by mailing the employee's copy of the W-4 form or other means authorized by the registry which will result in timely reporting. Employers shall submit reports within ten days of the hiring, rehiring, or return to work of the employee. The report shall contain:

(1) The employee's name, address, social security number, and date of birth; and

(2) The employer's name, address, and employment security number or unified business identifier number.

An employer who fails to report as required under this Code section shall be given a written warning.

(d) Except that access to information shall be made available as provided in subsections (f), (g), and (h) of this Code section, the registry shall retain the information for a particular employee only if the registry is responsible for establishing, enforcing, or collecting a support obligation or debt of the employee. If the employee does not owe such an obligation or a debt, the registry shall not create a record regarding the employee and the information contained in the notice shall be promptly destroyed.

(e) The department in cooperation with any other affected department may adopt rules to establish additional exemptions from this Code section if needed to reduce unnecessary or burdensome reporting.

(f) The department shall be entitled to have access to this employment registry for the limited purposes of determining eligibility for needs based programs provided by the department, including, but not limited to, the Temporary Assistance for Needy Families program and the food stamp program.

(g) The Department of Labor shall be entitled to have access to this employment registry for the limited purpose of determining the employment status of persons applying for or receiving unemployment compensation benefits and for the collection of delinquent unemployment contributions and overpayment of unemployment benefits.

(h) The Department of Human Services shall administer this registry and shall provide computer access to the authorized users. The Department of Human Services shall be authorized to apportion the costs of the registry between the users. (Code 1981, § 19-11-9.2, enacted by Ga. L. 1993, p. 1983, § 2; Ga. For note on 1993 enactment of this Code

19-11-9.3. Suspension or denial of license for noncompliance with child support order; interagency agreements; report to General Assembly; duty to inform obligors.

(a) As used in this Code section, the term:

(1) “Agency” means the agency within the Department of Human Services which is responsible for enforcing orders for child support pursuant to this article.

(2) “Applicant” means any person applying for issuance or renewal of a license.

(3) “Certified list” means a list provided by the agency of the names of support obligors found to be not in compliance with an order for child support in a case being enforced under this article.

(4) “Compliance with an order for child support” means, as set forth in a court order, administrative order, or contempt order for child support, the obligor is not more than 60 calendar days in arrears in making payments in full for current support, periodic payments on a support arrearage, or periodic payments on a reimbursement for public assistance.

(5) “Delinquent obligor” means any obligor who is not in compliance with an order for child support and who appears on the agency’s certified list.

(6) “Department” means the Department of Human Services.

(7) “License” means a certificate, permit, registration, or any other authorization issued by any licensing entity that allows a person to operate a motor vehicle or to engage in a profession, business, or occupation.

(8) “Licensee” means any person holding a license.

(9) “Licensing entity” means any state agency, department, or board of this state which issues or renews any license, certificate, permit, or registration to authorize a person to drive a motor vehicle, or to engage in a profession, business, or occupation including those under Article 3 of Chapter 7 of Title 2, the “Georgia Pesticide Use and Application Act of 1976”; Article 13 of Chapter 1 of Title 7, relating to mortgage lenders and mortgage brokers; Chapter 5 of Title 10, the “Georgia Uniform Securities Act of 2008,” relating to securities salespersons and investment adviser representatives; Part 2 of Article 1 of Chapter 6 of Title 12, relating to foresters; Chapter 4 of Title 26, relating to pharmacists; Chapter 23 of Title 33, relating to insurance agents, counselors, and other personnel; Chapter 1 of Title 43, relating to professions and businesses; Chapter 39A of Title 43, relating to real estate appraisers; or Chapter 40 of Title 43, relating to real estate brokers and salespersons.

(b) The agency shall maintain a state-wide certified list of those persons included in any case enforced under this article for whom an order for child support has been rendered and who are not in compliance with that order. The certified list must be updated on a monthly basis. The agency shall submit to each licensing entity a certified list with the name, social security number, if known, date of birth, and last known address of each person on the list.

(c) On or before January 1, 1997, all licensing entities shall implement procedures to accept and process the list provided by the agency in accordance with this Code section.

(d) Promptly after receiving the certified list from the agency, all licensing entities shall determine whether an applicant or licensee is on the most recent certified list. If an applicant or licensee is on the certified list, the licensing entity shall immediately notify the agency. That notification shall include the applicant's or licensee's last known mailing address on file with the licensing entity.

(e) After receiving notice from a licensing entity of applicants or licensees who are on the certified list, the agency shall immediately notify those individuals as specified in subsection (f) of this Code section of the agency's intent to request that all pertinent licensing entities suspend all licenses or withhold issuance or renewal of any license.

(f) Notice for purposes of this Code section shall be initiated by the department. Notice to the delinquent obligor shall include the address and telephone number of the agency and shall inform the delinquent obligor of the agency's intent to submit the obligor's name to relevant licensing entities and to request that the licensing entities withhold issuance or renewal of the license, or suspend the license. Notice shall be sent by first-class mail and receipt by the delinquent obligor may be presumed if the mailing is not returned to the department within 30 days from the date of mailing. The notice must also inform the delinquent obligor of the following:

(1) The delinquent obligor has 20 days from the date of mailing to come into compliance with the order or to reach an agreement to pay the delinquency with the agency. If an agreement cannot be reached within that time or if the delinquent obligor does not respond within that time, the agency will send notice to the licensing entities requesting that the licenses be suspended or the licensure applications be denied;

(2) The obligor may request an administrative hearing and judicial review of that hearing under subsection (g) of this Code section. A request for a hearing must be made in writing and must be received by the agency within 20 days of service of notice; and

(3) If the delinquent obligor requests a hearing within 20 days of service, the department shall stay all action pending the hearing and any appeals.

(g) If no response is received from the delinquent obligor by the department within 30 days from the date of mailing of the notice and the delinquent obligor is still shown as delinquent on the next month's list prepared pursuant to subsection (b) of this Code section, the department shall request one or more licensing entities to deny or suspend a license of the delinquent obligor. Each licensing entity shall notify the delinquent obligor by certified mail or statutory overnight delivery of the date that the license has been denied or suspended.

(h) All delinquent obligors subject to the sanctions imposed in this Code section shall have the right to a hearing before an administrative law judge of the Office of State Administrative Hearings pursuant to Article 2 of Chapter 13 of Title 50. A delinquent obligor who requests a hearing within the time prescribed in subsection (f) of this Code section shall have the right to a hearing. The hearing shall be conducted as provided in Article 2 of Chapter 13 of Title 50 within 45 days after such demand is received. The only issues at the hearing will be the following:

- (1) Whether there is an order for child support being enforced pursuant to this article;
- (2) Whether the licensee or applicant is the obligor covered by that order;
- (3) Whether the support obligor is or is not in compliance with the order for child support;
- (4) Whether the support obligor shall be entitled to pay past due child support in periodic payments; and
- (5) Whether the support obligor has been able and willing to comply with such order for support.

With respect to the issues listed in this subsection, evidence relating to the ability and willingness of an obligor to comply with such order for support shall be considered in making the decision to either suspend a license or deny the issuance or renewal of a license under this Code section. The administrative law judge shall be authorized to enter into an agreement or enter an order requiring such periodic payments and, in each event, the administrative law judge shall be authorized to issue a release for the obligor to obtain each license or licenses. Such an agreement will not act to modify an existing child support order, but rather only affects the payment of the arrearage.

(i) The decision at the hearing shall be subject to appeal and judicial review pursuant to Article 2 of Chapter 13 of Title 50 but only as to those issues referred to in subsection (h) of this Code section. Notwithstanding any hearing requirements for suspension and denials within each licensing entity, the hearing and appeal procedures outlined in this Code section shall be the only hearing required to suspend a license or deny the issuance or renewal of a license under this Code section.

(j) The department shall prescribe release forms for use by the agency. When the obligor is determined to be in compliance with an order for child support or is determined to be not in compliance with such order but has been determined in a hearing pursuant to subsection (h) of this Code section to be unable to comply with the order or to be not willfully out of compliance with such order, the agency shall mail to the delinquent obligor and the appropriate licensing entity a notice of release stating such determination. The receipt of a notice of release shall serve to notify the delinquent obligor and the licensing entity that, for the purpose of this Code section, he or she is in compliance with an order for child support, and the licensing entity shall promptly thereafter issue or reinstate the license, unless the agency, pursuant to subsection (b) of this Code section, certifies subsequent to the issuance of a notice of release that the delinquent obligor is once again not in compliance with an order for child support.

(k) Any payments received by the department on behalf of a child support recipient under this Code section shall be forwarded to such recipient within 15 days after any such payment is received by the department.

(l) The department may enter into interagency agreements with state agencies that have responsibility for the administration of licensing entities as necessary to implement this Code section. Those agreements shall provide for the receipt by other state agencies and boards of federal funds to cover that portion of costs allowable under federal law and regulation and incurred by state agencies and boards in implementing this Code section.

(m) In furtherance of the public policy of increasing child support enforcement and collections, on or before January 1, 1998, the department shall make a report to the General Assembly and the Governor based on data collected by the boards and the department in a format prescribed by the department. The report shall contain all of the following:

(1) The number of delinquent obligors certified by the agency under this Code section;

(2) The number of delinquent obligors who also were applicants for issuance or renewal of a license or licensees subject to this Code section;

(3) The number of new licenses and renewals that were denied subject to this Code section and the number of new licenses issued and renewals granted following a licensing entity's receipt of releases;

(4) The number of licenses suspended subject to this Code section, and the number of licenses reissued following the licensing entity's receipt of releases; and

(5) The amount of revenue collected by the department after sending notices pursuant to this Code section.

(n) Any licensing entity receiving an inquiry as to the license status of an applicant who has had an application for issuance or renewal of a license denied under this Code section shall respond only that the license was suspended or the licensure application was denied pursuant to this Code section.

(o) The department shall, and the licensing entities as appropriate may, adopt regulations necessary to implement this Code section.

(p) The department shall inform delinquent obligors of resources available which may remedy such delinquent obligor's license suspension. (Code 1981, § 19-11-9.3, enacted by Ga. L. 1996, p. 453, § 7; Ga. L. 1999, p. 81, § 19; Ga. L. 1999, p. 329, § 5; Ga. L. 2000, p. 1589, § 3; Ga. L. 2004, p. 631, § 19; Ga. L. 2008, p. 381, § 10/SB 358; Ga. JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Driver's license suspension. — In a case charging the defendant with driving with a suspended license, the defendant's argument that the state failed to prove that the defendant had notice of the defendant's driver's license suspension under O.C.G.A. § 19-11-9.3(f), (f)(1) of the Child Support Recovery Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-11-1 et seq., was without merit since the offense of driving while suspended was separate and distinct from the offenses which led to the suspension and since any challenge to the Georgia Department of Human Resources' suspension of the defendant's license was governed by the Administrative Procedure Act and O.C.G.A. § 19-11-9.3(f)(2), (h). Fannin v. State, 267 Ga. App. 413, 599 S.E.2d 355 (2004).

19-11-10. Investigation to determine ability to support; notification of parent; information forms; penalty for falsifying parents' report.

(a) In cases in which a parent's obligation to support has not already been established by a court order, the department may conduct investigations to determine whether a responsible parent is able to support the dependent child receiving public assistance. The department shall notify the parents of any such planned investigation.

(b) The department shall notify the parent of his legal duty to support his child or children and shall request information concerning his financial status in order to determine whether he is financially able to provide support.

(c) The notice shall inform the parent that he may be liable for reimbursement of any support furnished prior to determination of his financial circumstances as well as future support.

(d) Information requested shall be submitted on forms prescribed by the department and shall contain a sworn declaration of income, resources, and other matters bearing on the parent's ability to provide support. The department shall review the forms returned by each obligor and supplement the information provided therein, where required.

(e) Any person who knowingly falsifies the parent's report of his income and resources shall be punished as for false swearing. (Ga. L. 1973, p. 192, §§ 9, 10; Ga. L. 1976, p. 1537, § 8.)

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Parent must be informed of duty to support. — When parents are divorced and custody is awarded to one parent, the parent not having custody must be notified by the state of his or her duty to support and of the application for Aid to Families with Dependent Children payments even when the department does not make an investigation of the parent's ability to support under O.C.G.A. § 19-11-10. Burns v. Swinney, 252 Ga. 461, 314 S.E.2d 440 (1984).

When parents are divorced and custody is awarded to one parent, when the parent not having custody has not been ordered by any court to pay child support, and when the nonpaying parent's address is known or can be ascertained, the state must notify the parent of the duty of support and of the application for Aid to Family for Dependent Children payments before such parent becomes obligated to reimburse the state for such payment. Department of Human Resources v. John- son, 175 Ga. App. 610, 333 S.E.2d 845 (1985).

No recovery by department against putative father. — Department was not entitled to recover public assistance payments from putative father since his obligation to support had not been established by a court order, and there had not even been an adjudication of paternity. Gresham v. Georgia Dep't of Human Resources, 257 Ga. 747, 363 S.E.2d 544 (1988).

Notice to alleged father of duty to support. — Department of Human Resources may not recover public assistance payments made on the child's behalf prior to the defendant's first receiving notice that the Department of Human Resources intends to hold him liable. Gresham v. Georgia Dep't of Human Resources, 257 Ga. 747, 363 S.E.2d 544 (1988).

Agreement that each parent supports only child in his/her custody not enforceable. — When divorced parents agree to the terms of a divorce settlement in which each parent has custody of one of two children and therefore no obligation to pay child support, this term of the agreement is not enforceable, and the Department of Human Resources may obtain reimbursement from the father for aid to families with dependent children payments for maintenance of the child in the mother's custody. Collins v. Collins, 172 Ga. App. 748, 324 S.E.2d 475 (1985).

19-11-11. Issuance of subpoenas by department; court order requiring compliance.

The department may examine any books, papers, or memoranda bearing upon the determination of the ability to support and for this purpose may, by means of subpoenas issued by its commissioner or his duly authorized representative, compel the attendance of witnesses and the production of relevant documents. Subpoenas of witnesses shall be served in the same manner as if issued by a superior court. If any person fails to obey a subpoena issued and served under this Code section with respect to any matter germane to the department's investigation, on application of the department, through the commissioner of human services or his duly authorized representative, the superior court of the county in which the person was required to appear may issue an order requiring the person to comply with the subpoena and to testify and to produce the relevant documents. (Ga. L. 1973, p. 192, § 10; Ga. L. 1976, p. 1537, § 9; Ga. L. 2009, p. 453, § 2-4/HB 228.)

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Compelling disclosure of employment information. — Office of child support recovery must obtain an administrative subpoena or use the discovery provisions of the Civil Practice Act,

O.C.G.A. Ch. 11, T. 9, in order to examine documents in the possession of employers when the employer will not voluntarily release the information. 1984 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U84-33.

19-11-12. Review of orders for child support; review procedures; order adjusting support award amount; no release from liability due to subsequent financial obligation.

(a) The IV-D agency shall review orders for child support in accordance with the guidelines prescribed in Code Section 19-6-15.

(b)(1) The IV-D agency shall periodically give notice to the obligor and obligee who are subject to a IV-D court order for child support of the right of each to request a review of the order by the IV-D agency for possible recommendation for adjustment of such order. Such notification should be provided within 36 months after the establishment of the order or the most recent review; however, failure to provide the notice within 36 months shall not affect the right of either party to request, in writing, a review nor the right of the IV-D agency to conduct a review and to recommend an adjustment to the order. Such notice may be included in the initial order or review recommendation.

(2) The establishment of a child support order or the entry of an order to modify a child support order or a determination of no change to a child support order under this Code section shall commence a 36 month cycle, the purpose of which is to provide the parties the right to a review of the order at least every 36 months or in such shorter cycle as the IV-D agency may determine. The failure of either party to request a review at least once every 36 months shall not affect the right of either party to request a review nor the right of the IV-D agency to conduct a review and to recommend an adjustment to the order at any time beyond the 36 month cycle.

(c)(1) All IV-D agency orders that are active TANF cases shall be reviewed under this Code section following the expiration of the thirty-sixth month after the order was issued, without a request from the obligor or obligee. All other orders for support being enforced by a IV-D agency shall be eligible for review pursuant to this Code section upon application and payment of fees required by the IV-D agency at the completion of the review.

(2) If the request for the review occurs less than 36 months since the last issuance or last review of the order, the IV-D agency shall review, and if the requesting party demonstrates a substantial change in circumstances, seek to modify the order in accordance with the guidelines as provided by paragraph (2) of subsection (d) of this Code section.

(3) If the request for the review occurs at least 36 months after the last issuance or last review, the requesting party shall not be required to demonstrate a substantial change in circumstances, the need for additional support, or that the needs of the child have decreased. The sole basis for a recommendation for a change in the award of support under this paragraph shall be a significant inconsistency between the existing child support order and the amount of child support which would result from the application of Code Section 19-6-15.

(d)(1) The IV-D agency shall notify the obligor and obligee at least 30 days before the commencement of a review of a child support order.

(2) The IV-D agency shall review and, if there is a significant inconsistency between the amount of the existing child support order and the amount of child support which would result from the application of Code Section 19-6-15, the agency shall make a recommendation for an increase or decrease in the amount of an existing order for support. The IV-D agency shall not be deemed to be representing either the obligee or obligor in a proceeding under this Code section.

(3) Upon completion of a review, the IV-D agency shall send notice by first-class mail to the obligor and obligee at their last known addresses of a proposed adjustment or a determination that there should be no change in the child support award amount.

(4)(A) In the case of an administrative order, the agency shall request the administrative law judge to increase or decrease the amount in the existing order in accordance with the agency recommendation. If either the obligor or the obligee files with the agency written objections to the agency's proposed child support order adjustment or determination of no change to the child support order within 33 days of the mailed notice, the matter shall be scheduled for an administrative hearing within the Office of State Administrative Hearings. The administrative order adjusting the child support award amount which results from a hearing or the failure to object to the agency's proposed adjustment or determination of no change shall, upon filing with the local clerk of the court, have the full effect of a modification of the original order or decree of support. As part of the order adjusting the child support award the administrative law judge shall issue an income and earnings deduction order which shall also be filed with the court pursuant to Code Sections 19-6-30 through 19-6-33.

(B) In the case of a judicial order, the agency shall file a petition asking the court to adopt the agency's proposed adjustment or determination of no change to the child support order which shall be filed contemporaneously with the agency's mailed notice and shall serve such petition upon the obligor and obligee in the manner provided in subsection (e) of Code Section 9-11-4. Upon the filing of a written objection to the agency's proposed adjustment or determination of no change with the clerk of the superior court and with the agency, a de novo proceeding shall be scheduled with the court on the matter. If neither party files an objection within 30 days from the service of the petition, the court shall issue an order adopting the recommendation of the IV-D agency. As part of the order adjusting the child support award, the court shall issue an income and earnings deduction order pursuant to Code Sections 19-6-30 through 19-6-33.

(e) When the trier of fact, the administrative law judge for administrative orders, or a judge of the superior court for court orders, as the case may be, determines that there is a significant inconsistency between the existing child support order and the amount of child support which would result from the application of Code Section 19-6-15, the trier of fact may use this inconsistency as the basis to increase or decrease the amount of support ordered. The trier of fact may also address the repayment of any arrears accumulated under the existing order.

(f) An obligor shall not be relieved of his or her duty to provide support when such obligor has brought about his or her own unstable financial condition by voluntarily incurring subsequent obligations.

(g) The department shall be authorized to promulgate rules and regulations to implement the provisions of this Code section. (Ga. L. 1973, p. 192, § 11; Ga. L. 1976, p. 1537, § 10; Ga. L. 1989, p. 861, § 4; Ga. L. 1996, p. 412, § 3; Ga. L. 1997, p. 1021, § 8; Ga. L. 1999, p. 81, § 19; Ga. L. 1999, p. 906, § 1; Ga. L. 2003, p. 415, §§ 6, 7, 8; Ga. L. 2004, p. 631, § 19; Ga. JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Regulation inconsistent with section. — A regulation of the Department of Human Resources (DHR) requiring the court to enter an order adopting an administrative order adjusting an existing court award of child support was inconsistent with the clear authority of O.C.G.A. § 19-11-12 and, thus, the court did not err by denying a petition by DHR for an order adopting an administrative order as provided by the regulation. Department of Human Resources v. Anderson, 218 Ga. App. 528, 462 S.E.2d 439 (1995).

Construction with § 19-6-19. — Fact that jury trials are allowed in private child support modification proceedings under O.C.G.A. § 19-6-19, but denied in modification proceedings under O.C.G.A. § 19-11-12, does not create a separate classification for litigants in proceedings under that section in violation of equal protection rights. Kelley v. Georgia Dep’t of Human Resources ex rel. Kelley, 269 Ga. 384, 498 S.E.2d 741 (1998).

Modification of child support arising out of a Department of Human Resources review under O.C.G.A. § 19-11-12 invokes the supreme court’s divorce and alimony jurisdiction because appeals from orders in proceedings for modification of a child support award which arose from a prior divorce or alimony action, regardless of the code section under which the modification was pursued, are subject to the jurisdiction of the supreme court, and an action for child support modification under § 19-11-12 is neither inconsistent with, nor materially distinguishable from, a modification action under O.C.G.A. § 19-6-19, such that the former, unlike the latter, does not invoke the supreme court's jurisdiction; an award of child support always constitutes alimony if it is made in a divorce decree proceeding, but it may or may not represent alimony outside the divorce context, and the supreme court has jurisdiction over a case involving an original claim for child support that arose in either a divorce or alimony proceeding. Spurlock v. Dep't of Human Res., 286 Ga. 512, 690 S.E.2d 378 (2010).

Department's modification of a court-ordered child support obligation was not authorized by O.C.G.A. § 19-11-12. Department of Human Resources v. Siggers, 219 Ga. App. 1, 463 S.E.2d 544 (1995); Department of Human Resources v. Jones, 219 Ga. App. 580, 472 S.E.2d 331 (1996).

Modification below guidelines permitted, but no forgiveness of arrearages. — While the trial court did not erroneously set a mother's child support obligation at a percentage well below the guidelines, the court lacked the authority to completely forgive the mother's arrearage as the General Assembly did not intend to permit forgiveness of past-due child support arrearage, regardless of whether the modification proceeding fell under the general statutory scheme or the Child Support Recovery Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-11-1 et seq. Ga. Dep't of Human Res. v. Prater, 278 Ga. App. 900, 630 S.E.2d 145 (2006).

State agency's standing to seek downward child support modification. — State legislature did not intend to give a state agency the power to seek child support to the same extent that a parent can do so; thus, there existed a total absence of any statutory authority or case law to permit the state agency's initial participation in a case for the purpose of a downward modification action on behalf of a non-custodial parent. Accordingly, the state agency's authority to bring a downward modification action under O.C.G.A.

§ 19-11-12 is limited to cases in which there is a prior court order establishing or enforcing a child support obligation which the state agency participated in obtaining. Dep't of Human Res. v. Allison, 276 Ga. 175, 575 S.E.2d 876 (2003).

Department's failure to follow procedures. — Department of Human Resources' filing of a petition to establish a child support obligation when one already existed under the divorce decree and the department's failure to follow the specific procedures set forth in O.C.G.A. § 19-11-12 for modifying a child support obligation was not harmless error. Ward v. Department of Human Resources, 273 Ga. 52, 537 S.E.2d 70 (2000).

Jury trial. — There is neither a fundamental constitutional nor a statutory right to a trial by jury in a child support modification proceeding brought under O.C.G.A. § 19-11-12. Kelley v. Georgia Dep't of Human Resources ex rel. Kelley, 269 Ga. 384, 498 S.E.2d 741 (1998).

Appeal. — Father's appeal from the superior court's order under O.C.G.A. § 19-11-12, modifying the amount of his child support obligation, should have been brought as a discretionary appeal under O.C.G.A. § 5-6-35. Fitzgerald v. Department of Human Resources, 231 Ga. App. 129, 497 S.E.2d 659 (1998).

Impact of 2003 amendment. — In the 2003 amendments to the Child Support Recovery Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-11-1 et seq., the General Assembly unambiguously broadened the legislature's intent, expressly permitting the Department of Human Resources to accept applications for child support services from non-custodial parents and to review, and even to seek downward modifications of, support awards under the provisions of the Act. Falkenberry v. Taylor, 278 Ga. 842, 607 S.E.2d 567 (2005).

Need for additional support not required. — When the Department of Human Resources petitions the superior court to adopt the department's recommendation, the court is not required to find a need for additional support but, without regard to whether the child is receiving public assistance, may increase child support based solely on a significant inconsistency between the existing order and the amount which would result from application of the child support guidelines. Falkenberry v. Taylor, 278 Ga. 842, 607 S.E.2d 567 (2005).

In a child support modification action, the trial court erred in concluding that evidence of the need for additional support was necessary and that the Department of Human Resources (DHR) lacked standing to file a modification action on behalf of a child not receiving public assistance unless it could show the child's need for additional support, and in failing to apply the child support guidelines of O.C.G.A. § 19-6-15 and to justify any departure therefrom; by express statutory amendment, the General Assembly no longer reserved for the private bar those modification actions which involved children who did not receive public assistance and needed no additional support, but whose court-ordered provider enjoyed an enhanced financial status. Falkenberry v. Taylor, 278 Ga. 842, 607 S.E.2d 567 (2005) (Unpublished).

Written findings insufficient. — Trial court erred in not fully adopting the recommendation of the Department of Human Resources to reduce a father's child support obligation to $718 per month and in ordering that the father's child support obligation be reduced to $1,000 per month because the trial court's written order failed to state how application of the presumptive amount of child support would be unjust or inappropriate and how the best interest of the children for whom support was being determined would be served by the deviation pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 19-6-15(c)(2)(E) and (i)(1)(B); O.C.G.A. § 19-11-12(e) does not authorize the trial court to refrain from written findings or any other compliance with § 19-6-15 because like § 19-6-15(d), § 19-11-12(e) serves to emphasize that the qualitative determinations of whether special circumstances make the presumptive amount of child support excessive or inadequate and whether deviating from the presumptive amount serves the best interest of the child are committed to the discretion of the court. Spurlock v. Dep't of Human Res., 286 Ga. 512, 690 S.E.2d 378 (2010).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Constitutionality. — Administrative review does not, in and of itself, work a modification of a pre-existing child support order; rather, modification occurs only upon judicial adoption of the administrative decision. Thus, O.C.G.A. § 19-11-12 does not violate the separation of powers provision of the Georgia Constitution of 1983. 1990 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U90-24.

Because O.C.G.A. § 19-11-12 provides that the modification process be made available to both the absent parent and the custodial parent, and that adjustment of the child support award may be either upward or downward, the equal protection requirements of both the federal and state constitutions are met. 1990 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U90-24.

Construed with § 19-6-19. — O.C.G.A. § 19-11-12 and its provisions do not prejudice or otherwise affect a right to employ the modification of child support remedy available under O.C.G.A. § 19-6-19. 1990 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U90-24.

O.C.G.A. § 19-11-12 does not create a conflict of interest for public employees participating in modification of child support orders because department employees are presumed to do their duty. Any bias which might appear in a particular case may be challenged by the aggrieved person either through a fair hearing or in superior court. 1990 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U90-24.

Upon proper disclosure to both the absent parent and the custodial parent that a district attorney represents the department in child support matters, there is no legal conflict of interest. 1990 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U90-24.

19-11-13. Determination of paternity; acknowledgment under oath; legal proceedings.

Whenever the department receives an application for services under this article on behalf of a child born out of wedlock and the child's mother identifies in writing the putative father of the child, the department may make an investigation of the surrounding circumstances and may request that the putative father acknowledge paternity under oath. If the department is unable to secure such an acknowledgment, the department may initiate legal proceedings to establish the paternity of the child, unless the department determines, in accordance with standards prescribed pursuant to the federal Social Security Act, that it is against the best interests of the child to do so. JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Establishment of paternity is not jurisdictional under the Child Support Recovery Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-11-1 et seq., but rather it is only an essential element without proof of which recovery may not be effected. Department of Human Re-

19-11-14. Father's liability for support of child born out of wedlock; full faith and credit to paternity determination by another state.

(a) Whenever a man has been adjudicated by a court of competent jurisdiction or an administrative tribunal as the father of a child born out of wedlock or whenever he has acknowledged paternity under oath in an administrative hearing, in court, or by verified writing, he shall be legally liable for the support of the child in the same manner as he would owe the duty of support if the child were his child born in wedlock. The right of the child born out of wedlock to receive such support is enforceable in a civil action, notwithstanding any other provision of law.

(b) For the purposes of this chapter only, the courts of this state shall give full faith and credit to a determination of paternity made by another state whether established through voluntary acknowledgment or through administrative or judicial processes. JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Effect of conviction of abandonment on subsequent paternity suit. — Adjudication of paternity by conviction of abandonment is conclusive in subsequent civil proceeding for child support. Cummings v. Carter, 155 Ga. App. 688, 272 S.E.2d 552 (1980).

Liability for period prior to paternity adjudication. — Trial court erred in refusing to award back support to the mother of a child for those periods prior to an adjudication of paternity when she had been supporting the child without the benefit of public assistance payments. Weaver v. Chester, 195 Ga. App. 471, 393 S.E.2d 715 (1990).

Support unavailable for non-acknowledged paternity. — Temporary child support was improperly ordered absent a finding of paternity as revealed by a document, which though containing the defendant's signature identifying himself as the child's father for purposes of adoption-release, did not contain a sworn admission to that effect. Hughes v. Dulock, 207 Ga. App. 492, 428 S.E.2d 406 (1993).

19-11-15. Voluntary support agreement; notice and hearing; notice of final determination; information to be included therein.

(a) When the department has completed its investigation, has determined the ability of the absent parent to support his or her child or children in accordance with guidelines prescribed in Code Section 19-6-15, and believes that the absent parent is able to furnish a certain amount of support, the department may, as an exception to Code Section 9-12-18, request the absent parent to enter into a proposed consent order and income deduction order to provide the support amount and accident and sickness insurance coverage consistent with Code Section 19-11-26 prior to the filing of an action with the superior court. The orders may not be set aside on the grounds that the parties consented thereto prior to the filing of the action. An income deduction order shall issue consistent with Code Sections 19-6-30 through 19-6-34. If the department is unable to secure a proposed consent order from the parent, the department may file an action in superior court or may initiate an administrative action pursuant to Chapter 13 of Title 50, the "Georgia Administrative Procedure Act."

(b) The administrative hearing shall be conducted within 20 days of the filing date, the absent parent shall be notified of the hearing at least ten days before it is held, and the hearing decision shall issue not more than ten days after the hearing.

(c) The determination of the administrative law judge regarding the ability to provide support and the ability to provide accident and sickness insurance coverage shall be delivered to the absent parent personally or shall be sent by regular mail. The final order shall include an order for income deduction consistent with Code Sections 19-6-30 through 19-6-34, and shall inform the absent parent in plain language:

(1) That failure to support may result in the foreclosure of liens on his or her personal or real property, in garnishment of his or her wages or other personalty, or in other collection actions; and

(2) That the absent parent has the right to appeal the determination within 30 days.

(d) The final administrative order for support shall have the full force and effect of an order of a superior court of this state and shall be enforceable upon filing with such court under an action for contempt. All other remedies available under the law shall be available for the enforcement of such administrative orders. (Ga. L. 1973, p. 192, §§ 11, 12; Ga. L. 1976, p. 1537, § 12; Ga. 19-11-15.1. Information required to be given to individuals receiving services.

The IV-D agency shall provide individuals who are applying for or receiving services under this article, or who are parties to cases in which services are being provided under this article, with the following:

(1) Notice, pursuant to Title IV-D of the Social Security Act and regulations thereunder, of all proceedings in which support obligations might be established or modified; and

(2) A copy of any order establishing or modifying a child support obligation or, in the case of a request for review or modification, a notice of determination that there should be no change in the amount of the child support award within 14 days after issuance of such order or determination. (Code 1981, § 19-11-15.1, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 27.)

19-11-16. Periodic redeterminations and reinvestigations.

The department may conduct periodic redeterminations and reinvestigations of the ability of the parent to furnish support. Any initial determination of the ability to support or any increase in the amount of support shall be subject to the same procedure as determinations under Code Section 19-11-15. (Ga. L. 1973, p. 192, § 13.)

19-11-17. Redetermination at request of parent; time for hearing.

Whenever a parent has been determined able to support his child pursuant to Code Section 19-11-15 or 19-11-16 but is unable to provide the support because of a change in circumstances, he may demand a hearing for redetermination. The department shall hold the hearing within 30 days after receiving the request. (Ga. L. 1973, p. 192, § 14.)

19-11-18. Collection procedures; notice; judicial review.

(a) The IV-D agency, in accordance with Title IV, Part D of the federal Social Security Act, is authorized to institute collection procedures for all arrearages which have accrued against child support payments owed pursuant to a judgment or support order of a court or an order from a IV-D agency of competent jurisdiction. These collection procedures shall include, but not be limited to, notification of employers that a wage assignment is in effect and not suspended; notification of obligors; demand letters; use of state and federal income tax refund intercept programs; initiation of contempt proceedings; the use of liens, levies, and seizures as provided in subsections (b) and (c) of this Code section; the use of the services of any person providing collection services to the department; seeking warrants in appropriate situations; attachment or lien against property; civil actions to reach and apply; and any other civil or administrative remedy available for the enforcement of judgments or for the enforcement of support or custody orders.

(b)(1) A child support obligation which is unpaid in whole or in part shall, as of the date on which it was due, be a lien in favor of the obligee in an amount sufficient to satisfy unpaid child support, whether the amount due is a fixed sum or is accruing periodically. An amount of restitution established by a court or an administrative agency of competent jurisdiction shall be due and payable as of the date such amount is established. Such lien shall incorporate any additional child support obligation on the date it becomes due and shall not terminate except as provided in paragraph (5) of this subsection. Upon recordation or registration in accordance with paragraph (3) of this subsection, such lien shall encumber all tangible and intangible property, whether real or personal, and any interest in property, whether legal or equitable, belonging to the obligor. An interest in property acquired by the obligor after the child support lien arises shall be subject to such lien, subject to the limitations provided in paragraphs (3) and (5) of this subsection.

(2) When the IV-D agency determines that child support is unpaid, it shall send written notice to the obligor by first-class mail, if the address is known to the IV-D agency, no less frequently than once a year. The notice shall specify the amount unpaid as of the date of the notice or other date certain and the right of the obligor to request an administrative review by filing a written request with the IV-D agency within 30 days of the date of the notice. If the obligor files a timely written request for an administrative review, the IV-D agency shall conduct the review within 21 days of said request and shall not conduct further administrative enforcement action under this subsection until the review is completed. If the obligor has failed to keep the IV-D agency informed of his or her address as required by Code Section 19-6-32 and the agency cannot otherwise determine the current address of the obligor from other available information, the agency may proceed under the provisions of paragraph (4) of this subsection.

(3) The filing of a notice of a lien or of a waiver or release of a lien shall be received and registered or recorded without payment of a fee. The IV-D agency may file notice of a lien or waiver or release of a lien or may transmit information to, or receive information from, any registry of deeds or other office or agency responsible for the filing or recording of liens by any means, including electronic means. The perfected lien shall not be subordinate to any recorded lien except a lien that has been perfected before the date on which the child support lien was perfected; provided, however, that the IV-D agency may, upon request of the obligor, subordinate the child support lien to a subsequently perfected lien, security deed, or mortgage. To assist in the collection of a debt, the IV-D agency may disclose the name of an obligor against whom a lien has arisen and other identifying information including the existence of the lien and the amount of the outstanding obligation. A notice of a lien shall be filed as follows:

(A) With respect to real property, the IV-D agency shall file notice of a lien in the county where property is located or in the county where the obligor resides. The social security number of the obligor shall be noted on the notice of lien. The filing shall operate to perfect a lien when duly recorded and indexed in the grantor index or when registered, as the case may be, as to any interest in real property owned by the obligor that is located in the county where the lien is recorded or registered. A special index for liens created under this chapter shall be maintained in each registry of deeds. If the obligor subsequently acquires an interest in real property, the lien shall be perfected upon the recording or registering of the instrument by which such interest is obtained in the registry of deeds in the county where the notice of the lien was filed within six years prior thereto. A child support lien shall be perfected as to real property when both the notice thereof and a deed or other instrument in the name of the obligor are on file in the registry of deeds where the obligor owns property without respect to whether the lien or the deed or other instrument was recorded or registered first;

(B) With respect to personal property except motor vehicles, the IV-D agency may also file notice of a child support lien with the social security number of the obligor noted thereon with the Secretary of State or office or agency responsible for the filing or recording of liens; and

(C) With respect to motor vehicles for which a certificate of title is required pursuant to Chapter 3 of Title 40, the IV-D agency may file notice of a child support lien with the social security number of the obligor noted thereon with the Department of Revenue. A child support lien shall become perfected as of the date a certificate of title showing the child support lien is issued by the department and the permanent records of the department are changed to reflect such lien. A filed or recorded but unperfected child support lien shall be valid against the obligor. A filed or recorded but unperfected child support lien shall not constitute actual or constructive notice to and shall not be valid against owners of the motor vehicle who are not the obligor and shall not constitute actual or constructive notice to and shall not be valid against individuals or entities which become transferees of the motor vehicle prior to perfection, creditors of the obligor, or holders of security interests or liens in the motor vehicle which have been perfected in accordance with Chapter 3 of Title 40 prior to perfection of the child support lien. A child support lien perfected as provided in this subparagraph shall be subordinate to any security interest or lien which has been perfected prior to the perfection of the child support lien and shall be subordinate to mechanic's liens regardless of when perfected.

(4) If the collection of any unpaid child support will be jeopardized by delay as determined by the commissioner of human services or his or her designee, the IV-D agency shall proceed forthwith to collect such unpaid child support by perfecting a lien under paragraph (3) of this subsection or by executing levy or seizure of property under paragraph (1) of subsection (c) of this Code section or by any other available remedy without respect to the 30 day notice period provided in paragraph (2) of this subsection.

(5) A lien under this chapter shall expire upon payment in full of the unpaid child support covered by the lien, upon release of the lien by the IV-D agency, or six years from the date on which such lien was first perfected, whichever is earlier. Expiration of the lien shall not terminate the underlying order or judgment of child support. Liens may be extended for additional periods of six years each by recording or registering, within one year before the expiration of the unexpired lien, a further notice of the lien, as provided in paragraph (3) of this subsection, without affecting the priority of such lien. The IV-D agency may issue a full or partial waiver or release of any lien imposed under this Code section. Such waiver or release shall be conclusive evidence that the lien upon the property covered by the waiver or release is extinguished. The IV-D agency shall issue a release of any lien imposed under this Code section within 30 days of payment in full of the unpaid child support covered by the lien.

(c)(1) If any obligor against whom a lien has arisen and has been perfected under paragraph (3) of subsection (b) of this Code section neglects or refuses to pay the sum due after the expiration of the 30 day notice period specified in paragraph (2) of subsection (b) of this Code section, the IV-D agency may collect such unpaid child support and levy upon all property as provided in this subsection. For the purposes of this subsection, the word "levy" shall include the power of distraint and seizure by any means. A person in possession of property upon which a lien has priority under paragraph (3) of subsection (b) of this Code section which has been perfected shall, upon demand, surrender the property to the IV-D agency as provided in this subsection. A levy on property held by an organization with respect to a life insurance or endowment contract shall, without necessity for surrender of the contract document, constitute a demand by the IV-D agency for payment of the amount of the lien and the exercise of the right of the obligor to the advance of such amount. Such organization shall pay the amount 90 days after service of notice to levy. The levy shall be deemed to be satisfied if the organization pays to the IV-D agency the full amount which the obligor could have had advanced to him or her, provided that the amount does not exceed the amount of the lien.

(2) Whenever any property upon which levy has been made is not sufficient to satisfy the claim of the IV-D agency for which levy is made, the IV-D agency may thereafter, as often as may be necessary, proceed to levy, without further notice, upon any other property of the obligor liable to levy upon first perfecting its lien as provided in paragraph (3) of subsection (b) of this Code section, until the amount due, together with expenses, is fully paid. With respect to a seizure or levy of real property or tangible personal property, the IV-D agency shall proceed in the manner prescribed by Chapter 13 of Title 9 to the extent that such statutes are not inconsistent with the provisions of this subsection. The IV-D agency shall have any rights to property remaining after satisfying superior perfected liens, as provided in paragraph (3) of subsection (b) of this Code section.

(3) Upon demand by the IV-D agency, a person who fails or refuses to surrender property subject to levy pursuant to this subsection shall be liable in his or her own person and estate to the state in a sum equal to the value of the property not so surrendered but not exceeding the amount of the lien, together with costs and interest at the rate due on a judgment from the date of the levy. The interest or costs incurred under this paragraph shall be paid to the state and shall not be credited against the child support liability.

(4) Any person in possession of, or obligated with respect to, property who upon demand by the IV-D agency surrenders the property or discharges the obligation to the IV-D agency or who pays a liability to the obligor under this subsection, shall be discharged from any obligation or liability to the obligor arising from the surrender or payment. In the case of a levy on an organization with respect to a life insurance or endowment contract which is satisfied pursuant to this subsection, the organization shall be discharged from any obligation or liability to any beneficiary arising from the surrender or payment.

(5) In any case where there has been a refusal or neglect to pay child support or to discharge any liability in respect thereto, whether or not a levy has been made, the IV-D agency, in addition to other forms of relief, may file a civil action in the superior court which originally entered the order for child support to enforce the lien under this subsection. The filing of a civil action shall not preclude the IV-D agency from enforcing the child support order through the use of any administrative means permitted by federal or state law.

(d) The IV-D agency shall send timely written notice to the obligor by first-class mail of any action taken to perfect a lien, execute a levy, or seize any property. The notice shall specify the amount due, the steps to be followed to release the property so placed under lien, levied, or seized, the time period within which to respond to such notice, and include the name of the court or administrative agency of competent jurisdiction which entered the child support order.

(e) Any person aggrieved by a determination of the IV-D agency pursuant to paragraph (2) or (4) of subsection (b) of this Code section may, upon exhaustion of the procedures for administrative review provided in subsection (b) of this Code section, seek judicial review in the court where the order or judgment was issued or registered. Commencement of the review shall not stay enforcement of child support under this Code section. The court may review the proceedings taken by the agency under the provisions of this Code section and may correct any mistakes of fact, but the court shall not reduce or retroactively modify child support arrears.

(f) Notwithstanding any other provision of this title to the contrary, any child support being held by the Child Support Enforcement Agency of the department shall be paid to the custodial parent, legal guardian, or caretaker relative having custody of or responsibility for a child within two days from receipt of same by the enforcement agency. Code Commission notes. — Pursuant to Code Section 28-9-5, in 1998, the spelling of the words “constitute” and “constructive” were corrected in subparagraph (b)(3)(C).

The amendment of subsection (f) of this Code section by Ga. L. 2009, p. 453, § 2-2 irreconcilably conflicted with and was treated as superseded by Ga. L. 2009, p. 1001, § 4. See County of Butts v. Strahan, 151 Ga. 417 (1921).

Editor’s notes. — Ga. L. 2009, p. 1001, § 6, not codified by the General Assembly, provides, in part, that the amendment to this Code section shall be applicable to all contracts for private collection of child support payments entered into on or after July 1, 2009.

19-11-19. Garnishment and orders to withhold and deliver; notice and hearing; procedure; liability of employer failing to answer order to withhold and deliver.

(a) For purposes of this Code section, the term:

(1) “Disposable earnings” shall be construed to mean that part of the earnings of an individual remaining after the deduction from those earnings of the amounts otherwise required by law to be withheld plus any premium for group accident and health insurance offered by the employer, if any.

(2) “Earnings” shall be construed to mean compensation paid or payable for personal services, whether denominated as wages, salary, commission, bonus, or otherwise, and includes periodic payments pursuant to pension or retirement programs or insurance policies of any type and includes unemployment compensation.

(b) If, after a court has issued a civil order directing child support be paid, or having received notice of the final determination of his support obligation, or having entered into a written agreement with the department to provide child support as provided in Code Section 19-11-15, the responsible parent fails to make the support payments within 30 days of the due date specified by the court order for child support of a civil nature, by the final determination or by a court order in affirmance of the final determination, or by the written support agreement, then the department shall be entitled to the process of garnishment of disposable earnings as in cases where judgment has been obtained or shall be authorized to issue an order to withhold and deliver.

(c) Except in cases of a court order for child support of a civil nature, prior to the institution of garnishment proceedings or the issuance of an order to withhold and deliver, the department shall conduct a hearing to determine finally:

(1) Whether the responsible parent has a defense or other legal excuse for his failure to make support payments; and

(2) The amount of support payments which are due and owing.

(d) The responsible parent shall be given at least 15 days' notice of the hearing required by subsection (c) of this Code section, which notice shall specify the amount of support payments claimed to be overdue.

(e) After a final determination required by subsection (c) of this Code section that the responsible parent had no legal excuse for failing to make support payments when due, the department shall be authorized to initiate garnishment proceedings of disposable earnings under subsection (f) of this Code section or issue an order to withhold and deliver disposable earnings under subsection (g) of this Code section.

(f) Pursuant to subsection (e) of this Code section, the department may initiate garnishment proceedings by causing to be made an affidavit stating the amount claimed to be due and attaching thereto a certified copy of the final determination. Bond shall not be required. All subsequent proceedings shall be the same as provided by law in relation to garnishments in other cases where judgment has been obtained.

(g)(1) Pursuant to subsection (e) of this Code section, the department may issue to any employer of the responsible parent an order to withhold and deliver to the department the disposable earnings which are due, owing, or belonging to the responsible parent; provided, however, that the maximum part of the aggregate disposable earnings of the responsible parent which may be subject to such an order shall not exceed that amount which is allowed by law to be subject to garnishment. The order to withhold and deliver shall be served at the same time on the employer and on the responsible parent either personally or by certified mail or statutory overnight delivery, return receipt requested, and shall include a statement as to the legal authority of the department to make such an order, the amount of the debt owing to the department, the amount of disposable earnings to be withheld and delivered to the department, and a summary of subsection (a) of this Code section and paragraph (2) of this subsection. Any employer of the responsible parent upon whom service is made is required to answer the order to withhold and deliver within 20 days, exclusive of the day of service, under oath and in writing, and shall file true answers to the matters inquired of therein. Based upon the answer filed by the employer, the department shall determine whether to rescind or continue the order to withhold and deliver. In the event there is in the possession of the employer any portion of the disposable earnings of the responsible parent which may be subject to the claim of the department under this article, the amount shall be withheld immediately upon receipt of the order to withhold and deliver and shall, after the 20 day period, be delivered forthwith to the department. The order to withhold and deliver shall continue to operate and require each employer to withhold and deliver to the department such amount of disposable earnings at each succeeding earnings disbursement interval until the entire overdue amount of the child support debt has been paid or until the department, after a redetermination based on change of circumstances, shall release the employer from the order to withhold and deliver. Delivery by the employer to the department of disposable earnings ordered to be withheld shall serve as full compliance with this article.

(2) Any employer which fails to answer an order to withhold and deliver within the time prescribed in this subsection or fails or refuses to deliver money pursuant to the order shall be liable to the department in an amount equal to 100 percent of the value of the debt which is the basis of the order, together with costs, interest, and reasonable attorney fees. (Ga. L. 1976, p. 1537, § 13; Ga. L. 1981, p. 796, § 1; Ga. L. 1982, p. 1204, §§ 1, 3; Ga. L. 1983, p. 1816, § 2; Ga. L. 2000, p. 1589, § 3.)

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Husband not a necessary party. — Parents who live together are jointly entitled to any proceeds of litigation, whether or not they both participated in a lawsuit. Under this construction of O.C.G.A. § 19-7-1 (parental power), the husband is not a necessary party under O.C.G.A. § 19-11-19. Complete relief may be afforded to the parties without detriment to the husband, if the husband is bound and shares jointly in any proceeds of the litigation; therefore, the trial court erred in dismissing the wife's claim for failing to join her husband as a party plaintiff. Blanton v. Moshev, 262 Ga. 254, 416 S.E.2d 506 (1992).

19-11-20. Wage assignments.

(a) A parent responsible for child support payments may make an assignment of a portion of his wages to the department in order to fulfill his obligations under this article. The employer shall recognize and comply with any wage assignment executed for the purpose of meeting child support obligations and the wage assignment shall be enforceable.

(b) Employers may not terminate the services of an employed parent who executes a wage assignment for child support purposes, solely because of the assignment.

(c) In addition to other remedies provided at law, courts may require wage assignments, if accepted by the employer, as a condition of probation or at such other times as appropriate to ensure the regular availability of support to a dependent child.

(d) The payor may collect up to $25.00 against the obligor's income to reimburse the payor for administrative costs for the first income deduction and up to $3.00 for each deduction thereafter. (Ga. L. 1977, p. 897, § 1; Ga. L. 1985, p. 785, § 7; Ga. L. 1989, p. 861, § 6.)

19-11-21. Payment of support to department.

Payment of support pursuant to an administrative determination or a voluntary agreement shall be made to the department. In non-TANF cases, where the department deems it appropriate, it may authorize distribution of the actual payment by other individuals, agencies, or entities and utilize certification schedules reflecting such payments or distributions which the department requires, in accordance with the federal Social Security Act, as amended. Child support which is ordered by a court pursuant to a divorce decree or in any other proceeding in which the responsible parent is required to pay support for his or her child or children, whether the proceeding is civil or criminal, shall be paid by the responsible parent, the clerk of court, the juvenile probation officer, the community supervision officer, the child support receiver, or a similar official who is collecting support to the department upon the department's certification that the child is a recipient of public assistance or upon the department's certification that an application has been filed with the department for enforcement of support in accordance with the provisions of the federal Social Security Act. (Ga. L. 1973, p. 192, § 16; Ga. L. 1976, p. 1537, § 14; Ga. L. 1982, p. 1207, §§ 3, 6; Ga. L. 1997, p. 1021, § 8; Ga. L. 2015, p. 422, § 5-44/HB 310.)

19-11-25. Availability of information about overdue support to consumer reporting agency; notice to debtor parent; fee.

(a) In accordance with Section 466(a) of the federal Social Security Act, the department shall make available information regarding the amount of overdue support owed by an absent parent residing in the state to any consumer reporting agency, as defined in Section 603(f) of the federal Fair Credit Reporting Act, upon the request of such agency.

(b) If the amount of overdue support involved in any case is less than $1,000.00, information regarding such overdue support may be made available in the discretion of the department.

(c) Any information with respect to an absent parent shall be made available only after notice of the proposed action has been sent by the department to such absent parent and such absent parent has been given a reasonable opportunity to contest the accuracy of such information.

(d) The department may collect a fee from the recipient for furnishing such information not to exceed the actual cost thereof. (Code 1981, § 19-11-25, enacted by Ga. L. 1985, p. 785, § 8.)

19-11-26. Accident and sickness insurance coverage for children; order requiring medical support.

(a) In all cases involving the assignment and collection of child support, or where medical assistance benefits are being provided, the department or court may determine, as a regular part of its investigation and inquiry, whether accident and sickness coverage for the child or children involved is reasonably available to a party to a court order at a reasonable cost in connection with the party's employment or union. For purposes of this article, the term "person or entity providing access to coverage" shall mean an employer or union which offers a group insurance plan, as defined in Section 607(b) of the federal Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974, a health maintenance organization or a service benefit plan, or any other policy of health insurance under Title 33. If it is determined that such coverage is reasonably available in connection with the medical insurance obligor's employment or union, the department is authorized to petition for modification of any existing order of support to include the provision of such coverage, to intervene in any pending action to have such coverage included, or to include the request for such coverage in any action brought by the department.

(b) Upon petition by the department to have accident and sickness insurance coverage included, any court or administrative hearing officer having jurisdiction over the matter may include the provision of medical support in any order of support it may enter, if such medical support is found to be available to the medical insurance obligor in connection with his or her employment or union at a reasonable cost consistent with subsection (a) of this Code section.

(c) Any order requiring medical support under this Code section shall contain language notifying the medical insurance obligor that failure to provide accident and sickness insurance coverage may result in direct enforcement of the order. Any order of medical support entered or modified prior to April 1, 1994, shall be construed as a matter of law to contain this notice.

(d) Any order requiring medical support under this Code section shall remain in effect until:

- (1) A further order of the court or hearing officer;
- (2) The child is emancipated, if there is no express language to the contrary in the order; or
- (3) Coverage is no longer available and no conversion privileges exist at a reasonable cost to continue coverage beyond the termination date of the policy.

(e) Any order requiring medical support under this Code section shall not require a plan to provide any type or form of benefit, or any option not otherwise provided under the plan, except to the extent necessary to meet the requirements of this Code section. (Code 1981, § 19-11-26, enacted by Ga. L. 1985, p. 785, § 8; Ga. L. 1994, p. 1728, § 2; Ga. L. 2010, p. 245, § 3/HB 1118.)

19-11-27. Accident and sickness insurance coverage for children; National Medical Support Notice or other notice of enrollment; establishment of coverage.

(a) Whenever a party to a court order who is required to maintain accident and sickness insurance fails to provide such coverage as ordered, or allows such coverage to lapse, the department, the Department of Community Health, or the other party may compel the medical insurance obligor to obtain insurance coverage as provided in this Code section. The remedies provided in this Code section shall be in addition to and not in lieu of any other remedies available to the department, the Department of Community Health, or the other party.

(b) The National Medical Support Notice as prescribed under 42 U.S.C. Section 666(a)(19) shall be issued, when appropriate, by the IV-D agency to notify employers and health insurers of an order entered or being enforced by the IV-D agency pursuant to Code Section 19-11-8 and to enforce the accident and sickness coverage provisions of such order. The IV-D agency is not required to issue the National Medical Support Notice in cases where the court or administrative order stipulates alternative accident and sickness coverage that is not employer based.

(c) Upon failure of a medical insurance obligor to obtain accident and sickness insurance coverage as ordered, or upon the lapse of coverage required to be provided, the department, the Department of Community Health, or the other party may issue and send a notice of enrollment or National Medical Support Notice by certified mail or statutory overnight delivery, return receipt requested, to the person or entity providing access to such coverage on behalf of the medical insurance obligor. The notice shall include a certified copy of the latest order requiring health insurance coverage and the return address of the sender.

(d) In all IV-D cases, the IV-D agency shall notify the medical insurance obligor in writing that the National Medical Support Notice has been sent to the medical insurance obligor's employer or union, and the written notification shall include the medical insurance obligor's rights and duties under the National Medical Support Notice. The medical insurance obligor has the right to contest the withholding required by the National Medical Support Notice based on a mistake of fact. To contest, the medical insurance obligor must file a written notice of contest with the IV-D agency within 15 business days from the date of the National Medical Support Notice. Filing with the IV-D agency shall be deemed complete when the notice is received by the person designated by the IV-D agency in the written notification. Upon the timely filing of a notice of contest, the IV-D agency shall, within five business days, schedule an informal conference with the medical insurance obligor to discuss the medical insurance obligor's factual dispute. If the informal conference resolves the dispute to the medical insurance obligor's satisfaction, or if the medical insurance obligor fails to attend the informal conference, the notice of contest shall be deemed withdrawn. If the informal conference does not resolve the dispute, the medical insurance obligor has the right to request an administrative hearing before an administrative law judge pursuant to Chapter 13 of Title 50, the "Georgia Administrative Procedure Act," within five business days after being notified of the results of the review by the IV-D agency. However, neither a request for informal review nor the filing of a notice of contest for an administrative hearing by the medical insurance obligor shall delay the withholding of premium payments by the union, employer, or health plan administrator. The union, employer, or health plan administrator must implement the withholding as directed by the National Medical Support Notice unless notified by the IV-D agency, court, or the Office of Administrative Hearings that the National Medical Support Notice is terminated.

(e) Any person or entity providing access to accident and sickness insurance coverage on behalf of the medical insurance obligor pursuant to a notice of enrollment or National Medical Support Notice shall withhold from the medical insurance obligor's income the amount necessary to pay the premium for the insurance coverage, provided that the amount deducted does not exceed the limitations of Section 303(b) of the federal Consumer Credit Protection Act, as amended.

(f) The department is authorized to adopt rules and regulations to implement the child support enforcement provisions of this Code section that affect IV-D cases.

(g) Upon receipt of a notice of enrollment or National Medical Support Notice:

(1) The employer and plan administrator shall comply with the provisions in the notice;

(2) The employer and plan administrator shall treat the notice as an application for health coverage for the dependent by the person or entity sending the notice to the extent such application is required by the plan;

(3) If the medical insurance obligor named in the notice is not an employee of the employer or if a health benefit plan is not offered or available to the employee, the employer shall notify the person or entity sending the notice, as provided in the notice, within 20 business days after the date of the notice;

(4) If a health benefit plan is offered or available to the employee, the employer shall send the plan administrator's portion of the notice to each appropriate plan administrator within 20 business days after the date of the notice;

(5) Upon notification from the plan administrator that the dependent is enrolled, the employer shall either withhold and transfer the premiums to the plan or notify the person or entity sending the notice that enrollment cannot be completed because of prioritization or limits on withholding as provided in subsection (e) of this Code section or as provided in the notice;

(6) Upon notification from the plan administrator that the medical insurance obligor is subject to a waiting period that expires more than 90 days from the date of receipt of the notice by the plan administrator, or whose duration is determined by a measure other than the passage of time, the employer shall notify the plan administrator when the medical insurance obligor is eligible to enroll in the plan and that this notice requires enrollment of the dependent named in the notice in the plan;

(7) The plan administrator shall enroll the dependent and if necessary the medical insurance obligor in the plan selected under this paragraph. The plan administrator shall enroll the medical insurance obligor if enrollment of the medical insurance obligor is necessary to enroll the dependent. All the following shall apply in the selection of the plan:

(A) If the medical insurance obligor is enrolled in a health benefit plan that offers dependent coverage, the dependent shall be enrolled in the plan in which the medical insurance obligor is enrolled;

(B) If the medical insurance obligor is not enrolled in a plan or is not enrolled in a plan that offers dependent coverage, and if only one plan with dependent coverage is offered by the employer, that plan shall be selected;

(C) If the medical insurance obligor is not enrolled in a health benefit plan that offers dependent coverage, and if more than one plan with dependent coverage is offered by the employer, and if the notice is issued by the IV-D agency, all of the following shall apply:

(i) If only one of the plans is accessible to the dependent, that plan shall be selected. If none of the plans with dependent coverage is accessible to the dependent, the IV-D agency shall amend or terminate the notice;

(ii) If more than one of the plans is accessible to the dependent, the plan selected shall be the plan for basic coverage for which the employee's share of the premium is lowest;

(iii) If more than one of those plans is accessible to the dependent, but none of the accessible plans is for basic coverage, the plan selected shall be an accessible plan for which the employee's share of the premium is the lowest; and

(iv) If the employee's shares of the premiums are the same, the IV-D agency shall consult the medical insurance obligee and select a plan. If the medical insurance obligee does not respond within ten days, the IV-D agency shall select a plan which shall be the plan's default option, if any, or the plan with the lowest deductibles and copayment requirements; and

(D) If the medical insurance obligor is not enrolled in a plan or is not enrolled in a plan that offers dependent coverage, and if more than one plan with dependent coverage is offered by the employer, and if the notice is issued by a IV-D child support enforcement agency of another state, that agency shall select the plan as provided in paragraph (8) of this subsection; and

(8) Within 40 business days after the date of the notice, the plan administrator shall do all of the following as directed in the notice:

(A) Complete the appropriate portion of the notice and return to the person or entity sending the notice;

(B) If the dependent is enrolled or is to be enrolled, notify the medical insurance obligor, the medical insurance obligee, and the child and furnish the medical insurance obligee with necessary information including any necessary claim forms or enrollment membership cards necessary to obtain benefits and provide the person or entity sending the notice with the type of health benefit plan under which the dependent has been enrolled, including whether dental, optical, office visits, and prescription drugs are covered services, and with a brief description of the applicable deductibles, coinsurance, waiting period for preexisting medical conditions, and other significant terms or conditions which materially affect the coverage;

(C) If more than one plan is available to the medical insurance obligor and the medical insurance obligor is not enrolled, forward plan descriptions and documents to the person or entity sending the notice and enroll the dependent, and if necessary the medical insurance obligor, in the plan selected by the person or entity sending the notice or any default option if the plan administrator has not received a selection from the person or entity sending the notice within 20 business days of the date the plan administrator returned the National Medical Support Notice response to the person or entity sending the notice;

(D) If the medical insurance obligor is subject to a waiting period that expires more than 90 days from the date the plan administrator received the notice or has not completed a waiting period whose duration is determined by a measure other than the passage of time, notify the employer, the person or entity sending the notice, the medical insurance obligor, and the medical insurance obligee; and upon satisfaction of the period or requirement, complete the enrollment;

(E) Upon completion of the enrollment, notify the employer for a determination of whether the necessary employee share of the premium is available; and

(F) If the plan administrator is subject to the federal Employee Retirement Income Security Act, as codified in 29 U.S.C. Section 1169, and the plan administrator determines the notice does not constitute a qualified medical child support order, complete and send the response to the person or entity sending the notice and notify the medical insurance obligor, the medical insurance obligee, and the child of the specific reason for the determination. (Code 1981, § 19-11-27, enacted by Ga. L. 1991, p. 950, § 6; Ga. L. 1994, p. 1728, § 3; Ga. L. 1999, p. 296, § 24; Ga. L. 2000, p. 1589, § 3; Ga. L. 2002, p. 1247, § 7; Ga. L. 2004, p. 631, § 19; Ga. L. 2010, p. 245, § 4/HB 1118.)

Code Commission notes. — Pursuant to Code Section 28-9-5, in 2002, in paragraph (g)(5), commas were deleted following “premiums to the plan” and following “entity sending the notice”.

Editor’s notes. — Ga. L. 2000, p. 1589, § 16, not codified by the General Assembly, provides that this Code section is applicable with respect to notices delivered on or after July 1, 2000.

19-11-28. Accident and sickness insurance coverage for children; authorization of payments of benefits; notice of termination; immunity from liability of person or entity providing access to coverage.

(a) The signature of the medical insurance obligee or an agent of the department shall constitute a valid authorization to any insurer to process benefits and to make payments to a health care provider or the medical insurance obligee in accordance with any accident and sickness insurance policy.

(b) An order of medical support shall operate as an assignment to the medical insurance obligee of any right to benefits under a policy of accident and sickness coverage maintained by the medical insurance obligor insofar as dependent coverage is available. The medical insurance obligee shall be subrogated to the rights of the medical insurance obligor to the extent necessary to pursue any claim against the insurer under such policy.

(c) Within ten business days after termination of a policy of accident and sickness insurance established pursuant to Code Section 19-11-27, or the termination of employment of the medical insurance obligor, the person or entity providing access to such coverage on behalf of a medical insurance obligor shall mail a termination notice to the person or entity which initially sent a notice of enrollment or National Medical Support Notice and provide the medical insurance obligor’s last known address and, if known, the address of the medical insurance obligor's new employer.

(d) Any person or entity providing access to accident and sickness coverage on behalf of a medical insurance obligor shall be immune from any civil or criminal liability while complying in good faith with the provisions of this Code section and Code Section 19-11-27.

(e) Any person or entity acting as a plan fiduciary who makes payment pursuant to this Code section discharges to the extent of any payment the plan's obligation. (Code 1981, § 19-11-28, enacted by Ga. L. 1994, p. 1728, § 4; Ga. L. 2002, p. 1247, § 8; Ga. L. 2010, p. 245, § 5/HB 1118.)

19-11-29. Accident and sickness insurance coverage for children; liability and penalty applicable to person or entity providing access to coverage and insurers.

(a) Any person or entity providing access to accident and sickness insurance coverage on behalf of a medical insurance obligor in connection with the medical insurance obligor's employment or union shall be liable for a civil penalty not to exceed $1,000.00 per occurrence for willful failure to enroll promptly, without regard to enrollment season restrictions, a dependent in an accident and sickness insurance plan under an order of medical support or a notice of enrollment; provided, however, that no liability shall exist where such person or entity acts in accordance with subsection (g) of Code Section 19-11-27.

(b) Insurers shall not deny enrollment of a child under subsection (a) of this Code section in a parent's health insurance coverage on the ground that the child was born out of wedlock, is not claimed as a dependent on the parent's federal income tax return, or does not reside with the parent or in the insurer's service area.

(c) Any person or entity providing access to accident and sickness insurance coverage on behalf of a medical insurance obligor shall be liable for a civil penalty not to exceed $1,000.00 per occurrence for the disenrollment by the medical insurance obligor, or elimination of coverage of the child, unless the medical insurance obligor provides written proof that the child has been enrolled or will be enrolled in comparable insurance coverage, with the coverage to take effect no later than the effective date of disenrollment; provided, however, that no liability shall exist where such person or entity acts in accordance with subsection (d) of Code Section 19-11-26.

(d) The department may recover the civil penalty provided for in this Code section by civil action or pursuant to any remedy otherwise available for the enforcement of court orders. (Code 1981, § 19-11-29, enacted by Ga. L. 1994, p. 1728, § 4; Ga. L. 2002, p. 1247, § 9; Ga. L. 2010, p. 245, § 6/HB 1118.)

19-11-30. Confidentiality of information and records; safeguards against unauthorized use.

(a)(1) Information and records obtained by the department pursuant to any provision of this article or Title IV-D of the federal Social Security Act shall be deemed to be confidential and shall be released only by permission of the party or parties named in the information or records, by order of the court, or for those purposes specifically authorized by this article. Any person who violates this Code section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

(2) The department shall provide to an attorney representing an obligee or to a private child support collector, as defined in Code Section 10-1-392, hired by an obligee and acting pursuant to a power of attorney signed by such obligee, any documents which such obligee would be entitled to request and receive from the Child Support Enforcement Agency of the department.

(b) The department shall establish safeguards against the unauthorized use or disclosure of information relating to:

(1) Proceedings or actions to establish paternity;

(2) Proceedings to establish or enforce support;

(3) The whereabouts of one party to another party against whom a protective order with respect to the former party has been entered; and

(4) The whereabouts of one party to another party if the department has reason to believe that the release of the information may result in physical or emotional harm to the former party. (Code 1981, § 19-11-30, enacted by Ga. L. 1994, p. 1728, § 4; Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 29; Ga. L. 2009, p. 1001, § 5/HB 189.)

Editor's notes. — Ga. L. 2009, p. 1001, § 6, not codified by the General Assembly, provides, in part, that the amendment to this Code section shall be applicable to all contracts for private collection of child support payments entered into on or after July 1, 2009.

Law reviews. — For article commenting on the 1997 amendment of this Code section, see 14 Ga. St. U.L. Rev. 121 (1997).

19-11-30.1. Computer based registry.

The department shall establish a computer based registry of account data obtained from financial institutions doing business in this state. Such registry shall include only identifying information for obligors whom the IV-D agency believes owe child support and who are not under a child support order, and for obligors who are delinquent in an amount equal to or in excess of their support payment for one month. Such registry shall be known as the Department of Human Services Bank Match Registry. The IV-D agency shall be the sole agency with access to this data. Access shall be for the purpose of establishing and enforcing orders for support. The department is authorized to establish the procedures and the costs to be paid for performing the data searches and for providing the data to the department's IV-D agency. (Code 1981, § 19-11-30.1, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 30; Ga. L. 2002, p. 1247, § 10; Ga. L. 2009, p. 453, § 2-2/HB 228.)

Law reviews. — For article commenting on the enactment of this Code section, see 14 Ga. St. U.L. Rev. 121 (1997).

19-11-30.2. Information from financial institutions.

(a) As used in this Code section, the term “for cause” means that the department has reason to believe that an individual has opened an account at a financial institution.

(b) The department shall, pursuant to the provisions of subsection (f) of this Code section, request from each financial institution, not more frequently than on a quarterly basis, the name, record address, social security number, and other identifying data for each person listed in such request who maintains an account at such financial institution. The data provided shall be sent to the Department of Human Services Bank Match Registry. Such registry shall include only identifying information for obligors whom the IV-D agency believes owe child support and who are not under a child support order, and for obligors who are delinquent in an amount equal to or in excess of their support payment for one month. The department shall update such listing every calendar quarter by removing the names of all persons who have had no prior matches in the two immediately preceding quarters.

(c) The department may continue to request account matches on such removed names once a year for the two calendar years immediately following the year in which the names are removed or for cause.

(d) All requests made by the department pursuant to subsection (b) or (c) of this Code section shall be in machine readable form unless a financial institution expressly requests the department to submit the request in writing. The financial institution shall furnish all such information in machine readable form, which meets criteria established by the department, within 30 days of such request. Each financial institution shall furnish all such information on those persons whose accounts bear a residential address within the state at the time such request is processed by the financial institution.

(e) In no event shall a request for identifying information be made to a financial institution on anyone other than an obligor whom the Department of Human Services has a good reason to believe owes child support and who is not under a child support order, or an obligor who is delinquent in an amount equal to or in excess of his or her support payment for one month.

(f) The Department of Human Services shall enter into agreements with financial institutions doing business in this state to develop and operate a data match system to the maximum extent feasible for the providing of the needed information to the department by the financial institution. At a minimum, the department shall identify the obligor by name and social security number or other taxpayer identification number. If the geographic region of an obligor is known by the Department of Human Services, and that department shall make an effort to determine the geographic region of an obligor, the department shall initially limit its request to the financial institution or institutions within that geographic region prior to making additional requests to other financial institutions in other geographic regions of the state. The department may pay a reasonable fee to the financial institution for conducting the searches required herein not to exceed the actual costs incurred by the financial institution. (Code 1981, § 19-11-30.2, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 30; Ga. L. 1999, p. 81, § 19; Ga. L. 2002, p. 1247, § 11; Ga. L. 2009, p. 453, § 2-2/HB 228; Ga. L. 2014, p. 457, § 11/SB 282; Ga. L. 2014, p. 866, § 19/SB 340.)

The 2014 amendments. — The first 2014 amendment, effective July 1, 2014, substituted the present provisions of subsection (a) for the former provisions, which read: “As used in Code Section 19-11-30.1, this Code section, and Code Sections 19-11-30.3 through 19-11-30.11, the term:

“(1) ‘Account’ means a demand deposit account, checking or negotiable order of withdrawal account, savings account, time deposit account, or a money market mutual fund account.

“(2) ‘Financial institution’ means every federal or state chartered commercial or savings bank, including savings and loan associations and cooperative banks, federal or state chartered credit unions, benefit associations, insurance companies, safe-deposit companies, trust companies, and any money market mutual fund.

“(3) ‘For cause’ means that the department has reason to believe that an individual has opened an account at a financial institution listed in paragraph (3) of this subsection.

“(4) ‘Money market mutual fund’ means every regulated investment company within the meaning of Section 851(a) of the Internal Revenue Code which seeks to maintain a constant net asset value of $1.00 in accordance with 17 CFR 270.2A-7.” The second 2014 amendment, effective April 29, 2014, part of an Act to revise, modernize, and correct the Code, deleted “listed in paragraph (3) of this subsection” at the end of former paragraph (a)(3).

Law reviews. — For article commenting on the enactment of this Code section, see 14 Ga. St. U.L. Rev. 121 (1997).

19-11-30.3. Responsibility of Department of Human Services Bank Match Registry.

The Department of Human Services Bank Match Registry shall examine the data provided, make positive identification of cases submitted by the IV-D agency for child support enforcement purposes, and report the matched accounts in machine readable form. Upon the receipt of such information, the department, and where appropriate local contractors, shall seek to verify the accuracy of the information presented. (Code 1981, § 19-11-30.3, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 30; Ga. L. 2002, p. 1247, § 12; Ga. L. 2009, p. 453, § 2-2/HB 228.)

Law reviews. — For article commenting on the enactment of this Code section, see 14 Ga. St. U.L. Rev. 121 (1997).

19-11-30.4. Disclosure of information.

No employee or agent of the state shall divulge any information collected pursuant to Code Sections 19-11-30.1 through 19-11-30.3 or Code Section 19-11-30.6 to any public or private agency or individual except in the manner prescribed in this Code section. Information may be disclosed and shared by and between any employee of an administering agency and any subgrantee, local administering agency, or contractor performing child support enforcement functions under the provisions of Title IV-D of the federal Social Security Act. Unauthorized disclosure shall be punished pursuant to Code Section 19-11-30. (Code 1981, § 19-11-30.4, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 30; Ga. L. 1999, p. 81, § 19.)

Law reviews. — For article commenting on the enactment of this Code section, see 14 Ga. St. U.L. Rev. 121 (1997).

19-11-30.5. Failure of financial institution to comply.

Any financial institution required to submit a report pursuant to Code Section 19-11-30.2 which fails without reasonable cause as determined by the department to comply with such reporting requirements and which, after notification by certified mail or statutory overnight delivery by the department, return receipt requested, of such failure, continues for more than 15 business days after the mailing of such notification to fail to comply without reasonable cause shall be liable for a penalty of $1,000.00. Any financial institution which willfully provides false information in reply to such notification shall be liable for a penalty of $1,000.00. (Code 1981, § 19-11-30.5, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 30; Ga. L. 2000, p. 1589, § 3; Ga. L. 2002, p. 1247, § 13.)

Editor's notes. — Ga. L. 2000, p. 1589, § 16, not codified by the General Assembly, provides that this Code section is applicable with respect to notices delivered on or after July 1, 2000.

Law reviews. — For article commenting on the enactment of this Code section, see 14 Ga. St. U.L. Rev. 121 (1997).

19-11-30.6. Reciprocal agreements with other states.

The commissioner of human services, in cooperation with the IV-D agency, shall establish a program of wage and bank information sharing with other states. The commissioner is authorized to enter into reciprocal agreements with other states to share lists of absent parents who owe support payments to the IV-D agency. Such reciprocal agreements shall only be made with states which administer programs that the commissioner of human services, in consultation with the IV-D agency, determines are substantially similar. The wage and bank information sharing program shall apply only to states which have similar prohibitions and penalties for disclosure of information. The prohibitions and penalties of Code Section 19-11-30.4 shall also apply to any such information received from any other state under a reciprocal agreement. (Code 1981, § 19-11-30.6, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 30; Ga. L. 2002, p. 1247, § 14; Ga. L. 2009, p. 453, § 2-4/HB 228.)

Law reviews. — For article commenting on the enactment of this Code section, see 14 Ga. St. U.L. Rev. 121 (1997).

19-11-30.7. Construction.

Code Sections 19-11-30, 19-11-30.4, and 19-11-30.6 shall not be construed to prevent the release by the commissioner of human services of such wage and bank information data for the purposes described in Title IV-D of the federal Social Security Act. (Code 1981, § 19-11-30.7, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 30; Ga. L. 2002, p. 1247, § 15; Ga. L. 2009, p. 453, § 2-4/HB 228.)

Law reviews. — For article commenting on the enactment of this Code section, see 14 Ga. St. U.L. Rev. 121 (1997).

19-11-30.8. Annual reports.

The commissioner of human services shall file an annual report describing the status of the wage reporting and bank match systems. The report shall be filed with the Clerk of the House of Representatives and the Secretary of the Senate for the previous state fiscal year no later than September 30 of each year. (Code 1981, § 19-11-30.8, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 30; Ga. L. 2002, p. 1247, § 16; Ga. L. 2009, p. 453, § 2-4/HB 228.)

Law reviews. — For article commenting on the enactment of this Code section, see 14 Ga. St. U.L. Rev. 121 (1997).

19-11-30.9. Information subject to disclosure; penalty.

As an exception to Code Section 7-1-360, a financial institution furnishing a report or providing information for the commissioner of human services under Code Section 19-11-30.2 shall not disclose to a depositor or an account holder that the name of such person has been received from or furnished to the department; provided, however, that a financial institution may disclose to its depositors or account holders that under the bank match system the department has the authority to request certain identifying information on certain depositors or account holders. If a financial institution willfully violates the provisions of this Code section, such institution shall pay to the department the lesser of $1,000.00 or the amount on deposit or in the account of the person to whom such disclosure was made. A financial institution shall incur no obligation or liability to a depositor or account holder or any other person arising from the furnishing of a report or information to the department pursuant to Code Section 19-11-30.2 or from the failure to disclose to a depositor or account holder that the name of such person was included in a list furnished by the department or in a report furnished by the financial institution to the department. (Code 1981, § 19-11-30.9, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 30; Ga. L. 2002, p. 1247, § 17; Ga. L. 2009, p. 453, § 2-4/HB 228.)

Law reviews. — For article commenting on the enactment of this Code section, see 14 Ga. St. U.L. Rev. 121 (1997).

19-11-30.10. Authority to levy and seize deposit.

The IV-D agency shall have the authority to levy and seize a deposit or account in accordance with Code Section 19-11-32. (Code 1981, § 19-11-30.10, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 30.)

Law reviews. — For article commenting on the enactment of this Code section, see 14 Ga. St. U.L. Rev. 121 (1997).

19-11-30.11. Fee on levied accounts.

A financial institution may charge an account levied on by the commissioner of human services a fee, as determined by the commissioner, of not less than $20.00 nor more than $50.00 which shall be deducted from such account prior to remitting funds to the department. The commissioner of human services requesting bank or account information under Code Section 19-11-30.2 shall not be liable for costs otherwise assessable pursuant to Code Section 7-1-237. (Code 1981, § 19-11-30.11, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 30; Ga. L. 2002, p. 1247, § 18; Ga. L. 2009, p. 453, § 2-4/HB 228.)

19-11-31. Joint Study Committee on Child Support.

Reserved. Repealed by Ga. L. 1994, p. 1728, § 4, effective January 1, 1995.

Editor's notes. — This Code section was based on Code 1981, § 19-11-31, enacted by Ga. L. 1994, p. 1728, § 4.

Ga. L. 2010, p. 878, § 19, effective June 3, 2010, reserved the designation of this Code section.

19-11-32. Process to collect delinquent support accounts; limitation.

(a) Notwithstanding other statutory provisions which provide for the execution, attachment, or levy against accounts, the IV-D agency, including its authorized contractors, may utilize the process established in this Code section and Code Sections 19-11-33 through 19-11-39 to collect delinquent support payments, provided that any exemptions or exceptions which specifically apply to enforcement of support obligations pursuant to other statutory provisions shall also apply.

(b) An obligor is subject to the provisions of this Code section and Code Sections 19-11-33 through 19-11-39 if the obligor's support obligation is being enforced by the IV-D agency and if the support payments ordered pursuant to Georgia law or under a comparable statute of a foreign jurisdiction, as certified to the IV-D agency, are delinquent in an amount equal to the support payment for one month.

(c) Any amount forwarded by a financial institution under this Code section and Code Sections 19-11-33 through 19-11-39 shall not exceed the delinquent or accrued amount of support owed by the obligor. (Code 1981, § 19-11-32, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 31; Ga. L. 2014, p. 457, § 12/SB 282; Ga. L. 2014, p. 866, § 19/SB 340.)

The 2014 amendment, effective July 1, 2014, deleted the former second sentence of subsection (c), which read: "Financial institutions subject to administrative levy are defined in paragraph (3) of subsection (a) of Code Section 19-11-30.2."

Editor's notes. — Ga. L. 2014, p. 866, § 54(e)/SB 340, not codified by the General Assembly, provides: "In the event of a conflict between a provision in Sections 1 through 53 of this Act and a provision of another Act enacted at the 2014 regular session of the General Assembly, the provision of such other Act shall control over the conflicting provision in Sections 1 through 53 of this Act to the extent of the conflict.” Accordingly, the amendment to subsection (c) of this Code section by Ga. L. 2014, p. 866, § 19(2)/SB 340 was not given effect.

Law reviews. — For article commenting on the enactment of this Code section, see 14 Ga. St. U.L. Rev. 121 (1997).

19-11-33. Notice.

The IV-D agency may proceed under Code Section 19-11-32, this Code section, and Code Sections 19-11-34 through 19-11-38 only if notice has been provided to the obligor in one of the following manners:

(1) The obligor is provided notice of the provisions of this Code section in the court order establishing the support obligation. The IV-D agency or court or administrative law judge may include language in any new or modified support order issued on or after July 1, 1997, notifying the obligor that the obligor is subject to the provisions of Code Section 19-11-32, this Code section, and Code Sections 19-11-34 through 19-11-39; or

(2) The IV-D agency may send a notice by regular mail to the last known address of the obligor. (Code 1981, § 19-11-33, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 31; Ga. L. 1998, p. 128, § 19.)

Law reviews. — For article commenting on the enactment of this Code section, see 14 Ga. St. U.L. Rev. 121 (1997).

19-11-34. Verification; immunity from liability.

(a) The IV-D agency may contact a financial institution to obtain verification of the account number, the names and social security numbers listed for the account, and the account balance of any account held by an obligor. A financial institution may require positive voice recognition and the telephone number of the authorized person from the IV-D agency before releasing an obligor’s account information by telephone.

(b) The financial institution is immune from any liability, civil or criminal, which might otherwise be incurred or imposed for any information released by the financial institution to the IV-D agency pursuant to this Code section.

(c) Neither the financial institution nor the IV-D agency is liable for the cost of any early withdrawal penalty of an obligor’s certificate of deposit. (Code 1981, § 19-11-34, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 31.)

Law reviews. — For article commenting on the enactment of this Code section, see 14 Ga. St. U.L. Rev. 121 (1997).

19-11-35. Initiation of administrative action for levy; required information in notice to financial institution.

(a) If an obligor is subject to the provisions of Code Section 19-11-32, the IV-D agency may initiate an administrative action to levy against the account or accounts of the obligor. If notice has previously been provided pursuant to Code Section 19-11-33, further notice is not required prior to such action.

(b) The IV-D agency may send a notice to the financial institution with which the account is placed directing that the financial institution forward all or a portion of the moneys in the obligor's account or accounts to the IV-D agency or its collection services center. The notice shall be sent by certified mail or statutory overnight delivery.

(c) The notice to the financial institution shall contain all of the following information:

(1) The name and social security number of the obligor;

(2) A statement that the obligor is believed to have one or more accounts at the financial institution;

(3) A statement that, pursuant to the provisions of Code Sections 19-11-32 through 19-11-34, this Code section, and Code Sections 19-11-36 through 19-11-39, the obligor's accounts are subject to seizure and the financial institution is authorized and required to forward moneys to the IV-D agency or its collection services center;

(4) The maximum amount that shall be forwarded by the financial institution, which shall not exceed the delinquent or accrued amount of support owed the obligor;

(5) The prescribed time frame which the financial institution must meet in forwarding amounts;

(6) The address of the IV-D agency which will process the moneys forwarded; and

(7) A telephone number, address, and contact name of the child support enforcement office contact initiating the action. (Code 1981, § 19-11-35, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 31; Ga. L. 2000, p. 1589, § 3.)

Law reviews. — For article commenting on the enactment of this Code section, see 14 Ga. St. U.L. Rev. 121 (1997).

19-11-36. Required information in notice to obligor.

The IV-D agency shall notify an obligor subject to an administrative levy, as well as any other party known to have an interest in the account, of the action taken. The notice shall contain all of the following information:

- (1) The name and social security number of the obligor;
- (2) A statement that the obligor is believed to have one or more accounts at a specified financial institution;
- (3) A statement that, pursuant to the provisions of Code Sections 19-11-32 through 19-11-35, this Code section, and Code Sections 19-11-37 through 19-11-39, the obligor's accounts are subject to seizure and the financial institution is authorized and required to forward moneys to the IV-D agency or its collection services center;
- (4) The maximum amount to be forwarded by the financial institution, which shall not exceed the delinquent or accrued amount of support owed by the obligor;
- (5) The prescribed time frame within which the financial institution must comply;
- (6) A statement that any challenge to the action shall be in writing and must be received by the IV-D agency within ten days of the date of the notice to the obligor;
- (7) The address of the IV-D agency which will process the moneys forwarded; and
- (8) A telephone number, address, and contact name of the child support enforcement office contact initiating the action. (Code 1981, § 19-11-36, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 31.)

Law reviews. — For article commenting on the enactment of this Code section, see 14 Ga. St. U.L. Rev. 121 (1997).

19-11-37. Challenges to levy; mistakes; procedures; reimbursement.

(a) Challenges to the administrative levy for child support arrearage may be initiated only by an obligor or by an account holder of interest. Actions initiated by the IV-D agency pursuant to Code Sections 19-11-32 through 19-11-36, this Code section, and Code Sections 19-11-38 and 19-11-39 are not subject to Chapter 13 of Title 50, the "Georgia Administrative Procedure Act," and the only hearing following notice to the financial institution directing the levy shall be in superior court pursuant to this Code section.

(b) If a person decides to challenge the action taken by the IV-D agency, he or she must submit a written challenge within ten working days of the date of the notice, and the challenge must be directed to the person identified in the notice as the contact with the IV-D agency.

(c) The IV-D agency shall, upon receipt of a written challenge, review the facts of the case with the challenging party. Only a mistake of fact, including but not limited to a mistake in the identity of the obligor or ownership of funds or a mistake in the amount of delinquent support due, shall be considered as a reason to dismiss or modify the proceeding. A rebuttable presumption shall exist in a joint account that the funds belong to the obligor, which presumption may only be rebutted by clear and convincing evidence.

(d) If the IV-D agency determines that a mistake of fact has occurred, the agency shall proceed as follows:

(1) If a mistake in identity has occurred or the obligor is not delinquent in an amount equal to the payment for one month, the IV-D agency shall notify the financial institution that the administrative levy has been released. The IV-D agency shall provide a copy of the notice to the support obligor by regular mail; or

(2) If the obligor is delinquent but the amount of the delinquency is less than the amount indicated in the notice, the IV-D agency shall notify the financial institution of the revised amount with a copy to the obligor by regular mail. Upon written receipt of instructions from the IV-D agency, the financial institution shall release the funds in excess of the revised amount to the obligor and the moneys in the amount of the debt shall be processed according to Code Section 19-11-38.

(e) If the IV-D agency finds no mistake of fact, the IV-D agency shall so notify the challenging party by regular mail. Upon a subsequent written request of the challenging party, the IV-D agency shall request a hearing before the superior court in the county in which the underlying support order is filed.

(f) Once such a hearing has been requested, the IV-D agency shall proceed as follows:

(1) Require the financial institution to encumber moneys; and

(2) Request that the clerk of the superior court schedule a hearing for a time not later than 30 calendar days after the filing of the request for hearing. The time for hearing shall not be extended unless good cause for a later date is found by the court, in which event the time for a hearing may be extended for up to 30 days. The clerk shall mail copies of the request for hearing and the order scheduling the hearing to the IV-D agency and to all account holders of interest.

(g) Once such a hearing has concluded, the IV-D agency shall proceed as follows:

(1) If the superior court finds that there is a mistake of identity or that the obligor does not owe the delinquent support, the IV-D agency shall notify the financial institution that the administrative levy has been released;

(2) If the superior court finds that the obligor has an interest in the account and the amount of support due was incorrectly overstated, the IV-D agency shall notify the financial institution to release the excess moneys to the obligor and remit the remaining moneys in the amount of the debt to the IV-D agency for disbursement to the appropriate recipient; or

(3) If the superior court finds that the obligor has an interest in the account and the amount of support due is correct, the financial institution shall forward the moneys to the IV-D agency for disbursement to the appropriate recipient.

(h) If the obligor or any other party known to have an interest in the account fails to appear at the hearing, the court may find the challenging party in default, shall ratify the administrative levy, if valid upon its face, and shall enter an order directing the financial institution to release the moneys to the IV-D agency.

(i) Issues related to visitation, custody, or other provisions not related to levies against accounts are not grounds for a hearing under this Code section.

(j) Support orders shall not be modified pursuant to this Code section, and any findings in the challenge of an administrative levy related to the amount of the accruing or accrued support obligation do not modify the underlying support order.

(k) An order entered under this Code section for a levy against an account of a support obligor has priority over a levy for a purpose other than the support of the dependents in the order being enforced.

(l) The support obligor may withdraw the request for challenge by submitting a written withdrawal to the person identified as the contact for the IV-D agency in the notice, or the IV-D agency may withdraw the administrative levy at any time prior to the court hearing and provide notice of the withdrawal to the obligor and any account holder of interest and to the financial institution by regular mail.

(m) If the financial institution has forwarded moneys to the IV-D agency and has deducted a fee from the moneys of the account, or if any additional fees or costs are levied against the account, and all funds are subsequently refunded to the account due to a mistake of fact or ruling of the court, the IV-D agency shall reimburse the account for any fees assessed by the financial institution. If the mistake of fact is a mistake in the amount of support payments, however, the IV-D agency is not required to reimburse the account for any fees or costs levied against the account. Additionally, for the purposes of reimbursement to the account for any fees or costs, each certificate of deposit is considered a separate account. (Code 1981, § 19-11-37, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 31.)

Law reviews. — For article commenting on the enactment of this Code section, see 14 Ga. St. U.L. Rev. 121 (1997).

19-11-38. Required financial institution action.

(a) Upon receipt of a notice under Code Section 19-11-35, the financial institution shall do all of the following:

(1) Immediately encumber funds in all accounts in which the obligor has an interest to the extent of the debt indicated in the notice; and

(2) Forward the moneys encumbered to the IV-D agency no sooner than 15 days and no later than 20 days from the date the financial institution receives the notice pursuant to Code Section 19-11-35. Such money shall not be forwarded, however, if the IV-D agency notifies the financial institution of a challenge by an obligor or an account holder of interest. All encumbered moneys that are forwarded must be accompanied by the obligor's name and social security number, child support enforcement account number, and any other information required in the notice.

(b) The financial institution may assess a fee against the obligor, not to exceed $10.00, for forwarding of moneys to the IV-D agency. This fee is in addition to the amount of support due. In the event that there are insufficient moneys to cover the fee and the support due, the institution may deduct the fee amount prior to forwarding moneys to the IV-D agency or its collection services center, and the amount credited to the support obligation shall be reduced by the fee amount. (Code 1981, § 19-11-38, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 31.)

Law reviews. — For article commenting on the enactment of this Code section, see 14 Ga. St. U.L. Rev. 121 (1997).

19-11-39. Computerized central case registry for support orders.

(a) The department shall create by contract, cooperative agreement, or otherwise a computerized central case registry for all support orders entered by any court or administrative tribunal of this state. All IV-D agency orders as well as those not within the IV-D agency shall be registered in this data base. The department may enter into a cooperative agreement with the Administrative Office of the Courts so as to obtain information needed to create and maintain the state registry of orders as required by federal law.

(b) The registry of orders shall include the following information for each case: the full names of each party and minor child, the date of birth and social security number for each such person, the last known address for each person at the time the order was entered, the name of the county in which the order was entered, any and all case identification numbers, including civil action filing numbers and IV-D agency assigned case numbers, and any such information as may be later required under federal law.

(c) In any case handled by the IV-D agency, the registry shall include payment records as well as the amount of child support liens. The payment record shall include:

(1) The amount of monthly or other periodic support owed under the order and other amounts including arrearages, interest or late payment penalties, and fees due or overdue under the order;

(2) Any amount described in paragraph (1) of this subsection that has been collected;

(3) The distribution of such collected amounts;

(4) The birth date of any child for whom the order requires the provision of support; and

(5) The amount of any lien imposed with respect to a child support order.

(d) The state agency operating the state case registry shall promptly establish and update, maintain, and regularly monitor case records in the state case registry with respect to which services are being provided by the IV-D agency. Services to be monitored include: information on administrative actions and administrative and judicial proceedings and orders related to paternity and support; information obtained from comparison with federal, state, or local sources of information; information on support collections and distributions; and any other relevant information.

(e) The information contained in the state case registry shall be available to state and federal agencies as authorized by law for the enforcement of support orders. The information shall be available for data comparisons with case registries of other states. (Code 1981, § 19-11-39, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 31; Ga. L. 2014, p. 457, § 13/SB 282.)

The 2014 amendment, effective July 1, 2014, in subsection (c), substituted “The” for “the” at the beginning of paragraphs (c)(1) and (c)(3) through (c)(5); in paragraph (c)(2), substituted “Any” for “any” at the beginning and substituted “paragraph” for “item”; and in paragraph (c)(3) substituted “amounts” for “accounts”.

UNIFORM RECIPROCAL ENFORCEMENT OF SUPPORT ACT

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Constitutionality. — Ga. L. 1958, p. 34 (see now O.C.G.A. Art. 2, Ch. 11, T. 19) does not deny due process of law in violation of federal and state Constitutions. Dansby v. Dansby, 222 Ga. 118, 149 S.E.2d 252 (1966).

Support award in URESA action may vary from prior decree. — Since the Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-11-40 et seq., is an independent proceeding which does not affect, and is not bound by, prior foreign judgments, a responding court may enter a support order that is greater than, as well as less than, a prior judgment. State ex rel. McKenna v. McKenna, 253 Ga. 6, 315 S.E.2d 885 (1984).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Treaty not prerequisite to recognizing foreign country as reciprocating state. — Treaty between United States and a foreign country permitting reciprocal enforcement of child support obligations is not a prerequisite to recognizing that country as a reciprocating state under O.C.G.A. Art. 2, Ch. 11, T. 19. 1981 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 81-12.

Reciprocal child support enforcement acts not violative of U.S. Constitution treaty provisions. — So long as a reciprocal child support enforcement statute does not require more than a routine review of foreign laws, does not directly affect United States foreign policy, and does not have the potential for disruption of foreign policy or embarrassment to the United States government, the statute does not violate treaty provisions of the United States Constitution (U.S. Const., Art. I, Sec. X, Cl. I and U.S. Const., Art. II, Sec. II, Cl. II). 1981 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 81-12.

Superior court may not transfer proceeding to juvenile court. — Superior court may not transfer a Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-11-40 et seq., proceeding to the juvenile court under O.C.G.A. § 15-11-6(b). 1989 Op. Att’y Gen. No. U89-7.

19-11-40. Short title.

This article may be cited as the “Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act.” (Ga. L. 1958, p. 34, § 34.)

Editor’s notes. — Ga. L. 1958, p. 34, §§ 29 and 30, not codified by the General Assembly, provide that judgments, decrees, or orders issued under the authority of laws utilized prior to initial passage in 1958 of this article shall continue in validity.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Ga. L. 1958, p. 34 (see now O.C.G.A. § 19-11-40 et seq.) does not apply merely in cases of actual nonsupport. Zimmerman v. Zimmerman, 131 Ga. App. 567, 206 S.E.2d 583 (1974).

Counterclaim for modification not permitted in contempt proceeding. — Counterclaim for modification of a Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-11-40 et seq., support order may not be asserted by the defendant in a URESA contempt proceeding. The only issue for determination in a URESA contempt proceeding is the enforcement of the support obligation previously established by the URESA order. State v. Garrish, 197 Ga. App. 816, 399 S.E.2d 572 (1990).

Spousal consent precluded arrears recovery. — When wife consented to allowing the minor child of the parties to live with the husband in Germany for a three-year period and did not provide any support for the child during that three year period; the husband provided all of the support for the child during that period and not until three years after the child had returned from Germany did the wife seek to recover any child support for the time the child spent in Germany, the wife could be said to have consented to the husband’s voluntary expenditures as an alternative to his child support obligation and, as a result, the trial court erred in concluding that the husband was in arrears in the payment of child support for the three-year period at issue. Brown v. Georgia Dep’t of Human Resources ex rel. Brown, 263 Ga. 53, 428 S.E.2d 81 (1993).

19-11-40.1. Effective date for application of article.

No new petition may be filed, nor may any type of proceeding be initiated, under this article on or after January 1, 1998. It is the intent of the General Assembly that any petitions filed or proceedings initiated on or after January 1, 1998, be governed by the provisions of Article 3 of this chapter, the "Uniform Interstate Family Support Act." The provisions of this article shall apply only to proceedings pending prior to January 1, 1998. (Code 1981, § 19-11-40.5, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 32.)

Code Commission notes. — Pursuant to Code Section 28-9-5, in 1997, this Code section, enacted as Code Section 19-11-40.5 was redesignated as Code Section 19-11-40.1.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Act does not apply retroactively. — Uniform Interstate Family Support Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-11-160 et seq., cannot be applied retroactively because of the language of O.C.G.A. § 19-11-40.1. Georgia Dep't of Human Resources v. Deason, 238 Ga. App. 853, 520 S.E.2d 712 (1999).

19-11-41. Purposes of article.

The purposes of this article are to improve and extend by reciprocal legislation the enforcement of duties of support and to make uniform the law with respect thereto. (Ga. L. 1958, p. 34, § 1.)

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Purpose of O.C.G.A. § 19-11-40 et seq. — Purpose of O.C.G.A. Art. 2, Ch. 11, T. 19 is to improve enforcement of duty of support, not to impair that duty. Ray v. Ray, 247 Ga. 467, 277 S.E.2d 495 (1981); Bisno v. Biloon, 161 Ga. App. 351, 291 S.E.2d 66 (1982), overruled on other grounds, State ex rel. McKenna v. McKenna, 253 Ga. 6, 315 S.E.2d 885 (1984).

Intent of the General Assembly in enacting the Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-11-40 et seq., was not that resident obligors on prior judicial awards of child support be denied the right to a jury trial on the issue of change of condition by being "prosecuted" in a quasi-criminal hearing at which a law enforcement official of this state represents the obligee. Bisno v. Biloon, 161 Ga. App. 351, 291 S.E.2d 66 (1982), overruled on other grounds, State ex rel. McKenna v. McKenna, 253 Ga. 6, 315 S.E.2d 885 (1984).

Article has intrastate as well as interstate use. — While O.C.G.A. § 19-11-40 et seq. has been thought of as being primarily for use interstate, it has intrastate application as well. Ray v. Ray, 247 Ga. 467, 277 S.E.2d 495 (1981).

Intrastate support obligor cannot obtain modification by action. — If an intrastate support obligor wants modification of child support provisions of divorce and alimony decree, the obligor can bring a suit for modification, but the obligor is not entitled to precipitate an action under O.C.G.A. § 19-11-40 et seq. in order to obtain modification. Ray v. Ray, 247 Ga. 467, 277 S.E.2d 495 (1981); Bisno v. Biloon, 161 Ga. App. 351, 291 S.E.2d 66 (1982), overruled on other grounds, State ex rel. McKenna v. McKenna, 253 Ga. 6, 315 S.E.2d 885 (1984).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Reciprocal features of Act not extended to foreign countries. — Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act is effective between Georgia and all other states and territories of the United States where a similar act has been enacted but reciprocal features are not extended to foreign countries. 1962 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 348.

U.L.A. — Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act (1958 Act) (U.L.A.) § 1.

19-11-42. Definitions.

As used in this article, the term:

(1) "Certification" means certification in accordance with the laws of the certifying state.

(2) "Court" means the superior court of this state and, when the context requires, means the court of any other state as defined in a substantially similar reciprocal law.

(3) "Initiating state" means any state in which a proceeding pursuant to this article or a substantially similar reciprocal law is commenced.

(4) "Law" includes both common law and statute law.

(5) "Obligee" means any person to whom a duty of support is owed.

(6) "Obligor" means any person owing a duty of support.

(7) "Register" means the entry of an order by a superior court of this state making a foreign support order a support order of this state.

(8) "Registering court" means any superior court of this state in which the support order of the rendering state is registered.

(9) "Responding state" means any state in which any proceeding pursuant to the proceeding in the initiating state is or may be commenced.

(10) "State" includes:

(A) The District of Columbia and any state, territory, or possession of the United States or any foreign jurisdiction in which this article or a substantially similar reciprocal law has been enacted; and

(B) Any province or territory of the Dominion of Canada declared to be a reciprocating state by the Attorney General pursuant to Code Section 19-11-44.

(11) "Support order" means any judgment, decree, or order of support, whether temporary or final and whether subject to modification, revocation, or remission, regardless of the kind of action in which it is entered, provided that custody, visitation rights, property settlement, and all matters other than support are specifically excluded from enforcement under this article. (Ga. L. 1958, p. 34, § 2; Ga. L. 1975, p. 818, § 1; Ga. L. 1979, p. 938, § 2; Ga. L. 1982, p. 3, § 19; Ga. L. 1984, p. 613, § 1.)

19-11-43. Duty of support defined; criteria for determining existence of duty of support.

"Duty of support" includes any duty of support imposed or imposable by law or by any court order, decree, or judgment, whether interlocutory or final, and whether incidental to a proceeding for divorce, judicial (legal) separation, separate maintenance, or otherwise; for purposes of this article, in determining the existence of a duty of support, the following criteria may be considered, without limitation:

(1) A person in one state is declared to be liable for the support of the person's spouse, in conformity with the support laws of this state, and for the support of any child or children of his under 18 years of age and residing or found in the same state or in another state having substantially similar or reciprocal laws; and, if the person is possessed of sufficient means or is able to earn such means, he may be required to pay for this support a fair and reasonable sum according to his means, as may be determined by the court having jurisdiction of the respondent in a proceeding instituted under this article. Notwithstanding the fact that either spouse has obtained in any state or county a final decree of divorce or separation from the other spouse or a decree dissolving their marriage, the obligor under this Code section shall be deemed legally liable for the support under this article of any dependent child of the marriage, whether or not there has been an award of alimony or support for the child or children;

(2) The parents in one state are declared to be severally liable for the support of a child 18 years of age or older, residing or found in the same state or in another state having substantially similar or reciprocal laws, whenever the child is unable to maintain himself and is likely to become a public charge;

(3) A child or children born of parents who, at any time prior or subsequent to the birth of the child, have entered into a civil or religious marriage ceremony shall be deemed the legitimate child or children of both parents, regardless of the validity of the marriage;

(4) A child or children born to parents who held or hold themselves out as husband and wife by virtue of a common-law marriage recognized as valid by the laws of the initiating state and of the responding state shall be deemed the legitimate child or children of both parents;

(5) A common-law marriage recognized as valid by the laws of the initiating state and of the responding state shall be deemed to be a valid marriage for purposes of this article;

(6) Whenever a person has been adjudicated by a court of competent jurisdiction as the parent of a child born out of wedlock, the person shall be legally liable for the support of the child in the same manner in which the person would owe the duty of support if the child were a legitimate child. (Ga. L. 1958, p. 34, § 2; Ga. L. 1979, p. 466, § 45; Ga. L. 1988, p. 1720, § 12.)

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Ordering putative father to support illegitimate children. — It is not contrary to public policy for a putative father to be ordered to support his illegitimate children, and provision is specifically made for compelling him to do so. Wilson v. Chumney, 96 Ga. App. 258, 99 S.E.2d 736 (1957).

Determining duty of support does not require formal paternity adjudication. — While a formal adjudication of paternity “may be considered” in determining the existence of a duty of support, the trial court is expressly not limited to this criterion. Evans v. State, 178 Ga. App. 1, 341 S.E.2d 865 (1986).

Although, under O.C.G.A. § 19-11-43, a formal adjudication of paternity is not required for prosecution of support claims under the Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act (URESA), O.C.G.A. § 19-11-40 et seq., an adjudication may be considered by a court in determining whether support obligations exist. Department of Human Resources v. McCormick, 208 Ga. App. 751, 431 S.E.2d 740 (1993).

Effect of URESA action support award on prior decree. — Under the Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-11-40 et seq., the court having jurisdiction in the responding state makes an independent determination of a “fair and reasonable sum” irrespective of whether there is a prior decree; and if a different amount is ordered paid, the other judgment is not modified but sums paid under either are credited to the other. State ex rel. McKenna v. McKenna, 253 Ga. 6, 315 S.E.2d 885 (1984); Baird v. Herrmann, 181 Ga. App. 579, 353 S.E.2d 75 (1987).

Out-of-state resident's URESA remedy in Georgia. — Initiating proceedings in one state to modify an original decree does not preclude initiating proceedings in Georgia under the Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act, O.C.G.A.

§ 19-11-40 et seq., and pursuing that remedy to satisfaction. State v. Chase, 195 Ga. App. 806, 395 S.E.2d 284 (1990).

Neither the existence of a foreign child support judgment nor the terms thereof have any bearing whatsoever on an obligee's right to initiate and pursue an Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-11-40 et seq., action to enforce an obligor's duty to provide child support. State v. Chase, 195 Ga. App. 806, 395 S.E.2d 284 (1990).

Petition under the Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-11-40 et seq., by the Department of Human Resources, on behalf of an Ohio resident, to collect child support and arrearages from a Georgia resident was erroneously dismissed on the grounds that the Ohio court lacked jurisdiction over the Georgia resident when the court entered the original support order; the Georgia court was required to make its own determination, applying Georgia law, as to the Georgia resident's duty of support and the amount to be paid. Department of Human Resources v. Pruitt, 223 Ga. App. 126, 476 S.E.2d 764 (1996).

Arrearages may be collected after child obtains majority. — Contempt action to collect arrearages which accrued while a child was under 18 may be filed even though the child on whose behalf the action is brought is legally an adult at the time of the action. Johnson v. State, 167 Ga. App. 508, 306 S.E.2d 756 (1983).

Cited in Henry v. Henry, 115 Ga. App. 211, 154 S.E.2d 298 (1967); Crane v. Crane, 225 Ga. 605, 170 S.E.2d 392 (1969); Dill v. Dill, 232 Ga. 231, 206 S.E.2d 6 (1974); Weaver v. Chester, 195 Ga. App. 471, 393 S.E.2d 715 (1990).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Reciprocal features of article do not extend to foreign countries. — Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act is effective between Georgia and all other states and territories of the United States where a similar act has been enacted but reciprocal features are not extended to foreign countries. 1962 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 348.

Parents severally liable for support until child's eighteenth birthday. — Parents of a child are severally liable for the child's support until the child attains 18 years of age. 1962 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 346.

Duty to support illegitimate children requires paternity finding. — Duty of support does not extend to illegitimate child absent adjudication of paternity. 1970 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U70-73.

19-11-44. Declaration of reciprocating status of Canadian province or territory by Attorney General.

Where the Attorney General is satisfied that reciprocal provisions will be made by any province or territory of the Dominion of Canada, the Attorney General may declare the province or territory to be a reciprocating state for the purpose of this article. Any such order declaring that a province or territory is a reciprocating state may be revoked by the Attorney General; and thereupon the province or territory with respect to which the order was made shall cease to be a reciprocating state for the purpose of this article; provided, however, that the revocation shall not affect any actions which have been adjudicated in the responding state or which have been received by this state as the responding state. (Ga. L. 1975, p. 818, § 2.)

19-11-45. Remedies cumulative.

The remedies provided in this article are in addition to and not in substitution of any other remedies. (Ga. L. 1958, p. 34, § 3.)

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Purpose of article. — Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act (URESA), O.C.G.A. § 19-11-40 et seq., was designed to facilitate collection of support from parents residing in distant states without compelling the custodial parent to incur excessive transportation and litigation expenses. Department of Human Resources v. Westmoreland, 210 Ga. App. 603, 436 S.E.2d 706 (1993).

Remedies not exclusive. — Procedures set forth in the Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act, O.C.G.A. § 9-11-40 et seq., and the Uniform Interstate Family Support Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-11-100 et seq., for registering and enforcing foreign support judgments are in addition to and not exclusive of the procedures in O.C.G.A. § 9-12-130 et seq. to file and domesticate judgments for enforcement; therefore, a trial court had jurisdiction to consider a mother's petition seeking interest due on child support owing on a Tennessee divorce decree. Dial v. Adkins, 265 Ga. App. 650, 595 S.E.2d 332 (2004).

Concurrent remedies. — Various remedies for enforcement and collection of a child support order, including contempt, execution by writ of fieri facias, and garnishment, may generally be pursued either singly or concurrently. Department of Human Resources v. Chambers, 211 Ga. App. 763, 441 S.E.2d 77 (1994).

Effect on orders previously issued in divorce of separate maintenance action. — Any order of support issued by a court of this state, entered in an action filed under the Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-11-40 et seq., shall not supersede any previous order of support issued in divorce or separate maintenance action, and the latter order will not constitute a modification of the former order; thus, amounts for a particular period paid pursuant to either order shall be credited against amounts accruing or accrued for the same period under both. Ray v. Ray, 247 Ga. 467, 277 S.E.2d 495 (1981); Bisno v. Biloon, 161 Ga. App. 351, 291 S.E.2d 66 (1982), overruled on other grounds, State ex rel. McKenna v. McKenna, 253 Ga. 6, 315 S.E.2d 885 (1984).

Payment of arrearages wrongly postponed. — Court erred by ordering postponement of payment on the child support arrearage until a child reached the age of 18. Department of Human Resources v. Chambers, 211 Ga. App. 763, 441 S.E.2d 77 (1994).

Contempt order upon divorce decree not bar to URESA action. — When the mother had previously obtained a contempt order which required the father to comply with the original divorce decree, the trial court erroneously denied a petition for an order of support under the Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-11-40 et seq., because a complaining spouse is not required to make an election of remedies but may pursue any number of remedies until the judgment is satisfied. 19-11-48. When extradition of obligor authorized; how extradition avoided; petition; temporary order of support; delivery of copies of order; suspension of extradition proceedings.

(a) The Governor of this state may:

(1) Demand from the governor of any other state the surrender of any person found in the other state who is charged in this state with the crime of failing to provide for the support of any person in this state; and

(2) Surrender, on demand by the governor of any other state, any person found in this state who is charged in the other state with the crime of failing to provide for the support of a person in the other state.

(b) The provisions for extradition of criminals not inconsistent with this Code section shall apply to any such demand, even if the person whose surrender is demanded was not in the demanding state at the time of the commission of the crime and although he had not fled therefrom. Neither the demand, the oath, nor any proceedings for extradition pursuant to this Code section need state or show that the person whose surrender is demanded has fled from justice or that at the time of the commission of the crime he was in the demanding or other state.

(c) When the extradition of an obligor in this state has been demanded by the governor of any other state, the obligor may be relieved of extradition to the other state if he submits himself to the jurisdiction of the superior court of this state in the county where he is found and complies with the court's order of support.

(d) In order to submit himself to the jurisdiction of the superior court of this state, the obligor shall file with the court a verified petition containing the following information:

- (1) His name and permanent address;
- (2) The names, addresses, and ages of his obligees in the demanding state;
- (3) His financial circumstances;
- (4) That he is willing to submit himself to the jurisdiction of the court of this state and to comply with its order of support; and
- (5) Such other information as he believes to be pertinent and material.

(e) The court shall make a temporary order of support and shall continue the matter pending the receipt of such further information as the court may deem necessary or advisable. Two certified copies of the temporary order of support shall be delivered to the office of the Governor and one plain copy shall be delivered to the district attorney. Upon receipt of the certified copies of the order of support, the Governor may, in his discretion, suspend extradition proceedings so long as the obligor complies with the temporary order of support and with any other orders of support which may thereafter be entered. 19-11-50. Remedies of state or political subdivision furnishing support; court orders for present or future support not to be jeopardized.

(a) Except as otherwise specified in subsection (b) of this Code section, whenever the state or a political subdivision thereof furnishes support to an obligee, it has the same right as the obligee to whom the support was furnished to invoke this article for the purpose of securing reimbursement of expenditures so made and of obtaining continuing support.

(b) Subsection (a) of this Code section shall not be invoked unless the court having jurisdiction of the matter is satisfied that efforts on the part of the state or political subdivision to secure reimbursements for previous support shall not jeopardize the enforcement of the court's orders for present or future support of the dependent or dependents involved. The court shall have the right at any time to enter appropriate orders to carry out this subsection. (Ga. L. 1958, p. 34, § 7.)

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

To receive support payments custodian must have lawful custody. — If statute requires furnishing of support for dependent children to person having custody of those children, the statute reasonably is restricted to that person having lawful custody by virtue of a court order or with the consent of the obligor parent. To hold otherwise would be to reward a physical custodian who is acting in actual defiance of and contrary to an order of the court of the responding state. Hethcox v. Hethcox, 146 Ga. App. 430, 246 S.E.2d 444 (1978).

All duties of support, including the duty to pay arrearages or reimbursement, are enforceable by petition irrespective of relationship between the obligor and obligee. Jurisdiction of all proceedings hereunder shall be vested in the superior courts of the various counties of this state. The petition must be commenced in the county of residence of the obligee. (Ga. L. 1958, p. 34, § 8; Ga. L. 1979, p. 941, § 1.)

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Right to jury trial. — Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act, Ga. L. 1951, p. 726, does not expressly provide right of trial by jury as to support by parent of minor children in custody of other parent in another state. Strange v. Strange, 222 Ga. 44, 148 S.E.2d 494 (1966).

Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act (see now O.C.G.A. § 19-11-40 et seq.) is not unconstitutional for failure to provide jury trial for parent sued by former spouse for future support of minor children in her custody. Strange v.

Strange, 222 Ga. 44, 148 S.E.2d 494 (1966).

Petition under article is not divorce or alimony case. — Petition for support of minor children brought under the Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act (see now O.C.G.A. § 19-11-40 et seq.) is not a divorce or alimony case within the meaning of Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. IV (see now Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VI, Para. II, III, V; Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. 1, Para. VIII; Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. V, Para. V) which provides that the Supreme Court "shall be a court alone for the trial and correction of errors of law ... in all divorce and alimony cases." O'Quinn v. O'Quinn, 217 Ga. 431, 122 S.E.2d 925 (1961).

Lawful custodian need not pay support to mother wrongfully taking children. — There is no duty on a father to make payments to a mother for support of minor children when the father has obtained a prior order of custody, and the mother, contrary to such order, has removed the children out of the court's jurisdiction. Hethcox v. Hethcox, 146 Ga. App. 430, 246 S.E.2d 444 (1978).

Arrearages only recoverable after amendment by Ga. L. 1979, p. 941, §§ 1, 2. — Arrearages were not specifically recoverable under the Georgia Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act (see now O.C.G.A. § 19-11-40 et seq.) until O.C.G.A. §§ 19-11-51 and 19-11-63 were amended by Ga. §§ 1, 2. State ex rel. Brookins v. Brookins, 257 Ga. 205, 357 S.E.2d 77 (1987).

Effect of order under URESA in subsequent arrearage action. — An order rendered by a responding court in a Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-11-40 et seq., proceeding is not res judicata in a subsequent action for arrearage under the original support order, subject to a setoff of any such arrearages already paid to prevent a double recovery. State ex rel. Brookins v. Brookins, 257 Ga. 205, 357 S.E.2d 77 (1987).

Arrearages may be collected after child obtains majority. — Contempt action to collect arrearages which accrued while a child was under 18 may be filed even though the child on whose behalf the action is brought is legally an adult at the time of the action. *Johnson v. The petition shall be verified and shall state the name and, so far as known to the petitioner, the address and circumstances of the respondent and the names of his dependents for whom support is sought and all other pertinent information. The petitioner may include in or attach to the petition any information which may help in locating or identifying the respondent, including, but without limitation by enumeration, a photograph of the respondent, a description of any distinguishing marks of his person, other names and aliases by which he has been or is known, the name of his employer, his fingerprints, and his social security number. JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act actions not limited. — Provisions of O.C.G.A. § 19-6-19 are not intended to and do not provide any limitation on the filing of subsequent Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act (URESA), O.C.G.A. § 19-11-40 et seq., actions. Department of Human Resources v. Westmoreland, 210 Ga. App. 603, 436 S.E.2d 706 (1993).

When cause of action arises. — A cause of action arises if either the obligee is in need of support or the obligor has failed and refused to support the obligee.

Fact the father has been diligent in making past support payments would not preclude a Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act (URESA), O.C.G.A. § 19-11-40 et seq., action in those instances when the obligee child is in need of support. 19-11-53. Representation of petitioner by district attorney; fees; monthly collection reports; payment to county for services; clerk’s fees.

- (a) The district attorney of each superior court shall be authorized to represent the petitioner in any proceeding under this article. Otherwise, at the option of the district attorney, actions under this article shall be brought as provided in Article 1 of this chapter. The district attorney shall be authorized to require the completion of an application. Fees for such services shall be charged as part of the application in accordance with subsection (b) of Code Section 19-11-8. The department shall be entitled to receive monthly reports concerning collections under this provision pursuant to Code Section 19-11-21.
- (b) For such services by the district attorney there shall be paid to the county in which the petition is handled the sum of $50.00 for each petition handled, whether this state is the initiating or the responding state. In all counties in which the clerk of the superior court is on a fee basis, the district attorney shall pay from the sum so received by him to the clerk the fees as are allowed by law for the filing of petitions and service of processes filed under this article. However, before the sum shall be paid, an order granting or denying support must have been entered.
- (c) When acting pursuant to subsection (a) of this Code section, the district attorney shall represent the petitioner to the extent that the interests of the petitioner do not conflict with the interests of the department. (Ga. L. 1958, p. 34, § 10; Ga. L. 1975, p. 781, § 1; Ga. L. 1985, p. 785, § 9; Ga. L. 1990, p. 1832, § 1; Ga. L. 1992, p. 1833, § 6.)

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

District attorney required to represent Virginia resident in support action. — Statute clearly makes it mandatory upon the district attorney to represent resident of Virginia in action brought by her against her husband under the Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act (see now O.C.G.A. § 19-11-40 et seq.). Fact that his work load is heavy does not relieve him of this duty. Slaton v. Campbell, 229 Ga. 59, 189 S.E.2d 69 (1972).

To receive support payments custodian must have lawful custody. — When statute requires furnishing of support for dependent children to person having custody of those children, it is reasonably restricted to that person having lawful custody by virtue of a court order or with the consent of the obligor parent. To hold otherwise would be to reward a physical custodian who is acting in actual defiance of and contrary to an order of the court of the responding state. Hethcox v. Hethcox, 146 Ga. App. 430, 246 S.E.2d 444 (1978).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Types of fee under article. — Filing fee and service fee are only fees contemplated by wording of the Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act (see now O.C.G.A. § 19-11-40 et seq.). 1957 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 47.

Use of assistant by district attorney. — Assistant whose duties are general does not disqualify solicitor general (now district attorney) from receiving fee. 1957 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 75.

Collection of fee not prohibited by § 45-7-3. — Prohibition contained in Ga. L. 1973, p. 701, § 1 as amended by Ga. L. 1978, p. 4, § 1 (see now O.C.G.A. § 45-7-3) forbidding the district attorney from receiving compensation out of state funds, other than the district attorney's salary and county supplements, does not prohibit state's paying $50.00 to county for every petition filed pursuant to the Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act (see now O.C.G.A. § 19-11-40 et seq.) which had been handled by the district attorney in that county and for which an order granting or denying support had been entered. 1979 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U79-16.

No additional fee in contempt proceeding for violation of support order. — Contempt proceeding for violating an order of support issued in a case under the Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act (see now O.C.G.A. § 19-11-40 et seq.) is in the nature of a civil contempt proceeding to obtain compliance with an order of support for the benefit of the plaintiff, and as such would be a continuation of the main cause; being a continuation of the main cause, a solicitor (now district attorney) would not be entitled to receive an additional fee of $50.00 for successfully representing the plaintiff. 1957 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 76.

When and how fee is received. — Solicitor general (now district attorney) is entitled to payment of fee provided in Ga. L. 1958, p. 34, § 10 (see now O.C.G.A. § 19-11-53) when the case has been successfully concluded, and an order for payment of the fee has been processed as provided in Ga. L. 1958, p. 34, §§ 15 and 15A (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 19-11-58 and 19-11-59). 1957 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 75.

19-11-55. Duty of court of this state when acting as initiating state; transmittal of copies of petition, certificate, and article; monetary recommendation to Canadian court.

(a) If a court of this state, acting as an initiating state, finds that the petition sets forth facts from which it may be determined that the respondent owes a duty of support and that a court of the responding state may obtain jurisdiction of the respondent or his property, it shall so certify and shall cause three copies of the petition, its certificate, and this article to be transmitted to the court in the responding state. If the name and address of the court are unknown and the responding state has an information agency comparable to that established in the initiating state it shall cause the copies to be transmitted to the state information agency or other proper officials of the responding state, with a request that it or they forward the copies to the proper court and that the court of the responding state acknowledge their receipt to the court of the initiating state.

(b) If the responding state is a province or territory of the Dominion of Canada, the court of this state shall also set forth in its certificate the weekly or monthly amount in United States money which, in the court's opinion, the respondent should be required to pay for support of the petitioner; but such recommendation is provisional only and is subject to confirmation or modification by the court of the responding state. 19-11-56. Payment of costs and fees by state; issuance of execution to reimburse state.

A court of this state, whether the state is acting as an initiating or a responding state, may, in its discretion, direct that any part of or all fees and costs incurred in this state, including, without limitation by enumeration, fees for filing, service of process, seizure of property, and stenographic service of both petitioner and respondent, or either, shall be paid by the state and shall direct that the district attorney's fee be paid by the state. The court may order that when the state has paid the costs above that a fi. fa. be issued against the respondent to reimburse the state for its expenditures. Where the action is brought by or through the state or an agency thereof, there shall be no filing fee. (Ga. L. 1958, p. 34, § 13.)

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

State does not pay court costs under the Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act (see now O.C.G.A. § 19-11-40 et seq.). 1962 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 92.

State can only pay district attorney's fee. — State cannot pay clerk's cost, or any of the costs and fees provided in the Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act, except the fee of the solicitor general (now district attorney), as no appropriation has been made for that purpose. 1957 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 48.

Payment of fee under § 19-11-59 requires court order. — Fee referred to in Ga. L. 1958, p. 34, § 15 (see now O.C.G.A. § 19-11-59) can only be paid as a result of a court order as provided in that section and direction of the commanding officer to the officer's subordinate to make payments does not fall within the purview of Ga. L. 1958, p. 34, § 13 or § 15A (see now O.C.G.A. § 19-11-56 or § 19-11-59). 1965-66 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 66-248.

When and how district attorney collects fee. — Solicitor general (now district attorney) is entitled to payment of fee when case has been successfully concluded, and an order for payment of fee has been processed as provided in Ga. L. 1958, p. 34, §§ 15 and 15A (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 19-11-58 and 19-11-59). 1957 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 75.

Fees payable by Department of Administrative Services. — Department of Administrative Services is not authorized to reimburse a superior court law clerk's travel expense from funds appropriated for the operation of the superior courts, but may use those funds to pay a court reporter's fee in a Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act (URESA), O.C.G.A. § 19-11-40 et seq., action if so ordered by the court. 1983 Op. OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL Obligation to pay fee on state. — Obligation to pay fee of solicitor general (now district attorney) is upon state and not upon county. 1957 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 75.

Payment of fee requires court order. — Fee referred to in Ga. L. 1958, p. 34, § 15A (see now O.C.G.A. § 19-11-59) can only be paid as a result of a court order as provided in Ga. L. 1958, p. 34, § 13 (see now O.C.G.A. § 19-11-56) and the direction of a commanding officer to the officer's subordinate to make payments does not fall within the purview of Ga. 19-11-60. Duty of court of this state when acting as responding state.

When a court of this state, acting as a responding state, receives from the court of an initiating state the copies specified in Code Section 19-11-55, it shall:

- (1) Docket the cause;
- (2) Notify the district attorney;
- (3) Set a time and place for a hearing; and
- (4) Take such action as is necessary in accordance with the laws of this state to obtain jurisdiction. (Ga. L. 1958, p. 34, § 16.)

19-11-61. Procedure where responding court unable to obtain jurisdiction; cooperation of police in locating respondent; transfer of documents upon location of respondent or his property.

(a) If a court of this state, acting as a responding state, is unable to obtain jurisdiction of the respondent or his property, due to inaccuracies or inadequacies in the petition or otherwise, the court shall communicate this fact to the court in the initiating state, shall on its own initiative use all means at its disposal to trace the respondent or his property, and shall hold the case pending the receipt of more accurate information or an amended petition from the court in the initiating state or information from the district attorney that the matter should be transferred as provided in subsection (b) of this Code section. The local police authorities and the state police shall cooperate with the court in locating any respondent alleged by petition to be present in this state.

(b) If the respondent or his property is not found in the county and the district attorney discovers that the respondent or his property may be found in another county of this state or in another state, the district attorney shall so inform the court. If the district attorney so informs the court, the clerk of court shall forward the documents received from the court in the initiating state to the superior court in the county of this state or to the appropriate court, information agency, or other proper officials of another state where the defendant or his property may be found. A clerk of court who so forwards documents shall give notice to the court from which the documents were received that the documents have been so forwarded. (Ga. L. 1958, p. 34, § 17; Ga. 19-11-65. Power of court to assure compliance with orders.

In addition to the other powers specified in this article, the court of this state, when acting as the responding state, has the power to subject the respondent to such terms and conditions as the court may deem proper to assure compliance with its orders and in particular has the power:

(1) To require the respondent to furnish recognizance in the form of a cash deposit or bond of such character and in such amount as the court may deem proper to assure payment of any amount required to be paid by the respondent;

(2) To require the respondent to make payments at specified intervals to the department or any county agency designated by the court or to the obligee and to report personally to the department at such times as may be deemed necessary; and

(3) To punish the respondent who violates any order of the court to the same extent as is provided by law for contempt of the court in any other action or proceeding cognizable by the court. (Ga. L. 1958, p. 34, § 21; Ga. L. 1989, p. 380, § 1; Ga. L. 1991, p. 94, § 19.)

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Cooperation of out-of-state courts cannot be compelled beyond terms of reciprocal law. — Courts of this state have no control over processes of courts of initiating state and cannot compel cooperation beyond bounds of substantially similar terms of its reciprocal law. Thibadeau v. Thibadeau, 133 Ga. App. 154, 210 S.E.2d 340 (1974).

Failure to enter findings does not bar enforcement of support. — Court's failure to enter findings of fact and conclusions of law with respect to paternity in the court's order directing payment of child support as required by O.C.G.A. § 9-11-52(a) is an amendable defect and, therefore, the trial court does not err by denying the defendant's motion to set aside the judgment nor by finding the defendant in contempt for willfully failing to comply with the court's order. Powell v. State, 166 Ga. App. 780, 305 S.E.2d 646 (1983).

Arrearages may be enforced after child reaches majority. — Contempt action to collect arrearages which accrued while a child was under 18 may be filed even though the child on whose behalf the action is brought is legally an adult at the time of the action. Johnson v. State, 167 Ga. App. 508, 306 S.E.2d 756 (1983).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

No additional fee in contempt proceeding for violating support order.

— Contempt proceeding for violating order of support issued in case under the Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act (see now O.C.G.A. § 19-11-40 et seq.) is in nature of civil contempt proceeding to obtain compliance with order of support for benefit of the plaintiff, and as such would be a continuation of the main cause; being a continuation of the main cause, the solicitor general (now district attorney) would not be entitled to receive an additional fee of $50.00 for successfully representing the plaintiff. 1957 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 76.

19-11-66. Determination of paternity.

If the obligor asserts as a defense that he is not the father of the child for whom support is sought and it appears to the court that the defense is not frivolous and if both of the parties are present at the hearing or if the proof required in the case indicates that the presence of either or both of the parties is not necessary, the court may adjudicate, by a jury trial if demanded by either party, the paternity issue. Otherwise the court may continue the hearing until the paternity issue has been adjudicated. (Ga. L. 1977, p. 699, § 1.)

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Term “frivolous” in O.C.G.A. § 19-11-66 refers to a defense in which the party's realistic chances of ultimate success are slight. Glover v. Clark, 161 Ga. App. 552, 288 S.E.2d 887 (1982).

Subject of parentage res judicata at time of URESA proceeding. — Trial court did not err in refusing to consider issue of parentage of minor child in context of Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-11-40 et seq., proceedings when the final divorce decree had been rendered and, pursuant to an agreement entered into by both parties, had granted the appellant reasonable rights of visitation and had ordered the appellant to pay child support and $250.00 for medical expenses relating to the birth of the child. The legitimacy of the child was a matter for decision during divorce proceedings and was res judicata at the time of the URESA proceeding. East v. Pike, 163 Ga. App. 375, 294 S.E.2d 597 (1982).

19-11-67. Transmittal of payments to court of initiating state; certified statement of payments made by respondent.

A court of this state, when acting as a responding state, shall have the following duties, which may be carried out through the community supervision office, juvenile probation office, or probation office under the authority of Article 6 of Chapter 8 of Title 42 for the court:

- (1) Upon the receipt of a payment made by the respondent pursuant to any order of the court or otherwise, to transmit the same forthwith to the court of the initiating state; and

(2) Upon request, to furnish to the court of the initiating state a certified statement of all payments made by the respondent. (Ga. L. 1958, p. 34, § 22; Ga. L. 2015, p. 422, § 5-45/HB 310.)

The 2015 amendment, effective July 1, 2015, substituted “community supervision office, juvenile probation office, or probation office under the authority of Article 6 of Chapter 8 of Title 42 for the court” for “probation department of the court” at the end of the introductory paragraph. See editor’s note for applicability.

Editor’s notes. — Ga. L. 2015, p. 422, § 6-1/HB 310, not codified by the General Assembly, provides, in part, that the amendment by this Act shall apply to sentences entered on or after July 1, 2015.

19-11-71. Previous support orders not superseded; how payments credited.

Any order of support issued by a court of this state when acting as a responding state shall not supersede any previous order of support issued in a divorce or separate maintenance action, but the amounts for a particular period paid pursuant to either order shall be credited against amounts accruing or accrued for the same period under both. (Ga. L. 1958, p. 34, § 26.)

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Effect on orders previously issued in divorce or separate maintenance action. — Any order of support issued by a court of this state, entered in an action filed under the Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-11-40 et seq., shall not supersede any previous order of support issued in divorce or separate maintenance action, and the latter order will not constitute a modification of the former order; thus, amounts for a particular period paid pursuant to either order shall be credited against amounts accruing or accrued for the same period under both. Ray v. Ray, 247 Ga. 467, 277 S.E.2d 495 (1981).

Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-11-40 et seq., order did not supersede divorce decree ordering child support. Bisno v. Biloon, 161 Ga. App. 351, 291 S.E.2d 66 (1982), overruled on other grounds, State ex rel. McKenna v. McKenna, 253 Ga. 6, 315 S.E.2d 885 (1984).

Kentucky URESA order does not supersede prior Georgia support order. — Kentucky Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act order does not supersede a prior Georgia divorce decree ordering child support; and by the same token, the URESA order does not constitute a modification of the support order. Earley v. Earley, 165 Ga. App. 483, 300 S.E.2d 814 (1983).

Payment on URESA action credit on divorce decree. — Under the Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-11-40 et seq., the court having jurisdiction in the responding state makes an independent determination of a "fair and reasonable sum" irrespective of whether there is a prior decree; and if a different amount is ordered paid, the other judgment is not modified but the sums paid under either are credited to the other. State ex rel. McKenna v. McKenna, 253 Ga. 6, 315 S.E.2d 885 (1984); Baird v. Herrmann, 181 Ga. App. 579, 353 S.E.2d 75 (1987).

19-11-72. Jurisdiction in other proceedings not conferred.

Participation in any proceedings under this article shall not confer upon any court jurisdiction of any of the parties thereto in any other proceeding. (Ga. L. 1958, p. 34, § 27.)

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Immunity of petitioner from respondent's state court claim. — Statute does not provide the petitioner with blanket immunity from jurisdictional exercise by respondent state's court. Balasco v. County of San Diego, 140 Ga. App. 482, 231 S.E.2d 485 (1976) (see O.C.G.A. § 19-11-72).

O.C.G.A. § 19-11-72 provides a nonresident petitioner immunity from the jurisdiction of the responding state's courts if the Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-11-40 et seq., procedures have been invoked for its legitimate ends — the enforcement of the duties of support. Earley v. Earley, 165 Ga. App. 483, 300 S.E.2d 814 (1983).

When there was no evidence that a nonresident former husband had initiated a Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support, O.C.G.A. § 19-11-40 et seq., proceeding for an illegitimate end, he was immune under O.C.G.A. § 19-11-72 from personal jurisdiction in an action by his former wife to domesticate a Virginia divorce decree and have him held in contempt for nonpayment of support. Riersgard v. Morton, 267 Ga. 451, 479 S.E.2d 748 (1997).

Enforcement only of obligations under valid court order. — There is no authorization for the provisions of the Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-11-40 et seq., to be used to force respondent to meet obligation other than under terms of valid court order. Balasco v. County of San Diego, 140 Ga. App. 482, 231 S.E.2d 485 (1976).

Counterclaims precluded. — Statute precludes counterclaim based on theory that the plaintiff, by initiating the proceeding, submits to jurisdiction generally. Thibadeau v. Thibadeau, 133 Ga. App. 154, 210 S.E.2d 340 (1974); Register v. Kandlbinder, 134 Ga. App. 754, 216 S.E.2d 647 (1975).

O.C.G.A. § 19-11-72 precludes counterclaims based merely on the theory that the plaintiff, by initiating the procedure on behalf of the named defendants, has submitted to the jurisdiction of the court of the responding state for other purposes. Earley v. Earley, 165 Ga. App. 483, 300 S.E.2d 814 (1983).

Proceedings as constituting tort upon respondent. — "Proceedings" are not "proceedings" under the statute when the proceedings constitute a tort upon a resident respondent. Balasco v. County of San Diego, 140 Ga. App. 482, 231 S.E.2d 485 (1976) (see O.C.G.A. § 19-11-72).

When institution of proceedings under the Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act (see now O.C.G.A. § 19-11-40 et seq.) results in implication of a tort upon the respondent, jurisdiction is not merely ancillary to the petitioner's initiation of proceedings under those provisions, but rather would be based upon the commission of a tortious act in this state. Balasco v. County of San Diego, 140 Ga. App. 482, 231 S.E.2d 485 (1976).

Code Section 19-11-53 shall apply equally when this state is acting either as a rendering or registering state. (Ga. L. 1979, p. 938, § 1.)

19-11-79. Registration procedure — Transmittal of documents to district attorney; filing; notice; docketing.

(a) An obligee seeking to register a foreign support order in a superior court of this state shall transmit to the district attorney:

(1) Three certified copies of the order with all modifications thereof;

(2) One copy of the Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act of the state in which the order was made;

(3) One copy of the law governing certification of orders in the state in which the order is being certified; and

(4) A statement, verified and signed by the obligee, showing the post office address of the obligee, the last known place of residence and post office address of the obligor, the amount of support remaining unpaid, a description and the location of any property of the obligor available upon execution, and a list of the states in which the order is registered.

(b) Upon receipt of the documents specified in subsection (a) of this Code section, the district attorney shall file them with the clerk of the superior court, for the purpose of setting a hearing thereon.

(c) Within ten days after the filing, the clerk shall send, by certified or registered mail or statutory overnight delivery with return receipt requested, to the obligor at the address given, a notice of the filing with a copy of the support order and a copy of the rule nisi setting the matter down for hearing. He shall also docket the case for hearing and notify the district attorney. (Ga. L. 1979, p. 938, § 1; Ga. L. 2000, p. 1589, § 4.)

19-11-80. Registration procedure — Hearing; defenses; grounds for stay; entry of order as registration; county's entitlement to fee; through whom payments made.

(a) At the hearing, the obligor may present only matters that would be available to him as defenses in an action to enforce a foreign money judgment. If he shows to the court that an appeal from the order is pending or will be taken or that a stay of execution has been granted, the court shall stay enforcement of the order until the appeal is concluded, the time for appeal is expired, or the order is vacated, upon satisfactory proof that the obligor has furnished security for payment of the support as required by the rendering state. If he shows to the court any ground upon which enforcement of a support order of this state may be stayed, the court shall stay enforcement of the order for an appropriate period if the obligor furnishes the same security for payment of the support ordered that is required for a support order of this state.

(b) If the obligor asserts no defenses or the court finds the obligor's defenses meritless, the court shall proceed to enter an order making the foreign support order an order of the courts of this state. The entry of such an order constitutes registration under this article.

(c) The registration of a foreign support order or of an order denying registration or of an order in an action brought to enforce a registered foreign support order shall constitute an order granting or denying support for the purposes of entitling the county in which a proceeding is brought under Code Sections 19-11-76 through 19-11-79, this Code section, and Code Section 19-11-81 to the $50.00 fee as provided in Code Section 19-11-53.

(d) The court shall be empowered to order payment under the terms of the registered order through the clerk of the superior court, the department, or such other collection agency as the court shall designate. (Ga. L. 1979, p. 938, § 1; Ga. L. 1989, p. 380, § 2; Ga. L. 1991, p. 94, § 19; Ga. L. 1992, p. 6, § 19.)

19-11-81. Effect of registration of foreign support order.

Upon registration, the registered foreign support order shall be treated in the same manner as a support order issued by a court of this state. It has the same effect and is subject to the same procedures, defenses, and proceedings for modifying, vacating, or staying as a support order of this state and may be enforced and satisfied in like manner. PART 1

GENERAL PROVISIONS

19-11-100. Short title.

This article shall be known and may be cited as the “Uniform Interstate Family Support Act.” (Code 1981, § 19-11-100, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 33; Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

Editor's notes. — Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193, effective July 1, 2013, reenacted this Code section without change.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Applicability. — Filing of an Alabama child support order in a Georgia court was not viewed as a traditional action on a foreign judgment, but was more appropriately governed by the Uniform Interstate Family Support Act (UIFSA), O.C.G.A. § 19-11-100 et seq.; in a Georgia arrearage proceeding under UIFSA, the statute of limitation under the laws of Georgia or of the issuing state, whichever was longer, and since the Alabama period for dormancy of judgments was longer than that of Georgia, Alabama law applied. Bodenhamer v. Wooten, 265 Ga. App. 733, 595 S.E.2d 592 (2004).

Procedures set forth in the Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-11-40 et seq., and the Uniform Interstate Family Support Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-11-100 et seq., for registering and enforcing foreign support judgments are in addition to and not exclusive of the procedures in O.C.G.A. § 9-12-130 et seq. to file and domesticate judgments for enforcement; therefore, a trial court had jurisdiction to consider a mother's petition seeking interest due on child support owing on a Tennessee divorce decree. *Dial v. 19-11-101. Definitions.

As used in this article, the term:

(1) "Child" means an individual, whether over or under the age of majority, who is or is alleged to be owed a duty of support by the individual's parent or who is or is alleged to be the beneficiary of a support order directed to the parent.

(2) "Child support order" means a support order for a child, including a child who has attained the age of majority under the law of the issuing state or foreign country.

(3) "Convention" means the Convention on the International Recovery of Child Support and Other Forms of Family Maintenance, concluded at The Hague on November 23, 2007.

(4) "Duty of support" means an obligation imposed or which may be imposed by law to provide support for a child, spouse, or former spouse, including an unsatisfied obligation to provide support.

(5) "Foreign country" means a country, including a political subdivision thereof, other than the United States, that authorizes the issuance of support orders and:

(A) Which has been declared under the law of the United States to be a foreign reciprocating country;

(B) Which has established a reciprocal arrangement for child support with this state as provided in Code Section 19-11-127;

(C) Which has enacted a law or established procedures for the issuance and enforcement of support orders which are substantially similar to the procedures under this article; or

(D) In which the convention is in force with respect to the United States.

(6) "Foreign support order" means a support order of a foreign tribunal.

(7) "Foreign tribunal" means a court, administrative agency, or quasi-judicial entity of a foreign country which is authorized to establish, enforce, or modify support orders or to determine parentage of a child. The term includes a competent authority under the convention.

(8) "Home state" means the state or foreign country in which a child lived with a parent or a person acting as parent for at least six consecutive months immediately preceding the time of filing of a petition or comparable pleading for support and, if a child is less than six months old, the state or foreign country in which the child lived from birth with any of them. A period of temporary absence of any of them is counted as part of the six-month or other period.

(9) "Income" includes earnings or other periodic entitlements to money from any source and any other property subject to withholding for support under the law of Georgia.

(10) "Income-withholding order" means an order or other legal process directed to an obligor's employer or other debtor, pursuant to Code Sections 19-6-31 through 19-6-33, to withhold support from the income of the obligor.

(11) "Initiating tribunal" means the tribunal of a state or foreign country from which a petition or comparable pleading is forwarded or in which a petition or comparable pleading is filed for forwarding to another state or foreign country.

(12) "Issuing foreign country" means the foreign country in which a tribunal issues a support order or a judgment determining parentage of a child.

(13) "Issuing state" means the state in which a tribunal issues a support order or renders a judgment determining parentage of a child.

(14) "Issuing tribunal" means the tribunal of a state or foreign country that issues a support order or a judgment determining parentage of a child.

(15) "Law" includes decisional and statutory law and rules and regulations having the force of law.

(16) "Obligee" means:

(A) An individual to whom a duty of support is or is alleged to be owed or in whose favor a support order or a judgment determining parentage of a child has been issued;

(B) A foreign country, state, or political subdivision of a state to which the rights under a duty of support or support order have been assigned or which has independent claims based on financial assistance provided to an individual obligee in place of child support;

(C) An individual seeking a judgment determining parentage of the individual's child; or

(D) A person that is a creditor in a proceeding under Part 7 of this article.

(17) "Obligor" means an individual or the estate of a decedent that:

(A) Owes or is alleged to owe a duty of support;

(B) Is alleged but has not been adjudicated to be a parent of a child;

(C) Is liable under a support order; or

(D) Is a debtor in a proceeding under Part 7 of this article.

(18) "Outside this state" means a location in another state or a country other than the United States, whether or not the country is a foreign country.

(19) "Person" means an individual, corporation, business trust, estate, trust, partnership, limited liability company, association, joint venture, public corporation, government or governmental subdivision, agency, or instrumentality, or any other legal or commercial entity.

(20) "Record" means information that is inscribed on a tangible medium or that is stored in an electronic or other medium and is retrievable in perceivable form.

(21) "Register" means to record or file in a tribunal of this state a support order or judgment determining parentage of a child issued in another state or a foreign country.

(22) “Registering tribunal” means a tribunal in which a support order or judgment determining parentage of a child is registered.

(23) “Responding state” means a state in which a petition or comparable pleading for support or to determine parentage of a child is filed or to which a petition or comparable pleading is forwarded for filing from another state or foreign country.

(24) “Responding tribunal” means the authorized tribunal in a responding state or foreign country.

(25) “Spousal support order” means a support order for a spouse or former spouse of the obligor.

(26) “State” means a state of the United States, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, the United States Virgin Islands, or any territory or insular possession under the jurisdiction of the United States. The term includes an Indian nation or tribe.

(27) “Support enforcement agency” means a public official, governmental entity, or private agency authorized to:

(A) Seek enforcement of support orders or laws relating to the duty of support;

(B) Seek establishment or modification of child support;

(C) Request determination of parentage of a child;

(D) Attempt to locate obligors or their assets; or

(E) Request determination of the controlling child support order.

(28) “Support order” means a judgment, decree, order, decision, or directive, whether temporary, final, or subject to modification, issued in a state or foreign country for the benefit of a child, a spouse, or a former spouse, which provides for monetary support, health care, arrearages, retroactive support, or reimbursement for financial assistance provided to an individual obligee in place of child support. The term may include related costs and fees, interest, income withholding, automatic adjustment, reasonable attorney’s fees, and other relief.

(29) “Tribunal” means a court, administrative agency, or quasi-judicial entity authorized to establish, enforce, or modify support orders or to determine parentage of a child. (Code 1981, § 19-11-101, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 33; Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

The 2013 amendment, effective July 1, 2013, rewrote this Code section.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Foreign judgment was a “support order” under the Uniform Interstate Family Support Act. — Trial court erred in vacating the court’s prior order confirming a Massachusetts judgment that required a former husband to pay arrearages and in dismissing a former wife’s petition to register and enforce the judgment as a support order under the Uniform Interstate Family Support Act (UIFSA), O.C.G.A. § 19-11-100 et seq., because the Massachusetts judgment fell within the definition of a support order set forth in UIFSA, O.C.G.A. § 19-11-101(21), since it was an order and judgment for the benefit of a former spouse providing for arrearages and interest. Sussman v. Sussman, 301 Ga. App. 397, 687 S.E.2d 644 (2009).

19-11-102. Designated tribunals; support enforcement agency.

(a) The superior courts, the Office of State Administrative Hearings, and the Department of Human Services are the tribunals of Georgia for purposes of this article.

(b) The Department of Human Services shall be the support enforcement agency of this state. (Code 1981, § 19-11-102, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 33; Ga. L. 2009, p. 453, § 2-2/HB 228; Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

The 2013 amendment, effective July 1, 2013, designated the existing provisions as subsection (a) and added subsection (b).

19-11-103. Nature of remedies.

(a) Remedies provided by this article are cumulative and do not affect the availability of remedies under other law or the recognition of a foreign support order on the basis of comity.

(b) This article does not:

(1) Provide the exclusive method of establishing or enforcing a support order under the law of Georgia; or

(2) Grant a tribunal of Georgia jurisdiction to render judgment or issue an order relating to child custody or visitation in a proceeding under this article. (Code 1981, § 19-11-103, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 33; Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

The 2013 amendment, effective July 1, 2013, designated the existing provisions as subsection (a) and added subsection (b).

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Applicability. — Procedures set forth in the Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-11-40 et seq., and the Uniform Interstate Family Support Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-11-100 et seq., for registering and enforcing foreign support judgments are in addition to and not exclusive of the procedures in O.C.G.A. § 9-12-130 et seq. to file and domesticate judgments for enforcement; therefore, a trial court had jurisdiction to consider a mother's petition seeking interest due on child support owing on a Tennessee divorce decree. Dial v. Adkins, 265 Ga. App. 650, 595 S.E.2d 332 (2004).

Cited in Baars v. Freeman, 288 Ga. 835, 708 S.E.2d 273 (2011).

19-11-104. Applicability.

(a) A tribunal of Georgia shall apply Parts 1 through 6 and, as applicable, Part 7 of this article to a support proceeding involving:

- (1) A foreign support order;
- (2) A foreign tribunal; or
- (3) An obligee, obligor, or child residing in a foreign country.

(b) A tribunal of Georgia that is requested to recognize and enforce a support order on the basis of comity may apply the procedural and substantive provisions of Parts 1 through 6 of this article.

(c) Part 7 of this article applies only to a support proceeding under the convention. In such a proceeding, if a provision of Part 7 of this article is inconsistent with Parts 1 through 6 of this article, Part 7 of this article controls. (Code 1981, § 19-11-104, enacted by Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

Effective date. — This Code section became effective July 1, 2013.

PART 2

JURISDICTION; COOPERATION BETWEEN STATES

19-11-110. Jurisdiction.

(a) In a proceeding to establish or enforce a support order or to determine parentage of a child, a tribunal of this state may exercise personal jurisdiction over a nonresident individual or the individual's guardian or conservator if:

- (1) The individual is personally served with process within Georgia;
- (2) The individual submits to the jurisdiction of Georgia by consent, by entering a general appearance, or by filing a responsive document having the effect of waiving any contest to personal jurisdiction;

(3) The individual resided with the child in Georgia;

(4) The individual resided in Georgia and provided prenatal expenses or support for the child;

(5) The child resides in Georgia as a result of the acts or directives of the individual;

(6) The individual engaged in sexual intercourse in Georgia and the child may have been conceived by that act of intercourse;

(7) The individual asserted parentage of a child in the putative father registry maintained in this state by the Department of Human Services; or

(8) There is any other basis consistent with the Constitutions of Georgia and the United States for the exercise of personal jurisdiction.

(b) The bases of personal jurisdiction set forth in subsection (a) of this Code section or in any other law of this state may not be used to acquire personal jurisdiction for a tribunal of this state to modify a child support order of another state unless the requirements of Code Section 19-11-170 are met, or, in the case of a foreign support order, unless the requirements of Code Section 19-11-174 are met. (Code 1981, § 19-11-110, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 33; Ga. L. 2009, p. 453, § 2-2/HB 228; Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

The 2013 amendment, effective July 1, 2013, designated the existing provisions as subsection (a) and added subsection (b); and, in subsection (a), in the introductory language, substituted “or enforce a support” for “, enforce, or modify a support” and inserted “of a child”; and inserted “of a child” in paragraph (a)(7).

19-11-111. Personal jurisdiction continues while Georgia tribunal retains continuing, exclusive jurisdiction.

Personal jurisdiction acquired by a tribunal of Georgia in a proceeding under this article or other law of Georgia relating to a support order continues so long as a tribunal of Georgia has continuing, exclusive jurisdiction to modify its order or continuing jurisdiction to enforce its order as provided by Code Sections 19-11-114, 19-11-115, and 19-11-119.1. (Code 1981, § 19-11-111, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 33; Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

The 2013 amendment, effective July 1, 2013, substituted the present provisions of this Code section for the former provisions, which read: “A tribunal of Georgia exercising personal jurisdiction over a nonresident under Code Section 19-11-110 may apply Code Section 19-11-135 to receive evidence from another state and Code Section 19-11-137 to obtain discovery through a tribunal of another state. In all other respects, Parts 3 through 7 of this article do not apply and the tribunal shall apply the procedural and substantive law of Georgia, including the rules on choice of law other than those established by this article.”

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

19-11-112. Authority of tribunal.

Under this article, a tribunal in Georgia may serve as an initiating tribunal to forward proceedings to a tribunal of another state and as a responding tribunal for proceedings initiated in another state or foreign country. (Code 1981, § 19-11-112, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 33; Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

The 2013 amendment, effective July 1, 2013, inserted “a tribunal of” near the middle and added “or foreign country” at the end.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Cited in Baars v. Freeman, 288 Ga. 835, 708 S.E.2d 273 (2011).

19-11-113. Limitation on jurisdiction of Georgia tribunal if action filed in another state or foreign country.

- (a) A tribunal in Georgia may exercise jurisdiction to establish a support order if the petition or comparable pleading is filed after a pleading is filed in another state or a foreign country only if:
- (1) The petition or comparable pleading in Georgia is filed before the expiration of the time allowed in the other state or the foreign country for filing a responsive pleading challenging the exercise of jurisdiction by the other state or the foreign country;

(2) The contesting party timely challenges the exercise of jurisdiction in the other state or the foreign country; and

(3) If relevant, Georgia is the home state of the child.

(b) A tribunal in Georgia may not exercise jurisdiction to establish a support order if the petition or comparable pleading is filed before a petition or comparable pleading is filed in another state or a foreign country if:

(1) The petition or comparable pleading in the other state or foreign country is filed before the expiration of the time allowed in Georgia for filing a responsive pleading challenging the exercise of jurisdiction by Georgia;

(2) The contesting party timely challenges the exercise of jurisdiction in Georgia; and

(3) If relevant, the other state or foreign country is the home state of the child. (Code 1981, § 19-11-113, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 33; Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

The 2013 amendment, effective July 1, 2013, inserted “or a foreign country” in the introductory language of subsections (a) and (b); inserted “or the foreign country” twice in paragraph (a)(1) and once in paragraph (a)(2); and inserted “or foreign country” in paragraphs (b)(1) and (b)(3).

19-11-114. Continuing, exclusive jurisdiction to modify support order.

(a) A tribunal in Georgia that has issued a child support order consistent with the law of Georgia has and shall exercise continuing, exclusive jurisdiction to modify its child support order if the order is the controlling order and:

(1) At the time of the filing of a request for modification Georgia is the residence of the obligor, the individual obligee, or the child for whose benefit the support order is issued; or

(2) Even if Georgia is not the residence of the obligor, the individual obligee, or the child for whose benefit the support order is issued, the parties consent in a record or in open court that the tribunal of Georgia may continue to exercise jurisdiction to modify its order.

(b) A tribunal in Georgia that has issued a child support order consistent with the law of Georgia may not exercise continuing, exclusive jurisdiction to modify the order if:

(1) All of the parties who are individuals file consent in a record with the tribunal of Georgia that a tribunal of another state that has jurisdiction over at least one of the parties who is an individual or that is located in the state of residence of the child may modify the order and assume continuing, exclusive jurisdiction; or

(2) Its order is not the controlling order.

(c) If a tribunal of another state has issued a child support order pursuant to this article or a law substantially similar to this article which modifies a child support order of a tribunal of Georgia, tribunals of Georgia shall recognize the continuing, exclusive jurisdiction of the tribunal of the other state.

(d) A tribunal of Georgia that lacks continuing, exclusive jurisdiction to modify a child support order may serve as an initiating tribunal to request a tribunal of another state to modify a support order issued in that state.

(e) A temporary support order issued ex parte or pending resolution of a jurisdictional conflict does not create continuing, exclusive jurisdiction in the issuing tribunal. (Code 1981, § 19-11-114, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 33; Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

The 2013 amendment, effective July 1, 2013, rewrote this Code section.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Jurisdiction over child support arrearages. — Georgia Uniform Interstate Family Support Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-11-101 et seq., did not deprive a trial court of jurisdiction over the issue of child support arrearages based upon a prior-filed United Kingdom enforcement proceeding. Continuing, exclusive jurisdiction over the child support provisions of the decree existed in the trial court because the trial court issued the decree, the mother and the child resided in Georgia, and no evidence existed that the parents had filed written consents to allow the tribunal of another state to assume continuing, exclusive jurisdiction. Baars v. Freeman, 288 Ga. 835, 708 S.E.2d 273 (2011).

19-11-115. Initiating tribunal; responding tribunal.

(a) A tribunal in Georgia that has issued a child support order consistent with the law of Georgia may serve as an initiating tribunal to request a tribunal of another state to enforce:

(1) The order if the order is the controlling order and has not been modified by a tribunal of another state that assumed jurisdiction pursuant to this article; or

(2) A money judgment for arrears of support and interest on the order accrued before a determination that an order of a tribunal of another state is the controlling order.

(b) A tribunal in Georgia having continuing jurisdiction over a support order may act as a responding tribunal to enforce the order. (Code 1981, § 19-11-115, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 33; Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

The 2013 amendment, effective July 1, 2013, rewrote this Code section.

19-11-116. Governing tribunal when conflicting orders; determination of controlling order.

(a) If a proceeding is brought under this article and only one tribunal has issued a child support order, the order of that tribunal controls and must be recognized.

(b) If a proceeding is brought under this article and two or more child support orders have been issued by tribunals of Georgia, another state, or a foreign country with regard to the same obligor and same child, a tribunal of Georgia having personal jurisdiction over both the obligor and individual obligee shall apply the following rules and by order shall determine which order controls and must be recognized:

(1) If only one of the tribunals would have continuing, exclusive jurisdiction under this article, the order of that tribunal controls;

(2) If more than one of the tribunals would have continuing, exclusive jurisdiction under this article:

(A) An order issued by a tribunal in the current home state of the child controls; or

(B) If an order has not been issued in the current home state of the child, the order most recently issued controls; or

(3) If none of the tribunals would have continuing, exclusive jurisdiction under this article, the tribunal of Georgia shall issue a child support order, which controls.

(c) If two or more child support orders have been issued for the same obligor and same child, upon request of a party who is an individual or that is a support enforcement agency, a tribunal in Georgia having personal jurisdiction over both the obligor and the obligee who is an individual shall determine which order controls subsection (b) of this Code section. The request may be filed with a registration for enforcement or registration for modification pursuant to Part 6 of this article or may be filed as a separate proceeding.

(d) A request to determine which is the controlling order must be accompanied by a copy of every child support order in effect and the applicable record of payments. The requesting party shall give notice of the request to each party whose rights may be affected by the determination.

(e) The tribunal that issued the controlling order under subsection (a), (b), or (c) of this Code section has continuing jurisdiction to the extent provided in Code Sections 19-11-114 and 19-11-115.

(f) A tribunal of Georgia that determines by order which is the controlling order under paragraph (1) or (2) of subsection (b) or subsection (c) of this Code section or that issues a new controlling order under paragraph (3) of subsection (b) of this Code section shall state in that order:

(1) The basis upon which the tribunal made its determination;

(2) The amount of prospective support, if any; and

(3) The total amount of consolidated arrears and accrued interest, if any, under all of the orders after all payments made are credited as provided by Code Section 19-11-118.

(g) Within 30 days after issuance of an order determining which is the controlling order, the party obtaining the order shall file a certified copy of it in each tribunal that issued or registered an earlier order of child support. A party or support enforcement agency obtaining the order that fails to file a certified copy is subject to appropriate sanctions by a tribunal in which the issue of failure to file arises. The failure to file does not affect the validity or enforceability of the controlling order.

(h) An order that has been determined to be the controlling order, or a judgment for consolidated arrears of support and interest, if any, made pursuant to this Code section must be recognized in proceedings under this article. (Code 1981, § 19-11-116, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 33; Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

The 2013 amendment, effective July 1, 2013, rewrote this Code section.

19-11-117. Enforcement of two or more child support orders, at least one of which was issued by another state or foreign country.

In responding to registrations or petitions for enforcement of two or more child support orders in effect at the same time with regard to the same obligor and different individual obligees, at least one of which was issued by a tribunal of another state or a foreign country, a tribunal of Georgia shall enforce those orders in the same manner as if the orders had been issued by a tribunal of Georgia. (Code 1981, § 19-11-117, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 33; Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

The 2013 amendment, effective July 1, 2013, deleted “multiple” preceding “registrations” near the beginning, inserted “or a foreign country”, and deleted “multiple” preceding “orders” near the end.

19-11-118. Crediting of amounts collected.

A tribunal of Georgia shall credit amounts collected for a particular period pursuant to any child support order against the amounts owed for the same period under any other child support order for support of the same child issued by a tribunal of Georgia or another state, or a foreign country. (Code 1981, § 19-11-118, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 33; Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

The 2013 amendment, effective July 1, 2013, substituted the present provisions of this Code section for the former provisions, which read: "Amounts collected and credited for a particular period pursuant to a support order issued by a tribunal of another state must be credited against the amounts accruing or accrued for the same period under a support order issued by the tribunal of Georgia."

19-11-119. Evidentiary issues outside state; application.

A tribunal of Georgia exercising personal jurisdiction over a nonresident in a proceeding under this article, under other law of Georgia relating to a support order, or recognizing a foreign support order may receive evidence from outside this state pursuant to Code Section 19-11-135, communicate with a tribunal outside this state pursuant to Code Section 19-11-136, and obtain discovery through a tribunal outside this state pursuant to Code Section 19-11-137. In all other respects, Parts 3 through 6 of this article do not apply and the tribunal shall apply the procedural and substantive law of Georgia. (Code 1981, § 19-11-119, enacted by Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

Effective date. — This Code section became effective July 1, 2013.

19-11-119.1. Spousal support order; modification; initiating tribunal to request enforcement; responding tribunal to enforce or modify order.

(a) A tribunal of Georgia issuing a spousal support order consistent with the law of Georgia has continuing, exclusive jurisdiction to modify the spousal support order throughout the existence of the support obligation.

(b) A tribunal of Georgia may not modify a spousal support order issued by a tribunal of another state or a foreign country having continuing, exclusive jurisdiction over that order under the law of that state or foreign country.

(c) A tribunal of Georgia that has continuing, exclusive jurisdiction over a spousal support order may serve as:

(1) An initiating tribunal to request a tribunal of another state to enforce the spousal support order issued in this state; or

(2) A responding tribunal to enforce or modify its own spousal support order. (Code 1981, § 19-11-119.1, enacted by Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

Effective date. — This Code section became effective July 1, 2013.

PART 3

CIVIL PROVISIONS

19-11-120. Application of part; initiation of a proceeding.

(a) Except as otherwise provided in this article, this part applies to all proceedings under this article.

(b) An individual petitioner or a support enforcement agency may initiate a proceeding authorized under this article by filing a petition in an initiating tribunal for forwarding to a responding tribunal or by filing a petition or a comparable pleading directly in a tribunal of another state or a foreign country which has or can obtain personal jurisdiction over the respondent. (Code 1981, § 19-11-120, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 33; Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

The 2013 amendment, effective July 1, 2013, deleted former subsection (b), which read: “(b) This article provides for the following proceedings:

“(1) Establishment of an order for spousal support or child support pursuant to Part 4 of this article;

“(2) Enforcement of a support order and income-withholding order of another state without registration pursuant to Part 5 of this article;

“(3) Registration of an order for spousal support or child support of another state for enforcement pursuant to Part 6 of this article;

“(4) Modification of an order for child support or spousal support issued by a tribunal of Georgia pursuant to Code Sections 19-11-112 through 19-11-115;

“(5) Registration of an order for child support of another state for modification pursuant to Part 6 of this article;

“(6) Determination of parentage pursuant to Part 7 of this article; and

“(7) Assertion of jurisdiction over non-residents pursuant to Code Sections 19-11-110 and 19-11-111.”; redesignated former subsection (c) as present subsection (b); and, in present subsection (b), substituted “initiate” for “commence” near the beginning and inserted “or a foreign country” near the end.

19-11-121. Representative for minor parent.

A minor parent, or a guardian or other legal representative of a minor parent, may maintain a proceeding on behalf of or for the benefit of the minor's child. (Code 1981, § 19-11-121, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 33; Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

Editor's notes. — Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193, effective July 1, 2013, reenacted this Code section without change.

19-11-122. Governing law and procedure for responding Georgia tribunal.

Except as otherwise provided in this article, a responding tribunal of Georgia:

(1) Shall apply the procedural and substantive law generally applicable to similar proceedings originating in Georgia and may exercise all powers and provide all remedies available in those proceedings; and

(2) Shall determine the duty of support and the amount payable in accordance with the law and support guidelines of Georgia. (Code 1981, § 19-11-122, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 33; Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

The 2013 amendment, effective July 1, 2013, substituted “provided in” for “provided by” in the introductory language; and deleted “, including the rules on choice of law,” following “substantive law” in paragraph (1).

19-11-123. Information to be provided to responding tribunal.

(a) Upon the filing of a petition authorized by this article, an initiating tribunal of Georgia shall forward the petition and its accompanying documents:

(1) To the responding tribunal or appropriate support enforcement agency in the responding state; or

(2) If the identity of the responding tribunal is unknown, to the state information agency of the responding state with a request that they be forwarded to the appropriate tribunal and that receipt be acknowledged.

(b) If requested by the responding tribunal, a tribunal of Georgia shall issue a certificate or other document and make findings required by the law of the responding state. If the responding tribunal is in a foreign country, upon request the tribunal of Georgia shall specify the amount of support sought, convert that amount into the equivalent amount in the foreign currency under applicable official or market exchange rate as publicly reported, and provide any other documents necessary to satisfy the requirements of the responding foreign tribunal. (Code 1981, § 19-11-123, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 33; Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

The 2013 amendment, effective July 1, 2013, substituted “tribunal of Georgia shall forward the petition” for “tribunal of this state shall forward three copies of the petition” in the introductory language of subsection (a); and rewrote subsection (b), which read: “If a responding state has not enacted this article or a law or procedure substantially similar to this article, a tribunal of Georgia may issue a certificate or other document and make findings required by the law of the responding state. If the responding state is a foreign jurisdiction, the tribunal may specify the amount of support sought and provide other documents necessary to satisfy the requirements of the responding state.”

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

19-11-124. Receipt of petition of pleading by responding Georgia tribunal; action authorized; limitations; foreign currency conversion.

(a) When a responding tribunal of Georgia receives a petition or comparable pleading from an initiating tribunal or directly pursuant to subsection (b) of Code Section 19-11-120, it shall cause the petition or pleading to be filed and notify the petitioner where and when it was filed.

(b) A responding tribunal of Georgia, to the extent not prohibited by other law, may do one or more of the following:

- (1) Establish or enforce a support order, modify a child support order, determine the controlling child support order, or determine parentage of a child;
- (2) Order an obligor to comply with a support order, specifying the amount and the manner of compliance;
- (3) Order income withholding;
- (4) Determine the amount of any arrearages and specify a method of payment;
- (5) Enforce orders by civil or criminal contempt, or both;
- (6) Set aside property for satisfaction of the support order;
- (7) Place liens and order execution on the obligor’s property;
- (8) Order an obligor to keep the tribunal informed of the obligor’s current residential address, e-mail address, telephone number, employer, address of employment, and telephone number at the place of employment;
- (9) Issue an order for the arrest of an obligor who has failed after proper notice to appear at a hearing ordered by the tribunal and enter the arrest order in any local and state computer systems for criminal warrants;

(10) Order the obligor to seek appropriate employment by specified methods;

(11) Award reasonable attorney's fees and other fees and costs; and

(12) Grant any other available remedy.

(c) A responding tribunal of Georgia shall include in a support order issued under this article, or in the documents accompanying the order, the calculations on which the support order is based.

(d) A responding tribunal of Georgia may not condition the payment of a support order issued under this article upon compliance by a party with provisions for visitation.

(e) If a responding tribunal of Georgia issues an order under this article, the tribunal shall send a copy of the order to the petitioner and the respondent and to the initiating tribunal, if any.

(f) If requested to enforce a support order, arrears, or judgment or modify a support order stated in a foreign currency, a responding tribunal of Georgia shall convert the amount stated in the foreign currency to the equivalent amount in dollars under the applicable official or market exchange rate as publicly reported. (Code 1981, § 19-11-124, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 33; Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

The 2013 amendment, effective July 1, 2013, substituted "subsection (b)" for "subsection (c)" in subsection (a); substituted "not prohibited by other law" for "otherwise authorized" in the introductory language of subsection (b); substituted the present provisions of paragraph (b)(1) for the former provisions, which read: "Issue or enforce a support order, modify a child support order, or render a judgment to determine parentage"; inserted "e-mail address," in paragraph (b)(8); added "for criminal warrants" at the end of paragraph (b)(9); and added subsection (f).

19-11-125. Receipt by inappropriate tribunal.

If a petition or comparable pleading is received by an inappropriate tribunal of this state, the tribunal shall forward the pleading and accompanying documents to an appropriate tribunal of this state or another state and notify the petitioner where and when the pleading was sent. (Code 1981, § 19-11-125, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 33; Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

The 2013 amendment, effective July 1, 2013, substituted "the tribunal shall" for "it shall" near the middle, and substituted "of this state" for "in this state" near the end.

19-11-126. Support enforcement agency's services; determining controlling order; foreign currency conversion; enforcement of support order and income withholding order of another state; absence of fiduciary relationship.

(a) A support enforcement agency of this state, upon request, shall provide services to a petitioner in a proceeding under this article.

(b) A support enforcement agency of this state that is providing services to the petitioner shall:

(1) Take all steps necessary to enable an appropriate tribunal of Georgia, another state, or a foreign country to obtain jurisdiction over the respondent;

(2) Request an appropriate tribunal to set a date, time, and place for a hearing;

(3) Make a reasonable effort to obtain all relevant information, including information as to income and property of the parties;

(4) Within five days, exclusive of Saturdays, Sundays, and legal holidays, after receipt of a written notice in a record from an initiating, responding, or registering tribunal, send a copy of the notice to the petitioner or other appropriate agency;

(5) Within five days, exclusive of Saturdays, Sundays, and legal holidays, after receipt of a written communication in a record from the respondent or the respondent's attorney, send a copy of the communication to the petitioner; and

(6) Notify the petitioner if jurisdiction over the respondent cannot be obtained.

(c) A support enforcement agency of this state that requests registration of a child support order in this state for enforcement or for modification shall make reasonable efforts:

(1) To ensure that the order to be registered is the controlling order; or

(2) If two or more child support orders exist and the identity of the controlling order has not been determined, to ensure that a request for such a determination is made in a tribunal having jurisdiction to do so.

(d) A support enforcement agency of this state that requests registration and enforcement of a support order, arrears, or judgment stated in a foreign currency shall convert the amounts stated in the foreign currency into the equivalent amounts in dollars under the applicable official or market exchange rate as publicly reported.

(e) A support enforcement agency of this state shall issue or request a tribunal of Georgia to issue a child support order and an income withholding order that redirect payment of current support, arrears, and interest if requested to do so by a support enforcement agency of another state pursuant to Code Section 19-11-138.

(f) This article does not create a relationship of attorney-client or other fiduciary relationship between a support enforcement agency or the attorney for the agency and the individual being assisted by the agency. (Code 1981, § 19-11-126, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 33; Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

The 2013 amendment, effective July 1, 2013, in subsection (b), in the introductory language, inserted “of this state” and deleted “as appropriate” following “the petitioner”; substituted “of Georgia, another state, or a foreign country” for “in Georgia or another state” in paragraph (b)(1); inserted “in a record” in paragraphs (b)(4) and (b)(5); added subsections (c) through (e); and redesignated former subsection (c) as subsection (f).

19-11-127. Authority of Attorney General.

(a) If the Attorney General determines that the support enforcement agency is neglecting or refusing to provide services to an individual, the Attorney General may provide those services directly to the individual.

(b) The Attorney General may determine that a foreign country has established a reciprocal arrangement for child support with this state and take appropriate action for notification of the determination. (Code 1981, § 19-11-127, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 33; Ga. L. 2009, p. 453, § 2-2/HB 228; Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

The 2013 amendment, effective July 1, 2013, deleted former subsections (a) and (b), which read: “(a) The district attorney of each judicial circuit shall be authorized to represent the Department of Human Services in any proceeding under this article; otherwise, at the option of the district attorney, actions under this article on behalf of the department shall be brought by attorneys appointed by the Attorney General. Written delegation of such duties previously executed by a district attorney pursuant to Article 2 of this chapter, the “Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act,” particularly Code Section 19-11-53, shall constitute a delegation of such representation to the Attorney General for purposes of this article. In all actions brought or maintained by the Department of Human Services, the department shall be regarded as the sole client of such attorney, and no attorney-client relationship shall be created between such attorney and any individual seeking or receiving services under this article through the Department of Human Services. The department may require a completed application for services pursuant to Title IV-D of the federal Social Security Act as a condition of providing any services under this article.

“(b) Where a support order is established pursuant to Code Section 19-11-140 incident to representation of the department by the district attorney, there shall be paid to the county in which the petition is handled the sum of $50.00 for each such support order established, whether this state is the initiating or responding jurisdiction.”; redesignated former subsection (c) as present subsection (a); and added present subsection (b).

19-11-128. Employment of private counsel.

An individual may employ private counsel to represent the individual in proceedings authorized by this article. (Code 1981, § 19-11-128, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 33; Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

Editor's notes. — Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193, effective July 1, 2013, reenacted this Code section without change.

19-11-129. State information agency.

(a) The Department of Human Services is the state information agency under this article.

(b) The state information agency shall:

(1) Compile and maintain a current list, including addresses, of the tribunals in this state which have jurisdiction under this article and any support enforcement agencies in this state and transmit a copy to the state information agency of every other state;

(2) Maintain a register of names and addresses of tribunals and support enforcement agencies received from other states;

(3) Forward to the appropriate tribunal in the county in Georgia in which the obligee who is an individual or the obligor resides, or in which the obligor's property is believed to be located, all documents concerning a proceeding under this article received from another state or a foreign country; and

(4) Obtain information concerning the location of the obligor and the obligor's property within this state not exempt from execution, by such means as postal verification and federal or state locator services, examination of telephone directories, requests for the obligor's address from employers, and examination of governmental records, including, to the extent not prohibited by other law, those relating to real property, vital statistics, law enforcement, taxation, motor vehicles, drivers' licenses, and social security. (Code 1981, § 19-11-129, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 33; Ga. L. 2009, p. 453, § 2-2/HB 228; Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

The 2013 amendment, effective July 1, 2013, inserted "names and addresses of" in paragraph (b)(2); in paragraph (b)(3), substituted "the county in Georgia in which the obligee who is an individual" for "the place in Georgia in which the individual obligee" near the beginning, and substituted "another state or a foreign country" for "an initiating tribunal or the state information agency of the initiating state" near the end; and substituted "drivers'" for "driver's" near the end of paragraph (b)(4).

19-11-130. Filing of petition to establish, register, or modify support order; required information; relief sought.

(a) In a proceeding under this article, a petitioner seeking to establish a support order to determine parentage of a child, or to register and modify a support order of a tribunal of another state or a foreign country must file a petition. Unless otherwise ordered under Code Section 19-11-131, the petition or accompanying documents must provide, so far as known, the name, residential address, and social security numbers of the obligor and the obligee or the parent and alleged parent and the name, sex, residential address, social security number, and date of birth of each child for whose benefit support is sought or whose parentage is to be determined. Unless filed at the time of registration, the petition must be accompanied by a copy of any support order known to have been issued by another tribunal. The petition may include any other information that may assist in locating or identifying the respondent.

(b) The petition must specify the relief sought. The petition and accompanying documents must conform substantially with the requirements imposed by the forms mandated by federal law for use in cases filed by a support enforcement agency. (Code 1981, § 19-11-130, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 33; Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

The 2013 amendment, effective July 1, 2013, in subsection (a), rewrote the first sentence, which read: “A petitioner seeking to establish or modify a support order or to determine parentage in a proceeding under this article must verify the petition”; in the second sentence, inserted “or the parent and alleged parent”; and in the second and third sentences, substituted

“whose benefit support is sought or whose parentage is to be determined. Unless filed at the time of registration the petition must be accompanied by a copy of any support order known to have been issued by another tribunal.” for “whom support is sought. The petition must be accompanied by a certified copy of any support order in effect.”

19-11-131. Nondisclosure of identifying information where health, safety, or liberty at risk; disclosure of information in the interest of justice.

If a party alleges in an affidavit or a pleading under oath that the health, safety, or liberty of a party or child would be jeopardized by disclosure of specific identifying information, that information must be sealed and may not be disclosed to the other party or the public. After a hearing in which a tribunal takes into consideration the health, safety, or liberty of the party or child, the tribunal may order disclosure of information that the tribunal determines to be in the interest of justice. (Code 1981, § 19-11-131, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 33; Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

The 2013 amendment, effective July 1, 2013, substituted the present provisions of this Code section for the former provisions, which read: “Upon a finding, which may be made ex parte, that the health, safety, or liberty of a party or child would be unreasonably put at risk by the disclosure of identifying information, or if an existing order so provides, a tribunal shall order that the address of the child or party or other identifying information not be disclosed in a pleading or other document filed in a proceeding under this article.”

19-11-132. Fees and costs.

(a) The petitioner may not be required to pay a filing fee or other costs.

(b) If an obligee prevails, a responding tribunal of Georgia may assess against an obligor filing fees, reasonable attorney’s fees, other costs, and necessary travel and other reasonable expenses incurred by the obligee and the obligee’s witnesses. The tribunal may not assess fees, costs, or expenses against the obligee or the support enforcement agency of either the initiating or the responding state or foreign country, except as provided by other law. Attorney’s fees may be taxed as costs and may be ordered paid directly to the attorney, who may enforce the order in the attorney’s own name. Payment of support owed to the obligee has priority over fees, costs, and expenses.

(c) The tribunal shall order the payment of costs and reasonable attorney’s fees if it determines that a hearing was requested primarily for delay. In a proceeding under Part 6 of this article, a hearing is presumed to have been requested primarily for delay if a registered support order is confirmed or enforced without change. (Code 1981, § 19-11-132, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 33; Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

The 2013 amendment, effective July 1, 2013, in subsection (b), inserted “of Georgia” in the first sentence, and inserted “or foreign country” in the second sentence.

19-11-133. Personal jurisdiction.

(a) Participation by a petitioner in a proceeding under this article before a responding tribunal, whether in person, by private attorney, or through services provided by the support enforcement agency, does not confer personal jurisdiction over the petitioner in another proceeding.

(b) A petitioner is not amenable to service of civil process while physically present in this state to participate in a proceeding under this article.

(c) The immunity granted by this Code section does not extend to civil litigation based on acts unrelated to a proceeding under this article committed by a party while physically present in Georgia to participate in the proceeding. (Code 1981, § 19-11-133, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 33; Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

The 2013 amendment, effective July 1, 2013, inserted “under this article” in subsection (a) and inserted “physically” in subsection (c).

19-11-134. Defense of nonparentage.

A party whose parentage of a child has been previously determined by or pursuant to law may not plead nonparentage as a defense to a proceeding under this article. (Code 1981, § 19-11-134, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 33; Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

Editor’s notes. — Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193, effective July 1, 2013, reenacted this Code section without change.

19-11-135. Physical presence of individual nonresident party not required; admissible evidence.

(a) The physical presence of a nonresident party who is an individual in a tribunal of Georgia is not required for the establishment, enforcement, or modification of a support order or the rendition of a judgment determining parentage of a child.

(b) An affidavit, a document substantially complying with federally mandated forms, or a document incorporated by reference in any of them, which would not be excluded under the hearsay rule if given in person, is admissible in evidence if given under penalty of perjury by a party or witness residing outside this state.

(c) A copy of the record of child support payments certified as a true copy of the original by the custodian of the record may be forwarded to a responding tribunal. The copy is evidence of facts asserted in it and is admissible to show whether payments were made.

(d) Copies of bills for testing for parentage of a child, and for prenatal and postnatal health care of the mother and child, furnished to the adverse party at least ten days before trial, are admissible in evidence to prove the amount of the charges billed and that the charges were reasonable, necessary, and customary.

(e) Documentary evidence transmitted from outside this state to a tribunal of Georgia by telephone, telecopier, or other electronic means that do not provide an original record may not be excluded from evidence on an objection based on the means of transmission.

(f) In a proceeding under this article, a tribunal of Georgia shall permit a party or witness residing outside this state to be deposed or to testify under penalty of perjury by telephone, audiovisual means, or other electronic means at a designated tribunal or other location. A tribunal of Georgia shall cooperate with other tribunals in designating an appropriate location for the deposition or testimony.

(g) If a party called to testify at a civil hearing refuses to answer on the ground that the testimony may be self-incriminating, the trier of fact may draw an adverse inference from the refusal.

(h) A privilege against disclosure of communications between spouses does not apply in a proceeding under this article.

(i) The defense of immunity based on the relationship of husband and wife or parent and child does not apply in a proceeding under this article.

(j) A voluntary acknowledgment of paternity, certified as a true copy, is admissible to establish parentage of the child. (Code 1981, § 19-11-135, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 33; Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

The 2013 amendment, effective July 1, 2013, in subsection (a), substituted “a nonresident party who is an individual in a tribunal” for “the petitioner in a responding tribunal” near the beginning and added “of a child” at the end; in subsection (b), substituted “An affidavit, a document” for “A verified petition, affidavit, document” at the beginning, near the middle, substituted “or a document” for “and a document” and substituted “which would not be excluded” for “not excluded” and substituted “under penalty of perjury by a party or witness residing outside this state” for “under oath by a party or witness residing in another state” at the end; inserted “of a child,” in subsection (d); in subsection (e), substituted “outside this state” for “another state”, inserted “electronic”, and substituted “original record” for “original writing”; in subsection (f), in the first sentence, substituted “shall permit a party or witness residing outside this state” for “may permit a party or witness residing in another state” near the beginning, inserted “under penalty of perjury” near the middle, deleted “in that state” following “location” at the end, and substituted “of Georgia shall cooperate with other tribunals” for “this state shall cooperate with tribunals of other states”; and added subsection (j).

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Testimony by telephone. — Pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 19-11-135(f) and given that two closely interrelated contempt proceedings between a former husband and a former wife were consolidated for hearing, the trial court did not abuse the court’s discretion in permitting one of the former spouses to testify by telephone or by not dismissing the spouse’s contempt motion for want of prosecution. Baars v. Freeman, 288 Ga. 835, 708 S.E.2d 273 (2011).

19-11-136. Communication between tribunals.

A tribunal in Georgia may communicate with a tribunal outside this state in a record, or by telephone, e-mail, or other means, to obtain information concerning the laws, the legal effect of a judgment, decree, or order of that tribunal, and the status of a proceeding. A tribunal in Georgia may furnish similar information by similar means to a tribunal outside this state. (Code 1981, § 19-11-136, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613 § 33; Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

The 2013 amendment, effective July 1, 2013, in the first sentence, substituted “a tribunal outside this state in a record, or by telephone, email, or” for “a tribunal of another state in writing, or by telephone, or” near the beginning, deleted “of that state” following “laws” near the middle, and deleted “in the other state” following “proceeding” at the end; and substituted “outside this state” for “of another state” at the end of the second sentence.

19-11-137. Tribunal’s authority to accomplish discovery.

A tribunal of this state may:

(1) Request a tribunal outside this state to assist in obtaining discovery; and

(2) Upon request, compel a person over which it has jurisdiction to respond to a discovery order issued by a tribunal outside this state. (Code 1981, § 19-11-137, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 33; Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

The 2013 amendment, effective July 1, 2013, substituted “outside this state” for “of another state” in paragraphs (1) and (2), and substituted “over which” for “over whom” in paragraph (2).

19-11-138. Disbursement of funds; redirecting payments.

(a) A support enforcement agency or tribunal in Georgia shall disburse promptly any amounts received pursuant to a support order, as directed by the order. The agency or tribunal shall furnish to a requesting party or tribunal of another state or a foreign country a certified statement by the custodian of the record of the amounts and dates of all payments received.

(b) If neither the obligor, nor the obligee who is an individual, nor the child resides in this state, upon request from the support enforcement agency of Georgia or another state, the support enforcement agency of this state or a tribunal of this state shall:

(1) Direct that the support payment be made to the support enforcement agency in the state in which the obligee is receiving services; and

(2) Issue and send to the obligor’s employer a conforming income withholding order or an administrative notice of change of payee, reflecting the redirected payments.

(c) The support enforcement agency of this state receiving redirected payments from another state pursuant to a law similar to subsection (b) of this Code section shall furnish to a requesting party or tribunal of the other state a certified statement by the custodian of the record of the amount and dates of all payments received. (Code 1981, § 19-11-138, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 33; Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

The 2013 amendment, effective July 1, 2013, designated the existing provisions as subsection (a) and inserted “or a foreign country” in the last sentence; and added subsections (b) and (c).

PART 4

ESTABLISHMENT OF SUPPORT ORDER

19-11-140. Authority of tribunal upon failure to issue support order; temporary child support order.

(a) If a support order entitled to recognition under this article has not been issued, a responding tribunal of this state with personal jurisdiction over the parties may issue a support order if:

(1) The individual seeking the order resides outside this state; or

(2) The support enforcement agency seeking the order is located outside this state.

(b) The tribunal may issue a temporary child support order if the tribunal determines that such an order is appropriate and the individual ordered to pay is:

(1) A presumed father of the child;

(2) Petitioning to have his paternity adjudicated;

(3) Identified as the father of the child through genetic testing;

(4) An alleged father who has declined to submit to genetic testing;

(5) Shown by clear and convincing evidence to be the father of the child;

(6) An acknowledged father as provided by applicable state law or the law of a foreign country;

(7) The mother of the child; or

(8) An individual who has been ordered to pay child support in a previous proceeding and the order has not been reversed or vacated.

(c) Upon finding, after notice and opportunity to be heard, that an obligor owes a duty of support, the tribunal shall issue a support order directed to the obligor and may issue other orders pursuant to Code Section 19-11-124. (Code 1981, § 19-11-140, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 33; Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

The 2013 amendment, effective July 1, 2013, inserted “with personal jurisdiction over the parties” in the introductory paragraph of subsection (a); replaced “in another state” with “outside this state” in paragraphs (1) and (2) of subsection (a); and substituted the present provisions of subsection (b) for the former provisions, which read: “(b) The tribunal may issue a temporary child support order if:

“(1) The respondent has signed a verified statement acknowledging parentage;

“(2) The respondent has been determined by or pursuant to law to be the parent; or “(3) There is other clear and convincing evidence that the respondent is the child’s parent”.

19-11-141. Responding tribunal.

A tribunal of Georgia authorized to determine parentage of a child may serve as a responding tribunal in a proceeding to determine parentage of a child brought under this article or a law or procedure substantially similar to this article. (Code 1981, § 19-11-141, enacted by Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

Effective date. — This Code section became effective July 1, 2013.

PART 5

DIRECT ENFORCEMENT OF ORDER OF ANOTHER STATE WITHOUT REGISTRATION

19-11-150. Issuance of income-withholding orders.

An income-withholding order issued in another state may be sent by or on behalf of the obligee, or by the support enforcement agency, to the person defined as the obligor’s employer pursuant to Code Sections 19-6-31 through 19-6-33 without first filing a petition or comparable pleading or registering the order with a tribunal of this state. (Code 1981, § 19-11-150, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 33; Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

The 2013 amendment, effective July 1, 2013, in the middle of this Code section, inserted “by or on behalf of the obligee, or by the support enforcement agency,” and inserted “person defined as the”.

19-11-151. Obligation of employer upon receipt of income-withholding order.

(a) Upon receipt of an income-withholding order, the obligor’s employer shall immediately provide a copy of the order to the obligor.

(b) The employer shall treat an income-withholding order issued in another state which appears regular on its face as if it had been issued by a tribunal of Georgia.

(c) Except as otherwise provided by subsection (d) of this Code section and Code Section 19-11-152, the employer shall withhold and distribute the funds as directed in the withholding order by complying with the terms of the order which specify:

(1) The duration and the amount of periodic payments of current child support, stated as a sum certain;

(2) The person designated to receive payments and the address to which the payments are to be forwarded;

(3) Medical support, whether in the form of periodic cash payment, stated as a sum certain, or ordering the obligor to provide health insurance coverage for the child under a policy available through the obligor's employment;

(4) The amount of periodic payments of fees and costs for a support enforcement agency, the issuing tribunal, and the obligee's attorney, stated as sums certain; and

(5) The amount of periodic payments of arrearages and interest on arrearages, stated as sums certain.

(d) An employer shall comply with the law of the state of the obligor's principal place of employment for withholding from income with respect to:

(1) The employer's fee for processing an income-withholding order;

(2) The maximum amount permitted to be withheld from the obligor's income; and

(3) The time periods within which the employer must implement the withholding order and forward the child support payment. (Code 1981, § 19-11-151, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 33; Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

The 2013 amendment, effective July 1, 2013, deleted "or agency" preceding "designated" in paragraph (c)(2).

19-11-152. Receipt of two or more income-withholding orders.

If an obligor's employer receives two or more income-withholding orders with respect to the earnings of the same obligor, the employer satisfies the terms of the orders if the employer complies with the law of the state of the obligor's principal place of employment to establish the priorities for withholding and allocating income withheld for two or more child support obligees. (Code 1981, § 19-11-152, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 33; Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

The 2013 amendment, effective July 1, 2013, substituted “two or more” for “multiple” near the beginning and end, and deleted “multiple” preceding “orders” near the middle.

19-11-153. Civil liability.

An employer that complies with an income-withholding order issued in another state in accordance with this article is not subject to civil liability to an individual or agency with regard to the employer’s withholding of child support from the obligor’s income. (Code 1981, § 19-11-153, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 33; Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

The 2013 amendment, effective July 1, 2013, substituted “that complies” for “who complies” near the beginning.

19-11-154. Penalties for employer’s noncompliance.

An employer that willfully fails to comply with an income-withholding order issued in another state and received for enforcement is subject to the same penalties that may be imposed for noncompliance with an order issued by a tribunal in Georgia. (Code 1981, § 19-11-154, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 33; Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

The 2013 amendment, effective July 1, 2013, substituted “that willfully” for “who willfully” near the beginning and substituted “in another” for “by another” near the middle.

19-11-155. Contesting of order from another tribunal.

(a) An obligor may contest the validity or enforcement of an income-withholding order issued in another state and received directly by an employer in Georgia by registering the order in a tribunal of Georgia and filing a contest to that order as provided in Part 6 of this article, or otherwise contesting the order in the same manner as if the order had been issued by a tribunal of Georgia.

(b) The obligor shall give notice of the contest to:

(1) Any support enforcement agency providing services to the obligee;

(2) Each employer that has directly received an income-withholding order relating to the obligor; and

(3) The person designated to receive payments in the income-withholding order or, if no person is designated, to the obligee. (Code 1981, § 19-11-155, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 33; Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

The 2013 amendment, effective July 1, 2013, in subsection (a), inserted “by registering the order in a tribunal of Georgia and filing a contest to that order as provided in Part 6 of this article, or otherwise contesting the order” and deleted the former second sentence, which read: “Code Section 19-11-163 applies to the contest.”; inserted “relating to the obligor” in paragraph (b)(2); and deleted “or agency” following “person” twice in paragraph (b)(3).

19-11-156. Enforcement of orders issued by another state or foreign country.

(a) A party or support enforcement agency seeking to enforce a support order or an income-withholding order, or both, issued in another state or a foreign support order may send the documents required for registering the order to a support enforcement agency of Georgia.

(b) Upon receipt of the documents, the support enforcement agency, without initially seeking to register the order, shall consider and, if appropriate, use any administrative procedure authorized by the law of Georgia to enforce a support order or an income-withholding order, or both. If the obligor does not contest administrative enforcement, the order need not be registered. If the obligor contests the validity or administrative enforcement of the order, the support enforcement agency shall register the order pursuant to this article. (Code 1981, § 19-11-156, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 33; Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

The 2013 amendment, effective July 1, 2013, in subsection (a), inserted “or support enforcement agency” near the beginning and substituted “issued in another state or a foreign support order” for “issued by a tribunal of another state” near the middle.

PART 6

ENFORCEMENT AND MODIFICATION OF SUPPORT ORDER AFTER REGISTRATION

19-11-160. Registration of orders issued by another state or foreign country.

A support order or income-withholding order issued in another state or a foreign support order may be registered in Georgia for enforcement. (Code 1981, § 19-11-160, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 33; Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

The 2013 amendment, effective July 1, 2013, substituted “or income-withholding order issued in another state or a foreign support order” for “or an income-withholding order issued by a tribunal of another state” in this Code section.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Cited in Sussman v. Sussman, 301 Ga. App. 397, 687 S.E.2d 644 (2009).

19-11-161. Requirements for registration of orders issued by another state or foreign country; other filings.

(a) Except as otherwise provided in Code Section 19-11-184.1, a support order or income-withholding order of another state or a foreign support order may be registered in Georgia by sending the following records to the appropriate tribunal in Georgia:

(1) A letter of transmittal to the tribunal requesting registration and enforcement;

(2) Two copies, including one certified copy, of the order to be registered, including any modification of the order;

(3) A sworn statement by the person requesting registration or a certified statement by the custodian of the records showing the amount of any arrearage;

(4) The name of the obligor and, if known:

(A) The obligor’s address and social security number;

(B) The name and address of the obligor’s employer and any other source of income of the obligor; and

(C) A description and the location of property of the obligor in Georgia not exempt from execution; and

(5) Except as otherwise provided in Code Section 19-11-131, the name and address of the obligee and, if applicable, the person to whom support payments are to be remitted.

(b) On receipt of a request for registration, the registering tribunal shall cause the order to be filed as an order of a tribunal of another state or a foreign support order, together with one copy of the documents and information, regardless of their form.

(c) A petition, motion, or comparable filing seeking a remedy that must be affirmatively sought under other laws of this state, and discovery incident thereto, may be filed at the same time as the request for registration or later. The pleading, motion, or other filing must specify the grounds for the remedy sought. For purposes of this subsection, remedies sought may include, but are not limited to, a rule for contempt or a petition for entry of an income deduction order.

(d) If two or more orders are in effect, the person requesting registration shall:

(1) Furnish to the tribunal a copy of every support order asserted to be in effect in addition to the documents specified in this Code section;

(2) Specify the order alleged to be the controlling order, if any; and

(3) Specify the amount of consolidated arrears, if any.

(e) A request for a determination of which is the controlling order may be filed separately or with a request for registration and enforcement or for registration and modification. The person requesting registration shall give notice of the request to each party whose rights may be affected by the determination. (Code 1981, § 19-11-161, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 33; Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

The 2013 amendment, effective July 1, 2013, in subsection (a), in the introductory language, substituted “Except as otherwise provided in Code Section 19-11-184.1,” for “A” at the beginning, inserted “or a foreign support order” in the middle, and substituted “records” for “documents and information” near the end; in paragraph (a)(2), substituted “the order” for “all orders” and “the order” for “an order”; substituted “person requesting” for “party seeking” in paragraph (a)(3); in paragraph (a)(5), substituted “Except as otherwise provided in Code Section 19-11-131, the” for “The” at the beginning, and deleted “agency or” preceding “person” in the middle; substituted “an order of a tribunal of another state or a foreign support order” for “a foreign judgment” in subsection (b); and added subsections (d) and (e).

19-11-162. Filing in Georgia tribunal required for registration; enforcement; modification.

(a) A support order or income-withholding order issued in another state or a foreign support order is registered when the order is filed in the registering tribunal of Georgia.

(b) A registered support order issued in another state or a foreign country is enforceable in the same manner and is subject to the same procedures as an order issued by a tribunal in Georgia.

(c) Except as otherwise provided in this part, a tribunal in Georgia shall recognize and enforce, but may not modify, a registered support order if the issuing tribunal had jurisdiction. (Code 1981, § 19-11-162, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 33; Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

The 2013 amendment, effective July 1, 2013, inserted “or a foreign support order” in subsection (a); in subsection (b), inserted “support” and inserted “or a foreign country”; and inserted “support” in subsection (c).

19-11-163. Governing law; statute of limitations; application of procedural and remedial law of Georgia; prospective application of law of other state or foreign country.

(a) Except as otherwise provided in subsection (d) of this Code section, the law of the issuing state or foreign country governs:

(1) The nature, extent, amount, and duration of current payments under a registered support order;

(2) The computation and payment of arrearages and accrual of interest on the arrearages under the support order; and

(3) The existence and satisfaction of other obligations under the support order.

(b) In a proceeding for arrears under a registered support order, the statute of limitation of Georgia or of the issuing state or foreign country, whichever is longer, applies.

(c) A responding tribunal of Georgia shall apply the procedures and remedies of this state to enforce current support and collect arrears and interest due on a support order of another state or a foreign country registered in Georgia.

(d) After a tribunal of Georgia or another state determines which is the controlling order and issues an order consolidating arrears, if any, a tribunal of Georgia shall prospectively apply the law of the state or foreign country issuing the controlling order, including its law on interest on arrears, on current and future support, and on consolidated arrears. (Code 1981, § 19-11-163, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 33; Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

The 2013 amendment, effective July 1, 2013, substituted the present provisions of subsection (a) for the former provisions, which read: “The law of the issuing state governs the nature, extent, amount, and duration of current payments and other obligations of support and the payment of arrearages under the order.”; in subsection (b), substituted “arrears under a registered support order” for “arrearages” near the beginning, deleted “under the laws” preceding “of Georgia” near the middle, and inserted “or foreign country” near the end; and added subsections (c) and (d).

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Law from another state properly applied. — Trial court properly applied Florida law in addressing respondent father’s defense of dormancy in an action by petitioner human resources department to collect arrearages under a Florida child support order when Florida was the issuing state within the meaning of O.C.G.A.

§ 19-11-163(a) and had a shorter statute of limitation than Georgia for purposes of O.C.G.A. § 19-11-163(b). Owens v. Dep’t of Human Res., 255 Ga. App. 678, 566 S.E.2d 403 (2002).

Filing of an Alabama child support order in a Georgia court was not viewed as a traditional action on a foreign judgment, but was more appropriately governed by the Uniform Interstate Family Support Act (UIFSA), O.C.G.A. § 19-11-100 et seq.; in a Georgia arrearage proceeding under UIFSA, the statute of limitation under the laws of Georgia or of the issuing state, whichever was longer, and since the Alabama period for dormancy of judgments was longer than that of Georgia, Alabama law applied. Bodenhamer v. Wooten, 265 Ga. App. 733, 595 S.E.2d 592 (2004).

Law of foreign state should have been applied. — Trial court erred in vacating the court's prior order confirming a Massachusetts judgment that required a former husband to pay arrearages and in dismissing a former wife's petition to register and enforce the judgment as a support order under the Uniform Interstate Family Support Act (UIFSA), O.C.G.A. § 19-11-100 et seq., on the ground that the Massachusetts judgment was dormant under Georgia law; under the choice of law provisions of UIFSA, Massachusetts law controlled, and the Massachusetts judgment remained enforceable under that state's statute of limitation because the Massachusetts statute of limitation for the enforcement of judgments was 20 years, and less than 20 years had elapsed since the issuance of the Massachusetts judgment. The limitation period for the enforcement of judgments was longer in Massachusetts than in Georgia, and the trial court should have applied Massachusetts law to the dormancy issue in the case. Sussman v. Sussman, 301 Ga. App. 397, 687 S.E.2d 644 (2009).

19-11-164. Notification to nonregistering party and obligor's employer.

(a) When a support order or income-withholding order issued in another state or a foreign support order is registered, the registering tribunal of Georgia shall notify the nonregistering party. The notice must be accompanied by a copy of the registered order and the documents and relevant information accompanying the order.

(b) A notice must inform the nonregistering party:

(1) That a registered order is enforceable as of the date of registration in the same manner as an order issued by a tribunal of Georgia;

(2) That a hearing to contest the validity or enforcement of the registered order must be requested within 20 days after notice unless the registered order is under Code Section 19-11-184.2;

(3) That failure to contest the validity or enforcement of the registered order in a timely manner will result in confirmation of the order and enforcement of the order and the alleged arrearages and precludes further contest of that order with respect to any matter that could have been asserted; and

(4) Of the amount of any alleged arrearages.

(c) If the registering party asserts that two or more orders are in effect, a notice must also:

(1) Identify the two or more orders and the order alleged by the registering party to be the controlling order and the consolidated arrears, if any;

(2) Notify the nonregistering party of the right to a determination of which is the controlling order;

(3) State that the procedures provided in subsection (b) of this Code section apply to the determination of which is the controlling order; and

(4) State that failure to contest the validity or enforcement of the order alleged to be the controlling order in a timely manner may result in confirmation that the order is the controlling order.

(d) Upon registration of an income-withholding order for enforcement, the support enforcement agency or the registering tribunal shall notify the obligor's employer pursuant to Code Sections 19-6-31 through 19-6-33. (Code 1981, § 19-11-164, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 33; Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

The 2013 amendment, effective July 1, 2013, in subsection (a), inserted "or a foreign support order" and "of Georgia" in the first sentence; substituted "A notice" for "The notice" at the beginning of the introductory language of subsection (b); inserted "unless the registered order is under Code Section 19-11-184.2" at the end of paragraph (b)(2); added present subsection (c); redesignated former subsection (c) as subsection (d); and inserted "the support enforcement agency or" in subsection (d).

19-11-165. Contesting the validity of registered support order by nonregistering party.

(a) A nonregistering party seeking to contest the validity or enforcement of a registered order in Georgia shall request a hearing within the time required by Code Section 19-11-164. The nonregistering party may seek to vacate the registration, to assert any defense to an allegation of noncompliance with the registered order, or to contest the remedies being sought or the amount of any alleged arrearages pursuant to Code Section 19-11-166.

(b) If the nonregistering party fails to contest the validity or enforcement of the registered support order in a timely manner, the order is confirmed by operation of law.

(c) If a nonregistering party requests a hearing to contest the validity or enforcement of the registered support order, the registering tribunal shall schedule the matter for hearing and give notice to the parties of the date, time, and place of the hearing. (Code 1981, § 19-11-165, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 33; Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

The 2013 amendment, effective July 1, 2013, substituted "the time required by Code Section 19-11-164" for "20 days after notice of the registration" at the end of the first sentence of subsection (a); and inserted "support" in subsections (b) and (c).

19-11-166. Burden of proof in contesting validity of registered support order; stays.

(a) A party contesting the validity or enforcement of a registered support order or seeking to vacate the registration has the burden of proving one or more of the following defenses:

- (1) The issuing tribunal lacked personal jurisdiction over the contesting party;
- (2) The order was obtained by fraud;
- (3) The order has been vacated, suspended, or modified by a later order;
- (4) The issuing tribunal has stayed the order pending appeal;
- (5) There is a defense under the law of Georgia to the remedy sought;
- (6) Full or partial payment has been made;
- (7) The statute of limitation under Code Section 19-11-163 precludes enforcement of some or all of the alleged arrearages; or
- (8) The alleged controlling order is not the controlling order.

(b) If a party presents evidence establishing a full or partial defense under subsection (a) of this Code section, a tribunal may stay enforcement of a registered support order, continue the proceeding to permit production of additional relevant evidence, and issue temporary or other appropriate orders. Any portion of the registered support order which is not in dispute may be enforced by all remedies available under the laws of Georgia.

(c) If the contesting party does not establish a defense under subsection (a) of this Code section to the validity or enforcement of a registered support order, the registering tribunal shall issue an order confirming the order. (Code 1981, § 19-11-166, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 33; Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

The 2013 amendment, effective July 1, 2013, inserted “support” in the introductory language of subsection (a); deleted “or” at the end of paragraph (a)(6); in paragraph (a)(7), inserted “alleged” and added “; or” at the end; added paragraph

(a)(8); in subsection (b), substituted “a registered support order” for “the registered order” in the first sentence, and inserted “support” in the last sentence; and substituted “a registered support order” for “the order” in subsection (c).

19-11-167. Effect of confirmation.

Confirmation of a registered support order, whether by operation of law or after notice and hearing, precludes further contest of the order with respect to any matter that could have been asserted at the time of registration. (Code 1981, § 19-11-167, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 33; Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

The 2013 amendment, effective July 1, 2013, inserted “support” near the beginning of this Code section.

19-11-168. Petitions for modification.

A party or support enforcement agency seeking to modify, or to modify and enforce, a child support order issued in another state shall register that order in Georgia in the same manner provided in Code Sections 19-11-160 through 19-11-167 if the order has not been registered. A petition for modification may be filed at the same time as a request for registration, or later. The pleading must specify the grounds for modification. (Code 1981, § 19-11-168, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 33; Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

The 2013 amendment, effective July 1, 2013, substituted “19-11-167” for “19-11-163” in the first sentence.

19-11-169. Enforcement pending modification.

A tribunal of Georgia may enforce a child support order of another state registered for purposes of modification in the same manner as if the order had been issued by a tribunal of Georgia, but the registered support order may be modified only if the requirements of Code Section 19-11-170 or 19-11-172 have been met. (Code 1981, § 19-11-169, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 33; Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

The 2013 amendment, effective July 1, 2013, inserted “support” near the middle and inserted “or 19-11-172” near the end of this Code section.

19-11-170. Requirements for modification; effect on jurisdiction.

(a) If Code Section 19-11-172 does not apply, upon petition a tribunal of Georgia may modify a child support order issued in another state which is registered in Georgia if, after notice and hearing, the tribunal finds that:

(1) The following requirements are met:

(A) Neither the child, nor the obligee who is an individual, nor the obligor resides in the issuing state;

(B) A petitioner who is a nonresident of Georgia seeks modification; and

(C) The respondent is subject to the personal jurisdiction of the tribunal of Georgia; or

(2) This state is the residence of the child or a party who is an individual, is subject to the personal jurisdiction of the tribunal of Georgia, and all of the parties who are individuals have filed consents in a record in the issuing tribunal for a tribunal of this state to modify the support order and assume continuing, exclusive jurisdiction.

(b) Modification of a registered child support order is subject to the same requirements, procedures, and defenses that apply to the modification of an order issued by a tribunal of this state, and the order may be enforced and satisfied in the same manner.

(c) A tribunal in Georgia may not modify any aspect of a child support order that may not be modified under the law of the issuing state, including the duration of the obligation of support. If two or more tribunals have issued child support orders for the same obligor and same child, the order that controls and must be so recognized under the provisions of Code Section 19-11-116 establishes the aspects of the support order which are nonmodifiable.

(d) In a proceeding to modify a child support order, the law of the state that is determined to have issued the initial controlling order governs the duration of the obligation of support. The obligor’s fulfillment of the duty of support established by that order precludes imposition of a further obligation of support by a tribunal of Georgia.

(e) On issuance of an order by a tribunal of Georgia modifying a child support order issued in another state, the tribunal of Georgia becomes the tribunal having continuing, exclusive jurisdiction.

(f) Notwithstanding subsections (a) through (e) of this Code section and subsection (b) of Code Section 19-11-110, a tribunal of Georgia retains jurisdiction to modify an order issued by a tribunal of Georgia if:

(1) One party resides in another state; and

(2) The other party resides outside the United States. (Code 1981, § 19-11-170, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 33; Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

The 2013 amendment, effective July 1, 2013, substituted the present introductory language of subsection (a) for the former provisions, which read: “After a child support order issued in another state has been registered in Georgia, the responding tribunal of Georgia may modify that order only if Code Section 19-11-172 does not apply and, after notice and hearing, it finds that”; substituted

“Neither the child, nor the obligee who is an individual, nor the obligor resides” for “The child, the individual obligee, and the obligor do not reside” in subparagraph (a)(1)(A); in paragraph (a)(2), substituted “This state is the residence of the child or” for “The child, or” at the beginning, substituted “filed consents in a record” for “filed written consents” near the middle, and deleted “over the order. However, if the issuing state is a foreign jurisdiction that has not enacted a law or established procedures substantially similar to the procedures under this article, the consent otherwise required of an individual residing in this state is not required for the tribunal to assume jurisdiction to modify the child support order” following “jurisdiction” at the end; in subsection (c), added “, including the duration of the obligation of support” at the end of the first sentence, and inserted “same” in the second sentence; added present subsection (d); redesignated former subsection (d) as present subsection (e); in subsection (e), inserted “by a tribunal of Georgia” and substituted “the tribunal” for “a tribunal”; and added subsection (f).

19-11-171. Recognition of modification by another tribunal.

If a child support order issued by a tribunal in Georgia is modified by a tribunal of another state which assumed jurisdiction pursuant to this article, a tribunal of Georgia:

- (1) May enforce its order that was modified only as to arrears and interest accruing before the modification;
- (2) May provide appropriate relief for violations of its order which occurred before the effective date of the modification; and
- (3) Shall recognize the modifying order of the other state, upon registration, for the purpose of enforcement. (Code 1981, § 19-11-171, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 33; Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

The 2013 amendment, effective July 1, 2013, substituted the present provisions of this Code section for the former provisions, which read: “A tribunal in Georgia shall recognize a modification of its earlier child support order by a tribunal of another state which assumed jurisdiction pursuant to this article or a law substantially similar to this article and, upon request, except as otherwise provided in this article, shall:

“(1) Enforce the order that was modified only as to amounts accruing before the modification;

“(2) Enforce only nonmodifiable aspects of that order;

“(3) Provide other appropriate relief only for violations of that order which occurred before the effective date of the modification; and

“(4) Recognize the modifying order of the other state, upon registration, for the purpose of enforcement.”

19-11-172. Jurisdiction; application of article.

(a) If all of the parties who are individuals reside in Georgia and the child does not reside in the issuing state, a tribunal in Georgia has jurisdiction to enforce and to modify the issuing state’s child support order in a proceeding to register that order.

(b) A tribunal in Georgia exercising jurisdiction as provided in this Code section shall apply the provisions of Parts 1 and 2 of this article and the procedural and substantive law of Georgia to the proceeding for enforcement or modification. Parts 3, 4, 5, 7, and 8 of this article do not apply. (Code 1981, § 19-11-172, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 33; Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

Editor's notes. — Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193, effective July 1, 2013, reenacted this Code section without change.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Lack of jurisdiction over military personnel. — Father did not reside in Georgia for purposes of recording and modifying an Alabama child support order under O.C.G.A. § 19-11-172(a) of the Uniform Interstate Family Support Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-11-100 et seq., because while the father had been stationed in Georgia in the Army, the father was registered to vote in Alabama, had a driver's license there, and lived in Alabama with his wife, two sons, and his father; thus, the father was domiciled in Alabama for the purposes of O.C.G.A. § 19-2-1. Kean v. Marshall, 294 Ga. App. 459, 669 S.E.2d 463 (2008).

19-11-173. Filing requirement for modified order.

Within 30 days after issuance of a modified child support order, the party obtaining the modification shall file a certified copy of the order with the issuing tribunal that had continuing, exclusive jurisdiction over the earlier order and in each tribunal in which the party knows the earlier order has been registered. A party who obtains the order and fails to file a certified copy is subject to appropriate sanctions by a tribunal in which the issue of failure to file arises. The failure to file does not affect the validity or enforceability of the modified order of the new tribunal having continuing, exclusive jurisdiction. (Code 1981, § 19-11-173, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 33; Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

Editor's notes. — Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193, effective July 1, 2013, reenacted this Code section without change.

19-11-174. Jurisdiction to modify child support order.

(a) Except as otherwise provided in Code Section 19-11-184.6, if a foreign country lacks or refuses to exercise jurisdiction to modify its child support order pursuant to its laws, a tribunal of Georgia may assume jurisdiction to modify the child support order and bind all individuals subject to the personal jurisdiction of the tribunal whether the consent to modification of a child support order otherwise required of the individual pursuant to Code Section 19-11-170 has been given or whether the individual seeking modification is a resident of this state or of the foreign country.

(b) An order issued by a tribunal of this state modifying a foreign child support order pursuant to this Code section is the controlling order. (Code 1981, § 19-11-174, enacted by Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

Effective date. — This Code section became effective July 1, 2013.

19-11-175. Registration of foreign child support order.

A party or support enforcement agency seeking to modify, or to modify and enforce, a foreign child support order not under the convention may register that order in this state under Code Sections 19-11-160 through 19-11-167 if the order has not been registered. A petition for modification may be filed at the same time as a request for registration, or at another time. The petition must specify the grounds for modification. (Code 1981, § 19-11-175, enacted by Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

Effective date. — This Code section became effective July 1, 2013.

PART 7

DETERMINATION OF PARENTAGE

19-11-180. Definitions.

As used in this part, the term:

(1) “Application” means a request under the convention by an obligee or obligor, or on behalf of a child, made through a central authority for assistance from another central authority.

(2) “Central authority” means the entity designated by the United States or a foreign country described in subparagraph (D) of paragraph (5) of Code Section 19-11-101 to perform the functions specified in the convention.

(3) “Convention support order” means a support order of a tribunal of a foreign country described in subparagraph (D) of paragraph (5) of Code Section 19-11-101.

(4) “Direct request” means a petition filed by an individual in a tribunal of Georgia in a proceeding involving an obligee, obligor, or child residing outside the United States.

(5) “Foreign central authority” means the entity designated by a foreign country described in subparagraph (D) of paragraph (5) of Code Section 19-11-101 to perform the functions specified in the convention.

(6) “Foreign support agreement”:

(A) Means an agreement for support in a record that:

- (i) Is enforceable as a support order in the country of origin;
- (ii) Has been:

(I) Formally drawn up or registered as an authentic instrument by a foreign tribunal; or

(II) Authenticated by, or concluded, registered, or filed with, a foreign tribunal; and

- (iii) May be reviewed and modified by a foreign tribunal; and

(B) Includes a maintenance arrangement or authentic instrument under the convention.

(7) “United States central authority” means the secretary of the United States Department of Health and Human Services. (Code 1981, § 19-11-180, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 33; Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

The 2013 amendment, effective July 1, 2013, substituted the present provisions of this Code section for the former provisions, which read: “(a) A tribunal of this state may serve as an initiating or responding tribunal in a proceeding brought under this article or a law substantially similar to this article, or the Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act, or the Revised Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act to determine that the petitioner is a parent of a particular child or to determine that a respondent is a parent of that child.

“(b) In a proceeding to determine parentage, a responding tribunal in Georgia shall apply the procedural and substantive law of this state and the rules of this state on choice of law.”

19-11-181. Applicability of part.

This part applies only to a support proceeding under the convention. In such a proceeding, if a provision of this part is inconsistent with Parts 1 through 6 of this article, this part controls. (Code 1981, § 19-11-181, enacted by Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

Effective date. — This Code section became effective July 1, 2013.

19-11-182. Department of Human Services recognized as designated agency.

The Department of Human Services is recognized as the agency designated by the United States central authority to perform specific functions under the convention. (Code 1981, § 19-11-182, enacted by Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

Effective date. — This Code section became effective July 1, 2013.

19-11-183. Duties of Department of Human Services; available support proceedings.

(a) In a support proceeding under this part, the Department of Human Services shall:

(1) Transmit and receive applications; and

(2) Initiate or facilitate the institution of a proceeding regarding an application in a tribunal of Georgia.

(b) The following support proceedings are available to an obligee under the convention:

(1) Recognition or recognition and enforcement of a foreign support order;

(2) Enforcement of a support order issued or recognized in Georgia;

(3) Establishment of a support order if there is no existing order, including, if necessary, determination of parentage of a child;

(4) Establishment of a support order if recognition of a foreign support order is refused under paragraph (2), (4), or (9) of subsection (b) of Code Section 19-11-184.3;

(5) Modification of a support order of a tribunal of Georgia; and

(6) Modification of a support order of a tribunal of another state or a foreign country.

(c) The following support proceedings are available under the convention to an obligor against which there is an existing support order:

(1) Recognition of an order suspending or limiting enforcement of an existing support order of a tribunal of Georgia;

(2) Modification of a support order of a tribunal of Georgia; and

(3) Modification of a support order of a tribunal of another state or a foreign country.

(d) A tribunal of Georgia may not require security, bond, or deposit, however described, to guarantee the payment of costs and expenses in proceedings under the convention. (Code 1981, § 19-11-183, enacted by Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

Effective date. — This Code section became effective July 1, 2013.

19-11-184. Filing direct requests; entitlement to assistance; preference for simplified and expeditious processes.

(a) A petitioner may file a direct request seeking establishment or modification of a support order or determination of parentage of a child. In the proceeding, the law of Georgia applies.

(b) A petitioner may file a direct request seeking recognition and enforcement of a support order or support agreement. In the proceeding, Code Sections 19-11-184.1 through 19-11-184.8 apply.

(c) In a direct request for recognition and enforcement of a convention support order or foreign support agreement:

(1) A security, bond, or deposit is not required to guarantee the payment of costs and expenses; and

(2) An obligee or obligor that in the issuing country has benefited from free legal assistance is entitled to benefit, at least to the same extent, from any free legal assistance provided for by the law of Georgia under the same circumstances.

(d) A petitioner filing a direct request is not entitled to assistance from the Department of Human Services.

(e) This part does not prevent the application of laws of Georgia that provide simplified, more expeditious rules regarding a direct request for recognition and enforcement of a foreign support order or foreign support agreement. (Code 1981, § 19-11-184, enacted by Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

Effective date. — This Code section became effective July 1, 2013.

19-11-184.1. Request for registration.

(a) Except as otherwise provided in this part, a party who is an individual or a support enforcement agency seeking recognition of a convention support order shall register the order in this state as provided in Part 6 of this article.

(b) Notwithstanding Code Sections 19-11-130 and subsection (a) of Code Section 19-11-161, a request for registration of a convention support order must be accompanied by:

(1) A complete text of the support order or an abstract or extract of the support order drawn up by the issuing foreign tribunal, which may be in the form recommended by the Hague Conference on Private International Law;

(2) A record stating that the support order is enforceable in the issuing country;

(3) If the respondent did not appear and was not represented in the proceedings in the issuing country, a record attesting, as appropriate, either that the respondent had proper notice of the proceedings and an opportunity to be heard or that the respondent had proper notice of the support order and an opportunity to be heard in a challenge or appeal on fact or law before a tribunal;

(4) A record showing the amount of arrears, if any, and the date the amount was calculated;

(5) A record showing a requirement for automatic adjustment of the amount of support, if any, and the information necessary to make the appropriate calculations; and

(6) If necessary, a record showing the extent to which the applicant received free legal assistance in the issuing country.

(c) A request for registration of a convention support order may seek recognition and partial enforcement of the order.

(d) A tribunal of Georgia may vacate the registration of a convention support order without the filing of a contest under Code Section 19-11-184.2 only if, acting on its own motion, the tribunal finds that recognition and enforcement of the order would be manifestly incompatible with public policy.

(e) The tribunal shall promptly notify the parties of the registration or the order vacating the registration of a convention support order. (Code 1981, § 19-11-184.1, enacted by Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

Effective date. — This Code section became effective July 1, 2013.

19-11-184.2. Contest of registered convention support order.

(a) Except as otherwise provided in this part, Code Sections 19-11-164 through 19-11-167 apply to a contest of a registered convention support order.

(b) A party contesting a registered convention support order shall file a contest not later than 30 days after notice of the registration, but if the contesting party does not reside in the United States, the contest must be filed not later than 60 days after notice of the registration.

(c) If the nonregistering party fails to contest the registered convention support order by the time specified in subsection (b) of this Code section, the order is enforceable.

(d) A contest of a registered convention support order may be based only on grounds set forth in Code Section 19-11-184.3. The contesting party bears the burden of proof.

(e) In a contest of a registered convention support order, a tribunal of Georgia:

(1) Is bound by the findings of fact on which the foreign tribunal based its jurisdiction; and

(2) May not review the merits of the order.

(f) A tribunal of Georgia deciding a contest of a registered convention support order shall promptly notify the parties of its decision.

(g) A challenge or appeal, if any, does not stay the enforcement of a convention support order unless there are exceptional circumstances. (Code 1981, § 19-11-184.2, enacted by Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

Effective date. — This Code section became effective July 1, 2013.

19-11-184.3. Grounds for refusal of recognition and enforcement of registered convention support order.

(a) Except as otherwise provided in subsection (b) of this Code section, a tribunal of Georgia shall recognize and enforce a registered convention support order.

(b) The following grounds are the only grounds on which a tribunal of Georgia may refuse recognition and enforcement of a registered convention support order:

(1) Recognition and enforcement of the order is manifestly incompatible with public policy, including the failure of the issuing tribunal to observe minimum standards of due process, which include notice and an opportunity to be heard;

(2) The issuing tribunal lacked personal jurisdiction consistent with Code Section 19-11-110;

(3) The order is not enforceable in the issuing country;

(4) The order was obtained by fraud in connection with a matter of procedure;

(5) A record transmitted in accordance with Code Section 19-11-184.1 lacks authenticity or integrity;

(6) A proceeding between the same parties and having the same purpose is pending before a tribunal of Georgia and that proceeding was the first to be filed;

(7) The order is incompatible with a more recent support order involving the same parties and having the same purpose if the more recent support order is entitled to recognition and enforcement under this article in Georgia;

(8) Payment, to the extent alleged arrears have been paid in whole or in part;

(9) In a case in which the respondent neither appeared nor was represented in the proceeding in the issuing foreign country:

(A) If the law of that country provides for prior notice of proceedings, the respondent did not have proper notice of the proceedings and an opportunity to be heard; or

(B) If the law of that country does not provide for prior notice of the proceedings, the respondent did not have proper notice of the order and an opportunity to be heard in a challenge or appeal on fact or law before a tribunal; or

(10) The order was made in violation of Code Section 19-11-184.6.

(c) If a tribunal of Georgia does not recognize a convention support order under paragraph (2), (4), or (9) of subsection (b) of this Code section:

(1) The tribunal may not dismiss the proceeding without allowing a reasonable time for a party to request the establishment of a new convention support order; and

(2) The Department of Human Services shall take all appropriate measures to request a child support order for the obligee if the application for recognition and enforcement was received under Code Section 19-11-183. (Code 1981, § 19-11-184.3, enacted by Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

Effective date. — This Code section became effective July 1, 2013.

19-11-184.4. Option to enforce portions of convention support order.

If a tribunal of Georgia does not recognize and enforce a convention support order in its entirety, it shall enforce any severable part of the order. An application or direct request may seek recognition and partial enforcement of a convention support order. (Code 1981, § 19-11-184.4, enacted by Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

Effective date. — This Code section became effective July 1, 2013.

19-11-184.5. Recognition and enforcement of foreign support agreement.

(a) Except as otherwise provided in subsections (c) and (d) of this Code section, a tribunal of Georgia shall recognize and enforce a foreign support agreement registered in this state.

(b) An application or direct request for recognition and enforcement of a foreign support agreement must be accompanied by:

(1) A complete text of the foreign support agreement; and

(2) A record stating that the foreign support agreement is enforceable as an order of support in the issuing country.

(c) A tribunal of Georgia may vacate the registration of a foreign support agreement only if, acting on its own motion, the tribunal finds that recognition and enforcement would be manifestly incompatible with public policy.

(d) In a contest of a foreign support agreement, a tribunal of Georgia may refuse recognition and enforcement of the agreement if it finds:

(1) Recognition and enforcement of the agreement is manifestly incompatible with public policy;

(2) The agreement was obtained by fraud or falsification;

(3) The agreement is incompatible with a support order involving the same parties and having the same purpose in this state, another state, or a foreign country if the support order is entitled to recognition and enforcement under this article in Georgia; or

(4) The record submitted under subsection (b) of this Code section lacks authenticity or integrity.

(e) A proceeding for recognition and enforcement of a foreign support agreement must be suspended during the pendency of a challenge to or appeal of the agreement before a tribunal of another state or a foreign country. (Code 1981, § 19-11-184.5, enacted by Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

Effective date. — This Code section became effective July 1, 2013.

19-11-184.6. Modification of convention child support order.

(a) A tribunal of Georgia may not modify a convention child support order if the obligee remains a resident of the foreign country where the support order was issued unless:

(1) The obligee submits to the jurisdiction of a tribunal of Georgia, either expressly or by defending on the merits of the case without objecting to the jurisdiction at the first available opportunity; or

(2) The foreign tribunal lacks or refuses to exercise jurisdiction to modify its support order or issue a new support order.

(b) If a tribunal of Georgia does not modify a convention child support order because the order is not recognized in this state, subsection (c) of Code Section 19-11-184.3 applies. (Code 1981, § 19-11-184.6, enacted by Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

Effective date. — This Code section became effective July 1, 2013.

19-11-184.7. Personal information.

Personal information gathered or transmitted under this part may be used only for the purposes for which it was gathered or transmitted. (Code 1981, § 19-11-184.7, enacted by Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

Effective date. — This Code section became effective July 1, 2013.

19-11-184.8. Language.

A record filed with a tribunal of Georgia under this part must be in the original language and, if not in English, must be accompanied by an English translation verified by the translator. (Code 1981, § 19-11-184.8, enacted by Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

Effective date. — This Code section became effective July 1, 2013.

PART 8

INTERSTATE RENDITION

19-11-185. “Governor” defined; authority.

(a) For purposes of this part, the term “governor” includes an individual performing the functions of governor or the executive authority of a state covered by this article.

(b) The Governor of this state may:

(1) Demand that the governor of another state surrender an individual found in the other state who is charged criminally in this state with having failed to provide for the support of an obligee; or

(2) On the demand of the governor of another state, surrender an individual found in this state who is charged criminally in the other state with having failed to provide for the support of an obligee.

(c) A provision for extradition of individuals not inconsistent with this article applies to the demand even if the individual whose surrender is demanded was not in the demanding state when the crime was allegedly committed and has not fled therefrom. (Code 1981, § 19-11-185, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 33; Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

The 2013 amendment, effective July 1, 2013, substituted “of the governor” for “by the governor” at the beginning of paragraph (b)(2).

Cross references. — Election of governor, Ga. Const. 1983, Art. V, Sec. I. Duties and powers of governor, Ga. Const. 1983, Art. V, Sec. II.

19-11-186. Prosecutor’s duties upon request by governor; rendition.

(a) Before making a demand that the governor of another state surrender an individual charged criminally in this state with having failed to provide for the support of an obligee, the Governor of this state may require a prosecutor of this state to demonstrate that at least 90 days previously the obligee had initiated proceedings for support pursuant to this article or that the proceeding would be of no avail.

(b) If, under this article or a law substantially similar to this article, the governor of another state makes a demand that the Governor of this state surrender an individual charged criminally in that state with having failed to provide for the support of a child or other individual to whom a duty of support is owed, the Governor of this state may require a prosecutor to investigate the demand and report whether a proceeding for support has been initiated or would be effective. If it appears that a proceeding would be effective but has not been initiated, the Governor of this state may delay honoring the demand for a reasonable time to permit the initiation of a proceeding.

(c) If a proceeding for support has been initiated and the individual whose rendition is demanded prevails, the Governor of this state may decline to honor the demand. If the petitioner prevails and the individual whose rendition is demanded is subject to a support order, the Governor of this state may decline to honor the demand if the individual is complying with the support order. (Code 1981, § 19-11-186, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 33; Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

The 2013 amendment, effective July 1, 2013, deleted “the Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act, or the Revised Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act,” preceding “the governor” in the first sentence of subsection (b).

PART 9

MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS

19-11-190. Construction of article; uniformity.

In applying and construing this article, consideration must be given to the need to promote uniformity of the law with respect to its subject matter among states that enact it. (Code 1981, § 19-11-190, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 33; Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

The 2013 amendment, effective July 1, 2013, substituted the present provisions of this Code section for the former provisions, which read: “This article shall be applied and construed to effectuate its general purpose to make uniform the law with respect to the subject of the article among states enacting it.”

19-11-190.1. Effective date.

This article applies to proceedings begun on or after July 1, 2013, to establish a support order or determine parentage of a child or to register, recognize, enforce, or modify a prior support order, determination, or agreement, whenever issued or entered. (Code 1981, § 19-11-190.1, enacted by Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

Effective date. — This Code section became effective July 1, 2013.

Code Commission notes. — Pursuant to Code Section 28-9-5, in 2013, “on or after July 1, 2013,” was substituted for “on or after the effective date of this Code section” near the beginning of this Code section.

19-11-191. Severability.

If any provision of this article or its application to any person or circumstance is held invalid, the invalidity does not affect other provisions or applications of this article which can be given effect without the invalid provision or application, and to this end the provisions of this article are severable. (Code 1981, § 19-11-191, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1613, § 33; Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193.)

Editor’s notes. — Ga. L. 2013, p. 705, § 1/SB 193, effective July 1, 2013, reenacted this Code section without change.

CHAPTER 12

CHANGE OF NAME

Sec.		Sec.
19-12-1.	Petition for name change; notice of filing; consent of minor's parents or guardian; service on parents or guardian; time of hearing; judgment; clerk's fees.	19-12-3.	Certificate of change of name; use as evidence; form of certificate.
19-12-2.	Hearing on objections to petition.	19-12-4.	Change of name with fraudulent intent not authorized.

19-12-1. Petition for name change; notice of filing; consent of minor's parents or guardian; service on parents or guardian; time of hearing; judgment; clerk's fees.

(a) Any person desirous of changing his name or the name or names of his minor child or children may present a petition to the superior court of the county of his residence, setting forth fully and particularly the reasons why the change is asked, which petition shall be verified by the petitioner.

(b) Within seven days of the filing of the petition, the petitioner shall cause a notice of the filing, signed by him, to be published in the official legal organ of the county once a week for four weeks. The notice shall contain therein the name of the petitioner, the name of the person whose name is to be changed if different from that of the petitioner, the new name desired, the court in which the petition is pending, the date on which the petition was filed, and the right of any interested or affected party to appear and file objections.

(c) If the petition seeks to change the name of a minor child, the written consent of his parent or parents if they are living and have not abandoned the child, or the written consent of the child's guardian if both parents are dead or have abandoned the child, shall be filed with the petition, except that the written consent of a parent shall not be required if the parent has not contributed to the support of the child for a continuous period of five years or more immediately preceding the filing of the petition.

(d) In all cases, before a minor child's name may be changed, the parent or parents of the child shall be served with a copy of the petition. If the parent or parents reside within this state, service of the petition shall be made in person, except that if the location or address of the parent is unknown, service of the petition on the parent shall be made by publication as provided in this Code section. If the parent or parents reside outside this state, service of the petition on the parent or parents residing outside this state shall be made by certified mail or statutory overnight delivery if the address is known or by publication as provided in this Code section if the address is not known.

(e) Where a child resides with persons other than his parent or parents, a copy of the petition shall be served upon the person acting as guardian of the child in the same manner as service would be made on a parent.

(f) Upon the expiration of:

(1) Thirty days from the filing of the petition if the person whose name to be changed is an adult;

(2) Thirty days from the date of service upon the parent, parents, or guardian of a minor whose name is to be changed if the parent, parents, or guardian reside within this state; or

(3) Sixty days from the date of service upon the parent, parents, or guardian of a minor whose name is to be changed if either the parent, parents, or guardian reside outside the state and the petition is served by mail, and after proof to the court of publication of the notice as required in this Code section is made, if no objection is filed, the court shall proceed at chambers at such date as the court shall fix to hear and determine all matters raised by the petition and to render final judgment or decree thereon. For such service, the clerk shall receive the fees prescribed in Code Section 15-6-77, relating to fees of clerks of the superior courts for civil cases. (Ga. JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Court discretion. — Granting or refusal of an application for name change is based solely on sound legal discretion. Binford v. Reid, 83 Ga. App. 280, 63 S.E.2d 345 (1951); Johnson v. Coggins, 124 Ga. App. 603, 184 S.E.2d 696 (1971); In re Mullinix, 152 Ga. App. 215, 262 S.E.2d 540 (1979).

There was no abuse of discretion in denying a petition for name change when the petitioner was incarcerated following the petitioner's conviction for first degree forgery. In re Parrott, 194 Ga. App. 856, 392 S.E.2d 48 (1990).

Notice prescribed by General Assembly. — It is the prerogative of the General Assembly to prescribe what notice, if any, is required prior to the court's action upon petition for change of name. Fulghum v. Paul, 229 Ga. 463, 192 S.E.2d 376 (1972).

Written parental consent. — Written consent of parent or parents is necessary unless a child has been abandoned. Wearn v. Wray, 139 Ga. App. 363, 228 S.E.2d 385 (1976).

Parental surname not property right. — Father's protectible interest in having his child bear parental surname is not a property right within the meaning of due process. Fulghum v. Paul, 229 Ga. 463, 192 S.E.2d 376 (1972).

Rights of incarcerated father. — Trial court erred in granting the petition to change the child's name since incarcerated father was not personally served, though such notice was possible, and the father's written objections to the petition were not judicially considered. Brown v. Waters, 208 Ga. App. 866, 432 S.E.2d 817 (1993).

Procedure when identity of natural father is in dispute. — Problem with the procedure required by the statute arose when there was a dispute as to the identity of the natural father of child. However, this procedure would be proper legal vehicle for resolution of such dispute by serving the petition on both purported fathers, making both of them parties to the proceedings. The trial judge would then have to resolve the dispute. Doe v. Roe, 235 Ga. 318, 219 S.E.2d 700 (1975).

Motion for name change properly granted. — Father's motion to change his son's name was properly granted after the trial court granted the father's motion to legitimize his son as the mother's claim that the son would be confused by the name change paled since she also requested a name change. Carden v. Warren, 269 Ga. App. 275, 603 S.E.2d 769 (2004).

Hearing required for surname change. — When a child, by her mother, sought to change the child's surname to that of the child's deceased father, it was error to deny the petition without a hearing. O.C.G.A. § 19-12-1(f)(3) provided for a hearing. In re Scott, 288 Ga. App. 374, 654 S.E.2d 221 (2007).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Serviceman overseas cannot change name in foreign court without relinquishing citizenship. — Serviceman, citizen of Georgia stationed overseas, cannot submit to jurisdiction of Japanese Family Court in order to have his name changed without relinquishing his Georgia and United States citizenship but must petition superior court in county in which name to be changed is recorded. 1962 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 345.

Woman may change surname assumed by marriage. — Married woman's surname is that of her husband, but she may change it for legal purposes, including issuance of a driver's license, by judicial decree or by consistent usage of another name without resort to judicial proceedings. 1975 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 75-49.

Married woman assumes husband's surname. — Under Georgia law, a woman, upon marriage, takes husband's surname by operation of law, and unless and until she has this married name altered or changed by court order, it is her "legal" name. 1974 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 74-33.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Written objections improperly ignored. — In addition to the lack of personal service, the judgment in the case was infirm because of the trial court's failure to consider the prisoner-father's written objections to the petition, contrary to the requirement of O.C.G.A. § 19-12-2.

19-13-1. “Family violence” defined.

As used in this article, the term “family violence” means the occurrence of one or more of the following acts between past or present spouses, persons who are parents of the same child, parents and children, stepparents and stepchildren, foster parents and foster children, or other persons living or formerly living in the same household:

(1) Any felony; or

(2) Commission of offenses of battery, simple battery, simple assault, assault, stalking, criminal damage to property, unlawful restraint, or criminal trespass.

The term “family violence” shall not be deemed to include reasonable discipline administered by a parent to a child in the form of corporal punishment, restraint, or detention. (Ga. L. 1981, p. 880, § 1; Ga. L. 1988, p. 1251, § 2; Ga. L. 1992, p. 1266, § 3; Ga. L. 1993, p. 1534, § 3.)

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

“Family violence” defined broadly. — Officers who investigated a claim of possible child abuse failed in their obligation to file a Family Violence Report, as required by O.C.G.A. § 17-4-20.1(c), and the trial court properly denied a motion for summary judgment pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 9-11-56 by the officers and others in a wrongful death claim on behalf of a deceased child as genuine issues of material fact existed as to whether their failure to investigate and file the necessary report proximately resulted in the child’s injuries and death; the definition of “family violence” was broad under O.C.G.A. § 19-13-1, and although “reasonable discipline” was excepted thereunder, the officers had an obligation to investigate allegations that a child was being whipped. Meagher v. Quick, 264 Ga. App. 639, 594 S.E.2d 182 (2003).

“Family violence” arrest warrant. — Whether an arrest warrant labeled “Domestic Violence” was the correct label used to arrest the plaintiff for an offense related to a domestic violence case but not a crime of domestic violence under O.C.G.A. § 19-13-1 was irrelevant to the plaintiff’s civil rights claim that the defendant violated the Fourteenth Amendment by falsely swearing a domestic violence warrant against the plaintiff. Smith v. Mercer, No. 1:07-CV-1149-RWS, 2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 38758 (N.D. Ga. May 13, 2008).

Family violence not likely to resume justifying modification of protective order. — Restrained party who seeks termination of a family violence permanent protective order must prove by a preponderance of the evidence that a material change in circumstances has occurred, such that the resumption of family violence is not likely and justice would be served by termination of the order and in reviewing cases such as this, a court should look to the totality of the circumstances. Furthermore, circumstances a court should consider when considering modifying a family violence permanent protective order include: the present nature of the parties' relationship; the restrained party's history of compliance with the protective order and history of violence; the restrained party's efforts to undergo therapy; the age and health of the restrained party; any undue hardships suffered as a result of the order; and, the existence and nature of any objections the victim has to termination. Mandt v. Lovell, 293 Ga. 807, 750 S.E.2d 134 (2013).

Modification of permanent protective order. — Appellate court properly upheld the modification of a permanent protection order issued in a family violence matter between parents because O.C.G.A. § 19-13-4(c) contemplated that the duration of such orders could be modified based on changing conditions and circumstances, and the father sufficiently alleged such changed circumstances, including that neither party had custody of the child. Mandt v. Lovell, 293 Ga. 807, 750 S.E.2d 134 (2013).

Service of process insufficient. — Service upon a spouse against whom a temporary protective order had been granted under the Georgia Family Violence Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-13-1 et seq., was insufficient. The original service provided the spouse with no notice of the allegations, and service upon the spouse as the spouse left a hearing in the case was improper under the rule insulating a party in attendance upon the trial of a case from service of process. Loiten v. Loiten, 288 Ga. App. 638, 655 S.E.2d 265 (2007).

Insufficient evidence. — Trial court erred in finding that a guardian proved by a preponderance of the evidence, as required under O.C.G.A. § 19-13-3(a), that a mother committed an act of family violence pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 19-13-1, as there was insufficient evidence that the mother committed an act of violence, specifically simple battery in violation of O.C.G.A. § 16-5-23, as opposed to administering reasonable discipline in the form of corporal punishment, as O.C.G.A. § 16-5-23 specifically exempted corporal punishment from the definition of battery, and the appellate court determined after considering O.C.G.A. §§ 16-3-20 and 20-2-731 that the alleged action of the mother in slapping her daughter did not rise to the level of unreasonable discipline. Buchheit v. Stinson, 260 Ga. App. 450, 579 S.E.2d 853 (2003).

Sufficient evidence. — Protective order against a former wife was warranted under the Family Violence Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-13-1, because there was sufficient evidence that she committed the predicate act of stalking her former husband by hiring a detective to follow him, by harassing him at his place of work, and by sending him threatening text messages. Quinby v. Rausch, 300 Ga. App. 424, 685 S.E.2d 395 (2009).

19-13-2. Jurisdiction of superior court.

(a) Except for proceedings involving a nonresident respondent, the superior court of the county where the respondent resides shall have jurisdiction over all proceedings under this article.

(b) For proceedings under this article involving a nonresident respondent, the superior court where the petitioner resides or the superior court where an act involving family violence allegedly occurred shall have jurisdiction, where the act involving family violence meets the elements for personal jurisdiction provided for under paragraph (2) or (3) of Code Section 9-10-91. (Ga. L. 1981, p. 880, § 2; Ga. L. 1982, p. 3, § 19; Ga. L. 1997, p. 1543, § 1.)

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Jurisdiction of superior court. — Issuance of the protective order underlying the appellant prisoner's conviction for aggravated stalking under the Family Violence Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-13-1 et seq., when the prisoner and the victim had never been married, were not living in the same house, and did not have children together, did not affect the court's jurisdiction since the order expressly provided that the order's violation would subject the prisoner to prosecution for aggravated stalking; a superior court judge had the authority to issue a protective order under the stalking statute, O.C.G.A. § 16-5-94, or the Georgia Family Violence Act, specifically O.C.G.A. § 19-13-2. Giles v. State, 257 Ga. App. 65, 570 S.E.2d 375 (2002).

When a father made threatening telephone calls from another state to a mother and to their child, a trial court could not exercise jurisdiction over the father under the Family Violence Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-13-1 et seq., which applied the long arm statute, O.C.G.A. § 9-10-91, because, under O.C.G.A. § 9-10-91(3), even though the father committed a tortious injury in Georgia, no other factors in that section applied, and, under O.C.G.A.

§ 9-10-91(2), providing long arm jurisdiction over one committing a tortious act in Georgia, while the harmful effects of the father's acts were felt in Georgia, the father never came to Georgia to commit those acts. Anderson v. Deas, 273 Ga. App. 770, 615 S.E.2d 859 (2005).

Family Violence Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-13-1 et seq., gave Georgia courts jurisdiction over a nonresident only if the act with which the nonresident was charged met the requirements of O.C.G.A. § 9-10-91(2), (3); further, the conduct giving rise to the offense occurred when the maker of the call spoke into the telephone; a father's daily calls to Georgia from another state to speak to the father's daughter or when the father made the calls that allegedly threatened and harassed the mother did not confer jurisdiction in Georgia. Anderson v. Deas, 279 Ga. App. 892, 632 S.E.2d 682 (2006).

Venue. — In a family violence case in which the respondent has left the family home but has not avowed an intention to remain in that new location, venue is proper both in the county of the family's residence and in the county to which the respondent has relocated. Davis-Redding v. Redding, 246 Ga. App. 792, 542 S.E.2d 197 (2000).

19-13-3. Filing of petition seeking relief from family violence; granting of temporary relief ex parte; hearing; dismissal of petition upon failure to hold hearing; procedural advice for victims.

(a) A person who is not a minor may seek relief under this article by filing a petition with the superior court alleging one or more acts of family violence. A person who is not a minor may also seek relief on behalf of a minor by filing such a petition.

(b) Upon the filing of a verified petition in which the petitioner alleges with specific facts that probable cause exists to establish that family violence has occurred in the past and may occur in the future, the court may order such temporary relief ex parte as it deems necessary to protect the petitioner or a minor of the household from violence. If the court issues an ex parte order, a copy of the order shall be immediately furnished to the petitioner.

(c) Within ten days of the filing of the petition under this article or as soon as practical thereafter, but in no case later than 30 days after the filing of the petition, a hearing shall be held at which the petitioner must prove the allegations of the petition by a preponderance of the evidence as in other civil cases. In the event a hearing cannot be scheduled within the county where the case is pending within the 30 day period the same shall be scheduled and heard within any other county of that circuit. If a hearing is not held within 30 days, the petition shall stand dismissed unless the parties otherwise agree.

(d) Family violence shelter or social service agency staff members designated by the court may explain to all victims not represented by counsel the procedures for filling out and filing all forms and pleadings necessary for the presentation of their petition to the court. The clerk of the court may provide forms for petitions and pleadings to victims of family violence and to any other person designated by the superior court pursuant to this Code section as authorized to advise victims on filling out and filing such petitions and pleadings. The clerk shall not be required to provide assistance to persons in completing such forms or in presenting their case to the court. Any assistance provided pursuant to this Code section shall be performed without cost to the petitioners. The performance of such assistance shall not constitute the practice of law as defined in Code Section 15-19-51. (Ga. L. 1981, p. 880, § 3; Ga. L. 1982, p. 3, § 19; Ga. L. 1984, p. 542, § 1; Ga. JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Burden of proof. — Trial court erred in finding that a guardian proved by a preponderance of the evidence, as required under O.C.G.A. § 19-13-3(a), that a mother committed an act of family violence pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 19-13-1 as there was insufficient evidence that the mother committed an act of violence, specifically simple battery in violation of O.C.G.A. § 16-5-23, as opposed to administering reasonable discipline in the form of corporal punishment, as O.C.G.A. § 16-5-23 specifically exempted corporal punishment from the definition of battery, and the appellate court determined after considering O.C.G.A. §§ 16-3-20 and 20-2-731 that the alleged action of the mother in slapping her daughter did not rise to the level of unreasonable discipline. Buchheit v. Stinson, 260 Ga. App. 450, 579 S.E.2d 853 (2003).

Trial court abused the court’s discretion by issuing a protective order against a lessee because a lessor did not meet the burden under O.C.G.A. §§ 16-5-94(e) and 19-13-3(c) of showing that the lessee committed the offense of stalking, O.C.G.A. § 16-5-90(a)(1); other than the lessor’s own testimony, the lessor offered no proof that the lessee and a former business associate were acting in concert against the lessor or that their alleged joint activities were of the type that would support a protective order based on the offense of stalking. Martin v. Woodyard, 313 Ga. App. 797, 723 S.E.2d 293 (2012).

“Reasonably recent” act of violence not required. — Appellate court found that under O.C.G.A. § 19-13-3 there was no requirement that any past act of family violence alleged in the petition be “reasonably recent.” By requiring the wife to show a “reasonably recent” act of family violence by the husband, the court below abused the court’s discretion. Lewis v. Lewis, 316 Ga. App. 67, 728 S.E.2d 741 (2012).

Counsel’s letter of conflict. — When an attorney was retained in a case being heard on an accelerated docket under the Family Violence Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-13-1 et seq., and promptly filed a conflict letter with the trial court advising the court that the attorney would be in another court at the time scheduled for a hearing in the case in which the attorney was retained, and followed up with the trial court on the day of the hearing regarding the attorney’s general availability, it was an abuse of discretion for the trial court to refuse to honor the conflict letter because it was not filed seven days in advance of the hearing, as this part of the rule was explicitly an “expectation,” which took into account that it was not always possible to file such a letter seven days in advance of a hearing, especially in cases being heard on an accelerated docket, and there was no evidence that the opposing party would have been prejudiced by a brief delay. Foster v. Gidewon, 280 Ga. 21, 622 S.E.2d 357 (2005).

Protective order under O.C.G.A. § 16-5-94. — While a preponderance of the evidence supported issuance of a protective order against a victim’s sister-in-law, specifically, that the latter stalked the former, threatening violence for the purpose of harassing and intimidating the latter, the superior court could not prohibit the sister-in-law from owning or possessing a firearm for the duration of the order, or prohibit the sister-in-law from contacting immediate family members when the victim was not present. Rawcliffe v. Rawcliffe, 283 Ga. App. 264, 641 S.E.2d 255 (2007).

Imposition of a stalking protective order against the former boyfriend was inappropriate under O.C.G.A. §§ 16-5-90(a)(1), 16-5-94(e), and 19-13-3(c) because the evidence admitted at the hearing was clearly insufficient to establish the necessary “pattern” of harassing and intimidating behavior against the former girlfriend. Even assuming that an incident in the parking lot constituted the requisite contact of an intimidating or harassing nature, the only other evidence presented was that the parties would sometimes be in the same place at the school, which was a place that both had the right to be. Ramsey v. Middleton, 310 Ga. App. 300, 713 S.E.2d 428 (2011).

Expiration of temporary order. — Temporary protective order (TPO) issued under O.C.G.A. § 16-5-94 stood dismissed as a matter of law after 30 days without a hearing pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 19-13-3(c); after that date, the superior court lacked the power to enforce the TPO, as provided in O.C.G.A. § 19-13-4(d), or order the parties to comply with a settlement agreement. Although the parties allegedly agreed to continue the hearing, there was no showing in the record of such consent. Peebles v. Claxton, 326 Ga. App. 53, 755 S.E.2d 861 (2014).

Permanent restraining order not granted. — Because a fire chief’s actions taken against certain fire department employees did not constitute stalking by a preponderance of the evidence under O.C.G.A. § 16-5-90(a)(1), but were committed for the legitimate purpose of physical training and arose during legitimate training activities, the issuance of a permanent restraining order against the fire chief for those activities amounted to an abuse of discretion. Pilcher v. Stribling, 282 Ga. 166, 647 S.E.2d 8 (2007).

Jury instruction on family violence protective order violation erroneous. — Defendant’s conviction for violating a family violence protective order as a lesser included offense of aggravated stalking was reversed on appeal because the defendant was not indicted for the family violence protective order violation; thus, the trial court erred in instructing the jury on the lesser offense. Edgecomb v. State, 319 Ga. App. 804, 738 S.E.2d 645 (2013).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Divorce action combined with petition for relief under Family Violence Act. — Petitions for relief under the Family Violence Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-13-1 et seq., and petitions for divorce may be combined in one action; however, the procedures governing the divorce action must comply with the Civil Practice Act, O.C.G.A. Ch. 11, T. 9. Furthermore, the filing fees for such a combination action would be governed by the general civil action filing fees provisions; only if a petition for relief under the Family Violence Act is filed separately would the statutory lesser filing fee be applicable. 1995 Op. Att’y Gen. No. U95-7.

Filing fees. — O.C.G.A. § 15-6-77 (b)(1) and (b)(2), which provides that the total cost for all services rendered by the clerk of superior court in civil cases shall be either $40 or $55, should be construed together with, and does not repeal, O.C.G.A. § 19-13-3, which provides for a $16 filing fee for petitions filed under the Family Violence Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-13-1 et seq. 1988 Op. Att’y Gen. No. U88-11.

One-dollar fees for the clerks’ and sheriffs’ retirement funds should be charged in addition to the filing fees for a petition filed under the Family Violence Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-13-1 et seq. 1988 Op. Att’y Gen. No. U88-11.

If service of process is necessary, the sheriff’s $20 fee should be imposed in addition to the $16 filing fee under the Family Violence Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-13-1 et seq. 1988 Op. Att’y Gen. No. U88-11.

Clerk of the superior court would be authorized to collect costs in support of county law libraries as authorized by the chief judge in any action filed under the Family Violence Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-13-1 et seq. 1988 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U88-11.

19-13-4. Protective orders and consent agreements; contents; issuing copy of order to sheriff; expiration; enforcement.

(a) The court may, upon the filing of a verified petition, grant any protective order or approve any consent agreement to bring about a cessation of acts of family violence. The court shall not have the authority to issue or approve mutual protective orders concerning paragraph (1), (2), (5), (9), or (11) of this subsection, or any combination thereof, unless the respondent has filed a verified petition as a counter petition pursuant to Code Section 19-13-3 no later than three days, not including Saturdays, Sundays, and legal holidays, prior to the hearing and the provisions of Code Section 19-13-3 have been satisfied. The orders or agreements may:

- (1) Direct the respondent to refrain from such acts;
- (2) Grant to a party possession of the residence or household of the parties and exclude the other party from the residence or household;
- (3) Require a party to provide suitable alternate housing for a spouse, former spouse, or parent and the parties' child or children;
- (4) Award temporary custody of minor children and establish temporary visitation rights;
- (5) Order the eviction of a party from the residence or household and order assistance to the victim in returning to it, or order assistance in retrieving personal property of the victim if the respondent's eviction has not been ordered;
- (6) Order either party to make payments for the support of a minor child as required by law;
- (7) Order either party to make payments for the support of a spouse as required by law;
- (8) Provide for possession of personal property of the parties;
- (9) Order the respondent to refrain from harassing or interfering with the victim;
- (10) Award costs and attorney's fees to either party; and

(11) Order the respondent to receive appropriate psychiatric or psychological services as a further measure to prevent the recurrence of family violence.

(b) A copy of the order shall be issued by the clerk of the superior court to the sheriff of the county wherein the order was entered and shall be retained by the sheriff as long as that order shall remain in effect.

(c) Any order granted under this Code section shall remain in effect for up to one year; provided, however, that upon the motion of a petitioner and notice to the respondent and after a hearing, the court in its discretion may convert a temporary order granted under this Code section to an order effective for not more than three years or to a permanent order.

(d) A protective order issued pursuant to this Code section shall apply and shall be effective throughout this state. It shall be the duty of every superior court and of every sheriff, every deputy sheriff, and every state, county, or municipal law enforcement officer within this state to enforce and carry out the terms of any valid protective order issued by any court under the provisions of this Code section. JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Temporary protective order obtained under the Family Violence Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-13-1 et seq., was not subject to the 30-day expiration period applicable to temporary restraining orders. Carroll v. State, 224 Ga. App. 543, 481 S.E.2d 562 (1997).

Double jeopardy for punishment for aggravated stalking and violation of protective order. — When a defendant was indicted for aggravated stalking under O.C.G.A. § 16-5-91(a) in violation of a protective order issued under

O.C.G.A. § 19-13-4, a criminal contempt proceeding based on the same incident could trigger the double jeopardy clause of the Fifth Amendment. The protective order violation contained no elements not contained in the criminal offense; furthermore, the protective order specifically enjoined the defendant from surveilling the subject of the order for the purpose of harassing and intimidating the subject as also proscribed by § 16-5-91(a). Tanks v. State, 292 Ga. App. 177, 663 S.E.2d 812 (2008).

Mutually protective provisions unauthorized. — When a mother in her petition under the Family Violence Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-13-1 et seq., alleged that the father of her child had abused her and admitted to damaging the father's property after one incident of abuse, and the father did not file a counterpetition, the trial court did not have the authority to include mutually protective provisions in the order under O.C.G.A. § 19-13-4(a)(1), (9), and (11). Moreover, if the acts to which the mother admitted in her petition were to be used as the basis for issuance of a protective order against her, or if she had engaged in other or different acts warranting such relief, § 19-3-4(a) and the requirements of due process entitled her to notice and an opportunity to prepare a defense before appearing at the hearing. Williams v. Jones, 291 Ga. App. 395, 662 S.E.2d 195 (2008).

Extension of temporary order. — In light of the purpose of the Family Violence Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-13-1 et seq., and the fact that a hearing was started but had to be continued, the trial court did not err in holding that a temporary protective order could remain in effect beyond the six-month period established by subsection (c) of O.C.G.A. § 19-13-4 without first holding a hearing and entering an order making the protective order permanent. Duggan v. Duggan-Schlitz, 246 Ga. App. 127, 539 S.E.2d 840 (2000).

Expiration of temporary order. — Temporary protective order (TPO) issued under O.C.G.A. § 16-5-94 stood dismissed as a matter of law after 30 days without a hearing pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 19-13-3(c); after that date, the superior court lacked the power to enforce the TPO, as provided in O.C.G.A. § 19-13-4(d), or order the parties to comply with a settlement agreement. Although the parties allegedly agreed to continue the hearing, there was no showing in the record of such consent. Peebles v. Claxton, 326 Ga. App. 53, 755 S.E.2d 861 (2014).

Specific findings not required. — Trial court did not have to make specific findings to support the court's temporary award of child custody since a finding that the award was in the best interests of the children was implicit in the court's order.

Baca v. Baca, 256 Ga. App. 514, 568 S.E.2d 746 (2002).

History of unfounded allegations of abuse justified dismissal of petition. — Order dismissing the father's petition for family violence protective orders on behalf of the children against the mother was upheld because much of the evidence of what the children said about the mother came from the testimony of the father, who had a history of making unfounded allegations of child abuse against former wives, including the mother. Perlman v. Perlman, 318 Ga. App. 731, 734 S.E.2d 560 (2012).

Attorney's fees. — Trial court erred by applying the divorce and alimony "disparity of income" standard under O.C.G.A. § 19-6-2(a)(1) to a motion for attorney's fees filed under the Family Violence Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-13-1 et seq. Suarez v. Halbert, 246 Ga. App. 822, 543 S.E.2d 733 (2000).

Permanent protective order. — After a wife initiated an effort to obtain a permanent order of protection against the husband, whom the wife was divorcing, while the temporary protection order was in effect, and the husband received notice and was given a hearing on the issue, the trial court properly issued a permanent order pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 19-13-4(a); the fact that the temporary order had expired was immaterial to the trial court's authority to enter the permanent order. Nguyen v. Dinh, 278 Ga. 887, 608 S.E.2d 211 (2005).

Modification of permanent protective order. — Appellate court properly upheld the modification of a permanent protection order issued in a family violence matter between parents because O.C.G.A. § 19-13-4(c) contemplated that the duration of such orders could be modified based on changing conditions and circumstances, and the father sufficiently alleged such changed circumstances, including that neither party had custody of the child. Mandt v. Lovell, 293 Ga. 807, 750 S.E.2d 134 (2013).

Text of O.C.G.A. § 19-13-4(c) contemplates that the duration of family violence protective orders may be modified based on changing conditions and circumstances. Thus, a restrained party who seeks termination of a family violence permanent protective order must prove by a preponderance of the evidence that a material change in circumstances has occurred, such that the resumption of family violence is not likely and justice would be served by termination of the order and in reviewing cases such as this, a court should look to the totality of the circumstances. Mandt v. Lovell, 293 Ga. 807, 750 S.E.2d 134 (2013).

Transmission of order to Protective Order Registry mandatory. — Although a one-year protective order against a husband had expired at the time of his appeal, rendering certain evidentiary issues moot, other issues which tended to evade review were considered. The trial court did not err in transmitting the protective order to the Georgia Protective Order Registry as required by O.C.G.A. § 19-13-4. Birchby v. Carboy, 311 Ga. App. 538, 716 S.E.2d 592 (2011).

Effect of protective order on right to benefits under ERISA. — Widow's argument, that a determination denying her benefits on the grounds that her separation from her husband was permanent was "contrary to law" because the ex parte protective order under which the decedent was removed from the home the day before he died of a self-inflicted gunshot wound would have expired automatically by operation of law unless it were made permanent after a hearing and order, pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 19-13-4(c), was rejected; the decision denying benefits was not based on an understanding that the protective order was itself permanent, but merely on a finding that the order evinced the couple's intention to separate permanently. Smith v. Delta Airlines, Inc., No. 06-13915, 2007 U.S. App. LEXIS 1678 (11th Cir. Jan. 25, 2007) (Unpublished).

Jury instruction on family violence protective order violation erroneous. — Defendant's conviction for violating a family violence protective order as a lesser included offense of aggravated stalking was reversed on appeal because the defendant was not indicted for the family violence protective order violation; thus, the trial court erred in instructing the jury on the lesser offense. Edgecomb v. State, 319 Ga. App. 804, 738 S.E.2d 645 (2013).

Editor's notes. — Ga. L. 2002, p. 1435, § 1, not codified by the General Assembly, provides that: "This Act shall be known and may be cited as the 'Georgia's Family Violence Intervention Program Certification Act.'"

19-13-10. Definitions.

As used in this article, the term:

(1) "Commission" means the State Commission on Family Violence.

(2) "Commissioner" means the commissioner of community supervision.

(3) "Department" means the Department of Community Supervision.

(4) "Family or household members" means past or present spouses, persons who are parents of the same child, or other persons living or formerly living in the same household.

(5) "Family violence" means the commission of the offenses of battery, simple battery, simple assault, assault, stalking, criminal damage to property, or criminal trespass between family or household members.

(6) "Family violence intervention program" or "program" means any program that is certified by the Department of Community Supervision pursuant to Code Section 19-13-14 and designed to rehabilitate family violence offenders. Such term shall include, but shall not be limited to, batterer intervention programs, anger management programs, anger counseling, family problem resolution, and violence therapy. (Code 1981, § 19-13-10, enacted by Ga. L. 2002, p. 1435, § 3; Ga. L. 2015, p. 422, § 5-46/HB 310.)

The 2015 amendment, effective July 1, 2015, substituted “commissioner of community supervision” for “commissioner of corrections” in paragraph (2); substituted “Department of Community Supervision” for “Department of Corrections” in paragraph (3); and, in paragraph (6), substituted “Department of Community Supervision” for “Department of Corrections” in the first sentence, and substituted “Such term shall include, but shall not be limited to” for “The term includes, but is not limited to” in the last sentence. See editor’s note for applicability.

Editor’s notes. — Ga. L. 2015, p. 422, § 6-1/HB 310, not codified by the General Assembly, provides, in part, that the amendment by this Act shall apply to sentences entered on or after July 1, 2015.

Law reviews. — For note on the 2002 enactment of this Code section, see 19 Ga. St. U.L. Rev. 142 (2002).

19-13-11. Fee for certification application; valid period of certification.

In carrying out the purpose of this article, the department shall charge a fee for the consideration of applications for certification of family violence intervention programs and instructors. The amount of this fee shall be established by the commission and shall, as best as the commission shall determine, approximate the expense incurred by the department in consideration of an application. These certifications shall be valid for a period of two years unless suspended or revoked prior to the expiration of that time period. (Code 1981, § 19-13-11, enacted by Ga. L. 2002, p. 1435, § 3.) 19-13-12.

Reserved.

Editor’s notes. — Ga. L. 2002, p. 1435, § 3, effective July 1, 2002, in effect reserved this Code section designation for future enactment of provisions of this article.

19-13-13. Administration and supervision of certification.

(a) A program certified pursuant to this article shall be administered by the department. The department is authorized to promulgate, adopt, and enforce rules and regulations necessary to carry out this article, including, but not limited to, prescribing the form of applications, visiting program facilities, and investigating complaints.

(b) The department shall be responsible for the approval and certification of programs and staff. This responsibility includes the training for and monitoring of all programs under this article. (Code 1981, § 19-13-13, enacted by Ga. L. 2002, p. 1435, § 3.)

19-13-14. Standards and requirements for course content; course operators; certification of programs; maintenance of list of certified programs.

(a) The commission and the department shall establish standards and requirements concerning the content of courses, including, but not limited to, duration of courses, qualifications of instructors, program and certification fees, attendance requirements, and examinations. In order to be certified, a program shall meet the standards established by the commission and the department.

(b) Programs may be operated by any individual, partnership, corporation, association, civic group, club, county, municipality, board of education, school, or college or any public, private, or governmental entity.

(c) No official or employee, or his or her spouse, of the department or the State Board of Pardons or Paroles shall own, operate, instruct at, or be employed by a program except as provided by Code Section 19-13-15.

(d) The department is responsible for establishing requirements for the certification of programs. An applicant must meet the certification requirements promulgated by the department through standards established by the commission and the department. No program shall be approved unless the owner of the program agrees in writing to submit reports as required in the rules and regulations of the department and to allow the examination and audit of the books, records, and financial statements of the program or its authorized agent. No program will be certified unless the owner of the program agrees in writing to pay to the state, for the costs of administration, a fee as established by the commission, provided that nothing in this Code section shall be construed so as to allow the department to retain any funds required by the Constitution of this state to be paid into the state treasury; and provided, further, that the department shall comply with all provisions of Part 1 of Article 4 of Chapter 12 of Title 45, the "Budget Act," except Code Section 45-12-92, prior to expending any such miscellaneous funds. All programs operated by the department and the State Board of Pardons and Paroles shall be exempt from fee provisions relating to obtaining certification.

(e) The department has the authority to deny, suspend, or revoke a certificate under this article or to impose sanctions upon and discipline a program which is not complying with the rules and regulations set forth by the department. The department shall establish criteria to determine noncompliance with its rules and regulations, sanctions for noncompliance, and methods of appeal if certification is denied, suspended, or revoked.

(f) The department shall maintain a list of programs certified pursuant to this article and make the list available to the public and all courts. (Code 1981, § 19-13-14, enacted by Ga. L. 2002, p. 1435, § 3.)

19-13-15. Cooperation with State Board of Pardons and Paroles.

The department and the State Board of Pardons and Paroles may operate family violence intervention programs which meet the requirements of the department. The courts and the State Board of Pardons and Paroles may accept such programs in lieu of certified family violence intervention programs as defined in paragraph (6) of Code Section 19-13-10. (Code 1981, § 19-13-15, enacted by Ga. L. 2002, p. 1435, § 3.)

Code Commission notes. — Pursuant to Code Section 28-9-5, in 2002, “paragraph (6)” was substituted for “paragraph (1)” near the end of this Code section.

19-13-16. Mandatory participation; cost for participation.

(a) A court, in addition to imposing any penalty provided by law, when sentencing a defendant or revoking a defendant’s probation for an offense involving family violence, or when imposing a protective order against family violence, shall order the defendant to participate in a family violence intervention program, whether a certified program pursuant to this article or a program operated pursuant to Code Section 19-13-15, unless the court determines and states on the record why participation in such a program is not appropriate.

(b) The State Board of Pardons and Paroles, for a violation of parole for an offense involving family violence, shall require the conditional releasee to participate in a family violence intervention program, whether a certified program pursuant to this article or a program operated pursuant to Code Section 19-13-15, unless the State Board of Pardons and Paroles determines why participation in such a program is not appropriate.

(c) Unless the defendant is indigent, the cost of the family violence intervention program as provided by this Code section shall be borne by the defendant. If the defendant is indigent, then the cost of the program shall be determined by a sliding scale based upon the defendant’s ability to pay. (Code 1981, § 19-13-16, enacted by Ga. L. 2002, p. 1435, § 3.)

19-13-17. Administrative fine.

As an alternative to criminal or other civil enforcement, the commissioner or his or her designee, in order to enforce this article or any orders, rules, or regulations promulgated pursuant to this article, may issue an administrative fine not to exceed $1,000.00 for each violation, whenever that commissioner or his or her designee, after a hearing, determines that any person, firm, or corporation has violated any provision of this article or any order, rule, or regulation promulgated pursuant to this article. The hearing and any administrative review thereof shall be conducted in accordance with the procedures for contested cases under Chapter 13 of Title 50, the "Georgia Administrative Procedure Act." Any person, firm, or corporation that has exhausted all administrative remedies available and that is aggrieved or adversely affected by a final order or action of the commissioner or his or her designee shall have the right of judicial review in accordance with Chapter 13 of Title 50. All fines collected or recovered by the commissioner under this Code section shall be remitted to the Office of the State Treasurer to the credit of the general fund of this state. The commissioner or his or her designee may file in the superior court (1) wherein the person under order resides; (2) if such person is a corporation, in the county wherein the corporation maintains its principal place of business; or (3) in the county wherein the violation occurred, a certified copy of a final order of the commissioner or his or her designee, whether unappealed from or affirmed upon appeal, whereupon the court shall render judgment in accordance with the judgment and notify the parties. The judgment shall have the same effect and proceedings in relation thereto shall thereafter be the same as though the judgment had been rendered in an action duly heard and determined by the court. The penalty prescribed in this Code section shall be concurrent, alternative, and cumulative with any and all other civil, criminal, or alternative rights, remedies, forfeitures, or penalties provided, allowed, or available to the commissioner or his or her designee with respect to any violation of this article or any order, rule, or regulation promulgated pursuant to this article. (Code 1981, § 19-13-17, enacted by Ga. L. 2002, p. 1435, § 3; Ga. L. 2010, p. 863, § 2/SB 296.)

confidentiality of family violence shelters' addresses and locations by telephone companies, § 46-5-7.

19-13-20. Definitions.

As used in this article, the term:

- (1) "Council" means the Criminal Justice Coordinating Council.

(2) “Family or household members” means spouses, parents and children, or other persons related by consanguinity or affinity and occupying a common domicile.

(3) “Family violence” means the occurrence of one of the following acts between family or household members who reside together:

(A) Attempting to cause or causing bodily injury or serious bodily injury with or without a deadly weapon; or

(B) By physical menace, placing another in fear of imminent serious bodily injury.

(4) “Family violence program” means any program whose primary stated purpose is to provide services to victims of family violence. A family violence program may be but is not required to be associated with a family violence shelter.

(5) “Family violence shelter” means a facility approved by the council for the purpose of receiving, on a temporary basis, persons who are subject to family violence. Family violence shelters are distinguished from shelters operated for detention or placement of children only, as provided in subsection (c) of Code Section 15-11-135 and subsection (a) of Code Section 15-11-504. (Ga. L. 1981, p. 663, § 1; Ga. L. 1983, p. 521, § 1; Ga. L. 1988, p. 13, § 19; Ga. L. 1988, p. 1287, § 1; Ga. L. 1996, p. 819, § 1; Ga. L. 2000, p. 20, § 14; Ga. L. 2009, p. 453, § 2-2/HB 228; Ga. L. 2013, p. 294, § 4-30/HB 242; Ga. L. 2015, p. 890, § 9/HB 263.)

The 2013 amendment, effective January 1, 2014, substituted “subsection (c) of Code Section 15-11-135 and subsection (a) of Code Section 15-11-504” for “subsection (a) of Code Section 15-11-48” in the last sentence of paragraph (5). See editor’s note for applicability.

The 2015 amendment, effective July 1, 2015, substituted the present provisions of paragraph (1) for the former provisions, which read: “‘Department’ means the Department of Human Services.”; and substituted “council” for “department” in the first sentence of paragraph (5).

Editor’s notes. — Ga. L. 2013, p. 294, § 5-1/HB 242, not codified by the General Assembly, provides that: “This Act shall become effective on January 1, 2014, and shall apply to all offenses which occur and juvenile proceedings commenced on and after such date. Any offense occurring before January 1, 2014, shall be governed by the statute in effect at the time of such offense and shall be considered a prior adjudication for the purpose of imposing a disposition that provides for a different penalty for subsequent adjudications, of whatever class, pursuant to this Act. The enactment of this Act shall not affect any prosecutions for acts occurring before January 1, 2014, and shall not act as an abatement of any such prosecutions.”

19-13-21. Powers and duties of council.

(a) It shall be the duty of the council:

(1) To establish minimum standards for an approved family violence shelter to enable such shelter to receive state funds;

(2) To receive applications for the development and establishment of family violence shelters;

(3) To approve or reject each application within 60 days of receipt of the application;

(4) To distribute funds to an approved shelter as funds become available;

(5) To fund other family violence programs as funds become available, provided that such programs meet standards established by the council; and

(6) To evaluate annually each family violence shelter for compliance with the minimum standards.

(b) Without using designated shelter funds, the council may:

(1) Formulate and conduct a research and evaluation program on family violence and cooperate with and assist and participate in programs of other properly qualified agencies, including any agency of the federal government, schools of medicine, hospitals, and clinics, in planning and conducting research on the prevention of family violence and the care, treatment, and rehabilitation of persons engaged in or subject to family violence;

(2) Serve as a clearing-house for information relating to family violence;

(3) Carry on educational programs on family violence for the benefit of the general public, persons engaged in or subject to family violence, professional persons, or others who care for or may be engaged in the care and treatment of persons engaged in or subject to family violence; and

(4) Enlist the assistance of public and voluntary health, education, welfare, and rehabilitation agencies in a concerted effort to prevent family violence and to treat persons engaged in or subject to family violence. (Ga. L. 1981, p. 663, § 2; Ga. L. 1983, p. 521, § 2; Ga. L. 1988, p. 1287, § 2; Ga. L. 1996, p. 819, § 2; Ga. L. 2015, p. 890, § 10/HB 263.)

The 2015 amendment, effective July 1, 2015, substituted “council” for “department” at the end of subsection (a), at the end of paragraph (a)(5), and at the end of subsection (b).

Code Commission notes. — Pursuant to Code Section 28-9-5, in 1988, “clearing-house” was substituted for “clearinghouse” in paragraph (b)(2). Pursuant to Code Section 28-9-5, in 1996, “shelter” was substituted for “shelters” twice in paragraph (a)(1).

19-13-22. Eligibility for licensing and funding; applying for licensing and funding; receiving and referral functions; shelters and programs; admission procedures; board of shelter.

(a) In order to be approved and funded under this article, each shelter shall:

- (1) Provide a facility which will serve as a shelter to receive or house persons who are family violence victims;
- (2) Receive the periodic written endorsement of local law enforcement agencies;
- (3) Receive a minimum of 25 percent of its funding from other sources. Contributions in kind, whether materials, commodities, transportation, office space, other types of facilities, or personal services, may be evaluated and counted as part of the required local funding; and
- (4) Meet the minimum standards of the council for approving family violence shelters; provided, however, that facilities not receiving state funds shall not be required to be approved.

(b) The council shall provide procedures whereby local organizations may apply for approval and funding. Any local agency or organization may apply to participate.

(c) Each approved family violence shelter shall be designated to serve as a temporary receiving facility for the admission of persons subject to family violence. Each shelter shall refer such persons and their spouses to any public or private facility, service, or program providing treatment or rehabilitation services, including, but not limited to, the prevention of such violence and the care, treatment, and rehabilitation of persons engaged in or subject to family violence.

(d) Family violence shelters and family violence programs may be established throughout the state as private, local, state, or federal funds are available. Any county or municipality in this state is authorized to make grants of county or municipal funds, respectively, to any family violence center approved as such in accordance with the minimum standards of the council.

(e) The family violence shelters shall establish procedures pursuant to which persons subject to family violence may seek admission to these shelters on a voluntary basis.

(f) Each family violence shelter shall have a board composed of at least three citizens, one of whom shall be a member of a local, municipal, or county law enforcement agency. (Ga. L. 1981, p. 663, § 3; Ga. L. 1983, p. 521, §§ 3-5; Ga. L. 1988, p. 1287, § 3; Ga. L. 1989, p. 1108, § 1; Ga. L. 1996, p. 819, § 3; Ga. L. 2015, p. 890, § 11/HB 263.)

The 2015 amendment, effective July 1, 2015, substituted “council” for “department” near the beginning of paragraph (a)(4), at the beginning of subsection (b), and at the end of subsection (d).

19-13-23. Confidentiality of location of family violence shelter; exceptions.

(a) Any person who knowingly publishes, disseminates, or otherwise discloses the location of a family violence shelter is guilty of a misdemeanor.

(b) This Code section shall not apply to:

(1) Confidential communications between a client and his or her attorney; or

(2) Instances when such publication, dissemination, or disclosure is authorized by the director of the shelter. (Code 1981, § 19-13-23, enacted by Ga. L. 1997, p. 1543, § 2.)

ARTICLE 3

STATE COMMISSION ON FAMILY VIOLENCE

19-13-30. State Commission on Family Violence.

(a) The General Assembly finds and declares that violence in Georgia homes among family members accounts for many serious injuries, deaths, and extensive physical and emotional damage to children and adults. Family violence knows no economic or social barriers. The costs of family violence include misery and trauma for individuals and families and increased government spending for police services, criminal prosecutions, incarcerations, court personnel, foster care, public assistance, and juvenile corrections.

(b) The General Assembly has enacted comprehensive legislation addressing family violence, including provision for the issuance of temporary protective orders to protect individuals from violence. It has become evident that enforcement of these laws is inconsistent and an effective response to family violence will require a comprehensive community effort as well as coordination among the courts, prosecutors, law enforcement agencies, the correctional system, and public assistance and other service providers. The creation of a state commission and local task forces to combat family violence was highly recommended by the Georgia Commission on Gender Bias in the Judicial System. (Code 1981, § 19-13-30, enacted by Ga. L. 1992, p. 1810, § 1.)

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Cited in Bell v. State, 323 Ga. App. 751, 748 S.E.2d 114 (2013).

19-13-31. Commission created; comprehensive state plan for ending family violence; establishment of community task forces.

There is created a State Commission on Family Violence which shall be responsible for developing a comprehensive state plan for ending family violence. This plan shall include the initiation, coordination, and oversight of the implementation of family violence laws and the establishment in each judicial circuit of a Community Task Force on Family Violence. These task forces shall be supported by and work in collaboration with the state commission. The commission shall be assigned for administrative purposes only, as set out in Code Section 50-4-3, to the Department of Community Supervision. (Code 1981, § 19-13-31, enacted by Ga. L. 1992, p. 1810, § 1; Ga. L. 1997, p. 1543, § 3; Ga. L. 2002, p. 1435, § 4; Ga. L. 2015, p. 422, § 5-47/HB 310.)

The 2015 amendment, effective July 1, 2015, substituted “Department of Community Supervision” for “Department of Corrections” at the end of this Code section. See editor’s note for applicability.

Editor’s notes. — Ga. L. 2015, p. 422, § 6-1/HB 310, not codified by the General Assembly, provides, in part, that the amendment by this Act shall apply to sentences entered on or after July 1, 2015.

Law reviews. — For article commenting on the 1997 amendment of this Code section, see 14 Ga. St. U.L. Rev. 151 (1997).

For note on the 2002 amendment of this Code section, see 19 Ga. St. U.L. Rev. 132 (2002).

19-13-32. Membership; terms; filling of vacancies; officers.

(a) The State Commission on Family Violence shall consist of 37 members:

(1) Three ex officio members shall be the director of the Division of Family and Children Services of the Department of Human Services, the director of Women's Health Services in the Department of Public Health, and the Attorney General;

(2) Three members shall be members of the House of Representatives and shall be appointed by the Speaker of the House of Representatives;

(3) Three members shall be members of the Senate and shall be appointed by the President of the Senate;

(4) The remaining members shall be appointed by the Governor as follows:

(A) One judge from each judicial administrative district;

(B) Three advocates for battered women recommended by groups which have addressed the problem of family violence;

(C) One person with expertise and interest regarding family violence involving persons who are 60 years of age or older;

(D) One person with expertise and interest regarding family violence involving children; and

(E) One representative from each of the following:

(i) The Administrative Office of the Courts;

(ii) The Georgia Peace Officer Standards and Training Council;

(iii) The Georgia Association of Chiefs of Police;

(iv) The District Attorneys Association of Georgia;

(v) The State Board of Pardons and Paroles;

(vi) The Department of Community Supervision;

(vii) The Georgia Sheriffs' Association;

(viii) The Criminal Justice Coordinating Council;

(ix) The Solicitors Association of Georgia;

(x) The legal aid community;

(xi) The academic community;

(xii) Men Stopping Violence; and (xiii) A former victim of domestic violence.

(b) The Governor, Speaker of the House, and President of the Senate shall appoint individuals who are specially qualified to serve on the commission by reason of their experience and knowledge of family violence issues.

(c) Members serving on July 1, 1996, or persons appointed to complete the unexpired terms of members serving on July 1, 1996, shall complete the terms for which they were appointed. The term of appointment shall be three years for initial successors to members appointed in accordance with the following provisions of subsection (a) of this Code section: paragraph (2) and divisions (ii), (iv), (vi), (viii), (x), and (xii) of subparagraph (E) of paragraph (4). The term of appointment shall be three years for the initial members appointed in accordance with subparagraphs (a)(4)(C) and (a)(4)(D) of this Code section. Initial successors to judicial members appointed to represent even-numbered judicial administrative districts shall be appointed for terms of three years. Two of the initial successors for members appointed in accordance with subparagraph (a)(4)(B) of this Code section shall be appointed for terms of three years. The term of appointment shall be two years for initial successors to all other members except those serving ex officio. The letter of appointment shall set out the term for which each member is appointed. Thereafter, each member shall be appointed for a term of two years, and no member may serve more than two consecutive terms. Each member shall serve until the date his or her successor is appointed. All vacancies shall be filled for the unexpired term by an appointee of the original appointing official.

(d) The commission shall elect a chairperson, vice chairperson, and a secretary from among its members for terms of two years, and any member shall be eligible for successive election to such office by the commission. (Code 1981, § 19-13-32, enacted by Ga. L. 1992, p. 1810, § 1; Ga. L. 1995, p. 1186, § 2; Ga. L. 1996, p. 449, § 2; Ga. L. 2009, p. 453, § 1-17/HB 228; Ga. L. 2011, p. 705, § 6-1/HB 214; Ga. L. 2012, p. 200, § 1/HB 733; Ga. L. 2015, p. 422, § 5-48/HB 310.)

The 2015 amendment, effective July 1, 2015, in subsection (a), added “of Representatives” at the end of paragraph (a)(2), and substituted the present provisions of division (a)(4)(E)(vi) for the former provisions, which read: “The probation system;”. See editor’s note for applicability.

Editor’s notes. — Ga. L. 2015, p. 422, § 6-1/HB 310, not codified by the General Assembly, provides, in part, that the amendment by this Act shall apply to sentences entered on or after July 1, 2015.

Law reviews. — For article on the 2011 amendment of this Code section, see 28 Ga. St. U.L. Rev. 147 (2011).

19-13-33. Meetings; quorum; reimbursement for expenses.

(a) The commission shall hold regular meetings at least once every calendar quarter. Special meetings may be called by the chairperson or a majority of the members of the commission. The commission shall meet at such times and at such designated places in the state as it may determine.

(b) A quorum for transacting business shall be determined by the members of the commission.

(c) The members of the commission may be reimbursed for expenses incurred while conducting the business of the commission from public or private grants, devises, or bequests received by the commission. (Code 1981, § 19-13-33, enacted by Ga. L. 1992, p. 1810, § 1; Ga. L. 1996, p. 449, § 3.)

19-13-34. Powers and duties of commission.

(a) The commission shall have the following duties:

(1) To study and evaluate the needs, priorities, programs, policies, and accessibility of services relating to family violence throughout this state;

(2) To evaluate and monitor the adequacy and effectiveness of existing family violence laws, including the response of the present civil and criminal legal systems;

(3) To initiate and coordinate the development of family violence legislation, as necessary;

(4) To monitor the implementation and enforcement of laws, regulations, and protocols concerning family violence;

(5) To make recommendations for education and training to ensure that all citizens and service providers, including but not limited to members of the judiciary, law enforcement personnel, and prosecuting attorneys, are aware of needs relating to family violence and of services available;

(6) To develop models for community task forces on family violence;

(7) To provide training and continuing education on the dynamics of family violence to members of the commission where appropriate and necessary;

(8) To report annually to the General Assembly during its existence; and

(9) To develop standards to be utilized by the Department of Community Supervision in the certification and regulation of family violence intervention programs.

(b) The commission shall have the following powers:

(1) To write and disseminate reports and recommendations concerning family violence to the Governor, the General Assembly, and the community;

(2) To accept public or private grants, devises, and bequests;

(3) To enter into all contracts or agreements necessary or incidental to the performance of its duties; and

(4) To hold meetings and public hearings and to conduct studies, collect data, or take any other action the commission deems necessary to fulfill its responsibilities. (Code 1981, § 19-13-34, enacted by Ga. L. 1992, p. 1810, § 1; Ga. L. 2002, p. 1435, § 5; Ga. L. 2015, p. 422, § 5-49/HB 310.)

The 2015 amendment, effective July 1, 2015, in subsection (a), substituted “this state” for “the state” at the end of paragraph (a)(1), and substituted “Department of Community Supervision” for “Department of Corrections” in the middle of paragraph (a)(9). See editor’s note for applicability.

Editor’s notes. — Ga. L. 2015, p. 422, § 6-1/HB 310, not codified by the General Assembly, provides, in part, that the amendment by this Act shall apply to sentences entered on or after July 1, 2015.

19-13-51. Definitions.

As used in this article, the term:

(1) “Court” means judges in the classes of courts identified in Title 15 and any other person while acting as such a judge pursuant to designation as otherwise authorized by law.

(2) “Foreign court” means a court of competent jurisdiction in any state other than this state or any territory or tribal jurisdiction in the United States.

(3) “Foreign protective order” means any temporary order of protection, order of protection, restraining order, injunction, pretrial release order, or sentencing order that prohibits contact, acts of family violence, or stalking issued by a foreign court.

(4) “Law enforcement officer” means any agent or officer of this state, or a political subdivision or municipality thereof, who, as a full-time or part-time employee, is vested either expressly by law or by virtue of public employment or service with authority to enforce the criminal or traffic laws and whose duties include the preservation of public order, the protection of life and property, or the prevention, detection, or investigation of crime. Such term also includes the following: state or local officer, sheriff, deputy sheriff, dispatcher, 9-1-1 operator, police officer, prosecuting attorney, member of the State Board of Pardons and Paroles, a hearing officer of the State Board of Pardons and Paroles, and a community supervision officer of the Department of Community Supervision.

(5) “Modification” means any amendment, dismissal, or continuance.

(6) “Prosecuting attorney” means each attorney elected to represent a judicial circuit in this state and any assistant or deputy district attorney, or solicitor, in each judicial circuit in this state.

(7) “Protective order” means:

(A) An ex parte, temporary, six-month, permanent, restraining, pretrial release, or sentencing order issued by a judge in this state that prohibits contact or that is pursuant to Article 7 of Chapter 5 of Title 16 or this chapter; and

(B) A foreign protective order.

(8) “Registry” means the Georgia Protective Order Registry. (Code 1981, § 19-13-51, enacted by Ga. L. 2001, p. 101, § 1; Ga. L. 2005, p. 660, § 2/HB 470; Ga. L. 2015, p. 422, § 5-50/HB 310; Ga. L. 2015, p. 1349, § 2/HB 452.)

The 2015 amendments. — The first 2015 amendment, effective July 1, 2015, in paragraph (4), substituted “hearing officer of the State Board of Pardons and Paroles, and a community supervision officer of the Department of Community Supervision” for “hearing officer and parole officer of the State Board of Pardons and Paroles, and a probation officer of the Department of Corrections” at the end. See editor’s note for applicability. The second 2015 amendment, effective July 1, 2015, substituted the present provisions of paragraph (3) for the former provisions, which read: “‘Foreign protective order’ means any temporary protective order, protective order, restraining order, or injunction that prohibits acts of family violence or stalking or both issued by a court of competent jurisdiction in another state, territory, or tribal jurisdiction in the United States.”; deleted “of a protective order” at the end of paragraph (5); and substituted the present provisions of paragraph (7) for the former provisions, which read: “‘Protective order’ means any ex parte, temporary, six-month, permanent order, or restraining order issued by a judge in this state pursuant to Code Sections 16-5-90 through 16-5-94 or this chapter and also where appropriate in this context includes a foreign protective order.”

Editor’s notes. — Ga. L. 2015, p. 422, § 6-1/HB 310, not codified by the General Assembly, provides, in part, that the amendment by this Act shall apply to sentences entered on or after July 1, 2015.

19-13-52. Purpose of registry; maintenance; access to information; linking to National Crime Information Center Network.

(a) The Georgia Protective Order Registry shall be created to serve as a state-wide, centralized data base for the collection of protective orders. The registry is intended to enhance victim safety by providing law enforcement officers, prosecuting attorneys, and the courts access to protective orders issued by the courts of this state and foreign courts 24 hours of the day and seven days of the week. Access to the registry is intended to aid law enforcement officers, prosecuting attorneys, and the courts in the enforcement of protective orders and the protection to victims.

(b) The registry shall be maintained by the Georgia Crime Information Center. The Georgia Commission on Family Violence may consult with the Georgia Crime Information Center regarding the effectiveness of the registry in enhancing the safety of victims.

(c) The registry shall include a complete and systematic record and index of all protective orders and modifications thereof. Law enforcement officers and the courts shall have access to the registry.

(d) The registry shall be linked to the National Crime Information Center Network, and protective orders or modifications thereof entered in the registry shall be immediately transmitted to such network. (Code 1981, § 19-13-52, enacted by Ga. L. 2001, p. 101, § 1; Ga. L. 2003, p. 321, § 1; Ga. L. 2015, p. 1349, § 3/HB 452.)

The 2015 amendment, effective July 1, 2015, in subsection (a), substituted the present provisions of the first sentence for the former provisions, which read: “The Georgia Protective Order Registry shall be created to serve as a centralized data base for state-wide protective orders issued pursuant to Code Sections 16-5-90 through 16-5-94 and this chapter.”, and following “victims” deleted “of stalking and family violence” at the end; deleted “of domestic violence and stalking” at the end of subsection (b); deleted “valid” preceding “protective” in the first sentence of subsection (c); and, in subsection (d), inserted a comma, added “or modifications thereof” in the middle, and substituted “such network” for “this network” at the end.

19-13-53. Standardized forms; timing of transmission of information and data entry; responsibility of sheriff’s office.

(a) The courts of this state shall use a standardized form or forms for the issuance of any protective order. The form or forms shall be promulgated by the Uniform Superior Court Rules. The standardized form or forms for protective orders shall be in conformity with the provisions of this Code, shall be subject to the approval of the Georgia Crime Information Center and the Georgia Superior Court Clerks’ Cooperative Authority as to form and format, and shall contain, at a minimum, all information required for entry of protective orders into the registry and the National Crime Information Center Protection Order File. The Administrative Office of the Courts shall distribute the forms. A court may modify the standardized form to comply with the court’s application of the law and facts to an individual case. The form or forms shall contain, at a minimum, all information that is required for entry of protective orders into the registry and the National Crime Information Center Protection Order file.

(b) The clerk of the issuing court shall electronically transmit a copy of the protective order or modification thereof to the registry as expeditiously as possible but no later than by the end of the next business day after the order is filed with the clerk of court. In the event of electronic failure, the clerk of court shall immediately notify the Georgia Crime Information Center which shall authorize an alternative method of transmitting the protective order or modification thereof to the registry.

(c) The Georgia Crime Information Center shall ensure that any protective order or modification thereof is entered in the registry within 24 hours of receipt of the protective order or modification thereof from the clerk of court. The inability to enter information for all data fields in the registry shall not delay the entry of available information.

(d) The sheriff’s department shall be responsible for the validation of all National Crime Information Center protective order entries made on its behalf by the superior court clerk’s office in accordance with the validation steps established by the Georgia Crime Information Center and the National Crime Information Center. All registry entries shall be validated in accordance with the file retention schedule established by the National Crime Information Center. The sheriff shall respond to and confirm “HIT” confirmation requests based upon the records maintained in the sheriff’s office.

(e) The entry of a protective order in the registry shall not be a prerequisite for enforcement of a protective order. (Code 1981, § 19-13-53, enacted by Ga. L. 2001, p. 101, § 1; Ga. L. 2003, p. 321, § 2; Ga. L. 2004, p. 631, § 19; Ga. L. 2015, p. 1349, § 4/HB 452.)

The 2015 amendment, effective July 1, 2015, inserted “thereof” near the end of the first sentence of subsection (c); and, deleted “valid” following “enforcement of a” near the end of subsection (e).

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Transmission of order to Protective Order Registry mandatory. — Although a one-year protective order against a husband had expired at the time of his appeal, rendering certain evidentiary issues moot, other issues which tended to evade review were considered. The trial court did not err in transmitting the protective order to the Georgia Protective Order Registry as required by O.C.G.A. § 19-13-4. Birchby v. Carboy, 311 Ga. App. 538, 716 S.E.2d 592 (2011).

19-13-54. Foreign protective orders.

(a) A petitioner who obtains a foreign protective order may file that order by filing a certified copy of the foreign protective order with any clerk of court of the superior court in this state.

(b) Filing shall be without fee or cost.

(c) The clerk of court shall provide the petitioner with a receipt bearing proof of submission of the foreign protective order for entry in the registry.

(d) The clerk of court shall transmit to the registry a copy of the foreign protective order in the same manner as provided in Code Section 19-13-53.

(e) Foreign protective orders shall not be required to be contained on a standardized form or forms in order to be entered in the registry.

(f) Filing and registry of the foreign protective order in the registry shall not be prerequisites for enforcement of the foreign protective order in this state. (Code 1981, § 19-13-54, enacted by Ga. L. 2001, p. 101, § 1; Ga. L. 2015, p. 1349, § 5/HB 452.)

The 2015 amendment, effective July 1, 2015, deleted “valid” following “who obtains a” near the beginning of subsection (a).

19-13-55. Confidential nature of information in registry.

Any individual, agency, or court which obtains information from the registry shall keep such information or parts thereof confidential, and shall not disseminate or disclose such information, or parts thereof, except as authorized in this article or otherwise by law. Violation of this Code section shall be a misdemeanor. (Code 1981, § 19-13-55, enacted by Ga. L. 2001, p. 101, § 1.)

19-13-56. Liability of court or law enforcement personnel.

(a) The state and any local or state law enforcement officer, court official, or official of the registry shall be held harmless for any delay or failure to file a protective order or modification thereof, to transmit information contained in a protective order or modification thereof, or to enter such information in the registry.

(b) The state and any local or state law enforcement officer, court official, or official of the registry shall be held harmless for acting in reliance upon information registered in the registry or information received for the purpose of entry in the registry. (Code 1981, § 19-13-56, enacted by Ga. L. 2001, p. 101, § 1; Ga. L. 2015, p. 1349, § 6/HB 452.)

The 2015 amendment, effective July 1, 2015, in subsection (a), inserted “or modification thereof” and substituted “a protective order or modification thereof” for “protective orders” near the end.

CHILDREN'S TRUST FUND COMMISSION

19-14-1. Transfer of functions, duties, and personnel of State Children's Trust Fund Commission to Governor's Office for Children and Families.

The functions and duties of the State Children's Trust Fund Commission are hereby transferred to the Governor's Office for Children and Families effective July 1, 2008. All action taken by the State Children's Trust Fund Commission prior to that date shall be considered valid, and the Governor's Office for Children and Families shall as of July 1, 2008, assume all ongoing and continuing obligations of the Children's Trust Fund Commission. All personnel, supplies, records, materials, furniture, furnishings, books, equipment, and services of the Children's Trust Fund Commission shall be transferred to the office on July 1, 2008. (Code 1981, § 19-14-1, enacted by Ga. L. 1987, p. 1133, § 1; Ga. L. 2008, p. 568, § 4/HB 1054.)

Editor's notes. — See the editor's notes following the chapter heading.

Ga. L. 2008, p. 568, § 1/HB 1054, not codified by the General Assembly, provides: "This Act may be cited as the 'Children and Family Services Strengthening Act of 2008.'" Ga. L. 2008, p. 568, § 2/HB 1054, not codified by the General Assembly, provides: “The General Assembly finds that well-intentioned efforts over the years have resulted in the creation of several agencies focused on preventing child abuse and juvenile delinquency, on serving at-risk families and troubled youth, and on promoting the improvement of our state’s child welfare system. The General Assembly further finds that the work of some of these agencies overlaps, and that the at-risk families and troubled children of Georgia will be more efficiently and effectively served by consolidating the Children and Youth Coordinating Council with the Children’s Trust Fund Commission, by placing the functions of the Georgia Child Fatality Review Panel under the supervision of the Child Advocate for the Protection of Children, and by encouraging these consolidated agencies to collaborate to create a consistent vision for serving the needs of our state’s families in need.”

ARTICLE 2

CHILDREN’S TRUST FUND

19-14-20. Creation.

The State Children’s Trust Fund is created as a separate fund in the state treasury. The fund shall be expended only as provided in this chapter and in Part 1 of Article 6 of Chapter 5 of Title 49, and the State Children’s Trust Fund shall continue in existence until repealed by the legislature. (Code 1981, § 19-14-20, enacted by Ga. L. 1987, p. 1133, § 1; Ga. L. 2008, p. 568, § 6/HB 1054.)

19-14-21. Source of funds.

The state treasurer shall credit to the trust fund all amounts appropriated or donated to such trust fund. All funds appropriated to or otherwise paid into the trust fund shall be presumptively concluded to have been committed to the purpose for which they have been appropriated or paid and shall not lapse. (Code 1981, § 19-14-21, enacted by Ga. L. 1987, p. 1133, § 1; Ga. L. 1993, p. 1402, § 18; Ga. L. 1994, p. 509, § 5; Ga. L. 2010, p. 863, § 3/SB 296.)

Editor’s notes. — See the editor’s notes following the chapter heading.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Constitutionality. — O.C.G.A. § 19-14-21 is part of an enrolled Act conclusively presumed to have been enacted in accordance with constitutional requirements; although former subsection (b) was invalid because it violated the proscription against “earmarked” taxes it did not invalidate the remainder of the section; and that section did not violate the constitutional prohibition against bills referring to more than one subject matter because it only refers to one matter. Collins v. Woodham, 257 Ga. 643, 362 S.E.2d 61 (1987).

19-14-22. Investments; interest.

The state treasurer shall invest trust fund money in the same manner in which state funds are invested as authorized by the State Depository Board pursuant to Article 3 of Chapter 17 of Title 50. Interest earned by trust fund money shall be accounted for separately and shall be credited to the trust fund to be disbursed as other moneys in the trust fund. (Code 1981, § 19-14-22, enacted by Ga. L. 1987, p. 1133, § 1; Ga. L. 1993, p. 1402, § 18; Ga. L. 1994, p. 509, § 6; Ga. L. 2010, p. 863, § 3/SB 296.)

19-15-1. Definitions.

As used in this chapter, the term:

- (1) “Abused” means subjected to child abuse.
- (2) “Child” means any person under 18 years of age.
- (3) “Child abuse” means:

- (A) Physical injury or death inflicted upon a child by a parent or caretaker thereof by other than accidental means; provided, however, physical forms of discipline may be used as long as there is no physical injury to the child;
- (B) Neglect or exploitation of a child by a parent or caretaker thereof;
- (C) Sexual abuse of a child; or
- (D) Sexual exploitation of a child.

(4) "Child protection professional" means any person who is employed by the state or a political subdivision of the state as a law enforcement officer, school teacher, school administrator, or school counselor or who is employed to render services to children by the Department of Public Health, the Department of Behavioral Health and Developmental Disabilities, or the Department of Human Services or any county board of health, community service board, or county department of family and children services.

(5) Reserved.

(6) "Investigation" in the context of child death includes all of the following:

(A) A post-mortem examination which may be limited to an external examination or may include an autopsy;

(B) An inquiry by law enforcement agencies having jurisdiction into the circumstances of the death, including a scene investigation and interview with the child's parents, guardian, or caretaker and the person who reported the child's death;

(C) A review of information regarding the child and family from relevant agencies, professionals, and providers of medical care.

(7) "Panel" means the Georgia Child Fatality Review Panel established pursuant to Code Section 19-15-4.

(8) "Protocol committee" means a multidisciplinary, multiagency committee established for a county pursuant to Code Section 19-15-2.

(9) "Report" means a standardized form designated by the panel which is required for collecting data on child fatalities reviewed by local child fatality review committees.

(10) "Review committee" means a multidisciplinary, multiagency child fatality review committee established for a county or circuit pursuant to Code Section 19-15-3.

(11) "Sexual abuse" means a person's employing, using, persuading, inducing, enticing, or coercing any minor who is not that person's spouse to engage in any act which involves:

(A) Sexual intercourse, including genital-genital, oral-genital, anal-genital, or oral-anal, whether between persons of the same or opposite sex;

(B) Bestiality;

(C) Masturbation;

(D) Lewd exhibition of the genitals or pubic area of any person;

- (E) Flagellation or torture by or upon a person who is nude;
- (F) Condition of being fettered, bound, or otherwise physically restrained on the part of a person who is nude;
- (G) Physical contact in an act of apparent sexual stimulation or gratification with any person's clothed or unclothed genitals, pubic area, or buttocks or with a female's clothed or unclothed breasts;
- (H) Defecation or urination for the purpose of sexual stimulation; or
- (I) Penetration of the vagina or rectum by any object except when done as part of a recognized medical procedure.

"Sexual abuse" shall not include consensual sex acts involving persons of the opposite sex when the sex acts are between minors or between a minor and an adult who is not more than three years older than the minor. This provision shall not be deemed or construed to repeal any law concerning the age or capacity to consent.

(12) "Sexual exploitation" means conduct by any person who allows, permits, encourages, or requires that child to engage in:

- (A) Prostitution, as defined in Code Section 16-6-9; or
- (B) Sexually explicit conduct for the purpose of producing any visual or print medium depicting such conduct, as defined in Code Section 16-12-100. (Code 1981, § 19-1-1, enacted by Ga. L. 1990, p. 1785, § 1; Code 1981, § 19-15-1, as redesignated by Ga. L. 1991, p. 94, § 19; Ga. L. 1993, p. 1695, § 2; Ga. L. 1993, p. 1941, § 1; Ga. L. 2001, p. 1158, § 1; Ga. L. 2009, p. 453, § 2-8/HB 228; Ga. L. 2009, p. 733, § 2/SB 69; Ga. L. 2011, p. 705, § 6-3/HB 214; Ga. L. 2014, p. 34, § 2-3/SB 365.)

The 2014 amendment, effective July 1, 2014, substituted "Reserved" for the former provisions of paragraph (5), which read: "'Eligible deaths' means deaths meeting the criteria for review by a county child fatality review committee including deaths resulting from Sudden Infant Death Syndrome, unintentional injuries, intentional injuries, medical conditions when unexpected or when unattended by a physician, or any manner that is suspicious or unusual."; deleted the former last sentence of paragraph (7), which read: "The panel oversees the local child fatality review process and reports to the Governor on the incidence of child deaths with recommendations for prevention."; in paragraph (8), deleted "child abuse protocol" following "multiagency" in the middle of the first sentence and deleted the former last sentence, which read: "The protocol committee is charged with developing local protocols to investigate and prosecute alleged cases of child abuse."; and deleted the former last sentence from paragraph (10), which read: "The review committee is charged with reviewing all eligible child deaths to determine manner and cause of death and if the death was preventable."

Editor's notes. — Ga. L. 2014, p. 34, § 2-1/SB 365, not codified by the General Assembly, provides that: "This part shall be known and may be cited as the 'Journey Ann Cowart Act.'"

Ga. L. 2014, p. 34, § 2-9/SB 365, not codified by the General Assembly, provides that: "It is the intent of the General Assembly to provide for transparency relative to investigations involving child abuse and child fatalities in order to best protect the children of this state. The General Assembly finds that more disclosure of information may be necessary when a child is deceased. The General Assembly intends that agencies and departments of this state share data in order to conduct research for the purpose of preventing child fatalities in this state."

19-15-2. Protocol committee on child abuse; written protocol; training of members; written sexual abuse and exploitation protocol.

(a) Each county shall be required to establish a protocol for the investigation and prosecution of alleged cases of child abuse as provided in this Code section.

(b) The chief superior court judge of the circuit in which the county is located shall establish a protocol committee as provided in subsection (c) of this Code section and shall appoint an interim chairperson who shall preside over the first meeting, and the chief superior court judge shall appoint persons to fill any vacancies on the protocol committee. Thus established, the protocol committee shall thereafter elect a chairperson from its membership. The protocol committee shall be charged with developing local protocols for the investigation and prosecution of alleged cases of child abuse.

(c)(1) Each of the following individuals, agencies, and entities shall designate a representative to serve on the protocol committee:

- (A) The sheriff;
- (B) The county department of family and children services;
- (C) The district attorney for the judicial circuit;
- (D) The juvenile court judge;
- (E) The chief magistrate;
- (F) The county board of education;
- (G) The county mental health organization;
- (H) The chief of police of a county in counties which have a county police department;
- (I) The chief of police of the largest municipality in the county;
- (J) The county public health department, which shall designate a physician to serve on the protocol committee; and
- (K) The coroner or county medical examiner.

(2) In addition to the representatives serving on the protocol committee as provided for in paragraph (1) of this subsection, the chief superior court judge shall designate a representative from a local citizen or advocacy group which focuses on child abuse awareness and prevention.

(3) If any designated agency fails to carry out its duties relating to participation on the protocol committee, the chief superior court judge of the circuit may issue an order requiring the participation of such agency. Failure to comply with such order shall be cause for punishment as for contempt of court.

(d) Each protocol committee shall elect or appoint a chairperson who shall be responsible for ensuring that written protocol procedures are followed by all agencies. Such person can be independent of agencies listed in paragraph (1) of subsection (c) of this Code section. The protocol committee may appoint such additional members as necessary and proper to accomplish the purposes of the protocol committee.

(e) The protocol committee shall adopt a written protocol which shall be filed with the Division of Family and Children Services of the Department of Human Services and the panel, a copy of which shall be furnished to each agency in the county handling the cases of abused children. The protocol shall be a written document outlining in detail the procedures to be used in investigating and prosecuting cases arising from alleged child abuse and the methods to be used in coordinating treatment programs for the perpetrator, the family, and the child. The protocol shall also outline procedures to be used when child abuse occurs in a household where there is violence between past or present spouses, persons who are parents of the same child, parents and children, stepparents and stepchildren, foster parents and foster children, or other persons living or formerly living in the same household. The protocol adopted shall not be inconsistent with the policies and procedures of the Division of Family and Children Services of the Department of Human Services.

(f) The purpose of the protocol shall be to ensure coordination and cooperation between all agencies involved in a child abuse case so as to increase the efficiency of all agencies handling such cases, to minimize the stress created for the allegedly abused child by the legal and investigatory process, and to ensure that more effective treatment is provided for the perpetrator, the family, and the child, including counseling.

(g) Upon completion of the writing of the protocol, the protocol committee shall continue in existence and shall meet at least semiannually for the purpose of evaluating the effectiveness of the protocol and appropriately modifying and updating the same.

(h) Each protocol committee shall adopt or amend its written protocol to specify the circumstances under which law enforcement officers shall and shall not be required to accompany investigators from the county department of family and children services when these investigators investigate reports of child abuse. In determining when law enforcement officers shall and shall not accompany investigators, the protocol committee shall consider the need to protect the alleged victim and the need to preserve the confidentiality of the report. Each protocol committee shall establish joint work efforts between the law enforcement and investigative agencies in child abuse investigations. The adoption or amendment of the protocol shall also describe measures which can be taken within the county to prevent child abuse and shall be filed with and furnished to the same entities with or to which an original protocol is required to be filed or furnished. The protocol shall be further amended to specify procedures to be adopted by the protocol committee to ensure that written protocol procedures are followed.

(i) The protocol committee shall issue a report no later than the first day of July each year. Such report shall evaluate the extent to which investigations of child abuse during the 12 months prior to the report have complied with the protocols of the protocol committee, recommend measures to improve compliance, and describe which measures taken within the county to prevent child abuse have been successful. The report shall be transmitted to the county governing authority, the fall term grand jury of the judicial circuit, the panel, and the chief superior court judge.

(j) Each member of each protocol committee shall receive appropriate training within 12 months after his or her appointment. The Office of the Child Advocate for the Protection of Children shall provide such training.

(k) The protocol committee shall adopt a written sexual abuse and sexual exploitation protocol which shall be filed with the Division of Family and Children Services of the Department of Human Services and the Office of the Child Advocate for the Protection of Children, a copy of which shall be furnished to each agency in the county handling the cases of sexually abused or exploited children. The sexual abuse and sexual exploitation protocol shall be a written document outlining in detail the procedures to be used in investigating and prosecuting cases arising from alleged sexual abuse and sexual exploitation and the procedures to be followed concerning the obtainment of and payment for sexual assault examinations. Each protocol committee shall adopt or amend its written sexual abuse and sexual exploitation protocol. The sexual abuse and sexual exploitation protocol adopted shall be consistent with the policies and procedures of the Division of Family and Children Services of the Department of Human Services. A sexual abuse and sexual exploitation protocol is not intended to, does not, and may not be relied upon to create any rights, substantive or procedural, enforceable at law by any party in any matter civil or criminal. Such protocol shall not limit or otherwise restrict a prosecuting attorney in the exercise of his or her discretion nor in the exercise of any otherwise lawful litigative prerogatives. JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Due process rights of abused child. — Protocol mandated by O.C.G.A. § 19-15-2 vests abused children with an entitlement to the procedures and protection therein, and an abused child may not be deprived of these procedures and protection without procedural due process. Powell v. Department of Human Resources, 918 F. Supp. 1575 (S.D. Ga. 1996), aff’d, 114 F.3d 1074 (11th Cir. 1997).

19-15-3. County review committee; chairperson; eligible deaths for review; notification to coroner; reporting to chairperson; committee review.

(a)(1) Each county shall establish a local review committee as provided in this Code section. The review committee shall be charged with reviewing all deaths as set forth in subsection (e) of this Code section to determine manner and cause of death and if the death was preventable. The chief superior court judge of the circuit in which the county is located shall establish a review committee composed of, but not limited to, the following members:

(A) The county medical examiner or coroner;

(B) The district attorney or his or her designee;

(C) A county department of family and children services representative;

(D) A local law enforcement representative;

(E) The sheriff or county police chief or his or her designee;

(F) A juvenile court representative;

(G) A county public health department representative; and

(H) A county mental health representative.

(2) The district attorney or his or her designee shall serve as the chairperson to preside over all meetings.

(b) Review committee members shall recommend whether to establish a review committee for that county alone or establish a review committee with and for the counties within that judicial circuit.

(c) The chief superior court judge shall appoint persons to fill any vacancies on the review committee should the membership fail to do so.

(d) If any designated agency fails to carry out its duties relating to participation on the review committee, the chief superior court judge of the circuit or any superior court judge who is a member of the panel shall issue an order requiring the participation of such agency. Failure to comply with such order shall be cause for punishment as for contempt of court.

(e) Deaths eligible for review by review committees are all deaths of children ages birth through 17 as a result of:

(1) Sudden Infant Death Syndrome;

(2) Any unexpected or unexplained conditions;

(3) Unintentional injuries;

(4) Intentional injuries;

(5) Sudden death when the child is in apparent good health;

(6) Any manner that is suspicious or unusual;

(7) Medical conditions when unattended by a physician. For the purpose of this paragraph, no person shall be deemed to have died unattended when the death occurred while the person was a patient of a hospice licensed under Article 9 of Chapter 7 of Title 31;

(8) Serving as an inmate of a state hospital or a state, county, or city penal institution; or

(9) Child abuse.

(f) It shall be the duty of any law enforcement officer, medical personnel, or other person having knowledge of the death of a child to immediately notify the coroner or medical examiner of the county wherein the body is found or death occurs.

(g) If the death of a child occurs outside the child's county of residence, it shall be the duty of the medical examiner or coroner in the county where the child died to notify the medical examiner or coroner in the county of the child's residence. It shall be the duty of such medical examiner or coroner to provide the protocol committee of the county of such child's residence with copies of all information and reports required by subsections (i) and (j) of this Code section.

(h) When a county medical examiner or coroner receives a report regarding the death of any child, he or she shall within 48 hours of the death notify the chairperson of the review committee for the county or circuit in which such child resided at the time of death.

(i) The coroner or county medical examiner shall review the findings regarding the cause and manner of death for each child death report received and respond as follows:

(1) If the death does not meet the criteria for review pursuant to subsection (e) of this Code section, the coroner or county medical examiner shall sign the form designated by the panel stating that the death does not meet the criteria for review. He or she shall forward the form and findings, within seven days of the child's death, to the chairperson of the review committee for the county or circuit of the child's residence; or

(2) If the death meets the criteria for review pursuant to subsection (e) of this Code section, the coroner or county medical examiner shall complete and sign the form designated by the panel stating the death meets the criteria for review. He or she shall forward the form and findings, within seven days of the child's death, to the chairperson of the review committee for the county or circuit of the child's residence.

(j) When the chairperson of a review committee receives a report from the coroner or medical examiner regarding the death of a child, such chairperson shall review the report and findings regarding the cause and manner of the child's death and respond as follows:

(1) If the report indicates the child's death does not meet the criteria for review and the chairperson agrees with this decision, the chairperson shall sign the form designated by the panel stating that the death does not meet the criteria for review. He or she shall forward the form and findings to the panel within seven days of receipt;

(2) If the report indicates the child's death does not meet the criteria for review and the chairperson disagrees with this decision, the chairperson shall follow the procedures for deaths to be reviewed pursuant to subsection (k) of this Code section;

(3) If the report indicates the child's death meets the criteria for review and the chairperson disagrees with this decision, the chairperson shall sign the form designated by the panel stating that the death does not meet the criteria for review. The chairperson shall also attach an explanation for this decision; or

(4) If the report indicates the child's death meets the criteria for review and the chairperson agrees with this decision, the chairperson shall follow the procedures for deaths to be reviewed pursuant to subsection (k) of this Code section.

(k) When a child's death meets the criteria for review, the chairperson shall convene the review committee within 30 days after receipt of the report for a meeting to review and investigate the cause and circumstances of the death. Review committee members shall provide information as specified in this subsection, except where otherwise protected by law:

(1) The providers of medical care and the medical examiner or coroner shall provide pertinent health and medical information regarding a child whose death is being reviewed by the review committee;

(2) State, county, or local government agencies shall provide all of the following data on forms designated by the panel for reporting child fatalities:

(A) Birth information for children who died at less than one year of age, including confidential information collected for medical and health use;

(B) Death information for children who have not reached their eighteenth birthday;

(C) Law enforcement investigative data, medical examiner or coroner investigative data, and parole and probation information and records;

(D) Medical care, including dental, mental, and prenatal health care; and

(E) Pertinent information from any social services agency that provided services to the child or family; and

(3) The review committee may obtain from any superior court judge of the county or circuit for which the review committee was created a subpoena to compel the production of documents or attendance of witnesses when that judge has made a finding that such documents or witnesses are necessary for the review committee's review. Service of, objection to, and enforcement of subpoenas authorized by this Code section shall be governed by the procedures set forth in Chapter 13 of Title 24. However, this Code section shall not modify or impair the privileged communications as provided by law except as otherwise provided in Code Section 19-7-5.

(4) Disclosure of protected health information pursuant to this subsection shall be considered to be for a law enforcement purpose, and the review committee shall be considered to be a law enforcement official within the meaning of the rules and regulations adopted pursuant to the federal Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act of 1996. Disclosure of confidential or privileged matter to the review committee pursuant to this Code section shall not serve to destroy or in any way abridge the confidential or privileged character thereof, except for the purpose for which such disclosure is made.

(1) The review committee shall complete its review and prepare a report of the child's death within 20 days, weekends and holidays excluded, following the first meeting held after receipt of the county medical examiner or coroner's report. The review committee's report shall:

(1) State the circumstances leading up to death and cause of death;

(2) Detail any agency involvement prior to death, including the beginning and ending dates and kinds of services delivered, the reasons for initial agency activity, and the reasons for any termination of agency activities;

(3) State whether any agency services had been delivered to the family or child prior to the circumstances leading to the child's death;

(4) State whether court intervention had ever been sought;

(5) State whether there have been any acts or reports of violence between past or present spouses, persons who are parents of the same child, parents and children, stepparents and stepchildren, foster parents and foster children, or other persons living or formerly living in the same household;

(6) Conclude whether services or agency activities delivered prior to death were appropriate and whether the child's death could have been prevented;

(7) Make recommendations for possible prevention of future deaths of similar incidents for children who are at risk for such deaths; and

(8) Include other findings as requested by the panel.

(m) The review committee shall transmit a copy of its report within 15 days of completion to the panel.

(n) The review committee shall transmit a copy of its report within 15 days following its completion to the district attorney of the county or circuit for which the review committee was created if the report concluded that the child named therein died as a result of:

(1) Sudden Infant Death Syndrome when no autopsy was performed to confirm the diagnosis;

(2) Accidental death when it appears that the death could have been prevented through intervention or supervision;

(3) Any sexually transmitted disease;

(4) Medical causes which could have been prevented through intervention by an agency or by seeking medical treatment;

(5) Suicide of a child in custody or known to the Department of Human Services or when the finding of suicide is suspicious;

(6) Suspected or confirmed child abuse;

(7) Trauma to the head or body; or

(8) Homicide.

(o) Each review committee shall issue an annual report no later than the first day of July each year. The report shall:

(1) Specify the numbers of reports received by such review committee from a county medical examiner or coroner pursuant to subsection (h) of this Code section for the preceding calendar year;

(2) Specify the number of reports of child fatality reviews prepared by the review committee during such period;

(3) Be published at least once annually in the legal organ of the county or counties for which the review committee was established with the expense of such publication paid each by such county; and

(4) Be transmitted, no later than the fifteenth day of July each year, to the panel. (Code 1981, § 19-1-3, enacted by Ga. L. 1990, p. 1785, § 1; Code 1981, § 19-15-3, as redesignated by Ga. OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Authority of Georgia Child Fatality Review Panel and local child fatality review committees. — Georgia Child Fatality Review Panel and local child fatality review committees are public health authorities as defined by the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act of 1966 Pub. L. No. 104-191, 110 Stat. 1936, and regulations promulgated pursuant to the Act by the Department of Health and Human Services, as such they are authorized to receive public health information, including reports of child abuse and neglect, and they are authorized to obtain protected health information from covered entities under the Act’s public health exception. 2004 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 2004-9.

19-15-4. Georgia Child Fatality Review Panel.

(a) There is created the Georgia Child Fatality Review Panel. The panel shall oversee the local child fatality review process and report to the Governor on the incidence of child deaths with recommendations for prevention.

(b) The director of the Georgia Bureau of Investigation or his or her designee shall coordinate the work of the panel and shall provide such administrative and staff support to the panel as may be necessary to enable the panel to discharge its duties under this chapter. The panel shall be attached to the Division of Forensic Sciences of the Georgia Bureau of Investigation for administrative purposes, and its planning, policy, and budget functions shall be coordinated with those of the Division of Forensic Sciences of the Georgia Bureau of Investigation.

(c) The panel shall be composed as follows:

- (1) One district attorney appointed by the Governor;
- (2) One juvenile court judge appointed by the Governor;
- (3) Two citizen members who are not employed by or officers of the state or any political subdivision thereof shall be appointed by the Governor, one of whom shall come from each of the following:

- (A) A state-wide child abuse prevention organization; and
 - (B) A state-wide childhood injury prevention organization;
 - (4) One forensic pathologist appointed by the Governor;
 - (5) The chairperson of the Board of Human Services;
 - (6) The director of the Division of Family and Children Services of the Department of Human Services;
 - (7) The director of the Georgia Bureau of Investigation;
 - (8) The chairperson of the Criminal Justice Coordinating Council;
 - (9) A member of the Georgia Senate appointed by the Lieutenant Governor;
 - (10) A member of the Georgia House of Representatives appointed by the Speaker of the House of Representatives;
 - (11) A local law enforcement official appointed by the Governor;
 - (12) A superior court judge appointed by the Governor;
 - (13) A coroner appointed by the Governor;
 - (14) The Child Advocate for the Protection of Children;
 - (15) The commissioner of public health;
 - (16) The commissioner of behavioral health and developmental disabilities;
 - (17) A member of the State Board of Education appointed by the Governor; and
 - (18) The commissioner of early care and learning.
- (d) The Governor shall appoint the chairperson of the panel.
- (e)(1) All appointed members shall be appointed for terms of two years beginning on July 1 of the year appointed and shall serve until their respective successors are appointed and qualified.
- (2) All ex officio members shall serve during the time such persons hold the offices or positions specified therein.
- (3) Members of the General Assembly shall serve for terms of office concurrent with their terms of office as members of the General Assembly.
- (4) Vacancies in the membership of the panel so appointed shall be filled in the same manner as the original appointment for the unexpired term of office.

(f) Members of the panel who are members of the General Assembly shall be compensated for service on the panel from legislative funds in the manner provided for service on interim study committees. Those members of the panel who are not state officials or employees shall receive from funds appropriated or otherwise available to the panel for their services on the panel the same daily expense and travel or mileage allowance authorized for members of the General Assembly for service on interim study committees. The members of the panel who are state officials or employees shall receive no additional compensation for their service on the panel but may be reimbursed for reasonable and necessary travel expenses which shall be payable from the department or agency of which such member is an employee or officer.

(g) The panel shall meet quarterly to review the reports of local review committees and shall meet when requested to do so by the Governor.

(h) The purpose of the panel is to recommend measures to decrease the incidence of child death by undertaking all of the following duties:

- (1) Identify factors which place a child at risk for death;
- (2) Collect and share information among state agencies which provide services to children and families or investigate child deaths;
- (3) Make suggestions and recommendations to appropriate participating agencies regarding improving coordination of services and investigations;
- (4) Identify trends relevant to unexpected or unexplained child death;
- (5) Investigate the relationship, if any, between child deaths and violence between past or present spouses, persons who are parents of the same child, parents and children, stepparents and stepchildren, foster parents and foster children, or other persons living or formerly living in the same household;
- (6) Review each report from local child fatality review committees. The chairperson may call a special meeting of the panel to review any report when the chairperson has concluded the report warrants expedited review and has been requested by the submitting local review committee to make such expedited review;
- (7) Provide training and written materials to the local review committees to assist them in carrying out their duties. Such written materials shall include model protocols for the operation of the review committees;
- (8) Develop a protocol for child fatality investigations and revise the protocol as needed;

(9) Monitor the operations of local review committees to determine training needs and service gaps. If the panel determines that changes to any statute, regulation, or policy is needed to decrease the risk of child death, it shall propose and recommend such changes in its annual report; and

(10) Develop and implement such procedures and policies as are necessary for its own operation.

(i) By January 1 of each calendar year, the panel shall submit a report to the Governor, the Lieutenant Governor, the Speaker of the House of Representatives, the chairperson of the Senate Judiciary Committee, and the chairperson of the House Committee on Judiciary regarding the prevalence and circumstances of child fatalities in this state; shall recommend measures to reduce such fatalities caused by other than natural causes; and shall address in the report the following issues:

- (1) Whether the deaths could have been prevented;
- (2) Whether the children were known to any state or local agency;
- (3) The actions, if any, taken by any state or local agency or court;
- (4) Whether agency or court intervention could have prevented their deaths;
- (5) Whether policy, procedural, regulatory, or statutory changes are called for as a result of these findings; and
- (6) Whether any referral should have been made to a law enforcement agency which was not made.

(j) The panel shall also establish procedures for the conduct of reviews by local review committees into deaths of children and may obtain the assistance of child protection professionals in establishing such procedures.

(k) The panel shall have the authority to obtain from any superior court judge of the county or circuit for which the matter is pending a subpoena to compel the production of documents or attendance of witnesses if the county multiagency child fatality review committee has not exercised its authority to subpoena the documents or witnesses as provided in paragraph (3) of subsection (k) of Code Section 19-15-3; provided, however, if a superior court judge has previously ruled that the records or witnesses are not necessary to the fatality review at issue, such finding shall be conclusive on the issuance of the subpoena. (Code 1981, § 19-1-4, enacted by Ga. L. 1990, p. 1785, § 1; Code 1981, § 19-15-4, as redesignated by Ga. L. 1991, p. 94, § 19; Ga. L. 1993, p. 1695, § 2; Ga. L. 1993, p. 1941, § 1; Ga. L. 2001, p. 1158, § 1; Ga. L. 2003, p. 395, § 2; Ga. L. 2008, p. 166, § 2/HB 1051; Ga. L. 2008, p. 568, § 8/HB 1054; Ga. L. 2009, p. 453, § 1-19/HB 228; Ga. L. 2011, p. 705, § 5-4/HB 214; Ga. L. 2014, p. 34, § 2-6/SB 365.)

The 2014 amendment, effective July 1, 2014, rewrote this Code section.

Editor's notes. — Ga. L. 2008, p. 568, § 1/HB 1054, not codified by the General Assembly, provides: "This Act may be cited as the 'Children and Family Services Strengthening Act of 2008.'"

Ga. L. 2008, p. 568, § 2/HB 1054, not codified by the General Assembly, provides: "The General Assembly finds that well-intentioned efforts over the years have resulted in the creation of several agencies focused on preventing child abuse and juvenile delinquency, on serving at-risk families and troubled youth, and on promoting the improvement of our state's child welfare system. The General Assembly further finds that the work of some of these agencies overlaps, and that the at-risk families and troubled children of Georgia will be more efficiently and effectively served by consolidating the Children and Youth Coordinating Council with the Children's Trust Fund Commission, by placing the functions of the Georgia Child Fatality Review Panel under the supervision of the Child Advocate for the Protection of Children, and by encouraging these consolidated agencies to collaborate to create a consistent vision for serving the needs of our state's families in need."

Ga. L. 2014, p. 34, § 2-1/SB 365, not codified by the General Assembly, provides that: "This part shall be known and may be cited as the 'Journey Ann Cowart Act.'"

Ga. L. 2014, p. 34, § 2-9/SB 365, not codified by the General Assembly, provides that: "It is the intent of the General Assembly to provide for transparency relative to investigations involving child abuse and child fatalities in order to best protect the children of this state. The General Assembly finds that more disclosure of information may be necessary when a child is deceased. The General Assembly intends that agencies and departments of this state share data in order to conduct research for the purpose of preventing child fatalities in this state."

Att'y Gen. No. 2004-9.

19-15-5. Meetings and proceedings of committees or subcommittees and panels.

(a) A protocol committee or review committee in the exercise of its duties shall be closed to the public and shall not be subject to Chapter 14 of Title 50, relating to open meetings.

(b) The panel shall be open to the public as long as information identifying a deceased or abused child, any family member of the child, or alleged or suspected perpetrator of abuse upon the child is not disclosed during such meetings or proceedings, but the panel is authorized to close such meeting to the public when such identifying information is required to be disclosed to members of the panel in order for the panel to carry out its duties. (Code 1981, § 19-1-5, enacted by Ga. L. 1990, p. 1785, § 1; Code 1981, § 19-15-5, as redesignated by Ga. L. 1991, p. 94, § 19; Ga. L. 1993, p. 1695, § 2; Ga. L. 1993, p. 1941, § 1; Ga. L. 2001, p. 1158, § 1.)

Editor's notes. — Ga. L. 1990, p. 1785, § 2, not codified by the General Assembly, provides that nothing in this Code section shall be construed to authorize or require the inspection of any records or the release of any information if that inspection or release would result in the loss of any federal funds to the state.

19-15-6. Use of information and records of protocol committees, review committees, and panels.

(a) Records and other documents which are made public records pursuant to any other provisions of law shall remain public records notwithstanding their being obtained, considered, or both, by a protocol committee, a review committee, or the panel.

(b) Notwithstanding any other provision of law to the contrary, reports of a review committee made pursuant to Code Section 19-15-3 and reports of the panel made pursuant to Code Section 19-15-4 shall be public records and shall be released to any person making a request therefor, but the protocol committee, review committee, or panel having possession of such records or reports shall only release them after expunging therefrom all information contained therein which would permit identifying the deceased or abused child, any family member of the child, any alleged or suspected perpetrator of abuse upon the child, or any reporter of suspected child abuse.

(c) Statistical compilations of data by a review committee or the panel based upon information received thereby and containing no information which would permit the identification of any person shall be public records.

(d) Members of a protocol committee, a review committee, or of the panel shall not disclose what transpires at any meeting other than one made public by Code Section 19-15-5 nor disclose any information the disclosure of which is prohibited by this Code section, except to carry out the purposes of this chapter. Any person who knowingly violates this subsection shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

(e) A person who presents information to a protocol committee, a review committee, or the panel or who is a member of any such body shall not be questioned in any civil or criminal proceeding regarding such presentation or regarding opinions formed by or confidential information obtained by such person as a result of serving as a member of any such body. This subsection shall not be construed to prohibit any person from testifying regarding information obtained independently of a protocol committee, a review committee, or the panel. In any proceeding in which testimony of such a member is offered the court shall first determine the source of such witness's knowledge.

(f) Except as otherwise provided in this Code section, information acquired by and records of a protocol committee, a review committee, or the panel shall be confidential, shall not be disclosed, and shall not be subject to Article 4 of Chapter 18 of Title 50, relating to open records, or subject to subpoena, discovery, or introduction into evidence in any civil or criminal proceeding.

(g) A member of a protocol committee, a review committee, or the panel shall not be civilly liable or subject to criminal prosecution for any disclosure of information made by such member as authorized by this Code section.

(h) Members of the review committee, persons attending a review committee meeting, and persons who present information to a review committee may release information to such government agencies as is necessary for the purpose of carrying out assigned review committee duties.

(i) Notwithstanding any other provisions of law, information acquired by and documents, records, and reports of the panel and protocol committees and review committees applicable to a child who at the time of his or her death was in the custody of a state department or agency or foster parent shall not be confidential and shall be subject to Article 4 of Chapter 18 of Title 50, relating to open records. (Code 1981, § 19-1-6, enacted by Ga. L. 1990, p. 1785, § 1; Code 1981, § 19-15-6, as redesignated by Ga. L. 1991, p. 94, § 19; Ga. L. 1993, p. 1695, § 2; Ga. L. 1993, p. 1941, § 1; Ga. The 2014 amendment, effective July 1, 2014, substituted “therefor, but the protocol committee, review committee, or panel” for “therefor but the panel protocol committee review committee” in the middle of subsection (b); substituted “liable or subject to criminal prosecution” for “or criminally liable” in the middle of subsection (g); and deleted “child abuse” preceding “protocol committees” near the beginning of subsection (i).

§ 2, provides that nothing in that Act shall be construed to authorize or require the inspection of any records or the release of any information if that inspection or release would result in the loss of any federal funds to the state.

Ga. L. 2014, p. 34, § 2-1/SB 365, not codified by the General Assembly, provides that: “This part shall be known and may be cited as the ‘Journey Ann Cowart Act.’”

Editor's notes. — Ga. L. 1990, p. 1785,

Ga. L. 2014, p. 34, § 2-9/SB 365, not codified by the General Assembly, provides that: "It is the intent of the General Assembly to provide for transparency relative to investigations involving child abuse and child fatalities in order to best protect the children of this state. The General Assembly finds that more disclosure of information may be necessary when a child is deceased. The General Assembly intends that agencies and departments of this state share data in order to conduct research for the purpose of preventing child fatalities in this state."

19-15-7. Construction of chapter.

Nothing in this chapter shall be construed to authorize or require the inspection of any records or the release of any information if that inspection or release would result in the loss of any federal funds to the state.
